The naming of this commission is a result of the recent meeting here of the Alabama tariff Congress, which agreed to join with other southern states in presenting to Congress an appeal for protection against agricultural commodities produced by cheap labor in foreign countries.

The annual meeting of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation will be held this year at Auburn, August 5-6, in connection with "Farmers' Week." Decision to this effect was reached recently by the Farm Bureau executive committee following receipt of an invitation from Dr. Bradford Knapp, President of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Choctaw County has made the necessary appropriation for establishment of full-time county health service, according to notice received by Dr. Douglas L. Cannon, State Health Officer. Actual establishment of a health unit in Choctaw will take place in the near future, making a total of 51 of the 67 counties of the State having the services of full-time county health officers.

Loss of Power

and vital force follow loss of flesh, or emaciation. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a herbal tonic that enriches the blood, stops the waste of strength and tissue, and helps to build up healthy flesh.

Thin, pale, puny, pimply children are made plump, rosy and robust by the "Discovery." All druggists.

In recovering from "Grippe," or in convalescence from pneumonia, fevers or other wasting diseases, it speedily and surely invigorates and builds up the whole system. Read this:

Monroe, La.—"My son was suffering with bad spells of indigestion and the doctor failed to relieve him. Finally my husband brought home some of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. He took several bottles and has had no stomach trouble since, for which I am more than thankful."—Mrs. W. B. Folmar, 216 N. 4th St.

JUDAH TAKEN CAPTIVE

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 25:1-21.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Nation That Forgot God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Nation That Forgot God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—National Accountability to God.

Zedekiah was made king of Judah by the king of Babylon (II Kings 24:17), but in spite of this kindness and the word of the Lord spoken to him by Jeremiah (Jer. 34:17, 18, cf. Jer. 52:3), he rebelled against the king of Babylon. He relied upon the help of Egypt, but all that Egypt could do was to cause temporary interruption of the siege of Jerusalem.

1. The time (vv. 1, 2).

It began on the tenth day of the tenth month of the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign and lasted about eighteen months. The tenth month, according to the Jewish calendar, corresponds to our December, January, as their calendar year began about the middle of March. The reason the exact time is given is that this was to be an event of great importance to the Jews in their exile.

2. The method (v. 1). Nebuchadnezzar came with a large army and encamped against Jerusalem and built forts against it round about. It is thought that siege walls were built around the city, shutting it in. On the tops of these walls forts were built from which missiles of destruction could be hurled by their engines of war against the city.

3. The famine (v. 3).

Geikie says, "It was speedily followed, as is always the case, with an outbreak of pestilence. Food was well-nigh gone. There had long been no bread. Mothers were at last driven to murder and eat their children. The richest citizens wandered about searching for scraps in the dung hills." It is estimated that one-third of the people of Jerusalem died of starvation.

II. Zedekiah's Flight and Fate (vv. 4-7).

1. "The city was broken up" (v. 4).

The Chaldeans had succeeded in making an opening in the wall so large that they could make their way into the city in spite of all that the Hebrews could do.

2. Zedekiah's flight (v. 4).

The king with his men of war fled by night toward the plain. His object no doubt was to cross the Jordan at Jericho and hide in the mountains east of the river.

3. Zedekiah's fate (vv. 5-7).

(1) He was overtaken in the plains of Jericho (v. 5). When his flight was discovered, the Chaldean army pursued and captured him. (2) He was brought to the king of Babylon at Riblah (v. 6), a town north of Damascus. It was the king's headquarters from which he directed his armies against Tyre and Jerusalem. Zedekiah was tried as a criminal before Nebuchadnezzar. (3) His fate (v. 7). His sons were slain in his sight; his eyes were put out; he was bound with fetters of brass and they carried him to Babylon where he remained prisoner until the day of his death (Jer. 52:11).

III. Jerusalem Destroyed (vv. 8-10).

The dismantling of the city was delayed a month, perhaps awaiting instructions from Nebuchadnezzar, who was at Riblah.

1. They burnt of the house of the Lord (v. 9).

This was the sacred temple built by Solomon, with additions and modifications. Before burning it was despoiled of all its sacred contents.

2. Burnt the king's house (v. 9).

3. Burnt all the houses of Jerusalem (v. 9).

The implication is that the common houses were left for the people (v. 12).

4. They broke down the walls of Jerusalem.

IV. The Disposition of the Temple Furniture and Priests (vv. 13-21).

1. The temple furniture (vv. 13-17).

The pillars of brass and the brazen sea were broken into pieces by the Babylonians and were carried to Babylon.

2. Certain officers and priests (vv. 18-21).

Certain officers, priests and three score men were taken to Riblah by the king of Babylon, and were slain.

From Small Beginnings

Prayer brings God into what men are pleased to term the little affairs of life. The lives of people are made up of these small matters: yet how often do great consequences come from small beginnings!—E. M. Bounds.

Color-Blind Towards God

SINGING AT MESSER'S CHAPEL

Our singing at Messers Chape Sunday, June 9, was not attended by a vast throng of people, the majority of whom go to see and be seen, but those who came seemed to enter into the purpose and spirit of the day—singing praises to God. The several directors who sang and many of the class singers expressed themselves as being very much pleased with the day and pronounced it a splendid singing.

The Clanton Quartet rendered several splendid pieces, which were as usual with this popular bunch, enjoyed by all present. We sincerely thank all who contributed in any way in making the day a success and cordially invite you to worship with us any time you see fit.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.
M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

THORSBY SECTION

S. E. NORTON, Manager

In going about Thorsby we have noted some rather substantial improvements made recently in some of the homes of her people, giving a sort of finished effect that is pleasing to the eye and senses.

We remember of a visitor from the East who spent a few days in Thorsby several years ago, in talking to the writer he remarked, "Everything here seems so raw." I reckon he was right. But the coming of electric lights and power, with more prosperity among our citizens has stimulated better conditions among the people. Fred Howard has recently painted his house, put in an electric pump and lights, cleared up the grounds about his place with his sightly location, will make it in time a beatuy spot.

Nat Bentley is another who has so improved the grounds about his home as to give it quite a citified air, there are others who have done considerable of such work. One thing needed is a systematic grading of streets, the laying of concrete walks and the planting of trees to make a beautiful Thorsby.

J. W. Randolph and G. W. Leslie who bought the Andrew Grenn place have moved their families in from Ensley and after this week their ladies will be glad to receive calls from Thorsby ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Scogin of Birmingham spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Townsend at their home in Thorsby.

Mr. and Mrs. Yancey M. Kelly and daughter, Audrey, of Birmingham, made a brief call at the Norton home in Thorsby as they were going to Andulusia, where Mr. Kelley's grandparents are very ill.

Mrs. Fred Larkins and daughters, Lyda and Louise, of Chicago, visited Mrs. Larkin's mother, Mrs. Forsman, at her Thorsby home last week. The girls left for Chicago last Friday, while Mrs. Larkins will remain for several days.

The P.-T. A. will meet at the home of Mrs. J. E. Each at 2:30 p. m. Saturday, June 22nd. This will be the time of the "Hen Sale" for the benefit of the public school water system. See notice elsewhere in this issue.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Bice and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Pate went for a picnic Sunday to Gary Springs.

Rev. Each will preach at the Congregational church next Sunday night. The usual morning service hour will be devoted to Children's Day exercises.

Quite a number of the Congregational people gave a surprise party Monday night as a "Welcome Home" to Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Williams and family. Games were played, followed by a short but interesting program.

Monday afternoon Mrs. J. E. Each gave a party to several Thorsby ladies who spent a couple of enjoyable hours.

Last Sunday was Children's Day at the Baptist church. The largest recent attendance at Sunday school was reported and two new members were received by the church.

We are glad to know that Miss Effie Nugent is recovering from serious burns received from an overturned kettle of boiling water.

Misses Ruth and Jewell Martin were hostesses at a bridal shower given Wednesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Wilbur Marcus.

Mrs. Robert Johnson is on the sick list.

Rev. and Mrs. Each with Miss Margurite Davison and Miss Lorena Primm went to East View church last Sunday evening where Mr. Each preached a short sermon and took part in Children's Day exercises.

Rev. A. C. Nelson, pastor of East View church, is planning to attend the Summer Conference at Blue Ridge, North Carolina, going by motor and taking with him a load of young people from Thorsby.

Misses Frances Wilson and Doris Freeman returned last wek from Piedmont college at Demorest, Ga., where they have been students for the past school year.

Miss Lois Leech, matron of Thorsby Institute dormitory, left Sunday night for her home in Minneapolis. At Birmingham she met Mrs. Howe, mother of Mrs. Ethel Wright Loveland, who will accompany her as far as Chicago.

In a letter recently received from Sereno G. Norton, now located at Brunswick, Ga., he tells of a turtle egg hunt party on a full moon night in May. The party was composed of some 25 people who went to Jekyl Island in the Atlantic Ocean about 16 miles from Brunswick.

Arriving about 9 p. m. they watched several of these monster crustaceans come out of the water, waddle about 200 yards up the sandy beach where they proceeded to dig holes in the sand, in which they laid about 150 eggs each. These eggs were about the size of a golf ball and have a soft tough covering. When covered the turtles leave them for the sun to hatch, and probably never see their offspring.

The turtles are of immense size, weighing from 600 to 700 pounds each. He says "we rode on their backs." They are said to live 900 years. They are said to come annully from Islands in the gulf, hundreds of males, lay their eggs and immediately return to the water. The party gathered about three hundred of the eggs and reached home about 3 a. m.

The writer has seen these great turtles alive, on display at fish markets and restaurants in Chicago and knows their size is not exaggerated.

Rev. E. W. Butler and family had a very pleasant surprise Monday evening when Mr. Butler's nephew, Lieut. C. D. Wheeler, an instructor in the Aviation Corps at Brooks Field, Sanu Antonio, Texas, dropped in for a call. Lieut. Wheeler is one of half a dozen officers detailed on a flight on Government business from Brooks Field to Langley Field, Virginia. They stopped for a few hours at Maxwell Field, Montgomery, where Mr. Wheeler looked up his cousin, C. T. Butler, who immediately arranged with his own family and Mr. Wheeler for the trip to Thorsby. Lieut. Wheeler, though still a young man, has had nearly a thousand hours in the air, and can talk very entertainingly of his chosen work.

Mrs. Fred Howard with her sister, Mrs. Ida Brueckner, Mrs. Harold Olson and Mabel and Lucile Howard, drove through the country for the week end to Tuscaloosa. They report many beautiful new buildings being erected and especially enjoyed hearing the "Denny Chimes," a most recent tower built on the University grounds.

Miss Ida Brueckner, sister of Mrs. Fred Howard, who has been visiting her from Milwaukee, Wis., left this week to extend her visit through Texas and California, and back to Milwaukee.

Mabel and Lucile Howard, Mrs. Fred Howard and sister, Miss Brueckner, Mrs. Harold Olson and Mr. Leonard Weldon drove to Montgomery Tuesday night.

Mrs. Harold Olson of Chicago who has been spending the last two weeks here visiting relatives and friends, returned to her home in Chicago Thursday.

Mr. C. A. Meade and Mr. Malcolm Manning made a business trip to Birmingham Saturday.

The Baptist Ladies Aid will meet with Mrs. Connatser, south of town, on this week, Thursday.

Mrs. C. Hall, daughter, Mrs. Harry Shimmuel, granddaughter, and Clem, Esther and Bobby, great-grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. David Paxson, all of Birmingham, spent Sunday here.

Mrs. P. W. Horn and Mrs. A. K. Horn spent Monday at the home of Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Reagan and Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Soberg spent Sunday and Monday in Birmingham visiting relatives.

Mr. Haber Hanson and sister, motored through last week from Gary, Indiana, and are visiting relatives here in Thorsby.

F. A. Gulledge Tells About His Trip

Editor Union-Banner:

The writer together with nine others of his family attended the annual Confederate Reunion at Charlotte, NorthCarolina, held on the fourth to the seventh instant, which is now a thing of the past, and will go down in southern history as one of the South's greatest gatherings.

We found the citizens of Charlotte with its different committees for entertaining, with the Boy Scouts of Charlotte and nearby cities all with open arms, anxious to minister to the Veterans and all others who were attending. Charlotte, one of the most magnificent cities the writer has seen, is said to contain a population of eighty-one thousand. The hotels, street car service and automobiles and everything to make it a success for the visitors were in evidence. All were loud in their praise of Charlotte and in fact for North Carolina and its people. One of the objects of our visit was to visit Wadesboro and Anson County generally, where the Gulledges landed from England in 1760, many of them remaining upon and nearby the homes that they owned one hundred and fifty years ago. We visited the birthplace of our parents, and the graves of our grandparents and other kindred. We also visited Deep Creek Church, standing upon three acres of ground, that my great uncle deeded in 1816 to the Primitive Baptist Church, now a missionary Baptist Church, called Deep Creek Church. We also visited White's Store of more than one hundred year's standing; also Gulledge's Muster Ground upon which was fought the greatest fistic battle ever known before or since, lasting sixteen and one quarter minutes, participated in by Bill McCre and Jim Gathens, the respective bullies of Gulledge's township and White's Store township. The result of the fight being the death of McCree in six weeks, and Cathens in seven months. Neither was declared the winner, but a draw. It was common in those days (about 1830) for one township to challenge another, put up their would-be-bullies and await the contest. On this ground my father, Joel Gulledge, cast his first vote in 1832 for Andrew Jackson for president of the United States and from that to the date of his death in 1902 he did not ever scratch the Democratic ticket.

About this same date he was married to Elizabeth Mitchell, the daughter of Jacob Mitchell, who was a revolutionary soldier and pure Scotch-Irish; he and his wife came to Alabama with my father and mother, settling at the junction of the Tallapoosa and Coosa Rivers, where the old people died in 1834 and were buried in old Fort Toulouse.

While Anson County is a very old part of the United States, everything points to a progressive citizenship in that section. Good roads, good buildings and good farms all bespeak a high order of citizenship. We had never seen our kinspeople until we went there, but we had every cause to be proud of them. They are also keeping Democratic faith, yet broad gauged and liberal towards other political and religious views.

I regret to report several old veterans dying while at the reunion; the deaths for the time being were suppressed by the Charlotte Press, for which they were pardonable.

Our next reunion will be held at Biloxi, Miss., the home of our lamented Confederate president, Jefferson Davis. All who can should attend.

F. A. GULLEDGE.

VISITING SON IN CLANTON

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Walker of Goodwater are spending a few days in Clanton with their son, Mr. G. C. Walker, and his family. The elder Mr. Walker has been in bad health for several months, but is much better now.

W. R. Walker is one of well-known men in public life of Coosa County. He has in past years served two terms as Sheriff of the County. He was Coosa's representative in the Alabama Legislature during the O'Neal administration.

REACH HONOR ROLL AT ALABAMA COLLEGE

Shorty Miner, who is now with the Nettles Grocery Company in Montgomery, was at home in Clanton last Sunday.

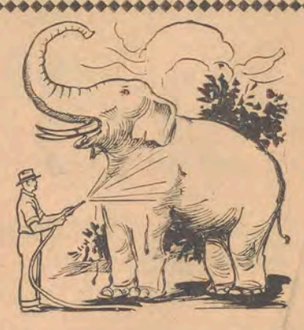
T. L. ROBINSON ORGANIZER OF THE SALEM SINGING

Our attention has been called to the omission of the name of Mr. T. L. Robinson, of Verbena, among those who attended and took part in the annual singing at Providence the fourth Sunday in May. We are sorry of this omission, especially in view of the fact that Mr. Robinson was one of the prime factors in the organization of the singing at Salem thirty years ago, and has never missed a single session since that time.

Those who are familiar with the history of this annual affair will remember when the first singing was held at Salem Baptist church on the river thirty years ago. Mr. Robinson was one of the leading singers of that time, and his continued interest in music throughout the years is largely responsible for the continuation of the event at Salem every year on the Fourth Sunday in May.

When the back waters of Lake Mitchell came up a few years ago the Salem community was practically inundated. The people who had lived there and made the community and the church had to sell their lands and move out to higher ground. The church was disbanded, but the annual singing did not stop.

The adjoining community of Providence was glad to take over the Salem singing and continue the tradition that had been established and preserved for a quarter of a century.



The Union-Banner and the secretary of the singing extend apologies to Mr. Robinson for the omission of his name. It was not intentional on the part of anybody. We hope that "Uncle Till" will be gracious enough to forgive us for our shortcomings.

Clinic For Cripples Here On June 28

Clanton Kiwanis Club Will Help to Get Crippled Children Here

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton will take an active interest in the work of the clinic for cripple children to be held at Clanton on Friday, June 28th. Mrs. Stapp, child welfare worker, came before the club last Thursday and explained the plans, giving a brief outline of the survey that has been conducted to locate the children of the county whom it is hoped will be brought to the clinic for examination.

The members of the club agreed to assist Mrs. Stapp in every way possible to the end that every cripple child in the county may be brought in and given free examination.

Several Kiwanians volunteered the services of their automobiles on that day to go after any child that has no way to come to Clanton. Martin's ambulance will be used to bring some.

Kiwanian W. W. Fox, who is chairman of the club committee on underprivileged children, is cooperating with Mrs. Stapp in the arrangement for conducting the examinations. The place of examination will be at the Clanton Baptist Church. Examinations will be conducted by Dr. Sherrill of Birmingham, who will also make recommendations for treatment and estimates of the cost.

Dr. Sherrill is one of three leading bone specialists of Alabama who are giving their services free to examination and recommendations for cripple children in cooperation with the various county units of the State Child Welfare Department.

The Clinic is not only for those who are crippled but for those who have flat feet or any other type of deformity. This examination is of the same nature you would receive from specialists from clinics in Birminham, Montgomery, Selma or any other city. The doctor will give as much care and thought as if the patient were in his own office. In this way, it is hoped that many will attend the Clanton Clinic who would otherwise be unable to go to one at a greater distance. The Clinic examinations and recommendations are absolutely free.

County superintendent of Education, Buford Lawrence, together with Prof. H. A. Harris principal of the Stanton School, and Prof. J. D. Griffin, principal of Isabella School are at the University of Alabama this week attending some special conferences on the subject of school administration. Mr. Harris will give some time to conferences on management of opportunity schools.

KIWANIS CLUB TO HAVE A PARTY AT THE RIVER

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton will have a party at the summer camps of Dr. Upchurch and Mell Martin on Lake Mitchell next Monday afternoon and night. The Club members will take their wives as guests.

The occasion will be all-Kiwanis night. At the stated hour the International Convention will pause in its session at Milwaukee, and every Kiwanis Club in the United States and Canada will join in one and the same program at the same time.

CLANTON QUARTET WILL SING AT LIBERTY, AUTAUGA COUNTY

The Clanton Quartet will sing at Liberty Baptist Church near Prattmont in Autauga County Sunday, June the 23rd, at the Big All-Day singing to be held there.

Squealing Worm Is New Wrinkle

Mr. George Boozier, farmer of Clanton Route 6, has succeeded in finding and capturing the proverbial "squealing worm." The vermin is an ugly looking thing of green color, about two inches long. His exterior finish is rather hard and rough. At the rear end he is finished off with a stout horn sticking up from his back. This appears to be his weapon of defense. By touching his body and pressing him he emits a little squeal of anger, pain, fear or something, and strikes his enemy with his horn.

He is somewhat similar to the common tobacco worm. Mr. Boozier says he found a number of these worms on stalks of young corn in his field. They had completely eaten up some of the stalks.

SINGING SCHOOL AT THOMAS HIGH

The announcement has been made that plans have been completed for the singing school to be taught at Thomas Junior High School building by Prof. W. M. Devaughn and Prof. O. L. Devaughn.

In conversation with Mr. O. L. Devaughn Saturday he said: "We are pleased to state that the singing school at Thomas is now a certainty. We have got several signatures already, but there are lots of other pupils who ought to attend this school. We hope that during the next three weeks several others will join those who have already signed up. Prof. W. M. Devaughn and I both promise to give our very best efforts and talents to this school and will make the results be just as satisfactory as possible."

Everybody in Chilton County knows more or less intimately one or both of these men, and know them to be among the best teachers of sacred music in this section. They have taught schools in most all the communities of this county, and they have always left a fine impression where they have taught.

The Union-Banner is glad to learn that the talents of both these men have been combined and that they will unite their efforts in this singing school. Singley, each of them is a good teacher, and both together will certainly make a fine and workable team of teachers. And too. Thomas high school building is a fine location for this school. It being close to Clanton and on the cement highway makes it readily accessible from all around over the county Students from a distance who wish to attend can easily find reasonable board near by.

The school begins Monday, July 8th, and will run 18 days. Tuition will be $4.50, $3.60 and $2.70 respectively for each grade for the entire term. Anyone interested may communicate with either W. M. Devaughn or O. L. Devaughn on Clanton, Route 2.

Negro School House Destroyed By Fire

The Clanton school building for negroes, located in the western part of the city, was totally destroyed by fire about midnight last Friday. The origin of the fire is not known.

Near the school building is a church and a lodge hall, and some residences, but the flames were confined to the school house, by prompt and efficient work on the part of the city fire fighting apparatus.

E. W. Burt, principal of the school, stated after the fire that the building was insured for about $1,500. He state also that the colored people would begin at once to make plans to rebuild the house.

We are told that there was an entertainment or gathering of the colored folks at the school building Friday night; and that it was only a short while after they had left the building that the fire was discovered.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Ellis of Mobile, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Armstrong for about ten days.

Sheriff's Automobile Destroyed By Fire

New Ford Car Burned While Officers Raid Still In West Chilton

Sheriff Dudley Collins and his deputies went over into the western part of the County Monday afternoon purposely to raid a still that had been located near the Bibb County line. When they got out of their car not far from the still a man passed along the road by them. The Sheriff recognized the man as being the one to whom it was supposed the still belonged.

The officers left their car and proceeded to the place where the still was located. There was no one at the still, and no one ever came. So they destroyed the outfit and returned to where they had left their car. When they got back they found that the brand new Ford automobile they had left a few hours before was now only a mass of smoking ruins, hot twisted and warped rods of iron, and ugly, deformed sheets of metal.

The car was as completely destroyed as the still. There is no evidence as to how it caught on fire. But Sheriff Collins is certain that he has the secret all figured out, and feels sure that the car was set on fire by the man who owned the still he went to destroy.

Mr. Klinner will bring his family here and will be in active charge of the business. He is a Chilton County man. His original home was in the western part of this county, where his father yet lives.

The new store here will carry a full line of both new and second-hand furniture.

ANNUAL SINGING AT COLLINS CHAPEL HELD LAST SUNDAY

Prominent Singers from all Over the State Attend Big Sing Event Of The Season

The annual June singing at Collins Chapel last Sunday was fine and it's no joke. The people of Collins Chapel go at things with the intention of making good from the start. The farmers of that section are all progressive, prosperous and more or less wealthy, due simply to the fact that they go at their farming with push and pep and determination to make the hill in high. They don't think of failing and they don't fail.

Well, they go at their church business and services the same way. They have all come to look to the annual singing the third Sunday in June with great anxiety and determination. About all of the favorite sons and daughters who have gone out from this community and hung out their shingles in the cities and other sections of the state make it a point to come back home that day. And there are several good singers among this class; and too, there are lots of good singers who still live at Collins Chapel. They all meet together with their visiting singer friends and spend the day together rejoicingly.

This event is sponsored by the famous United Singing Society, with which E. L. and A. H. Glasscock are always intimately connected. This is another power greatly responsible for the success of the annual singing.

But to get down to the actual service last Sunday is to say that E. L. Glasscock acted as chairman for the day. The opening prayer was offered by the pastor, Rev. W. P. Lowery of Thorsby. Those directing before noon were: J. R. Robinson of Verbena, Prof. P. B. Shaw of Chelsea, solo by little Kittie Atkins of Ensley, six-year old girl, L. T. Grant of Coopers, Sam Stone of Ensley, Clyde Collum of Ensley, W. L. Sanders of Lomax, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith of Ensley, H. H. Hays of Jemison, Jasper Oaks of New Salem, C. W. Scott of Mars Hill, Lee Grant of Coopers, E. L. Glasscock of Jemison.

In the afternoon the Clanton Quartet was present and contributed much to the entertainment of the greatly enlarge audience. During the afternoon they sung six or eight numbers and received hearty applause from the audience and choir. Directors in the afternoon were: J. L. Stamps of Ensley, A. O. Boswell of Coopers, O. L. Devaughn of Clanton, John W. Cagle of Mitchell Dam, Akins Collins of Chunchula, A. H. Glasscock of Jemison, Akin Mims of Birmingham, T. E. Wyatt of Clanton, P. B. Shaw of Chelsea, E. L. Powell of Providence Beat 16, Ellis Martin of Providence Beat 13, G. C. Powell of Clanton, special song arranged by Mrs. Martin of Ensley, and two special songs by little Kittie Atkins of Ensley.

Those performing at the piano during the day were Prof. P. B. Shaw, Lee Grant, Genie Collins, W. G. Culp, Sam Stone, Mrs. Belle Dorminey, Miss Leila Melton and A. O. Boswell. The closing song was sung by the chairman and the benediction offered by Rev. H. H. Mullins of Boothton.

Taking into consederation the number of good singers that usually attend such events and the list of directors on the roster, one can readily conclude that the day must have been a stupendous success; and to say this of the Collins Chapel singing is only putting it mildly. It was a day that will long be remembered.

GONE TO MASONIC HOME

We have been informed that Judge S. M. Adams and Mrs. Adams have been admitted to the Masonic Home in Montgomery. Both of them are old and in very feeble condition. Their many friends in Chilton County hope that they have found a place where their remaining days may be spent in peace and quiet.

Clanton Invites Visitors July 4th

For a number of years the ladies of the Missionary Societies of the Clanton Methodist church have been sponsoring a big picnic on the Fourth of July. Those who have attended these picnics in the past years do not need to be told that they are a good place to go to spend the Fourth. This year the ladies have been very busy with their plans and are now beginning to bring them down to a finish. Although they are not yet able to make absolutely definite announcements about all their plans it is certain that they will have a full program of interesting things. Ball games are on the program which will be free to everybody who comes to the picnic. Interesting speakers will be in attendance from out of the county as well as some of the best speakers of Chilton County.

Mr. J. Bibb Mills, who is at the head of the Anti-Saloon League of Alabama, has already been engaged to make an address for this occasion.

Perhaps the most interesting part of a Fourth of July Picnic is the refreshments—most of the older peocan readily hark back to the days when the Fourth of July was the one day in the year when we got a good supply of red lemonade—and there's still something of that same thrill when drinks are being passed around on the Fourth. Of course you are coming, but tell your friends about it too, and ask them to come to Clanton and enjoy the Fourth with you.

Everything has been made ready for the coming of the outfit. Installation will be made as quickly as possible after everything is delivered here.

It brought $1,211, half of which goes to the United States Hospital fund here and half to the Salvation Army at Corpus Christi, Texas. The purchaser was William S. McDowell, representing a syndicate of cotton exchange firms, ad the auctioneer was Gardiner H. Miller, president of the exchange.

President Miller said the shipment marked an era in the transportation of the South's greatest crop. It was not only the first time cotton had been sent here by air, he said, but also the first time the staple had been sold on the floor of the exchange within about 48 hours of picking.

The sale was witnessed by Miss Fren Helscher, representing the Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce; Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, of New York, and E. C. Bowe, pilot of the plane which carried the bale here in 19 1-2 hours.

The offering of the bale brought some spirited bidding. The first tender was $2 a pound and the price advanced in units of 5 and 10 cents until it reached $3.

Chilton Will Have Exhibit At Fair

Representatives of State Fair Confer With Stapp About Exhibit for Next Fall

Mr. Rosenwald and Mrs. R. C. Bricken, representing the State Fair of Alabama at Montgomery, were in Clanton Tuesday in the interest of securing a county exhibit from Chilton County for the Fair this fall. They met at the office of the County Agent, C. E. Stapp, in conference with Mr. Stapp, Mr. J. P. Montgomery of Jemison, Mr. Earle Thomas of Isabella, Mr. Emmett Sizemore, of Auburn, H. G. Boyd and J. C. Page, representing the banks of Clanton, and J. R. Mullins and J. C. Jones.

The subject was discussed thoroughly, and it was determined that an effort will be made to get the best collection of our county products ever assembled to go into the fair this fall. Those who were in the conference Tuesday agreed to begin at once to do all they can to create county wide interest in the movement.

Mr. Stapp wishes to emphasize his desire that as many citizens of the county as possible, farmers and their wives, will take an interest and help prepare products for the exhibit. "We want this exhibit to be thoroughly representative of our County," said Mr. Stapp. "I think we have the best county in the State, and if all forces will coopperate we can put up an exhibit that will really be a credit to us. We can make it attractive, educational, and it will serve as a state-wide and southwide advertisement of the good things of Chilton County.

The Calf Club Boys of Chilton County will have their pure bred calves on exhibit at the Fair. During the summer prior to the Fair Mr. Stapp, with the vocational teachers and dairy specialists of Auburn, will give the calf club boys special instructions in judging cattle. A team of the boys from this county will compete with like teams from other counties in judging cattle at the fair. Winners in the competition will get a free trip to the International Stock Show at Chicago.

FELT BAD AFTER EATING

"FOUR YEARS ago, I suffered with heartburn and bilious indigestion. Whatever I ate disagreed with me. Gas on my stomach made me very uncomfortable. My tongue was coated and my color was bad. I needed a good laxative, and so my mother-in-law gave me some Black-Draught and told me to take it. I found it helped me very much, so I bought it for myself. Seems it was the very thing I needed. It is a fine family remedy, and I use it when I need something for constipation.

FOUR CAUSES OF CRIME

During the last twenty years 20,000 young men between the ages of eighteen and twenty-five years have been admitted to the Indiana Reformatory now at Pendleton.

More than 85 per cent of them came from broken homes, where the father and mother had sparated and remarried.

Only one percent of Indiana's population can not read or write, but that one per cent furnishes 37 per cent of the reformatory inmates. Only one college graduate and only fifteen high school graduates were in all that 20,000 youth. Get those figures.

Not a single Boy Scout has ever been sent to the reformatory.

Only four per cent of the 20,000 prisoners belonged to a church. The percentage of negroes and foreigners is very low, most of the criminals being everyday Americans, born and reared in this country.

These figures mean something to every good citizen That broken homes breed crimes and the person who breaks up a home should be punished as a criminal.

That our compulsory education laws should be strengthened, as education lessens crime

That the Boy Scout movement should have the moral and financial backing of every good citizen. It seems to be the surest way to keep boys out of the penitentiary.

That church membership seems to be 96 per cent effective and should be encouraged. To oppose our churches is to encourage crime. Here are four splendid ways to discourage crime—lessen divorce, support education, the Boy Scouts and the church.—Newcastle Times.

MAY BIGGEST MONTH IN CHEVROLET HISTORY

Detroit, June 17.—May was the biggest month in the history of the Chevrolet Motor Company. Production for the month totalled 161,214 cars and trucks, breaking all records.

Under pressure of the greatest demand in Chevrolet history, its 16 giant factories in May experienced the busiest period the company has ever enjoyed. Factory wheels turned with all the speed consistent with Chevrolet's precision manufacturing methods to accomodate the demand for cars that poured in from Maine to California and from Washington to Florida.

May was the third consecutive month to set a new all-time monthly production mark. It far surpassed the March record of 147,273 units and topped the April achievement of 157,522 units.

To accomplish this record performance Chevrolet plants average 7,000 cars and trucks daily; an average of 777 cars and trucks were built every hour; an average of 13 were built every minute—and one was built every 4.6 seconds!

From present indications the same relatively high level of production will be maintained in June to keep pace with the demand, which officials report, continues unabated. Dealer stocks are still below normal due to the necessity of filling orders as fast as cars are received. Unfilled orders are over 300 per cent ahead of this same period last year. It was announced definitely that June production would break all records for the month.

The sixteen plants that contributed to the record May performance are located in the following cities: Detroit, Flint, Mich.; Bay City, Mich.; Saginaw, Mich.; Toledo, Ohio; Atlanta, Ga.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Tarrytown, N. Y.; Norwood, O.; Kansas City, Mo.; St. Louis, Mo.; Janesville, Wisc.; and Oakland, Cal.

POLICE CONVENTION ENDORSES SCHOOL OF MARKSMANSHIP

Washington, D. C., June 17.—Brigadier-General M. A. Reckford, Executive Vice-President of the National Rifle Association returned today from the Convention of the International Police Chiefs Association in Atlanta, Georgia, and anounced that the Convention had passed a resolution urging police officials throughout the country to support the Police School which will be held this Fall at Camp Perry, Ohio. The police classes are conducted by regular Army officers in connection with the National Rifle and Pistol Matches which open on August 25th and continue until September 15th. The police course consumes seven days. The resolution passed by the Police Chiefs was in part as follows:

Whereas, this police school has for its primary object placing the police officer on a plane superior to that of the armed crook, by instructing those who attend in the proper use of the pistol and, in addition, the art of disarming and overpowering a thug, the use of tear gas and smoke bombs and the handling of specialized weapons, therefore

Be It Resolved, that this Convention heartily approves the police school as now conducted and urges all police chiefs throughout the United States to avail themselves of the services and instruction offered thereby.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Written for The Union-Banner by FRANK P. LITSCHERT

The most reassuring news that has come from Europe in a long time is that which tells us that barring unexpected difficulties, the reparations question, which has long been a disturbing influence in international business, has been adjudicated. It is true that the allied nations are not getting the thirty or forty billions in indemnities which they at one time expected to get, but there was never the slightest chance that they would be able to collect any such figure for the good reason that Germany would have been unable to pay it even if willing to do so. Under the compromise agreed on, the present value of the German reparations debt to the allies is around nine billion dollars. This is something more than the Germans offered to pay in this final conference and something less than the allies demanded, so that it ought to be a fairly satisfactory compromise.

One of the first results expected to flow out of this reparations agreement is the evacuation of the Rhineland by allied troops who have been holding a sector of it ever since the armistice. In this another source of friction will be removed and Europe will really be on the high road to peace, so far as the consequences of the late war are concerned.

The result is satisfactory from an American standpoint for two reasons. First it will have a beneficial effect on American business and secondly it is a matter of pride that the settlement was brought about by Americans in the conference. The chairman of the conference was Mr. Owen D. Young, one of America's outstanding business men. There were times when it looked as though the conference might go on the rocks and there were two or three occasions at least when it was the intervention and diplomatic skill of Mr. Young and his American delegation which saved the day and made the final compromise possible. Mr. Young and the other members of the delegation undoubtedly earned the praise of President Hoover when he said: "I have learned with great satisfaction of the successful result of the arduous work of the expert's committee. It is a most important step toward the restoration of international confidence and of national stability."

But the thing to be pointed out is that America has again performed a distinct service for Europe and has accomplished it without joining any league covenant or entangling itself in the political difficulties of Europe. Indeed it was the confidence of the German and allied delegation in the fairness of the American delegation which frequently saved the day. The reparations question by wise American counsel had been kept clear of the American war debt question and the Americans present were able to win the confidence of the mediators. Had we several years ago become involved in the mazes of European policies through membership in the league or by serious entanglements of a similar nature, it is a good guess that Mr. Young and his American delegates would have found their hands tied by commitments made in advance and would have forfeited the confidence they gained as disinterested mediators and would have been unable to accomplish anything constructive.

Once more the wisdom of our freedom from international entanglements has been proved, this time by the success of the reparations conference. We have helped twice, once with the Dawes plan and again in the conference just closed. And we have been able to help because, free from commitments we could, through our efficient representatives, act in the role of the impartial umpire.

RESISTANCE TO THE MAJORITY

Less than eight months ago Herbert Hoover was elected President by an overwhelming plurality. His election represented a vote of confidence in his leadership, and a popular mandate for the program he stood for.

Yet within four months of President Hoover's inauguration we find a tremendous resistance developed on Capitol Hill—especially in the Senate of the United States—to the carrying out of his program, and an organized effort to render barren of results the session of Congress called for the purpose of fulfilling the pledges of the majority party to the voters.

At the bottom of this resistance is a studied defiance of public opinion as expressed at the last general election. It is a deliberate flouting of the will of the American people, clearly expressed at the polls.

It is true that the executive department of the government is not the legislative department. But the President is made a partner in legislation through the veto power. It was well known by the Senators who thrust the debenture provision into the farm relief bill that in so doing they were deadlocking the Senate with the House of Representatives and with the President. They very well knew that the adoption of this amendment meant the delay or defeat of farm relief. The proposal was a new one not discussed by anyone in the last campaign. It is certain that some members of the Senate adopted this policy of opposition merely to embarass the President and the administration. It was Senator Copeland of New York who frankly admitted that he "held his nose" as he voted for a proposal he believed would put President Hoover "in the hole."

Putting Presidents "in the hole" may be a safe policy when that President does not have public opinion behind him. The people are still with President Hoover, however, and those who are busy baiting the President are at the same time baiting that public opinion which makes and unmakes Senators as well as Presidents.

It is unfortunate that at this time we can not have cooperation between the Senate and the President for the general good of the country. The fault for that lack of team work clearly rests, however, not with the President, but with a partisan and factional coalition in the Senate. It is about time that statesmen, no matter what labels they wear, should cooperate to solve public problems, rather than to spectacularly perform for factional, personal and partisan advantage.

HELP FIGHT THE MEDITERRANEAN FRUIT FLY

Talk of the danger of infestation with Mediterranean fruit fly makes some information or identification and methods for destroying the pest of interest to people of this section where we are looking for the ounce of prevention in the hope that we may not need the pound of cure. The United States Department of Agriculture suggests that housewives and other consumers of grapefruit and oranges observe the following precautions:

"Examine all citrus fruit for soft spots, particularly any with skin blemishes. If a suspicious spot is found, cut open the fruit at this point and inspect the pulp beneath the soft portion. If the pulp looks 'churned' and a closer look shows maggots, or if maggots are plainly visible, there is a possibility that they are the maggot stage of this fly. The maggots dislike light and will burrow from the exposed surface quickly. For this reason inspection should be made immediately after the fruit is cut. The color of the young maggots is nearly that of citrus pulp and for this reason they are difficult to detect except by close inspection.

"All suspected fruit should be destroyed to prevent the possibility of spread of the pest in new areas. Destruction may be by boiling, burning or burying. For small quantities of fruit the boiling method is perhaps easiest and safest. Place the fruit in water and bring to the boiling point. If burned, the fruit should be completely destroyed. In burying, the fruit should be placed at least three feet under ground, the soil firmly tamped above it, and the surface watched to see that no cracks appear, as these would permit the emergence of some adults.

"The Mediterranean fruit fly eggs hatch into larvae or maggots which feed on the pulp of the fruit or vegetable in which the eggs had been laid. When full grown the maggots leave the fruit and burrow into the ground or seek shelter under some object on the ground. There they presently change into the pupa or chrysalis stage from which they break forth as flies, make their way to the surface of the ground and fly away in search of fruits or vegetables in which to lay eggs. Adult flies begin laying at 4 to 10 days of age and during much of this time laying four to six eggs a day."

ADVANCING FLORENCE SCHOOL

At a recent meeting of the State Board of Education the status of the teacher training institution at Florence was changed from that of a two year Normal to that of a four year Teacher's College. In the future both a two year and a four year course will be offered. In order to meet the increased enrollment which will inevitably follow this action and also to care for present needs, work on the new administration building, that is to be named the Bibb Graves Hall in honor of our present governor, and on Elementary Training School auditorium will be begun at an early date and rushed to completion as soon as possible.

45 Rural Power Lines For 32 Counties

THE LARGEST single program for the extension of rural power service in Alabama, involving 45 projects and 295 miles of lines in 32 counties, is now under way.

The new power circuits, when completed, will bring the total number of counties enjoying rural service to 58 out of the 67 and the total mileage of lines to 1,167.

Fifteen hundred families, now without the benefits of central station electric service, will be served with power in quantity and at reasonable rates, and tap lines to be built in the future into adjacent sections and communities will enable the Company to serve a least 5 times as many customers. Cotton gins in 11 localities will be electrified and additional gins and other small industries will be attracted.

Electricity is playing the part of a vitalizing force in the transition of agriculture in Alabama from a mode of living to a business conducted for profit, revolutionizing agriculture as it has already increased the output and wages of industrial workers and at the same time lessened the burden of their toil. It is also playing a major role in the social progress of our rural sections.

To the farm home, electricity brings a new life. The electric range, the refrigerator, the water heater and numerous other appliances lighten the farm wife's burden. Electric light turns darkness into daylight, conserves eyesight, adds charm and beauty to the home and hours to each day for study and recreation.

STATE

CAPITOL News

The new administration building to be erected at Auburn in the near future will be named in honor of Governor Bibb Graves, whose administration has made possible a great expansion at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute as well as in the State's educational system generally. Action to this effect was taken by the Auburn Board of Trustees at a recent meeting, the board adopting a resolution in which the services of Governor Graves in bringing a new era in education in Alabama were eulogized in high terms. The resolution declared that Alabama's Governor is a leader "who had the vision, and combined with the vision had also the practical administrative ability to bring his vision into glorious realization" and that "his name will stand not only inscribed on campus buildings throughout the State, where they bear testimony to his splendid ability, but his name will go down in history as a great educational emancipator."

Commissioner, I. T. Quinn, of the Department of Game and Fisheries, has received from the State Printers the Licenses which will be used during the fiscal year beginning October 1st. They are much improved both in form and content over any previously issued A change which will meet with especial favor among sportsmen is the use of a cloth-backed cardboard for the license, which will guarantee more lasting and satisfactory service. In the past whenever a license was allowed to get wet, it quickly became unrecognizable. This will be obviated to a large extent in the new licenses, which will also stand harder field service. Another convenience is a synopsis on the back of each license, of the State Laws which regulate the taking of wild life under such license. This will give each sportsman information on the particular type of hunting or fishing in which he is interested, and he will have it with him in permanent form in the field when it is needed. Changes have also been made in the wording of the licenses which make their use clearer. For instance, on the Non Resident Fishing License, the word "Angling" has been added, which will prevent any possible impression that the license may be used as a commercial license. Fishing for commercial purposes is barred to all non residents of the State.

The Licenses for residents and non residents differ in color as required by law. The fees for the various licenses are as fclows:

Resident: County Hunting License, $1.00 (issued only to a person to hunt in the county in which he maintains his permanent residence.)

State Hunting License, $3.00.

Non Resident: Hunting License, $25.00; Fishing License, $5.00.

No person is entitled to purchase a resident license unless he is a bona fide resident of the State and has resided here for the twelve months preceding the purchase of the license.

Trappers License: For the first trap, $15.00; for each additional trap, $2.50.

Trappers licenses are commercial licenses as distinguished from sportsmen's licenses, which are purely for pleasure. Every person taking fur bearing animals for profit must be properly equipped with these licenses. Licenses will be delivered to the Probate Judges of the State before the hunting season opens, from whom they may be purchased beginning October 1st. All licenses now outstanding will expire September 30th, and each person hunting after that date must first procure a new license.

Lesson for June 23

A PSALM OF PRAISE

LESSON TEXT—Psalm 103:1-22.

GOLDEN TEXT—Bless the Lord, O my soul.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Song of Praise.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Song of Praise.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Privilege of Worshiping God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Habit of Thankfulness.

This beautiful psalm of praise follows one of the importunate pleadings for help in time of great need. Andrew Bonar calls it "A Song of a Redeemed One by the Redeemer's Side." It is entirely given up to praise; not a single supplication being found in it.

I. Adoration for Personal Benefits (vv. 1-5).

The Psalmist calls upon his soul to bless God's holy name. Man's whole nature, intellectually and spiritually, is called upon to adore God. Note the benefits recognized by the Psalmist:

1. "Forgiveth all thine iniquities" (v. 3) Pardon of our sins is the most important of all God's benefits.

2. "Healeth all thy diseases" (v. 3). Healing here refers to that of the body and the soul. Renovation of the entire nature, especially the moral, follows forgiveness of sins.

3. "Redeemeth thy life from destruction" (v. 4). The sinner is in the position of a debtor. All the demands made against him because of his sins, were paid by Jesus Christ.

4. "Crowneth thee with loving kindness" (v. 4). The redeemed one not only has forgiveness of sins, but is invested with the full rights of heavenly citizenship.

5. "Satisfieth thy mouth" (v. 5). When one enters into saving relationship with Christ he does not incur loss, but great gain. He is not deprived of any rights.

II. Praise for God's Excellencies (vv. 6-13).

The Psalmist now looks away from the benefits bestowed to the very quality of the being who bestowed them.

1. His justice (v. 6).

"He executeth righteousness." God is always against the oppressor and on the side of the oppressed. This points to the time when Messiah's reign shall extend over the whole world.

2. He reveals Himself (v. 7). This He did in a peculiar way to Moses and the children of Israel. The very name Jehovah means Self-revealing One (Ex. 3:14). God created man in His likeness and image in order that He might not only reveal Himself, but that He might share His goodness with the creature.

3. Merciful and gracious (v. 8). As a sinner man needs pardon and favor. God in His mercy pardons the sinner who calls upon Him and through His grace He bestows favors upon him.

4. Not always contending (v. 9) God's love for His children moves Him to contend with them. When they turn from their sin, He ceases to chasten them. God holds no grudges. He forgets our stubborn follies as soon as we turn from them.

5. God's forgiveness (vv. 10-13).

This forgiveness is manifested in His not dealing with us according to our sins, in showing supreme mercy, in putting away sin as far as the East is from the West, and in fatherly pity. We usually think to praise God for what He has done. How much we ought to praise Him for what He has refrained from doing.

III. Man's Frailty and God's Eternity (vv. 14-19).

1. His frailty (vv. 14-16).

(1) He is but dust (v. 14). God constituted man's body out of the dust of the ground, therefore He knows his frailty. (2) His days are as grass (v. 15). He flourishes as the flower of the field. As the grass disappears under a blighting wind (v. 16), so a small blast from God will destroy man's life.

2. God's eternity (vv. 17-19). God's goodness and mercy are from everlasting to everlasting. This goodness and mercy He shows from generation to generation.

IV. Call to Universal Thanksgiving (vv. 20-22).

Since His dominion is over all, it calls for recognition by all.

1. Angels (v. 20). Intelligent spirits that bear His messages and go on His errands are called upon to praise and adore Him.

2. His hosts (v. 21). By hosts here is likely meant the sun, moon and stars. They are called upon to give Him due praise (Ps. 19:1).

3. His works (v. 22).

Whatever He has done, whether in creation, providence or redemption. His works made known his goodness

Belief and Faith

And Jesus answering saith unto them, Have faith in God. For verily I say unto you, That whosoever shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea; and shall not doubt in his heart, but shall believe that those things which he saith shall come to pass; he shall have whatsoever he saith. Therefore I say unto you, What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them —Mark 11:22 to 24.

A PROLIFIC LONG-LEAF

Montgomery, Ala., June 17.—A long-leaf pine that bears a good crop of seed practically every year has been found in Covington County by Mr. W. E. Jordan, State forestry agent for that locality. At least, during each of the past four years, the period it has been under observation, it has yielded a substantial supply.

The long-leaf pine apparently varies as to seed years. Individual trees usually bear at intervals of from two to four years. Over extensive forest areas, however, it appears that heavy seed crops occur every five to seven years.

In the case of the long-leaf pine, trees that bear every year are especially significant. If the greater number of specimens in the forest possessed this trait, one of the most perplexing problems of southern forestry would be solved. Theoretically, in order to secure prompt reproduction logging of the tract should be postponed until a good seed year. This, however, is not always practicable. As a result, when the area is logged between seed years a stand of young seedlings from trees left on the tract often fails to ensue.

The cones of the prolific Covington County specimen will be carefully gathered. The seed will be extracted and used to propogate young trees in the hope that when they reach the seed bearing stage they will exhibit the same characteristics as the parent. There is a possibility that in the long run a strain of long-leaf may develop that will produce seed practically every year.

BOLL WEEVIL DAMAGE IN ALABAMA

The boll weevil considered as a tax collector is credited with causing a annual loss of 19 million dollars during the past 17 years to Alabama farmers, according to a careful study made by F. G. Gist, state and federal statistician in the State department of agriculture. The total loss is shown to be 323 million dollars during the above period. This loss amounts to more than the entire amount spent for state taxes and education, during this 17 year period.

Thirty-seven pounds per acre has been the average loss for the 17 years. This means 230,000 bales annually, or a total loss of about 4 million bales. Thus Alabama farmers have in 17 years, lost about on-fourth of the average annual cotton production of the United States.

Viewed in terms of cotton rental, about one crop in four has been taken by the weevil. The old term of: "A third of the corn and a fourth of the cotton," as taken by landlords, fits the damage of the weevil closely. The weevil has average taking "one-fourth" during the past 17 years.

Fortunately, some of the best farmers in Alabama have learned to evade some of this terrible weevil tax. To show how well Alabama farmers have succeeded in conquering the weevil and in beating him at his own game, Mr. Gist shows a great gain by five year periods.

The greatest loss was from 1919 to 1923 when farmers lost an average of 66 pounds of cotton per acre due to the weevil From 1924 to 1928, the loss was only 12 pounds per acre.

1920 was given as the year of the greatest loss, of 87 pounds per acre. For the past two years, the average loss has been 15 pounds per acre; while in 1926, only 4 pounds loss was estimated.

The study made by Mr. Gist shows that Alabama farmers are learning how to combat the weevil, although as long as present conditions prevail it can not but result in considerable losses for many years.

Since little poisoning has been done the victory of Alabama farmers in weevil fighting may be credited to intelligent use of fertilizers, improved methods of culture and whatever parasitic control that may have taken place.

A considerable saving from weevil damage has been made by shifting the production of cotton to parts of Alabama in which less damage prevails. Since 1909, the black belt has lost 587,000 acres of cotton and the north half of Alabama has gained 188,000 acres. In all counties cotton has been shifted from the wet bottoms to the uplands This shift has probably had as much to do with weevil control as any other. The weevil loss for the past 5 years has been 8 million dollars annually, as compared with forty million for the previous 5 years.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Alabama Republican Meeting to be Held

Street Will Continue To Dictate Federal Appiontments In State of Alabama

Washington, June 15.—Alabama Republicans will hold a state conference and "get together" meeting in late July or early August, it was stated Saturday by Judge Oliver D. Street, Republican national committeeman and federal patronage referee for the state.

At this conference plans for the 1930 campaign will be discussed, Judge Street said, but he does not expect any definite action to be taken. "One of the best meetings we ever had was held in an off year," said Street.

The conference will be open to all who desire to attend, Street said, and any one will be welcome, as "the doors are always open to any who desire to come with the Republican party." But he said he does not expect any special invitation to be issued to the Democrats who left their traditional party last Fall.

No Comment on Reynold's Letter

In that connection, Judge Street declined to comment on the recent letter of Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds, of Chilton County, addressed to J. C. Swann, of Mobile, as chairman of the Republican state committee, in which Judge Reynolds urged an early meeting of the G. O. P. committee to invite the Democrats who supported Hoover electors to join the Republican ranks permanently.

So far as he is concerned, there will be no such invitation at this time. Judge Street indicated, although he emphasized that the G. O. P. is always ready to receive those who have a desire to belong to that party or to go along with it.

Inasmuch as Judge Reynolds' letter was addressed to Chairman Swann, it is for the latter to reply to it, Judge Street said.

Judge Street said he was in Washington on legal business, but had attended to a few minor political matters. He left for Birmingham Saturday evening.

Patronage Committee Lost

There is no indication that an advisory committee to help Judge Street make recommendations for federal appointments, such as President Hoover endorsed late in April, is to be organized. Although Joseph C. Thompson, who was Alabama representative of Horace A. Mann, Southern manager of the Republican campaign last fall, had 10 names laid before President Hoover, those of five Republicans and five Democrats, for such a committee in Alabama, they never have been appointed.

Judge Street stands high with the administration and his recommendations for appointments are going through the usual course just as they did in previous administrations.—Russell Kent, in Birmingham News.

CRUSADERS PARTY

The Crusaders were entertained at a party given by Mrs. J. J. Mims last Tuesday night. The Crusaders are a union of the young people of the Temple Church of Clanton. After dinner was served, many different games were enjoyed. Several contests were held, also. Besides the members of the Crusaders class, the following visitors were present: Misses Myrtle Kelly, Delilah Kelly, Ruby Patterson, Lucile Johnson; Messrs. Osmond Grant and Euell Johnson.

The Crusaders meet every Friday night at the Church, east end of 2nd Avenue, Clanton. All young people are invited to meet with them any Friday night at 7:30.

H. S. MOBLEY

Mr. H. S. Mobley who is sent out by the Agricultural Extension Department of the International Harvester Company, will lecture and give demonstrations of dairying at Clanton and Jemison on July 8th.

HOSPITAL MEETING HELD MONDAY

The annual meeting of the stockholders of Central Alabama Hospital was held at the hospital building Monday morning. The attendance was small, however, there was more than a majority of the shares of the stock represented, and the meeting proceeded with the transaction of such business as was necessary to be attended to.

At the conclusion of the business, the matter of electing officers for the next year was taken up and disposed of by the following elections:

FIRE THREATENS BUSINESS HOUSES

A fire which originated in the rear of the Exchange Barber Shop late Tuesday afternoon threatened to do serious damage to the business houses in the Hayes Building. Prompt control of the flames from spreading soon overcame the danger.

It is stated that the fire started by a can of gasoline catching fire from a heater in the rear of the barber shop.

AMERICA LEADS THE WORLD IN SAVINGS

The past year saw the greatest gains in savings in a single twelve-month ever recorded in the United States, bringing the total savings deposits in banks to over $28,400,000,000 on June 30, 1928, held in more than 53,000,000 individual accounts, it is reported by the American Bankers Association. These are the biggest figures in this field shown by any country in the world.

These figures are indicative of prosperity more general than any time since the business depression of 1920 the report declares. Only three states failed to show a gain and the 1928 volume of savings constituted an increase of more than $2,327,000,000 above the 1927 figure. The gain per inhabitant for 1928 over 1927 was $17 and the gain in number of savings depositors was 2,496,079, an increase of 5.2% as against a growth in the population of the country of 1.2%.

The gain in savings per inhabitant in New England and the Middle Atlantic states over the previous year was $36. These groups of states, with 29.9% of the population of the United States and 52.8% of the total savings deposits, have the largest savings rate $461 per inhabitant, of any area in the world. The per capita savings for the United States as a whole this year stands at $237 as compared with $220 last year.

"An acre of alfalfa for every cow in Howard County, Iowa," is the slogan adopted by the county bankers association there after watching several hundred thousand dollars go out of their county last winter for feed.

THE FAMILY NEXT DOOR

ABBOTT BOY DIED AT PLETCHER WEDNESDAY

Centif, the 14 year old son of J. L. Abbott of Pletcher, died at the family home Wednesday night of last week. The remains were buried at Pilgrims Rest Thursday. Rev. T. J. Deason conducted the funeral. Martin had charge of the burial.

SAMARIA

Sunday being our regular preaching day we had a large crowd out for services. Sunday night the Clanton Quartet was with us and it was a treat. From the size of the crowd Sunday night we should have them every Sunday night. We were glad to have all the visitors with us and always welcome at any time.

Mr. J. Z. Mims left last Sunday for Mentone to attend the Sunday School week. We are sure he will have something good to tell us when he returns.

Mr. Odis Blackmon left Sunday for Gadsden.

Mr. Irby Wood of Lock 12 spent the past week with his grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Wood.

Last Wednesday night the B. Y. P. U. enjoyed a moonlight picnic on the banks of Chestnut creek near Verbena. About 45 were present, and everyone seemed to enjoy themselves. Stunts and games were enjoyed until a late hour and then a picnic lunch with drinks was served.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC

Last Thursday night, June 13th, a delightful picnic outing and chicken barbecue was enjoyed by the young ladies class and the young mens class of the Clanton Methodist Sunday School. This event was the climax of a lively contest between the two classes which had been going for the past month. The points on which the classes were checked were new members, attendance and visitors. The girls won by a small margin and the boys were hosts at the picinc.

Mr. C. E. Stapp, teacher of the young mens class, and Moses Simpson, one of the members of the class, took quite a little flock of fryers out to Gore's Pond about 4:30 in the afternoon and barbecued them to A-1 perfection. The members of the young ladies class and the other members of the boys class met at the church about 6 o'clock and went out to the pond. A total of a little more than thirty members and guests were present.

MISS COX ENTERTAINED

One of the most enjoyable events for Miss Louise Cox while visiting in Speigner is a fishing party and picnic at Alaga Lodge on Tuesday with several of the young folks from Speigner, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Will Redden.

EPWORTH LEAGUE NEWS

The Epworth League of the Clanton Methodist Church is making much progress and shows signs of becoming a real factor in the workings of the Clanton Methodist church.

The Senior League elected new officers short time ago who are all anxious to make their term of office as successful as possible. Especially are the department superintendents active in their new work. Miss Elsie Busby is in charge of the first department and is planning some very interesting programs for the first Sunday nights. Miss Ruth Prince has charge of the second department and is making her plans to give some intresting programs on missions. Miss Mildred Shaw is making her plans for the third department, and already has same worked out. She requests every member of the league to bring some interesting article clipped from a magazine or a newspaper to the league next Sunday night. Miss Louise McSwain has charge of the fourth department which deals with social work in the league and community. She will bring some mighty interesting facts and programs before the lague.

Next Sunday night a short, but interesting program will be given in charge of Miss Louise McSwain. You are cordially invited to attend. The league meets in the Ladies parlor at 7 o'clock every Sunday night.

The Hi-League group of young people are working like bees now on a program which will be of interest to every person in Clanton and vicinity. Definite announcements will be made before long.

Mrs. J. M. Willis and daughter left last Friday morning for Hot Springs, Arkansas, where she will spend the summer with her husband who is employed by the Phoenix Utility Co., at that place. Mrs. Zula Retherford and little daughter went as far as Birmingham with her mother.

"WHAT! SILVERTOWNS AT THESE PRICES?"

YES, IT'S TRUE! We know it's hard to believe, but there are the figures! Figures that are made all the more amazing because Goodrich quality is always the best buy on the market, even at regular prices! Come in, see the tires, and decide for yourself!

YES, MR. MOTORIST... THESE ARE GENUINE GOODRICH TIRES

YES, it's hard to believe! Silvertowns, those famous Goodrich Tires . . . priced at such amazing figures as these.

Yet there are our prices, in cold black and white, in the box at the left! Look 'em over . . . find your size. Then try to beat them anywhere!

Remember . . . these are tires cured by the famous Goodrich water-cure process. Tires that have amazed millions by the way they stand up under the hardest driving conditions the country can produce. Just like those on the Silver Fleet.

You know as well as we do that Silvertowns have been for years the standard of tire values all over the country. At these prices they are bargains that come once in a lifetime.

But that isn't all . . . we've priced all Goodrich Tires at these new low figures . . . including the sturdy new Cavaliers!

So come in. Let us take a look at the tires on your car, even if there's a thousand miles of service left in them. It may be a long time before you get this chance again. Will we see you tomorrow?

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

GOING FORWAD BY GOD'S HELP

One of the most enormous tasks the church or any one man or any two men ever had was to bring a race of slaves out of Egypt. That was done by God and His servants. They did not go right out in a straight road. Indeed not. It was not a straight road. They wandered about in the wilderness. A cloud guided them by day and a pillar of fire by night. I want to tell you today, my dear friends, that I have never walked, rode, talked unless being led by a similar cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night. The great lesson in that cloud by day and pillar of fire by night for me as well as for you who have been so led is that Christ is in that pillar of cloud and pillar of fire.

The Israelites came right here at the ford of the Jordan which is not as wide as it is in some places, but still it was at flood. The human element in Moses like every other man had to be strengthened by spiritual revelation from God. This human element had to be subdued often by God because he was not living in God's presence. But he had a great task for the Lord and God showed him plainly that he must live in His presence to do so. We have nothing to do with what God wills for us. Here is His church, but it is just up to us as to whether we go forward in its service. As has been voiced by both the southern and northern general assembly to be a member of the church is to be a sacred and holy lover of Jesus Christ. It is not right to term the church as an organization. It is the blood-bought bride of Jesus Christ.

Now Moses went up unto God, and the Lord called unto him out of the mountain saying, "Thus shalt thou say to the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel that they have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how I bare them on eagles' wings and brought you unto myself. Now, therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine: and ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, and an holy nation."

Why not go forward to-day as did Moses of old? You cannot divorce prayer life from the church. You cannot divorce it from the individual. You cannot divorce it from the home. They moved on, but the pillar of cloud and the pillar of fire got behind. I wish to tell you that same Jesus which was in that cloud is with the church to-day. We must live in close touch with that cloud. We must not let it get behind. It is not ours to say just what physical discomforts and sufferings we must undergo to have the cloud go before us. We must be faithful to Jesus Christ. I must hear when He speaks to me out of the cloud.

The pillar of cloud leads them on to what is now called the Plain of Assemblage, where tradition places their camp. Moses went up to the summit of this Mount Sinai and there God wrote with His own finger the ten commandments for the Hebrew Children and for us. Moses then came forth to the plain below and delivered these ten commandments to the assembled Children of Israel forty centuries ago. Through Moses' faith in prayer they too had received a revelation of the one God who is a spirit. As the pillar moved they moved. For the church to go forward in its great task it must go to God in prayer and live in His presence.

The people standing before the ford of the Jordan said, "Moses is gone. He is away up yonder somewhere on that high mountain. God alone knows his sepulcher because God alone buried him." He went up to the top of Mount Pisgah near Jericho visible from the Dead Sea and died there alone with God. He was buried by God in a valley in the land of Moab, over against Bethpeor: but no man knoweth of his sepulcher except God. His eye was not dim, nor his natural force abated when he died.

Now after the death of Moses the servant of the Lord. What about it since this their great courageous leader was now gone from htem? The Lord spake unto Joshua, son of Nun and Moses's minister, saying, "Moses, my servant is dead; arise and go over this Jordan, thou and all this people, into the land which I give them. As I was with Moses, so will I be with thee: I wil not fail thee, nor forsake thee. Be strong and of good courage, that thou mayest do all which Moses commanded thee." Then Joshua prepared to advance by commanding the people to get ready to cross the Jordan which was now the only barrier which stood between them and the land of their dreams. God says, "Arise go over this Jordan." The church today has Jordans to cross ad God is commanding us to arise and go over Jordan.

There are many problems by the hundreds which we have to solve today, but after all they are only opportunities. The problems talked of and wrote of in the life of the church are its opportunities. Then I must say that opportunities are responsibilities. You cannot divorce responsibility from opportunity. They go hand in hand. Neither can you separate the church from opportunity and responsibility. They had what is called a problem. They did not have a single light, a single bridge or a horse on which to cross this ford of the Jordan. Was it a problem? No, it was not a problem, but it was just simply obedience to God.

Men write articles on the problems of the church. But my dear friends, I am not speaking of anything which man wrote. No man wrote this book but by the help of the Holy Spirit. I am telling you with fear and trembling that we must be faithful to Christ and the church. I am dealing with God as I begin this, my 41st years' ministry of this church. The church is dealing with the holiness of the family. It is dealing with human souls. I wish right here to tell you that you are responsible to God as to how you observe the Sabbath with your children. Remember this worldly amusements on God's Holy Day is the last stop before you get to hell. Many people to-day even take the radio for an excuse to stay away from God's House. It is certainly going to take the greatest equipment, the greatest love and obedience to Jesus Christ to hold up the banner of Jesus Christ.

I can never forget a Mr. Alonzo Smith who used to conduct prayer meetings every Saturday night while I was at Princeton. I never heard that man get on the stand without saying, "If God be for us who can be against us?" He stood right on the firing line until his death, because some of my friends told me about it a few weeks ago while I was at Priceton. We can save this world for Jesus Christ if the church will bury and announce the benediction over worldly amusements, Sabbath desecration by unwholesome amusements, car riding, big dinners. God said, "Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward."

To my mind it is helpful to think of this that when Moses had to go and he knew that sin was the reason he was to go yet he was still alone with God. He was with God. Moses realized that they had left God out while at Kadesh-Barnea. Joshua and Caleb brought great bunches of grapes and said, "We are able to possess the land of ourselves." For their murmuring and complaints and disobedience to God, Moses at God's command had led them to wander still forty years in the wilderness that they might become better disciplined in God's will and plan in their lives.

We remember that when Moses went up on the mount he was very submissive and humble. "O God, unless your presence go with me I cannot go any further. I want to die here and be buried like the country people." It all means that we must get on a higher plane with God. Some people have the nerve to say or think they are doing the Lord a great favor by going occasionally to a church service. The church is the blood-bought bride of Christ and you are the one to be benefitted by attending the services.

At this, the beginning of my 41st year as pastor of this church I ask God to hear me pray as did Moses, "O Lord, unless you go with me do not let me go another step. Help us to be faithful to Christ and the church. Help us as we enter the new year. O Christ, go before us just as Thou didst in Galillee, in Judea, and let us hear Thee speak unto us, saying, 'Go ye therefore into all the world and teach all nations, baptising them in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost'." Bless those we received last Sunday, for Jesus' sake.

THE SOUTH NEEDS MORE COWS

Local Committees Plan Community Meeting to Discuss Dairy Farming

During the five years between 1915 and 1920 a greater advance in dairy farming was made in the South than in any other section of the United States. In the southern states during the five years the number of dairy cattle increased 16 per cent, while in the United States as a whole, the increase was only 12 per cent.

While this indicates that the South is awakening to the need of more dairy cattle, the southern states are still far behind the corn belt and eastern states in this important branch of agriculture.

In 14 southern states in 1920, according to the U. S. census, there was an average of only about two head of dairy cattle to a farm, while in 14 corn belt states there was an average of nearly six dairy cows to a farm.

Yet the South is better adapted in many ways to dairy farming and all practical and experienced farmers and all agricultural experts agree that the surest way to be permanently successful and prosperous in farming, is to have at least a few head of good dairy cattle.

This is a matter of such vital importance to every farmer, every business man and every citizen that a big community meeting will be held at Clanton at 10:00 A. M. and at Jemison, 3:00 P. M., July the 8th.

Mr. H. S. Mobley of the Agricultural Extension Department of the International Harvester Company, will assist the local people in conducting this meeting. Mr. Mobley operates a dairy farm right here in the South. He has made a big success ot it, He markets his product 200 miles from home at a good profit. He will tell us how southern farmers can become permanently prosperous by going into partnership with the dairy cow.

Besides being a prosperous farmer, he is a speaker of national reputation. No one should miss hearing him. No admission will be charged. Every man, woman, and child is invited to attend. City folks will be benefitted as much as those from the farms.

MODEL A FORD EASY TO "BREAK IN" TO USE

Precision manufacturing and an unusual degree of importance which the Ford Motor Company attaches to the inspection of Model A cars has gone far to eliminate that tedious process known as the "breaking in" of a new automobile.

On the windshields of the new Model A's are directions which suggest a driving speed limit for the first 500 miles of 35 miles per hour. This is in marked contrast to the old line of instruction which cautioned against a speed of more than 20 or 25 miles an hour for at least 1,000 miles.

Excess heat is the most destructive agency which may affect an automobile, particularly in the first several hundred miles it is driven. Friction is mainly responsible for overheating, and a piston that is fitted too tightly may seize and in turn score the cylinder wall. This means an expensive repair job.

Careful machining of engine parts, such as cylinder blocks, pistons, camshafts, crankshafts, etc., the proper fitting of bearings, accuracy in the cutting of gears; multitudinous checks during the process of assembling the Model A, and rigid inspections combine to produce an automobile which is ready for the road when delivered. For this reason, it may at once be operated to the limit of speed prescribed by the motor codes of a great many states, without going through the customary "breaking in" period.

ALL-DAY SINGING AT MINERAL SPRINGS CHURCH

Mr. E. H. Foshee requests us to announce that there will be an all-day singing at Mineral Springs church on the first Sunday in July. State Fire Marshal, D. M. Slaughter, has promised to be there; also the Clanton Quartet. All singers are invited. Everybody bring dinner.

There is a control measure for each and every garden insect in Alabama. Such measures are cheap and application is simple. If you are troubled with incests in your garden ask your county agent or home agent how to stop them.

Glass supports under the legs of the stove and kitchen cabinet will keep them from cutting the linoleum.

Indications are that fall will present an excellent opportunity to hog-down corn. Present corn prices are low and hog prices high. With this situation hogging-down is much more profitable than harvesting and selling dry corn.

Don't let Rheumatism

make an invalid of you—S.S.S. stands ready to knock it out.

THOSE muscular pains, commonly called rheumatism, are generally due to a run-down condition, with the number of red-blood-cells below the normal count.

S.S.S. aids the system in building up these red-blood-cells and in getting rid of the condition of which the rheumatism is but a symptom. The body becomes strong and disease-resistant, and the rheumatic pains go.

Pains in your muscles and joints make you miserable, less efficient, interfere with your working hours, ruin your sleep. If allowed to continue, as the years pass the danger increases.

But what a change with rich, red-blood-cells in your body—Nature's building material—making the flesh firm—giving strength to the vital organs.

You can't rub rheumatism out. It is deeper than that. It must be knocked out. And the sure way is by helping the fighting blood—the red-blood-cells!

Increase your army of "workers" (red-blood-cells), and those muscle and joint pains, commonly called rheumatism, vanish. S.S.S. has brought this change about for thousands. Why not for you?

"After suffering several years, six bottles of S.S.S. completely relieved me of rheumatism. It also cleared up a skin eruption and gave me a good appetite. I think S.S.S. is a wonderful medicine."—R. L. Busic, Southern Railway, Knoxville, Tenn.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test of over 100 years.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

The singing at Chestnut Creek last Sunday afternoon was enjoyed by a large crowd. The directors for the afternoon were L. T. Grant, S. M. Yates, Jr., W. F. Gilliland, R. T. Grant and I. D. Huett. Pianists were Mrs. Connell and Miss Agnes Boswell. We were very glad to have visitors from other places Sunday, and hope they will come again and bring someone with them. Our singing society meets again the third Sunday in July. Let's don't forget the day, and let's all come and take care of our home singing.—I. D. Huett, Secretary.

REPORT OF SARDIS AND PILGRIMS REST SINGING

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me a small space in the Banenr to give the report of the Sardis and Pilgrims Rest singing. The society met at Pilgrims Rest Sunday afternoon, and was called to order at 3 o'clock by the president, Brother R. W. Kendrick, who opened the singing by singing that good old song, "Gathered Home." Prayer was offered by Brother G. W. Sansom. After prayer the following directors were asked to sing two songs each: The following is a list who took part on the program: Brother G. B. Williams, Miss Mae Sansom, Miss Mollie Belle Ousley, Miss Irona Headley and Brother Claud Traywick. The organists were Miss Arie Ratliff, Miss Colista Campbelle, and Bro. George Anderson.

We were delighted to have the Alpine singing class with us, we also had singers from Bethel, besides a large audience of people who didn't sing at all. We feel that the singing was a success. We cordially invite all who will to come and help us out in our singing. The president sang the song, "My Faith Looks up to Thee." We were dismissed by Bro. George Walker with prayer to meet at Sardis the first Sunday aftrenoon in July.—George Anderson, Sec'ty.

JACKSON CHAPEL

There was a Sunday School organized at this place last Sunday afternoon, June the 16th. This will be a union Sunday school and will use the union literature, except for the Senior class, and they will use the Bible, straight.

There was not a very large crowd here Sunday on account of several all-day singings being held in the neighboring communities, but those who were there seemed to have a great determination to press forward and build a great Sunday school at this place. The Lord being their helper, and if He is for us who can be against us?

We hope to have the cooperation of this entire community and of the surrounding communities. Everybody is welcome to come out and be a worker in the vineyard of the Lord. "Whosoever will, let him come."

Let us all remember the Lord in the days of our youth that when we grow old we can look back over our past life with a clear conscience and can look in that far beyond with an eye of faith for the crown that awaits us there. Let us pray that God deliver us from the idleness of this life as to His cause and kingdom here in the world and to make us soldier of the cross and followers of the lamb.

We hope to have a large crowd with us next Sunday evening to help us enjoy the service.

The officers of this Sunday school are J. Bice, Superintendent; A. A. Jackson, assistant superintendent; W. L. Sanders, secretary. Teachers will be elected next Sunday. The lesson for next Sunday will be the 2nd chapter of Matthew. Let us study this lesson carefully and tell what we know about it next Sunday. We will meet at 2 p. m. Come and be with us.—Secretary.

Physical properties . . . plus personnel make a transportation machine

No legislative body or Federal bureau can place a proper valuation on the great railroad systems of this country by simply appraising their tangible value—the net worth of their physical properties, their rights of way, and equipment. Behind every successful business or industry in America there is that great essential, organized brain power and experience, which cannot be produced or replaced overnight—which are just as surely an asset to the carriers as their cars and engines, stations and roadbeds.

The L. & N. is fortunate in being in possession of both of these assets to an unusual degree—physical properties built up through nearly 80 years of constant development, and an organization of trained and experienced employes, nearly 50,000 strong. The road and its personnel have "grown up" together, many of the employes representing two or more generations of service. Their uniform cooperation and courteous service have gained for the road the name of "The Old Reliable," and the tremendous buying power of their $75,000,000 yearly wages constitutes one of the strongest factors contributing to the prosperity of the South through which the L. & N. operates.

When you make use of America's great transportation systems (finest in all the world) remember that their efficiency has been attained as much through organized brain power and experience as through modern cars, engines, and rails.

When you travel for business or pleasure, remember that L. & N. trains are modern, comfortable, and safe. Trains that run on time and at convenient hours of departure and arrival. The Pan-American, an all-steel, all-Pullman train without extra fares, is one of the finest trains in all the United States. Let the nearest L. & N. agent, freight or passenger, help you plan your summer vacation trip.

INSECT CONTROL IS BIG PROBLEM OF FARM

Auburn, Ala., June 17.—A battle with farmers on one side and insects on the other is being conducted on a large scale in Alabama this year. It will continue through the summer, and into the fall.

During the spring and summer months farmers seek to destroy those insects which interefere with the production of crops. In the fall of the year they must fight with insects of stored crops, especially the well-known corn weevil which attacks corn and other grain after they are harvested and stored.

The boll weevil is demanding much attention at this time. It will continue to be a large problem until fall. Although most boll weevil damage is done in July and August some is done in September.

The battle with orchard and garden insects continues from early in the spring through the fall. Unless fruits are sprayed to destroy insects and diseases first-class fruit is not expected. Likewise vegetables and truck crops must be protected against their numerous insect and disease enemies.

Most control measures recommended by county agents consist of dusting or spraying with insecticides. Fortunately, science has advanced as insects and disease have increased and there is an effective control measure for all insects and diseases found on Alabama farms.

Although insect control is essential to successful farming, entomologists at Auburn say that the insect problem is of comparatively recent origin. It has made farming more difficult.

STRAWBERRIES

In starting strawberries, whether plants are set in the fall or spring, it is recommended that a mixture of 600 pounds of superphosphate and 100 pounds of muriate of potash be thoroughly worked into the bed before setting and that 150 pounds of Chilean Nitrate of Soda be applied as a side-dressing as soon as spring growth begins. On very thin soils some growers make a practice of adding 100 pounds of nitrate of soda to the mixture applied before plants are set in the field.

Fall set plants should receive an additional application of 200 pounds of nitrate of soda, 400 pounds of superphosphate and 100 pounds of muriate of potash per acre applied to both sides of the row as soon as picking is finished.

Annually, in August and September after grass and weeds are cleaned out, both spring and fall plantings should receive a broadcast application of a mixture of 200 pounds of nitrate of soda, 400 pounds of superphosphate and 100 pounds of muriate of potash per acre. This summer application promotes well developed plants for next year's fruit production.

All old plantings should receive annually during February 20th to March 10th a top dressing of 100 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

ALL URGED TO ATTEND DAIRY MEETING

Lecture Charts To Be Used to Help The People

Illustrated lecture charts will be used in conducting the big community meetings to be held at Stanton, 10 a. m.; Clanton, 3 p. m.; and Jemison, 7:30 p. m., July 2, according to the local committee on arrangements. The important question of dairy farming will be discussed.

The program will be interesting and instructive to both town and country people. The schools are being invited to cooperate and women and children will be especially invited to attend.

Mr. H. S. Mobley, a practical Southern farmer and successful dairyman, is being sent here by the Agricultural Extension Department of the International Harvester Company.

Mr. Mobley is an able lecturer and will do all in his power by talks and demonstrations to be of service to the farmers in explaining to them how and why dairy cattle make farming profitable, why the South is peculiarly fitted for a great dairy section and how easy it is to get a start in dairy farming.

Everything will be free.

No admission will be charged and everybody will be welcome.

New Zealand Spinach—the type which thrives in hot weather—does well in Alabama. It may be planted as late as June, although May plantings would have been better.

MORE PRODUCTION OF EGGS ADVISED

Auburn, Ala., June 17.—Based upon official figures compiled by F. W. Gist, federal and state statistician at the Department of Agriculture and Industry in Montgomery, the production of poultry and poultry products in Alabama is considerably short of state needs, which has caused G. A. Trollope, extension poultryman at Auburn, to suggest a further increase in production.

"Mr. Gist estimated," said Mr. Trollope, "that $700,000 worth of eggs have been or will have to be brought into Alabama this year from outside of the state to supply what we failed to produce. At 35 cents per dozen—which is a reasonable year-round average market price—this indicates that two million dozen eggs produced outside of Alabama are being consumed within the state this year. Assuming that 160 eggs is a fair annual average for a hen, it would take 150,000 hens to produce these eggs."

Another estimate by Mr. Gist is that $11,000,000 worth of meat grown outside of the state is consumed annually in Alabama. Considering poultry as meat, this presents another opportunity for increasing the poultry industry.

While this production opportunity is present, Mr. Trollope insists that it is something that should not be done carelessly. He is emphasizing better poultry, and also better feeding and management in order to make each bird a paying investment. As profit per bird is increased poultry flocks increase accordingly. Hjgh profits require high production per bird at a low cost per doezn of eggs produced.

GARDEN LETTER

Cultivate, Fertilize and Control Insects and Diseases, Says Julian Brown, Extension Horticulturist

In all of our garden work this spring we have had to contend with frequent rainfall and variable temperatures. However, gardens in general throughout the State are unusually good, considering such adverse conditions. Most home gardens recently observed show a good supply of fresh vegetables. However, this does not mean that this supply will last throughout the year and we must plant others to provide a balanced garden for the coming months.

Tomato seed should be planted this month for the late summer and fall crop. These may be planted in a bed and later transplanted to the garden plot, or under favorable weather conditions they may be planted directly in the garden row. The former method is usually to be preferred. Weather conditions at planting time should largely determine the method used. Many home gardeners are now reproducing the late crop from cuttings. If you have a nice spring crop this method is strongley recommended for the late crop. These cuttings should be made in July. More will be said about this method in the July letter.

Nail head rust, a disease causing black spots on the leaves of tomatoes, is causing quite a bit of concern among tomato growers at this season. It is recognized by its brownish-black, circular appearance, usually showing up on the lower limbs first. It may be controlled by spraying at least once each week with Bordeau mixture, or dusting with monohydrated copper sulphate. These materials should be applied more often during periods of frequent rainfall.

In order to have a continuous supply of snap beans and crowder peas until frost, we must make additional plantings every few weeks.

There are three things upon which successful gardening depends at this season, and to ovelook either of them may mean failure. They are (1) continuous cultivation to keep down weed growth, (2) heavy applications of nitrogenous fertilizers, and (3) the control of insects and diseases. Weeds rob the plants of soil moisture and provide breeding places for insects. Soil moisture is not a limiting factor now, but usually is during the summer and early fall. Quick acting nitrogen fertilizer properly applied will give larger and more vigorous plants, which means better vegetables. This vigor also enables them to better withstand the attacks of insects and diseases. Information relative to the control of insects and diseases will be gladly furnished anyone upon request. These requests may be made either to County or Home Demonstration Agent or direct to this department.

MORE DAIRY CATTLE NEEDED

Important Problem To Be Discussed At Big Meeting—Noted Speaker Coming

The South needs more dairy cattle.

Dairy farmers are always prosperous. The Dairy community is a prosperous community. What the dairy cow produces today is sold tomorrow. The range of prices on which dairy products are produced is the same as the range of prices on which they are sold.

The South needs more dairy cattle. This is a matter in which we are all vitally interested.

Mr. H. S. Mobley of the Agricultural Extension Department of the International Harvester Company, has been secured to conduct in cooperation with local committees, big meetings in Chilton County on July the 8th at Clanton, 10 A. M. and at Jemison at 3:00 P. M. At these dairy meetings dairy farming will be discussed.

Mr. Mobley is a practical Southern dairy farmer. He knows from actual experience how to produce dairy products on a southern farm at a good profit. He knows how to ship them from that southern farm to a profitable market. He is coming at the invitation of local people to help solve the dairy problem.

Mr. Mobley is a noted speaker and a leader in community development. He has been talking dairy farming and other subjects all over the South and newspapers everywhere speak highly of his meetings. The Lincoln, North Carolina, Times says:

"Mr. Mobley is a practical farmer and interesting talker. His talks are full of good, practical ideas and he has interesting things to tell the people."

The meetings promise to be real events of the season. Admission will be free and everyone will be welcome.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

MATED OR MISMATED— HOW ABOUT YOUR FLOCK?

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

I once heard a lecturer remark that if as great care were used in the mating of human beings as most poultry raisers observe in mating their chickens, there would be fewer divorces. If he had in mind only the professional poultry raisers who recognize the importance of ever and eternally striving to better their flocks, I can agree with him. If, however, he intended this statement to be as broad as it sounded, I most certainly cannot agree with him. Far too many people feel a rooster is only a rooster, and a hen nothing but a hen. They know in a general way that the two together are necessary in order to produce eggs which will ultimately result in a new generation. They do not, however, have the slightest conception of the importance of proper mating between the two sexes.

If more poultry raisers could be made to realize that proper mating is one of the most essential elements of success, there would be fewer scrub flocks in the country and more money made from the business. To be sure, many writers on the subject have caused it to apeapr too complicated for the average person to understand. If one goes into all the reasons for things that must be done, the whole affairs does get rather too involved for anyone but the professional. The man with a farm flock is not so much interested in the "why" of the question as in the "how." I shall therefore, try to give some simple non-technical suggestions on mating which. if followed carefully, are bound to result in the betterment of any flock.

There are many methods of mating—far too many to be discussed in an article of this kind. I must, therefore, limit myself to those that are practical for the ordinary farm flock, rather than the professional or the fancier. I must assume an understanding of the necessity for choosing only such specimens of both sexes as are good size, vigorous, healthy, free from deformities or defects, and which conform to the standard requirements of their respective varieties.

The most common method of mating is known as flock or mass breeding. This consists of mating the entire lot of hens with a number of males.

In flock mating there is no way to study individual members of your flock. You do not know which ones produced good layers or good breeders, and which did not. Consequently, have no way of influencing the nature or quality on to the offspring. The result may be a steady decline in the quality of each succeeding generation.

A desirable alternative to the flock mating is the Special Mating System. This system is thoroughly practical for even the smallest flock. Eight to fifteen hens are confined in a pen to themselves, preferably with but one male bird. Naturally, only such specimens are chosen as are known to possess the qualities desired in their descendants. This is a scientifically correct course because it follows the law of heredity that like begets like.

Furthermore, since you use only your best fowls in this type of breeding, you will take a greater interest and will give the necessary care and attention to individuals and to the hatching eggs. Consequently, the chicks will, as a rule, be as good or better than their parents. Such mating gives a chance for real improvement because it affords you some definite data to work with. Fertility is usually higher from such matings because the male suffers no interferences. All of my matings are special matings. My breeding pens consist of 8 to 10 hens and one male.

Little would be gained by entering into the technical phases of such subjects as inbreeding and line-breeding, together with details of the laws of heredity as they concern proper mating. In passing, however, I should like to explode the popular fallacy that inbreeding or the mating of closely related birds is in itself a cause of decline in quality of succeeding generations. On the contrary, this method is regularly used by the best poultry raisers to maintain the purity of a strain once a certain desired standard is definitely established. This excludes the introduction of alien blood into a strain or flock which is often accompanied by results disastrous to uniformity. Generally, where a decline in quality follows the mating of closely related fowls, it is due to the use of birds lacking in vitality or which did not conform to the desired standard.

Whatever system of mating is used it is well to know the best time for mating. Some poultrymen continue breeding and hatching the year round. Best results are secured, however, in the normal breeding season. This will vary somewhat with climate. As a rule, pullets hatched at the proper season—February, March or April, when all the world is beginning to show signs of renewed life—will be better, stronger, and lay more quickly than those hatched in May, June or July. The poultryman should so arrange his hatches that the pullets will be ready for winter laying. Those hatched so late that they pass through the winter without laying cause a distinct loss.

Some poultrymen allow males to run with the hens all through the year. We should swat the rooster as soon as the breeding season is over. The males should be separated from the females until about two weeks before the breeding season starts. This keeps the males from worrying the hens and also permits them to produce infertile eggs, which are preferable for the market.

In these anxious days when fear of the spread of the Mediterranean fruit fly is keeping everybody awake nights, a little help in recognizing suspicious fruit would come in handy. So far, Mediterranean fruit fly maggots have been found only in grapefruit and oranges, but they attack almost every fruit grown in the United States except pineapples and watermelons. They also attack such garden vegetables as tomatoes, bell peppers, eggplants, and beans, and may be expected to spread to these quickly if the present infestation can not be entirely stamped out.

Any soft spot in grape fruit or orange should be suspected, according to the Federal Department of Agriculture, particularly if the skin surface is in any way disfigured. Cut into this soft spot, say the authorities, and look for maggots quickly, for they do not like the light and soon disappear into the pulp. The color of the young maggot is quite near that of the pulp, which makes close inspection necessary. If maggots are found, it does not necessarily mean that they are those of the Mediterranean fruit fly but it would be well to put some of them into a small bottle of commercial alcohol and send to B. P. Livingston, Chief, Division of Plant Industry, Montgomery, Ala. The remainder of the fruit should be destroyed at once by boiling, burning, or burying. Both peel and pulp should be destroyed.

For small quantities of fruit, boiling is perhaps the easiest method as it is only necessary to put the fruit in water and bring to the boiling point. If burned, all of the fruit should be destroyed. Burying under three feet of firmly tamped earth is effective only if the surface is watched to prevent cracks, as these would permit emergence of the Mediterranean fruit fly. The fly egg hatches into a larva or maggot which feeds on the pulp of the fruit or vegetable. When full grown the maggot leaves the fruit and burrows into the ground or seeks shelter under some object on the ground and there changes into the pupa or chrysalis stage from which it breaks forth as a fly, makes its way to the surface of the ground and flies in search of fruit or vegetable in which to lay eggs. Adult flies begin laying at 4 to 10 days of age, and continue until they die, many of them living to be several months old and maintaining a laying average of four to six eggs a day.

Waterless Cooking

Lats Monday night at Thorsby public school auditorium there was given a lecture and demonstration regarding a method of cooking meats and vegetables perfectly without the addition of a drop of water.

The idea is that the ordinary method of cooking our food in water dissolves the mineral salts they contain and which the human body needs and they are thrown away when the water is drained off the cooked food. Consequently humanity is not properly nourished and few escape preventable ailments as indicated by a report of Jefferson County Board of Health, who in the school year of 1927-28 examined over 4,000 school children in Jefferson County outside of Birmingham and found only 19 out of the lot who were physically perfect.

To anyone who knows the processes of nature in the growth of edible food it is known that nature stores them with water and mineral salts which are identical with the composition of the human body. If these ingredients are not conserved in the cooking, but dissolved and thrown out the food on which the body depends for its supplies of these ingredients is deprived of them, and hence under-nourished and subject to all kinds of suffering through lack of vitality.

While the lecture was going on vegetables and meat were prepared for waterless cooking before the eyes of the audience. Two oil stoves were used and an array of specially made, very heavy, aluminum vessels in which were placed, after showing that they were entirely empty, whatever was to be cooked. Fresh apples, potatoes, string beans, a pot roast of beef.

The vegetables had ben washed, but not peeled, but were cut into pieces to facilitate cooking and release the juices. After cooking for some time the apples were poured out into another vessel and a few turns of a crank seperated all the skins, core, seeds and stems. No sugar was added. The potatoes were put through the same machine to mash them and remove the skins. The string beans were served just as they came from the pot, except salt was added to the potatoes and the meat.

When ready a small portion of each was served to every person in the audience, and all pronounced it excellent. The full flavor of vegetables was preserved and the meat was delicious and tender.

It was one of the most interesting and instructive lectures we ever attended and the proofs offered showed that a different method of preparing our food was needed and facilities for it can be had.

Thorsby Institute Library has received a number of additions since the close of school. Among them are Altshelers, "Horsemen of the Plains," Robt. Wheeler's "Boy with the U. S. Prospects Good For Opportunity Schools

Any Community May Get A School If Application Is Made at Once

Prof. H. A. Harris of Stanton makes a very encouraging report this week about the progress of his plans for holding opportunity schools in the county this summer.

Schools have already been assured at the following places with the stated number of pupils signed up to attend: County Line, 17; Mars Hill, 44; Pates Chapel, 31; Shoults, 36; Concord, 20; Enterprise, 17; Collins Chapel, number not stated. Chestnut Grove and Shiloh are working on their plans and show good prospects for securing a school.

Mr. Harris states that he has been informed by the state department of education that he will be able to place more schools in the county this summer than he first planned. "While there will of course be a limit to the number of schools in the State," said Mr. Harris, "I am assured for the time being that any community in the county can get a school if they will send in their application at once signed by as many as 15 pupils. I would suggest that every community where a school is possible get busy and meet the requirements in the next week. The State may further restrict our number of schools any day. I am authorized to assure each community now that they can have two teachers for their school if they sign up 40 to 50 names as pupils."

Communities interested in securing these schools are urged to get in touch with Mr. Harris at once. If you need any help in working up the school he will come and assist you if you will call on him promptly. He plans to open the schools July 15th. The teachers will be announced as soon as it is definitely determined where all the schools will be held.

Hunting A Husband At High School

What promises to be one of the most interesting events of the season is a play, "Hunting a Husband," which is to be presented at the Chilton County High School next Tuesday night at eight o'clock.

The play is a three-act comedy drama, specially adapted to amateur production. It is being put on by the Hi-League of the Clanton Methodist Church. The boys and girls in this organization have labored unceasingly on this work and everyone who comes to see it may be assured of a pleasant evening. Admission will be 15 and 25 cents.

There are around 6,000 delegates attending the Convention, representing the 1,800 Kiwanis Clubs scattered over all parts of the United States and Canada.

Mr. Stapp will return home about Saturday or Sunday.

Lowe and Party Visitors In Texas

A party composed and Mr. and Mrs. D. B. (Butler) Lowe, Miss Edna Lowe, and Mrs. Willis Lowe of Birmingham, have just returned from a visit of several days to relatives in Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Butler Lowe and daughter, Edna, visited Mr. Lowe's two brothers, Tom and Henry Lowe, in Bay City, Texas; Mrs. Willis Lowe visited an uncle and aunt at Galveston. Mr. Lowe had not seen his two brothers for fifteen years.

They left Clanton June 4, and returned June 20. Mr. Lowe likes Texas fine, but likes old Chilton better. In talking of the trip, he was loud in praise of his Kelly-Springfield tires, having made the round trip of over 2,300 miles without a single puncture, or tire or car trouble of any kind.

SENATOR JONES DEFENDS AGENTS

Bootleggers And Not Prohibition Is Responsible For Series of Killings

Washington, June 24.—The desperate character of bootleggers and not prohibition is largely responsible for the recent series of killings by border agents, Senator Wesley E. Jones, of Washington, declared in an interview today.

Author of the "five and ten" law—five years in jail and $10,000 for liquor law violations—Jones is regarded as the dry leader in congress.

"The prohibition people are opposed to crimes of every kind," he told the United Press. "We regret the shootings just as much as anyone. But I do not think anyone has a right to assume that the government agents shot without provocation or without a good reason. If they did they should be punished.

"It must be remembered they are dealing generally with a lot of desperate men who do not hesitate to use firearms under any circumstances.

"The shooting of people cannot be blamed on prohibition. It does not provoke the shootings. It is the desperate character of the men who are attempting to violate the law, which causes the shootings.

"It may be true a prohibition agent may act hastily. He may sometimes shoot an innocent person. Those things happen in the enforcement of any law.

"They are unfortunate, but they are not common occurences. No one would approve or excuse any prohibition agent that acts maliciously or recklessly without any just cause. But the character of men with which he has to deal, must not be overlooked."

Maddox Building New Cotton Gin

Mr. J. A. Maddox, manager of the Clanton Mill and Gin Co., makes the interesting announcement that he will have a brand new Pratt Cotton Gin plant in operation by the time cotton begins to come in this fall. The building for the new gin is nearly completed already. It is located on the lot between the old Maddox Gin and the railroad.

The new gin will be run by electric power and will be capable of turning out 60 to 75 bales in ten hours.

Mr. Maddox will not operate his old gin any more. He expects to continue his old time policy of giving the farmers the best gin service possible, and to this end he has determined to have ready for them this fall a brand new Pratt outfit, which is considered to be one of the best gins ever perfected.

Judge Reynolds Replies to Editorials in Chilton News

Defends Present and Past Stands on Prohibition; Condemns J. B. Atkinson for Bringing Methodist Church Into Newspaper Argument.

Clanton, Ala., June 24, 1929.
Chilton County News,
Clanton, Alabama.
Gentlemen:

There has appeared in the columns of your paper recently certain editorials and statements regarding myself and other matters, which I think should be answered, some of these being direct accusations upon my character and record. Others mention me by insinuation.

To keep the records straight and for the benefit of the public, I will say that Billy Smith appears as Editor of the Chilton County News and the name of J. B. Atkinson appears as publisher. These articles that I refer to are editorials not signed, but appear to be the product of the Chilton County News. However, from an incident that occurred between me and Billy Smith some few years ago, I do not believe that these editorials and statements are written by him. Not desiring to do him any harm, and willing to let this instance be the past, I will mention no more, regarding the same. For this reason, as I stated, I believe these articles are wholly and directly the product of the mind of J. B. Atkinson, the publisher of said paper. What I have to say regarding the same will be directed to him as the secret mind behind these insinuations, and I deem it my duty and privilege to reply publicly to said articles which appeared in his newspaper.

I could go back, Mr. Atkinson, and give your past—the things that you have done and the things you have omitted to do. This would take considerable time. In my remarks to you I am speaking to you of your public records. As to your private actions I have no concern.

In the main your articles have been directed toward criticisms of my prohibition record. You insinuate that my actions have not been consistent with what I have preached. In other words, you try to destroy my prohibition record, on the fact that I attended a barbecue where you allege some of the parties present were drinking. I ask you Mr. Atkinson, have you any right thru your newspaper to criticise me or any other man upon any record unless you yourself are free from the accusations you level at others? My entire life since attaining majority has always been against liquor and for prohibition. I have introduced and assisted in preparing many bills for the Legislature looking to the abolition of intoxicating liquors. I stood practically the entire expense during the Comer Administration of making preparations and finally repealing the dispensary bill of Chilton County, I have contributed in a financial way to the cause of prohibition since my entry into it. In about 1896 I was elected to the Legislature, and at that time we had open bar rooms in this county and local option by beats. Beat 1 always voted for whiskey. The first official act of mine after I was elected was to request Judge N. D. Denson to draw me the strongest prohibition bill he could for Chilton County and it was passed by the Legislature. The record is there, look it up. This, Mr. Atkinson, in a time when prohibition was not so popular. I was in the Legislature several times, and also the Constitutional onvention of 1901. In every instance my vote was on the side of prohibition. My record is there for you to see. In 1909 I made speeches throughout Alabama for the Prohibition amendment. It was told me that if I worked for the amendment I would be defeated for Probate Judge. The record is that I continued making speeches for prohibition and I was defeated. In 1920 I was nominated for the United States Senate against Oscar W. Underwood. I went into many counties in Alabama and made speeches throughout many days and weeks. In every speech I made I stood firmly for prohibition. I received 78,000 votes, almost twice the number of votes the Republican party generally received. In every race for Probate Judge I have made I stood for prohibition. Just last year when many were being turned out of the penitentiary to vote against me for Probate Judge, I stood against this publicly even in our strongest liquor beats. I publicly exposed these schemes and notified you that I was going to do so, and invited you to appear, but you failed to come. You were true to your past record in the last campaign. When your recently-adopted Democratic party was in the greatest fight of its history for its own existence, you, while running a Democratic newspaper failed to defend your party. You stood by in editorial silence and even the Democrats had to wonder where you were and who your paper was for. It appeared that you were willing to let your party go without your editorial defense in order to gain for yourself some private ambition in Chilton County politics. I believe it is common knowledge to every man and woman in Chilton County and thruout the State who knows me, that I am a prohibitionist not only in my official acts, but in my private life as well. My record upon this, my private acts upon this are open to you and I defy you to show one single instance to the contrary. I believe when you write your articles and make insinuations to the contrary, that you do so willfully and maliciously against what your conscience is telling you and against what you believe is the truth.

I can go further than my official record and state to you that my entire life I have wholly and tetotally abstained from indulging in any intoxicating liquor or beverages of any kind whatever. Since getting into the prohibition fight it has been something like forty years ago, I have never tasted or drunk any kind of liquor whatsoever. I have never had a drop served in my house, in my business, in my office, or in any place I controlled or managed. I have tried to raise my three sons in this manner, and I believe the voice of the public will verify the degree of success I have had.

As to the barbecue picnic, it seems to bear upon your mind more than anything else. You have cast insinuations on me concerning this picnic. I will state to you for your benefit, and to let the public know and see your insinuations in the light that they should be, that this was not my barbecue. I had nothing to do with getting it up, and did not contribute one penny to it, and knew nothing concerning the same until I was invited to come as a guest some few days prior to the same. I did not know who was going to be there. I was told that I could invite some of my friends, and I did invite a few. This picnic was held at Frank Higgins camp, and it was conducted in an orderly and gentlemanly manner, which will be attested to by forty or fifty of the leading citizens of our town. I never saw a drop of liquor there and I know nothing of any liquor being there.

In my public utterances, in my private life, and in my official duties and in my personal proclivities, my side every time is on the side of prohibition. I have considered it my duty individually and officially to do all I could against liquor. At the same time I try not to be a fanatic. I try to keep my honor in the matter, above all else.

The search light of accusation you have leveled at me with its beams of insinuation, blackened by your own desires to mislead the public, emanating from your paper under the guise of Billy Smith, Editor, you, as usual, secretly and yet unexposed to the public, appearing in the background, supposedly free from public defamation and public criticism, have only one purpose in view to serve you in political purposes at the expense of another man's character and reputation; parading falsehoods and misrepresentations before the public, and as an ostrich in the sand thinking you are free; but now I want to take this search light and cast it upon your public life. I want to open the book of your past and read therein what J. B. Atkinson has done or what J. B. Atkinson has failed to do. I believe you have paraded in false colors long enough. We of the Republican party in Chilton County know you as you know yourself. Many of the Democrats know you, and many more are learning you; it won't be long until they will all know you. Whenever you sink the ship of Democracy and ground it on the bottom of destruction as you tried to do the Republican party, then certainly all of the Democrats will know you. But back to my search light. It seems that prohibition is the idea in your mind. However, I would like to throw the beams of this light upon your political record, if a search light could follow that record as it has been so changed, so winding in and out, so reversing back and forth, so hidden at times and yet so plain; but I am interested in your prohibition record. In the first place what have you done for the cause of prohibition?

There will be a picinc at Stanton on Tuesday, July 2. An invitation is extended to the public to come and take part. The purpose of the gathering is to stimulate interest in the organization of a Strawberry Growers Association at that place.

At 10 o'clock A. M. Prof. H. A. Harris, principal of the Stanton School, will make the welcome address to the visitors.

There is on the program an address by County Agent, C. E. Stapp concerning the growing, cultivation, and shipping of strawberries.

Mr. Roland Turner, general agricultural agent for the Southern Railway, will be there to make an address dealing with subjects related to the strawberry business. Other speakers not yet announced will be on the program.

The meeting and picnic will be held at the grounds of the Stanton School. Everybody is invited to come and bring a picnic lunch and spend the day. It is especially urged that all farmers in the Stanton territory attend.

Mrs. Bolton Died At Noon Sunday

Last Sunday about noon the wife of Alec Bolton of the Blow Graveyard settlement was brought to Clanton to a doctor. The lady was carried to the home of Dr. Napoleon S. Johnson and he was called out to see her. The doctor saw that Mrs. Bolton was very sick so he summoned Martin's ambulance that she might be carried to the hospital. Mr. Martin arrived and took the lady from the car and laid her on his cot, but she was dead before she could be placed in the ambulance.

Martin carried the body back home in his ambulance. Funeral services were held Monday at Mt. Pleasant Church and interment made in Blow Graveyard.

Kiwanis Outing Was Extra Fine

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton enjoyed a most delightful meeting Monday night at the summer camp of Dr. Upchurch and Mell Martin on Lake Mitchell. The occasion was in observance of All-Kiwanis night at which time every Kiwanis Club in the United States and Canada was in session for Kiwanis Zero Hour. The program was in conformity with the suggestions of Kiwanis International Convention in session at Milwaukee.

Vice-President, Dr. V. J. Gragg, presided at the meeting Monday night in the absence of C. E. Stapp, president of the Club, who is in Milwaukee attending the International Convention.

Special music was arranged by Percy Pitts, chairman of the Club Committee on music. These numbers included several quartets by local singers.

A most delightful dinner was served from a long table by the side of the lake, around which was gathered about 75 Kiwanians, their wives and several invited guests.

Short talks were made by Rev. Ezell and Rev. Childs. The secretary of the club read messages from C. E. Stapp, president of the Club and Sam Cummings, president of Kiwanis International.

H. S. MOBLEY

Mr. H. S. Mobley who is sent out by the Agricultural Extension Department of the International Harvester Company, will lecture and give demonstrations of dairying at Clanton at 10 o'clock a. m. and at Jemison at 3 o'clock p. m., July 8th.

Campaign Planned For Dairy Interest

Final Arrangements Are Completed for Community Gatherings

Final arrangements have been completed for the big community meetings for the discussion of dairy farming and every indication points to a large attendance.

The meetings will be held at Clanton at 10 a. m. and at Jemison at 7:30 p. m. on July 8th, and every man, woman, and child is invited. Visiting delegations will be heartily welcomed.

Mr. H. S. Mobley, who will assist the local people in conducting the meeting, will do all he can to help build up this community as a dairy center. He is a very able speaker and is widely known in agricultural circles throughout the United States.

More important to this community is the fact that Mr. Mobley has for many years successfully conducted a dairy farm right here in the South. He is not theoretical. He is practical. The information he imparts he has learned by experience.

He is connected with the Agricultural Extension Department, of the International Harvester Company, which concern is sending him here for the sole purpose of helping this community get in line with the other southern states in the great movement which promises to make the South the greatest and most prosperous dairy section of the country.

Mr. Mobley has been conducting similar meetings all over the South and Walton, Georgia, Times says of a meeting at that place:

"Mr. Mobley does not attempt to "show" the farmers how to run their own farms, for, as Mr. Mobley says, 'In many instances they know much more than we can hope to tell them about running their farms, because they are in touch with local conditions and understand local problems they have to deal with.'

"His only purpose was to tell the farm man and woman of the things that are being done in other communities that can be successfully applied to farm work here, and to give them a new viewpoint that will offer incentive to renewed and more progressive effort."

Don't forget the slogan: "Make the Cow Your Partner."

EASTERN BEAT 4 BEATS ALL BEATS FOR BEETS

For raising big beets a farmer in the eastern part of Beat 4 near Refuge wins the prize. Mr. Cary Easterling brought in last Saturday a bloody turnip that measured 20 inches around and weighed 3 pounds. We have seen beets, but this one beats them all.

BIDS ON SCHOOL TRUCK ROUTES

The County Board of Education is asking for sealed bids on all school routes for the year 1929-30. These bids should be in the hands of the County Supt. of Education on or before the 27th of June in order that the Board may be able to consider them on Friday, June 28th.—B. Lawrence, County Supt. Education.

WILL SING AT THOMAS

Poplar Springs Singing Society will meet at Thomas Junior High the 1st Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Everybody is urged to come. The Clanton Quartet will be there. We are going to try to make it the best singing of the season.—W. M. Devaughn.

Whippet Truck Is Very Popular

Mr. Luther Foshee of the Foshee-Calloway Motor Company, states that the new Whippet Six Truck is proving very popular with people of this territory. They have delivered several of these machines during the past week, and in every case they have proved to be satisfactory beyond expectations of the buyers, according to Mr. Foshee.

"We invite anyone who is interested in economical and efficient truck operation to see our new Whippet," says Mr. Foshee. "There is no denying the fact that it is the best performing truck that has been shown here, and we can prove it to anyone."

We call attention to a special advertisement of the Foshee-Calloway Motor Company featuring a sale of used cars for this week and next.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

SUBJECT: WHAT WILL YOU DO WITH JESUS?

In the 1st chapter of the Gospel according to John we find five questions asked of John the Baptiser whose life was one of testimony to Christ or for Christ. The Jews were thinking of the promised Messiah. When they heard of John the Baptist they thought "Could this be He, who is promised? Could this be the Christ of prophecy?" So thinking then sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to inquire of John, "Who art thou?"

Notice here that John confessed and denied not; but confessed that he was not the Christ. Here comes the second question from the aroused Jews, "What then?" Third, "Art thou that Prophet?" Notice, "Art that That Prophet? That Prophet? Again John answers, no. They were yet very inquisitive and repeated the first question again, "Who art thou? that we may give an answer to them that sent us." Then the fifth question was this: "What sayest of thyself, why baptiseth thou then, if thou be not Christ, nor Elias, neither that Prophet?"

John answered, "I am just the voice of one crying in the wilderness, make straight the way of the Lord, and I baptize with water: but there standeth one among you, whom ye know not, whose coming is preferred before us, and whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose." The next day this great testifier of Christ turned to five pupils, we would say Sunday School scholars, and said, "Look yonder, Behold the Lamb of God taketh away the sins of the world."

O, my friends, I ask you this morning to look yonder, look here with me and behold this Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the world. To-day I ask you to behold Christ, the Lamb of God, your only Savior from sin, my only Savior from sin, the only Saviour from sin for the whole world. Then you must learn to think of Christ's atonement for your sins. The atoning blood of the Lamb of God must go before us. Now you confess your sins to Christ, look to Christ, repent of your sins, and turn to Christ and witness bear for Him; and then you are saved.

These men who heard him speak and followed Christ, looked up into His face and said in answer to His question, "What seek ye?" "Master, where dwellest Thou? Where dwellest Thou?" was asked of Him who had no place except the ground on which to rest His tired body, a tomb in the rocks for a shelter. Yet, deep down in their hearts, thousands are asking the same question to-day. Jesus turned and said, "Why follow thou me? What seekest thou? Come and see where I dwell."

Really I am overcome with this inspired picture of Christ standing there and speaking his first words to them in Judea. "Come and see where I dwell." O, that all may come and see to-day. They came and saw where He dwelt, and abode with Him that day. That was about the tenth hour. Then they went there with Him in the ninth hour, which is from 2 to 3 p. m. So all together they spent about three hours with Jesus. Thus on the mountain side, or in a cave, or a tomb, or wherever Jesus stayed they stayed. This morning have I been staying with Jesus? Do we stay with Christ three hours every day?

Jesus Christ said to Jeter, James and John in the Garden of Gethsemane, "Could ye not watch with me one hour?" They went to sleep after being commanded by Jesus to watch for Him. Think of Him as He stands there disappointed, His heart aching, "Could ye not watch with me one hour?" He looks down upon us to-day and says, "Could you not read the Bible one hour? Could you not pray one hour? Can't you give me one hour this afternoon?"

Suppose you go home and stay with Christ all the afternoon. Sometimes we do so fear criticism. That does not matter. Christ Himself was criticised, and if you will read the Bible carefully and prayerfully you will find that He teaches us how to meet criticism. Christ led His disciples and us to know that criticism comes from ignorance, not knowing facts. Truly, we find that Christ met all the issues of life by prayer. When I visited in Palestine I saw the mountains of which the poet wrote the lines:

"Cold mountain, and midnight air
Witnessed the fervor of my Saviour's prayers."

Once Christ said to the ignorant Pharisees who were hounding Him, "Look here men, I demand your attention now, What think ye of Christ? Whose son is He anyway?" They said unto Him, "Thou are the son of David." Then Christ said, "How then doth David in spirit call Him Lord. If David then call God Lord, how is He his son?"

This question haunts me to-day. What think ye of Christ? It is not what my neighbor, or that group of people over yonder thinks of Christ. It is a personal, powerful, heart-searching question on which we should give much time and thought. When Jesus was baptised of John in the Jordan a voice came from heaven saying, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." I have read that sentence over and over and thought of the fact that if God was well pleased in the only Son He ever had who gave his all bearing your sins and my sins in his sinless body, how much more we should be pleased with such a Saviour. How gladly we should acknowledge Him in all our ways.

Really, what do you think about it? Look out there at Hermon which is now capped. There as Jesus' body was transfigured a voice said, "This is my beloved Son, hear ye Him." He was pleased with His Son in all His ways. You and I must hear Jesus, read His life in the Bible, love Him, live for Him, submit to His will, honor Him, serve Him, and acknowledge Him in all our ways.

We read that as Christ stood before Pilate in that unjust trial Pilate turned to His accusers and said, "Here is a man named Barabbas, a robber I would like for you to crucify him and let Jesus go free." They all screamed out, "Crucify Him, Him." Now, my dear friends, I want to tell you I never can forget the time and the feeling I experienced as I first viewed Golgotha, Calvary where Christ was crucified. To-day I feel as I did as I looked upon Calvary that if I do not tell you the words of this Bible, and clearly introduce you to Jesus Christ with all the power I have, I will crucify or recrucify Him. I will never do it.

Some people are taking a javelin and drivin it right through His heart. They are driving great spikes through His hands and feet, and placing a crown of thorns upon his head. O, my friends, it is not a matter of public opinion or criticism, but it is just a matter of how I treat Jesus Christ. Pontius Pilate was a shrewd time-serving Roman governor. He trimmed his sails to suit the many seas, or in other words he wanted to please the people, to please the devil. Christ looked at Pilate who was trying to be on both sides of the fence, and no doubt Pilate flinched from His just look. He turned to the persecutors and said, "Will you crucify Barabbas? What shall I do with this Jesus which is called the Christ?"

Now I stand up here before you with the same question confronting me. If I should say that Jesus Christ was born like Woodrow Wilson or some other man and that He got His teachings from somebody else, what would I be doing? Men, I ask you again, "What will you do with this Jesus, who is called the Christ? I must say that I am going to do everything I can to uphold this Jesus who is called the Christ to the whole world. What will you do with this Jesus who is called the Christ."

It is sad but true that there are men who are out and out trying to get rid of Christ just as did Pilate. Some churches and some families are trying to get rid of Him. I am just as sure of it as I am that I stand here before you and look into your faces. One evidence of their trying to get rid of Him is in their wanting to give, but not in the name of Jesus Christ. We have a big task of giving in Jesus's name, which Christ has rolled over on us. He gave it to His disciple and to us out yonder on Mount Tabor. It is the task of giving the Gospel, the love of Christ to all. He said, "Ge ye therefore and teach all nations."

Paul said of those committed a task that it is receiving an opportunity of the Lord. When you go forward in teaching God's Word, trying to win souls for His Kingdom you are magnifying your opportunity. You are magnifying God because the opportunity is of God. This winning souls is a big task, and requires lots of praying to God. O, my friends, what will you do with this Jesus which is called the Christ?

Watch old Pontius Pilate sitting up there in all his grandeur. The first thing his wife comes to him and says, "Have nothing to do with that just man." But pretty soon we will see that Pilate saw Him condemned to the horrible death of crucifixion. Watch His criticisers and accusers as they carry Him down steps and lead Him back into the basement and crush into His forehead a crown of thorns.

Notice that when Pilate was trying to get rid of Him it seems to me he just did not want a bit of trouble to him about it. He said, "I don't know anything about it. Why not just crucify Barabbas instead?" He merely suggested Barabbas as a substitute, not thinking of that great judgment day when men to judgment wake from clay.

I am not emphasizing tradition, but it is said that Pontius Pilate committed suicide. Think of the first time he looked up at Christ, the second time he looked into His face, the third time he looked into His face. O, how his conscience must have hurt! What a remorseful feeling must have lingered with him. Let us live for Him while here. Let us look up into this Jesus who is called the Christ and say:

"My life, my love I give to Thee
Thou Lamb of God who died for me.
O may I ever faithful be
My Saviour and my God."

REVIEW: PROPHETS AND KINGS OF JUDAH'S DECLINE

GOLDEN TEXT—I have loved thee with an everlasting love, therefore with loving kindness have I drawn thee.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Stories Retold.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Learning to Serve God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—True and False Leaders.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's True Prophets.

The quarterly review always brings its problems. No set method can be prescribed. The grade, the aptitude of the pupils and the genius of the teacher are determining factors of the problem. For seniors and adults, two methods are suggested.

I. Character Study of the Kings and Prophets of the Period.

Biography is always fascinating and profitable. In the use of this method, assignments should be made a week ahead. As to the kings of this period, a study should be made of their strong and weak points, and suitable lessons be drawn from them. As to the prophets, the nature of the ministry of each should be studied.

II. The Summary Method.

This method involves the terse statement of the salient facts of each lesson with its central teaching. This method, to be effective, calls for assignments to be made a week in advance. Different minds will greatly vary. The following statements are offered as suggestions:

Lesson for April 7.

Either at the beginning of Isaiah's ministry or later when called to a deeper experience, he had a vision of the majesty and holiness of the living God. The leading lesson is that a real sight of the living God discloses the sinfulness of man.

Lesson for April 14.

In leading the people back to God Hezekiah proclaimed a passover. The passover was a memorial of the nation's deliverance through the shedding of the blood of a sacrificial lamb. The lamb typified Christ. The only way for a sinning and divided people to get back to God and be united is around the crucified Lord.

Lesson for April 21.

Isaiah sought to comfort the people by assuring them that the Lord God as the Messiah was coming to reign over the earth, and deliver them from bondage, and shepherd them. The only possible deliverance from the world is the coming of Jesus Christ and the establishment of His Kingdom.

Lesson for April 28.

Salvation of God's people was to be accomplished through the suffering of their Messiah. At Christ's first coming He suffered the penalty of our sin. His suffering resulted in a spiritual progeny. Life out of death is the law governing the universe—natural and spiritual.

Lesson for May 5.

While the temple was in process of renovation, the law of God was found and read to the king. This brought great disturbance to his mind as he realized the enormity of the nation's sins. God's Word has power to convict of sin and effect a revival.

Lesson for May 12.

God called Jeremiah before he was born, overcame his timidity, and sent him to warn his people of coming judgment. Though violently opposed and persecuted, God delivered him.

Lesson for May 19.

Jeremiah called the people to obedience to God's Word. The only way to avert God's judgment is to return unto Him and render obedience.

Lesson for May 26.

God will restore Israel to Palestine. Israel will return and possess the land. Jesus Christ will then come and enter into a new covenant, writing the law of God in their hearts.

Lesson for June 2.

Because Jeremiah faithfully declared God's law, he was hated and cast into a dungeon. Those who faithfully declare God's law shall suffer.

Lesson for June 9.

The Rechabites out of filial loyalty to their father abstained from the use of wine. Jeremiah gave them a public test as an example to Judah. Obedience to earthly fathers brings blessings, but obedience to God brings greater blessings.

Lesson for June 16.

Judah went into captivity according to God's Word, which cannot fail.

Lesson for June 23.

Psalm 103 is entirely devoted to praise to God. Those who have experienced the life of God in the soul will bless Him with all their being.

ALL-DAY SINGING AT MINERAL SPRINGS CHURCH

Mr. E. H. Foshee requests us to announce that there will be an all-day singing at Mineral Springs church on the first Sunday in July. State Fire Marshal, D. M. Slaughter, has promised to be there; also the Clanton Quartet. All singers are invited. Everybody bring dinner.

MILITARY TRAINING FOR BOYS

For the evil influences that assail a boy's life, the pulls to poolrooms and to petty theiving, the slow pressures toward personal dishonor, lying and the vices of the city, no antidote is better than a high grade military training in the schools. The honor of the boy scout is guarded with no more punctilio than the honor of the boy soldier. Sneaks and liars do not fit well in a military training corps.

In military training there is a discipline that boys find all too rarely in the modern world. The discipline of the farm, where jobs must be done without question, has largely gone. The discipline of other work declines as living standards rise and boys work less. In military training remains a way to discipline and manliness for growing boys.

Military training in the public schools should bs encouraged. Intelligently handled, such training is invaluable, not only in the interest of national defense but for the character of boys—Chicago Tribune.

Mr. A. F. Mims of Thorsby was a visitor here Saturday.

"Pimples do not embarrass me now..... they are all gone"

"S.S.S. has brought me health and happiness"

WITH the last blemish gone, confidence returns. More friends — more invitations — more good times. With the joy and pride of possessing a clear skin, self-respect increases.

Everybody wants to be attractive. It is a just and natural ambition. But no one can be attractive without a clear skin.

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils, eczema and other skin eruptions as being an indication that the body's power of resistance is low.

The sure way to remedy this condition is to restore the red-blood-cells to normal.

This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful skin annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

S.S.S. helps Nature restore the blood to its normal state. Healthy blood nourishes the body and works against infection and disease.

Without plenty of rich, red blood there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or healthy, beautiful women.

If you are troubled with so-called skin disorders take a few bottles of S.S.S. Seek energy, vitality and a clear skin through the remedy, which is made from fresh vegetable drugs, and has stood the test of over 100 years.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Bad Man

"Big boy, does yo' think yo's hahd?"

Hahd? Man, Ah's so hahd Ah don' dare put mah hands in mah pockets fo' fear Ah'll get 'rested fo' carryin' concealed weapons."

Colorful Story

"Heavens!" gasped the little red rooster down on the farm. "You're looking pale!"

"Yes," happily replied the little red hen. "I've finally laid another egg and I'm tickled pink."

Where It Goes

"You've been looking a bit shoddy of late old man. Haven't you spent any money for clothes lately?"

"Yes—damn her!"

We Aim to Please

It was the noon hour in a business office, and the only occupants were a pretty girl clerk and a customer who was waiting for the return of the boss. He was a nosey individual, this customer, and had asked the girl all the intimate questions he could think of—who was her favorite boy friend, how much she made a week, if she didn't think it was a shame the way grafting was going on in the city government, and why she wore a pink hat with a blue dress. Finally he inquired idly:

"And what time do you go to lunch?"

"Oh, any time is all right," she replied brightly. Whenever it's convenient for you."

Middle Life Troubles

"About twenty years ago, my health was very bad," says Mrs. Mat Howard, of Terrell, Texas. "I was passing through a critical time in my life, and I suffered a great deal. I was not at all strong, and my nerves got all upset. I had hot flashes, and sometimes would get suddenly so faint I could not stand up. My head would whirl, and I could not see a thing. I would have to lie down for hours at a time.

"I improved so much after I had taken Cardui for a while. I continued the medicine for some months, until I had passed the critical period. Since then, I have given Cardui to my five daughters. All of them have continued the use of Cardui in their homes. We have all been better for having taken it."

Precaution

The deal had been completed, but just to satisfy his curiosity, the airplane salesman permitted himself a question.

"If you're going to fly alone I don't see why you'll need two parachutes," he said.

"Why won't I?" testily demanded the opinionated purchaser. "What if one parachute should fail to open?"

Fountain of Youth

"Felix kept himself young by running around with the gay younger set."

"How old was he when he died?"

"Thirty."

Sheer Foolishness

It was three o'clock in the morning, and the husband fondly fancied he had taken all precautions for silence when he entered the house and tiptoed up the stairs, but they were not enough for the vigilant wife who was waiting in the bedroom.

"Now, why on earth are you coming home at this unholy hour of the night?" she demanded.

"It is rather silly, isn't it?" he agreed wearily.

Patients With Money

"So your son's a doctor now?"

"Yes, he's a specialist."

"What does he specialize in?"

"Oh, everything—everything."

Soul of Propriety

"Is he a nice boy?"

"I should say! We drove seventy-four miles before I decided to walk back."

Sisters Under the Skin

On this trip the crack express had been far from living up to its reputation. First it would go forward fifty yards or so, then back, then stand still puffing uncertainly and then begin the same thing all over again. At last one of the travelers lost his patience and summoned the porter.

"What the devil's the matter with this train?" he exploded. "Backing up and jerking forward in this awful way."

"It's quite all right, sir," the porter assured him in that soothing way porters have. "I think the engineer is teaching his wife to drive.

Propriety

"Oh, gosh!" the girl exclaimed. It's started to rain. You'll have to take me home."

"Why, I'd—I'd love to," her bashful escort stammered, "but you know I live at the Y."

Parley Vous

Mrs. Newriche had just arrived from a tour of Europe, and her long-suffering acquaintances had no opportunity to forget the fact.

"And Paris!" she gushed. "Paris is just wonderful! The people are all so well-educated—not at all like they are in this crude country, my dear! Why, even the street cleaners can talk French!"

Imperfect Record

"My good fellow," said the warden of the asylum to the inmate he had called before him, "I'm sure I don't know what to do about your case. You've attempted suicide six times now."

"I know, but be lenient with me, chief," pleaded Silly Sam. "I didn't succeed only twice."

The Home Lover

Fearing he had lost his way, a tourist leaned out of his car and hailed a sleepy-looking native of a small village.

"Hey!" he called. "What's the name of the next town beyond this?"

"Dunno, stranger," drawled the local patrriot. "I lives hyar."

BIG INTEREST IN MEETING

"Make The Cow Your Partner" Is Popular Slogan Here

"Make the Cow Your Partner." That is the popular slogan of the day in this community.

The indications are that a big crowd will attend the community meetings to be held at Clanton at 10 o'clock a. m. and at Jemison at 7:30 p. m., July 8th, for the purpose of discussing ways and means of making this one of the leading dairy communities in the South.

Farmers and business men alike realize that dairy communities the country over are always prosperous communities and all are determined that we shall play our part in the great dairy movement now sweeping the South.

Mr. H. S. Mobley, who will be sent here by the Agricultural Extension Department of the International Harvester Company, to assist in conducting the meeting is, perhaps, the one man in this country best qualified to discuss this matter with us because he has had years of experience as a successful southern dairy farmer who is familiar with southern conditions and who sees the South's great opportunities.

A recent issue of the National Magazine had this to say about Mr. Mobley:

"Mr. Mobley is a direct, convincing speaker and has the gift of holding his hearer's interest from beginning to end. His purpose, first, last and all the time is to help the farmer, not to show him how to run his farm, but to offer him the benefit of practical knowledge and long personal experience.

"Mr. Mobley is a farmer of the most practical as well as the most progressive type. He is, himslef, practicing on his own southern farm the things he advocates in his talks to farmers. He has made a scientific study of soils and crops and everything pertaining to farming, and has put this knowledge into actual practice."

Don't forget the date. Be present. Admission will be free.

Rewards Awaiting

When we land on the bleak shore of disappointment we shall make the wonderful discovery that the Savior has anticipated our coming and has made ample provision. There will be heavenly cordials, and there will be comforts of grace, and there will be the exhilarating wine of a new hope. —J. H. Jowett.

Nigh at Hand

Know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand.

From on High

Power from on high made those sunburned fishermen irresistible.—J. W. Lee.

Possible With God

The things which are impossible with men are possible with God.

Faith

Faith is not blind acceptance of absurdity. Faith is the completion of a transaction in which we commit ourselves to a personal relationship with an unseen and living Master. Faith is such an adventure as every sailor makes when he sets out for an unseen port. Faith is our response to our yearning for the God who has made us for fellowship with himself. Faith is the answer of the vibrant human spirit to the music of Eternity. —Ozora S. Davis.

He that shall endure unto the end the same shall be saved.

Success

Success is doing your level best; God never did more.

The Lord's Prayer

Thou to the mercy seat our souls doth gather
To our duty unto Thee—Our Father,
To whom all praise, all honor should be given,
For Thou art the great God—Who Art in Heaven,
Thou, by Thy wisdom, rul'st the world's whole fame,
Forever therefore—Hallowed be Thy Name.
Let nevermore delay divide us from
Thy glorious face, but let—Thy Kingdom Come;
Let Thy commands opposed be by none,
But Thy good pleasure and—Thy Will be Done,
And let our promptness to obey be even
The very same—In Earth as 'tis in Heaven.
Then for our souls, O Lord, we also pray,
Thou wouldst't be pleased to—Give us this day
The food of life, wherewith our souls are fed,
Sufficient raiment and—Our daily bread;
With every needful thing do Thou relieve us.
And of Thy mercy, pity—And Forgive us
All our misdeeds, for Him whom Thou dids't please
To make an offering, for—Our Trespasses,
And forasmuch, O Lord, as we believe
That Thou wilt pardon us—As we forgive,
Let that love teach, wherewith Thou doth acquaint us
To pardon all—Those who trespass against us;
And though, sometimes, Thou finds't we have forgot
This love for Thee, ye help—And lead us not
Through soul or body's want to desperation,
Nor let earth's gain drive us—Into Temptation;
Let not the soul of any true believer
Fall in the time of trial—But deliver
Yea, save them from the malice of the devil,
And both in life and death, keep—Us from evil,
Thus pray we, Lord, for that of Thee, from whom
This may be had—For Thine is the Kingdom
This world is of Thy works, its wondrous story
To The belongs—The Power and the Glory,
And all Thy wondrous works have ended never,
But will remain forever, and—Forever.
Thus we poor creatures would confess again,
And thus would say eternally—Amen.

THORSBY SECTION

S. E. NORTON, Manager

On Thursday night, June 20th, a few of the citizens of Thorsby met at the Town Hall for the purpose of organizing a Civic Club for the town of Thorsby. The meeting was called to order by Rev. Joseph Each and the following temporary officers were elected: G. F. Harper, President; C. M. Williams, Secretary. It was unanimously decided that the name of the organization shall be The Thorsby Civic Club. It was also decided that the club shall meet on the second and fourth Tuesday nights of each month. The name of the Club indicates its purpose. At the next meeting we wish to discuss ways and means of making our town more attractive and sanitary. May we not expect the cooperation of every citizen who is interested in the welfare of the community.—Respectfully, C. M. Williams, Secretary.

Mr. M. D. Pearson of Birmingham has bought the drug store located in Thorsby Masonic building and expects to open about July 1st. Mr. Pearson is a licensed pharmacist, a man of pleasing personality. He has a wife and one child, and has rented one of Mrs. Villadsen's cottages for their home. The drug store is being thoroughly renovated, and will be made as attractive as possible.

The Alabama Power Company is preparing to move their Thorsby office to the building which has for several years been occupied as a moving picture theater. The office that they vacate will be occupied by Dr. S. C. Wood and his brother, Dr. Norman Wood, who will have office hours there for the convenience of the people of Thorsby and vicinity.

The Thorsby Parent-Teachers Association "Hen and Egg" social held last Saturday at the home of Mrs. J. E. Each, netted $60.00 for the Public School Water works system, and the lecture and food cooking demonstration on Monday night of the same week brought $9.00 for the same purpose. The ladies of the association wish to express gratitude for the interest and assistance of so many in the community in raising this fund for a much needed improvement in our public school facilities.

Mrs. J. E. Each and children spent Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Petersen.

Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Wood and Mrs. S. C. Wood and son, Frank, spent the week end in Birmingham.

The Y. W. A. met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Carroll, this being the first social meeting serving refreshments.

Miss Marian Fairbank will leave Friday for Sioux Falls, South Dakota to visit her brother and family. Later she will go to Chapel Hill, North Carolina to attend the summer session of the Library School of the University of North Carolina.

Miss Marian Fay Bailey of Birmingham is spending a couple of weeks with Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Laurell at their Thorsby home.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurell spent last week, Tuesday, in Birminham visiting his parents, the occasion being the birthday anniversary of his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Bice and children and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Pate went to Speigner Sunday and spent the day with Mrs. Walker's brother, who is a guard at the convict farm.

Thorsby Lutheran Sunday school will hold their annual Sunday school picnic in the grove of Mr. Conrad Carlson's farm north of Thorsby. They extend an invitation to all who would like to participate.

Rev. J. W. Jones reports a good congregation at Thorsby Baptist church last Sunday. Three new members were received. There was also a very good attendance at the Sunday School.

Sunday, July 14th, the last services will be held in the Baptist church building. Immediately after that date, the building will be wrecked and the material will be used in the construction of their new church near the public school building. During such construction the congregation will hold their meetings in the Public School building.

Fred Howard and daughter, Lucille, were among the air passengers who hopped off at Calera last Sunday. Their trip extended as far southward as Thorsby, at an average elevation of 1,800 feet, the 30 mile trip was made in 18 minutes. They say the highway looked like a string of cotton twine, and automobiles no bigger than a man's hand, while people on the ground were about the size of flies. Cecil Each and a friend also went up, but their trip was much shorter.

Mr. Astro Wright wishes to express sincere appreciation of the generous patronage given him in his business by the people of Thorsby and vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Bean and daughter, Lutishe, and son, J. E., of Tallassee, were Sunday visitors in Thorsby and Jemison.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Goddard and Mrs. J. R. Boyd were Monday guests of Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Sarber of Elmore. Mrs. A. K. Horn was also a guest of the Sarbers.

Miss Lenore S. Goodwin, sister of Mrs. S. E. Norton, and their niece, Miss Agnes Lenore Goodwin, of Washington, D. C. are expected to arrive in Thorsby on Wednesday of this week. Miss Agnes has been legally adopted as her daughter by her aunt, Miss Goodwin. They plan to spend about two weeks as guests of the Norton's and then go to Fairhope, Ala., where they will make a more extended visit among their kin folks.

Mrs. G. F. Harper has a magnificent bed of Zinnias in her garden. They are worth going far to see.

For quantity and variety of flowers or vegetables on a small piece of ground one should see the home grounds of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Willis opposite C. S. Howard's home on the Montgomery road. It would seem unbelievable that so much beauty can be crowded into so small a space.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carlson have an interesting flower novelty in a Scarlet Canna. It's a beauty.

There are no doubt many other interesting flower gardens in and about Thorsby. We just have not seen all of them.

Clinic For Cripples Here Tomorrow

The clinic for cripple children of Chilton County will be held at the Baptist church in Clanton Friday, June 28th of this week. An effort has been made through the child welfare department and the Kiwanis Club to reach every cripple child in the county and arrange for each and every one to be here for free examination.

In addition to examination by one of the leading bone specialists of the State, recommendations will also be made for treatment of the cripples so as to bring them as nearly as possible to a state of normalcy in limb and body.

The accompanying picture is of Jack Coker, a young man who has had the advantages of treatment through recommendations of a clinic of this kind. Jack went to a clinic for examination. After his examination, members of Clanton Kiwanis Club secured treatment for him and now he walks without his crutches. He is a student of the Chilton County High School.

Smith-Davis

The month of "roses and orange blossoms" claimed another happy couple Wednesday morning when Mr. D. L. Smith of Wetumpka and Miss Gertie Mae Davis of Clanton were married at the Methodist parsonage at Clanton. Only a few intimate friends and close relatives of the couple were present at the ceremony. Rev. E. A. Childs pronounced them man and wife a few minutes till nine o'clock and the young couple left soon after for a motor trip to points in North Georgia, where they will spend a few days honeymooning. They expect to return to Wetumpka, where they will make their home, on Friday of this week.

Mr. Smith formerly lived in Clanton, and has a large number of friends here. He worked for Elmore's 5c and 10c Store while here, and is now located at Wetumpka where he is manager of a 5c and 10c store there for Mr. V. J. Elmore. Miss Davis is well known as a popular member of Clanton's younger set, having lived here all her life. She has been connected with Robinson's Department Store as saleslady for some time.

INSECTS AND PLAGUES CAUSE ALARM ON FARM

Dear People:

If time goes on as it is, it surely will not be long till we will not be able to make anything on our farms. Plagues, insects, and other things are getting so numerous, it looks like we have a mighty hard time fighting them. It looks like it don't do any good to fight them. I think I can give you a remedy that will beat poison.

Back when I was a child we had great multitudes of various kinds of birds to protect our stuff, but what has become of them? We have allowed our boys to take guns and sling shots and destroy these little helpers until there are none left to help us fight the insects. We used to have many yellow hammers, white wings, sapsuckers, blackbirds, quail, and all kinds of birds in great droves. Then we could go to the fields and gather a sack of good old cornfield beans and peas any time in the summer. There was no such thing as weevils and insects to destroy our stuff.

We failed to realize the value of the birds that were given us to protect us against insects. May God speed the time when our great state will pass a law to stop the killing of any and all kinds of birds.—E. H. Headley, Clanton, Route 5.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Roberts and Anne, Mrs. B. M. Roberts and daughters, Jane and Helen, left last Saturday morning for a motor trip to St. Louis. They will return Friday or Saturday of this week.

New York.—News dispatches from Commander Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic Expedition, dated "Little America, Antarctica," tell of the excellent health, high spirits, and physical comfort of sixty men, 12,000 miles from civilization, living in a temperature many degrees below zero.

It is not to mere chance or good fortune that the members of the Byrd expedition have thus far escaped the ravages of sickness and disease, for Commander Byrd, realizing that the marked changes in temperature between the temperate climate to which his men had been accustomed and that of the ice-locked wastes of the frozen Antarctic would require all of the sanitary precautions known to modern science and medical skill if the health and physical well being of his expedition were to be adequately protected.

Commander Byrd's success as an explorer and adventurer into the far and desolate regions of the earth has been attributed to the painstaking preparations which have always preceded each of his efforts. This policy of preparedness for all possible contingencies was noted on the occasions of his flight over the North Pole, and his Trans-Atlantic flight.

For weeks before sailing from New York for the South Pole Commander Byrd's men were put through arduous physical instruction under a trained gymnast; each man's teeth were carefully examed and all dental defects were treated; skilled physicians and surgeons examined each member of the crew. Many applicants for berths with the expedition were rejected because of bodily infirmities or minor physical defects, and when the Expedition finally sailed away from New York every man in the crew was pronounced 100 per cent physically fit.

Even the mattresses for the bunks of the crew were specially made to insure a maximum of rest during sleep. Dr. Francis D Coman, of Johns Hopkins University, the medical officer of the Expedition, took along a supply of medicines, surgical appliances, first aid equipment, etc., almost sufficient to stock the average hospital.

Both Commander Byrd and Dr. Coman realized that germs and vermin know no geographical limitations and thrive alike in temperate and frigid climates, so twenty-five cases of lye were also included among the many supplies. The reason for taking along such a large quantity of lye is that it has many sanitary uses, kills germs and vermin that abound wherever a large group of human beings are closely confined, opens sinks and drains which when clogged from breeding places for disease spreading germs. A teaspoonful of lye in a gallon of Antarctic snow quickly solves the problems of the Byrd dishwashing crew.

Chlorinated lime was taken along in large quantities to purify the drinking water, as a disinfectant and for sterilization. Both lye and chlorinated lime, according to Chief Steward Greason of the Byrd Expedition, is used for swabbing down the walls and floors of the little houses in which the Byrd men are dwelling in the Antarctic, and for washing out their bunks.

Dozens of other items designed to insure the health of his men on the two-year expedition into Antarctica were taken along by Commander Byrd—and the superb health of every member of his crew apparently justifies these many precautions

BANKERS IN NATIONAL MOVE FOR UNIFORM FINANCIAL PRACTICES

Would Promote Greater Consistency Among All the State Laws in Respect to Banking Conditions—Uniformity of Practice and Understanding Will Make for Greater Convenience, Efficiency and Safety for All Business.

By S. J. HIGH
President State Bank Division, American Bankers Association

RAPID interchange of business and the quick transportation of goods in the United States, coupled with almost instantaneous means of inter-communication by telegraph, telephone and wireless, have welded the country into an economic unit. The nation is not, in a business sense, conducting its affairs in water-tight compartments, as in a measure it did in the days of slow travel and remote places, but styles, methods, commodities and business practices flow freely today in all directions. Therefore it is desirable that finance, trade and industry throughout the country operate along generally uniform or at least consistent lines, so that a contract or an agreement or obligation in connection with business transactions shall mean virtually the same thing in all parts of the country. Particularly necessary in this connection is the establishment of uniform financial and banking practices so as to facilitate the flow of trade along accepted and understood lines.

S. J. HIGH

Banking in the United States is recognized as a semi-public type of business and is therefore subject to laws to define the scope and character of its activities. These laws at present set up a great diversity of conditions under which banking is conducted in various parts of the country since they come from both state and federal authorities. The national banks are all chartered by the federal government and therefore operate on the same lines in every state of the Union, but there is no such regularity in respect to the conditions under which the state banks chartered by the respective forty-eight states must conduct their business. All state banking codes, while they have similarities, also have many great dissimilarities in respect both to the national bank laws and the banking laws covering state bank operations in other jurisdictions.

Bankers Move for Uniform Laws

The State Bank Division of the American Bankers Association, which latter includes in its membership banks of all descriptions throughout the country subject to all the variations of state and federal banking laws, is committed to the effort to bring about greater consistency and uniformity among the statutes of all these various jurisdictions. This body is conducting a vigorous nation-wide campaign urging that active steps be taken to secure greater co-ordination in banking legislation, more equitable conditions and more uniformly efficient public supervision of banks in the several states.

The organization is particularly concerned with fostering this movement to bring about more uniformly desirable conditions throughout the United States in respect to the public supervision of banking institutions by the state banking departments. It is on record as favoring the policy that the important office of state bank commissioner should be kept as free from entangling partisan politics as the judiciary itself and should be completely detached from all other functions of state government.

It is also on record as favoring the policy that the tenure of office of state bank commissioners should be made more secure and lasting than is now the case in many state jurisdictions and that this important public officer be granted sufficient compensation and discretionary power so that the office shall attract and retain the services of men of outstanding executive ability and successful banking experience.

It is also a part of this policy that the bank commissioner's ability to serve well should be strengthened by providing him with adequate forces of bank examiners, selected on the basis of merit from men having the requisite qualifications of honesty, ability, training and banking knowledge to carry out the duties of their offices on the highest plane of usefulness to the public as well as to banking.

The Trend of State Laws

The Association's State Bank Division has recently concluded a nation-wide survey of state banking legislation and conditions and in general has discovered a definite trend along the following lines:

There is a distinct tendency among the states to raise the minimum capital requirements for banks, to provide for the examination of banks by bank commissioners in some states is found in laws giving them complete charge of insolvent banks and their liquidation as distinguished from more costly liquidation through the courts.

In the Public Interest

Distinctly in the public interest are laws prohibiting or limiting an officer or director of a bank from borrowing from his own bank unless his collateral security is approved by a majority of the board of directors of the bank. Also there is recent legislation noted providing for closer supervision and regulation of building and loan associations, credit unions, finance companies and private banks.

In some states measures have been enacted broadening the field for investment of funds of savings banks and trust companies, which have materially enhanced the service that these institutions can render, particularly in the way of co-operation with their customers in personal financial management. Another type of legislation, important especially to banking in view of the frequent efforts to defraud banks, is that which makes the issuance of worthless checks a misdemeanor with specific penalties.

The State Bank Division of the American Bankers Association endorses in the fullest degree in principle the development of banking laws along the foregoing lines and is actively engaged in fostering the spread of such legislation wherever its services are considered useful both to banking and to the public. Uniformly sound banking institutions and practices, together with common methods and understanding, will materially add to the convenience, efficiency and safety of business in serving the well-being of the public in all parts of the nation, especially in those transactions involving dealings between different localities.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

FRANK P. LITSCHERT

No nation, certainly no nation of the size and resources of the United States, has ever put under a more constructive or more comprehensive movement to deal with a great national menace than was inaugurated by President Hoover when he appointed a committee of representative and competent citizens to deal with the problem of law violation and to seek a remedy for this ultra-modern condition.

When we stop for a moment to think of the many elements which go into law violation, our cosmopolitan population, our great wealth, our native organizing ability, which can be misdirected as well as properly directed, we can agree with Mr. Wickersham, the chairman of the commission when he says that no one can realize, who has not looked into it just how baffling and perplexing the question is.

"There are 48 states under the federal jurisdiction," Mr. Wickersham declared, "yet there is no place where statistics concerning crime are assembled to which one can go and read them, as one would read health statistics."

In its efforts to get a start on the problem the commission is going into the courts and police bureaus of the country for their figures. The work of assembling the statistics will therefore be necessarily slow and laborious. In addition there will be the hearing of witnesses and the assembling of opinion from men and women in every walk of life.

The job is not one which can be done in a day and yet it is one which ought to be done as thoroughly as possible. There is no question that something can be done in an effort to arrest the crime evil in America. It is a national menace which can no longer be ignored.

Those who oppose the theory of prohibition of the liquor traffic in America are wont to blame the crime wave on to the violation of the eighteenth amendment. But those who have studied the question, while admitting that bootlegging and hijacking form a serious problem, know that the causes are deeper than this. Others have blamed the crime wave on the let-down which followed the tension of the World War. But now that the period of reconstruction is over in America it would seem that this post war relaxation ought to be about over, too. Yet, the crime wave continues.

The truth is, of course, that crime was on the increase before the war and before the eighteenth amendment was adopted. There were violations of the liquor laws even then and the liquor question was in politics, just as it is in some communities today.

One notable fact is that the criminals of today are to be found in large part among the youth of the land. Just why this is true is probably due to no one reason. It may be that the American home is not what it used to be in many instances, yet it is an undeniable fact that all over America there are millions of homes where parents try industriously to guide their children along proper paths, just as they have always done—and these homes are to be found in the city as well as in the country.

Life today and the rearing of children is a much more complicated process than ever before. Therefore many people blame the crime wave in part at least on to the complications of modern civilization. But this is only passing the buck. The root of the evil must be found and when it is found it will doubtless be discovered also that the tree of iniquity has several roots.

This is what makes the task of the new crime commission so difficult. No one remedy can be found because there is no single reason for the increase of crime.

At any rate, President Hoover is to be commended for tackling this all-important problem in characteristic fashion. The high character of the members of the commission, and their intelligence and ability can assure us that a real effort will be made to find a solution, or solutions to the problem confronting them. And certainly every good citizen has it as a part of his duty to cooperate with the new commission in every way possible.

We do not want America to be known as the most lawless of the civilized nations. The reputation is not an enviable one, and in addition, the menace is one which gnaws deeply into the fundamentals of the republic.

FIGHT THE FRUIT FLY

It won't hurt you to eat a Mediterranean fruit fly maggot, but you would be depriving the officials of some mighty good evidence of the presence of one of your worst enemies. Everybody is going to be hurt if the Mediterranean fruit fly gets a hold on our fruit and vegetable crops. Why not be patriotic and selfish at the same time and get the detective complex? Get the habit of thumbing your grapefruit or orange for any soft spots, before you eat it. If you find a soft spot, cut into it and make a quick inspection of the pulp—quick because if there should be maggots within they will wriggle out of sight in a hurry. And look closely, for the color of the young maggot is a close match to the pulp about it.

Of course, there are maggots and maggots, and all are not those of the nefarious Mediterranean fruit fly. But in a time like this it does not pay to take a chance. Reach for a small bottle of commercial alcohol, drop the maggots in and send them off to B. P. Livingston, Chief, Division of Plant Industry, Montgomery, Ala., to be judged.

How about the rest of that grapefruit you had contemplated eating? Destroy it and its fellows at once, for if you drop it into the garbage can the maggot will soon develop into a pupa, the pupa into a fly. A Mediterranean fruit fly begins laying eggs in four days, continues at the rate of four to six eggs per day until she dies, and often puts off her demise for months, leaving behind her perhaps as many as 600 children and grandchildren innumerable.

Destroy your suspected fruit by boiling, burning, or burying. To boil, put in water and bring to the boiling point. If you decide to burn the fruit, destroy it completely. Or, you can bury it three feet in the ground, tamp the soil firmly over it, and then if you see to it that no cracks occur in the surface for at least ten days, you may rest easy, sure that you have done your duty. Boiling is perhaps the easiest and safest method for small quantities of fruit.

The Mediterranean fruit fly attacks practically all fruits that are grown in the United States except pineapples and watermelons, and also attacks such garden vegetables as tomatoes, bell peppers, egg plants, and beans, but has, apparently, not yet had time to go farther than some of our grapefruit and oranges. If we all try hard enough, we may wipe it off the map before it moves all of the children in and takes possession.

What 'tire economy' really means

"Economy" doesn't mean buying cheap tires. True, you may save a dollar or two on first cost, but you suppose a dealer does offer you tires at less than the price of the standard makes? It stands to reason that's all they are worth.

You can come here, pay a fair price for a Kelly-Springfield (no more than you would pay for any other reputable make) and get the quality product of the tire industry. When the "price buyer's" second set of tires is wearing out, you are still turning in cost-cutting miles on your Kellys. Which buy is the real economy?

If you are not already using Kellys, get acquainted with us; we can show you what "tire economy" really means.

STATE

CAPITOL News

Due to new appropriations made by the 1927 Legislature and to former appropriations continued by that body the public elementary and high schools of Alabama have had available $4,133,206 of appropriations from state money during the year ending the 30th of this month. This does not invlude the state constitutional 3-mill public school tax which amounted to $3,362,000 nor interest on sixteenth section and indemnity lands amounting to $188,000 both of which funds are included in the general education fund. It includes only those legislative appropriations of state money available for public elementary and high schools. This total of $4,133,206 new appropriations contributed $2,458,506 and former appropriations $1,674,700.

The new appropriations were made up of the attendance fund of $850,000; the equalization fund of $900,000; the high school fund of $411,000; the rural library fund of $18,300; the rural schoolhouse fund of $128,500; and the vocational educational fund of $150,7$6. The appropriations made by former legislatures and continued by the 1927 legislature were made up of the bonus fund of $268,000; the general education fund appropriation of $500,000; the revolving fund of $100,000; the rural library fund of $6,700; the rural schoolhouse fund of $221,500; the county high school fund of $315,000; the state secondary agricultural school fund of $82,00; and the vocational education fund of $181,000.

Several methods are provided by law for the apportionment of these appropriations among the several counties of the State. The library, schoolhouse, and vocation education funds are distributed as applied for and matched by the counties. The bonus fund goes to the counties as a reward for levying the county school tax, $1,000 for each mill levied. The county high school fund and the state secondary agricultural school fund are distributed in equal amounts to each county maintaining such schools. The general education fund appropriation is opportioned on the school census, the attendance fund on the aggregate days attended by all public elementary and high school pupils, and the high school fund on the average daily attendance of rural high school pupils. The apportionment of the equalization fund and the revolving fund is based on the average daily attendance of all elementary and high school pupils in full-time day public schools, and takes into consideration all other available funds to the extent that no money for equalization purposes goes to a county which already has an amount sufficient for financing its minimum equalization program as worked out according to the provisions of the equalization law.

The cost of this minimum equalization program in each county is based upon the number of the various units in that county. A teacher unit consists of a one-teacher school or 30 pupils in average daily attendance in all other schools. A principal unit consists of a principal in charge of 10 elementary teachers or in charge of an accredited high school. A vocational agriculture unit consists of a vocational agriculture teacher working under the supervision of the State Board of Education. A helping-teacher unit consists of a supervisor working under the supervision of the State Board of Education. As the amount of money appropriated in the equalization and revolving funds is the same for each year and as the number of units composing the equalization program for the state as a whole increases each year, no fixed value can be given to these units, and the value must of necessity decreasé from year to year. During the year just closing the following values were used for white schools and one-half these values for colored schools: Elementary teacher unit, $708.75; high teacher unit, $1,323; elementary principal unit, $1,701; high principal unit, $2,835; vocational agriculture unit, $2,835; helping teacher unit, $2,268.

The amount of available funds specified in the equalization law for this minimum equalization program worked out for each county as explained above is the sum of the yield from 5 mills of the county and district 7-mill tax, the county poll tax, and all state funds for current expenses except the equalization fund. State appropriations for rural schoolhouses, for rural libraries and for vocational education outside of full-time day schools, and the yield from 2 mills of a county's 7-mill local tax are not counted as available for the equalization program, all of these funds being left for building, for paving debts, for enriching the program over and above the state minimum equalization program. A county's share in the state funds for equalization purposes is found by subtracting from the cost of the minimum program in that county the funds available for the program in that county, and subtracting from the remainder the yield of 3 mills on the assessed valuation in any untaxed districts in the county.

Figures compiled at the State Department of Education show that when all 67 counties are figured on the basis of the state minimum equalization program, state funds paid 61 per cent of the current expense cost of public school education in the state last year. The same figures without equalization funds show a percentage of 53. The percentage of this cost borne by the state for the total of those counties sharing in the state equalization fund was 66 with this fund and 50 without it. The following figures show the percentag of the state minimum equalization program which was paid this year by state funds in each county sharing in the state equalization fund and at one-half these amounts for colored schools had to be reduced 5 1-2 per cent. The disappointment occasioned by this fact has possibly served to divert to some extent attention from the commendable fact that due to the effect of appropriations from the last Legislature far more pupils were enrolled and were present every day for more days than would have been the case without these state appropriations, and from the further fact that these appropriations of state money played so important a part in the public school program in each county of the state as that shown above.

Percentage for total of these 39 counties sharing in the state equalization fund, 66.

Prior to the meeting of the 1927 legislature, Alabama had had available only a small appropriation that could be used to equalize educational opportunities among the children of the different counties of the State. When that Legislature made an appropriation of $900,000 to be used for equalization purposes, the chief one of which was to give every county in the state a minimum term of seven months, possibly more attention was centered upon that appropriation than upon any other made for the public schools and possibly more hope for relief from poor educational conditions was placed in it than in any other. This attention has been heightened and this hope partially realized, due to the fact that a majority of the 67 counties of the state, 39 to be exact, shared in the distribution of the equalization fund for the current school year. The interest aroused in this fund by these facts, namely, the new method of apportioning funds for Alabama and the hope of relief held out by it, has been intensified and the discussion of the whole equalization plan, both favorable and unfavorable, has been increased by the unfortunate fact that the amount of money in the fund proved to be insufficient this year for carrying out fully the plan as originally proposed. That is, due to the fact that attendance, which is the basis for the distribution of this fund, increased at a phenomenal rate for this year over the preceding year while the amount of the fund remained the same for each year, the value of a unit composed of 30 pupils in average daily attendance which was originally tried at $750 for white elementary and $1,400 for white high,

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Hiring a New Office Boy

The ideal business organization is one where, when an officer of the Company leaves, there is a general advance all along the line; a new office boy is hired and the machine is complete in every detail.

It is toward such an ideal that Alabama Power Company is striving.

In the selection of employees great care is taken to get men who may be developed for posiitons of responsibility and trust. The results of this policy are to be seen by taking a careful check of the officers, department heads and managers of this Company. These men have come up through the ranks, many from the lowliest beginning. They have won preferment by unusual fitness, by sheer ability and mastery of the particular work entrusted to their care.

It is this spirit of pure democracy which has made the organization of Alabama Power Company what it is today—a big, loyal, hard-working group of men and women, bound together by mutual respect, ambition and recognition of their duty to themselves, the stockholders and the public.

The men in the ranks of Alabama Power Company have constantly before them the examples of those now directing the Company's activities. They know that there is an open road ahead, and that for the men who show unusual aptitude in any department of the business, unusual ability to vision the future, or to direct the immediate, there are no limitations placed upon advancement. Such men, taken from the ranks, will be the directing heads a few years hence.

This spirit, permeating the personnel from the top to the bottom, keys the entire organization to a pitch of efficiency which enables Alabama Power Company to render a superior service to its customers throughout Alabama.

South's Cotton and Other Goods Find Market There While Chilean Nitrate, Copper and Iron Increasingly In Demand Here

goods, valued at approximately $50,000,000 annually. I predict there will be an increasing amount of raw material furnished the United States manufacturers from Chile, while Chile will continue to take increasing amounts of finished products, chiefly in the form of cotton goods, mining equipment, electrical equipment, agricultural implements, railway eqdipment, and other machinery for the installation of domestic industrial plants. Already Chilean industries have employed more than $650,000,000 of United States capital, mainly in her nitrate, copper and iron mines, and at the present rate of development we must look to the United States or Europe for additional assistance," Senor Ramirez said.

He advised the American importers that the mining of nitrate of soda has

At the plant (center) the caliche is crushed and dissolved in hot water to separate the insoluble substances from the nitrate. The solution is placed in large vats, where precipitation and crystallization of the nitrate of soda take place. Trains carrying the finished product to the Coast are observed in the right background. Workers' quarters are shown at the extreme right.

Senor Ramirez is the first cabinet official of the Chilean Government to visit a foreign country during term of office. He came to pay Chile's respects to President Hoover and to confer with American importers relative to extending the sales of nitrate of soda, one of the most valuable natural resources of his country.

"Cutting the time from twenty to seven days in mail and perhaps passenger service between New York and Santiago, Chile, will be a great step forward in bringing us closer to the United States, as well as in establishing a friendlier feeling and in adding to the rapidly-growing developments," he said.

"At present more than one-fourth of all the foreign or imported goods used in Chile come from the United States, largely in the form of manufactured recently surpassed all previous records. "Your farmers," he said, "are now the greatest consumers of nitrate of soda, using approximately a million tons annually. With unlimited beds from which to supply United States farmers with their nitrate fertilizers my Government proposes to do all within its power to mine and deliver it in the best mechanical condition and at the lowest possible price."

Auburn, Ala., June 25.—During the recent winter and spring 98 cars of Alabama poultry were sold on the cooperative plan under the direction of the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, the county farm and home demonstration agents, and the State and county farm bureaus.

These 98 cars carried to market 1,366,972 pounds of poultry which was produced by 34,100 farmers in 42 of the 67 counties of Alabama, and sold for $347,383.28.

An official report of these sales was made by J. B. Sylvest and J. D. Moore, extension marketing specialists. They said that each car carried to market about 4,000 birds, which means that nearly one-half a million head of Alabama poultry went to market this way.

A comparison of prices received this way with those being paid locally revealed that carlot marketing on the cooperative plan raised the price approximately 5 cents per pound. Based upon this figure, these 98 cars returned to the growers an additional $68,348.50. In addition these sales caused the local prices to advance because surpluses were removed.

Reports from county farm and home demonstration agents revealed that this method of marketing has increased poultry production. This is a natural response to a cash market at the best prices. Official figures verify this.

While half a million Alabama birds were sold hatcheries were running full time producing baby chicks, and the observation is that birds sold have been replaced by others of better quality, thereby adding another value to this method of selling.

Wilcox County reports a good crop of high grade beef calves. Last season about 18,000 were shipped. County Agent W. A. Cammack expects a slight increase this year.

The average feed cost per dozen eggs produced by 20 demonstration flocks in Montgomery County was 34 cents in November, 29 1-2 cents for December, 13 cents for March, and 13 1-2 cents for April. County Agent L. A. Edmonson calls attention to the difference in cost between fall and spring months.

Monroe County has purchased 40 acres of land, on which one of ten branch experimental fields of the Experiment Station at Auburn will be operated.

ALABAMA FARM LANDS HAVE HIGH VALUES

Although Alabama farm lands have decreased steadily in value since the post war peak of 1920, they have not slid as far down the scale as have the lands of the United States, according to figures made public by F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician, with the Department of Agriculture at Montgomery.

Alabama lands have decreased a total of 34 points or from a rating of 177 to 143, according to the statistician; in other words, lands worth $177.00 in 1920 will now sell for $143.00. This is a very slight decrease when compared with the entire United States, which has declined 54 points.

The North Central States, comprising some of the best cereal lands of the United States, have declined a total of 61 points. Some southern states have met with a decline nearly three times that of Alabama. Hence, the strong position of Alabama shows beyond doubt that the value of our lands has been kept at a high rating.

At the Department of Agriculture, it was said that, the resistance of Alabama lands to lowering prices may be attributed to a number of conditions, such as high productivity, high returns from the use of fertilizers, a stable industrial population, increase in state population, the coming of a large number of northern manufacturers and industrial concerns, the spread of the use of hydro-electricity, and the building of dams.

Furthermore, although neighboring states may have suffered severely from bank failures and in one case from more than one hundred bank failures inside the past 4 years, Alabama has had but five small banks close during that period and has gone as long as two years without a single failure. This proves that the farm and industrial finances of the State are strong, well organized and amply protected.

Alabama's agricultural laws safeguarding the quantity and quality of fertilizers, foods, drugs, gasoline, kerosene, and of all weights and measures, likewise give strength and stability to our State life and has materially assisted in keeping up values and general prosperity.

That Alabama will continue to show high values and prosperity is plainly evident as shown by the figures and statement of conditions, given at this time when prosperity for this year, seems probable.

During the first quarter of 1929 export of American-built airplanes doubled the value over export of planes in 1928. Sixty-nine airplanes, seaplanes, and amphibians were exported during the quarter.

During the winter and spring of 1929 a total of 98 cars of Alabama poultry was marketed cooperatively under the direction of the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, the county farm and home demonstration agents, and the Farm Bureau. These 98 cars carried to market 1,366,972 pounds of poultry which returned to 34,000 farmers in 42 counties $347,383.28.

By using the Auburn mixture for cotton (200 pounds of superphosphate, 100 pounds nitrate of soda, and 25 pounds muriate of potash) Pickens Coutny farmers saved $8.00 per ton, according to F. A. Rew, county agent. He estimates that farmers of his county saved $12,008 this spring by purchasing fertilizers cooperatively.

FORESTRY IN WILCOX

Montgomery, Ala., June 24.—Reforestation at the rate of more than five thousand seedlings to the acre in four years time has been the result of the intelligent efforts of Messrs. Bruce and Fred Henderson of Millers Ferry in Wilcox County to develop timber production on those portions of their holdings not necessary or suitable for agriculture.

The Henderson brothers own about seven thousand acres of forest land. For years it had appeared hopeless to keep this area in profitable production of timber, chiefly on account of the ravages of forest fires. Prior to 1925 forest fires in Alabama burned from thirty to sixty per cent of the rough land of the state, and the Henderson holdings were not exempt from this excessive damage. In that year, however, the field organization of the recently created State Commission of Forestry began to make itself felt in various sections.

"We always tried hard to keep fires off our lands, but to no avail. It seemed an unsolvable problem," remarked Mr. Bruce Henderson in a recent interview. "However, after presenting our problem to the State forestry officials four years ago, and following their suggestions, we are glad to say that we have virtually no fires. The woods look very rough after four years accumulation of debris, but the soil is becoming rich and black and the young trees are coming back in very dense stands. We are anticipating also a corresponding reaction in the growth of the larger trees. Fires can be kept out, of that we are thoroughly convinced, and any landowner can do it if he applies himself to the task. It requires, however, definite attention during the critical periods of the year. At times of high hazard we have our tenants on the alert ready to combat any fires that may get out. We have a supply of rakes and other tools ready at all times, and as soon as smoke is seen our crews are on the job. Our forces are so well organized that a fire is extinguished before it gains much headway. It is unquestionable that a landowner, if he so wishes, can keep fires from his land, but he must give serious attention to the problem." Mr. Fred Henderson heartily concurred in his brother's conclusions.

During the four years that the Henderson brothers have applied scientifc methods to the fire protection problem only about fifty acres has been burned over out of the total of seven thousand acres. This is about two-tenths of one per cent per annum, a very close approximation to the irreducible minimum.

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

SHORTENING THE HEN'S VACATION

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

The thought has often occurred to me that civilization has compelled both man and fowl to do a great many things that nature never intended to do. Civilization and evolution combined have also changed many of their natural bodily functions. Yet, with incomprehensible stubbornness they still retain organs and habits for which the need has long since disappeared. A man's appendix, for instance, is his souvenir of some lang forgotten physical function while the fowl's habit of molting is her reminder of the time when a vital need existed for the periodical removal of her feathers.

A hen in the wild state frequently had to depend on her wings for fligh. from birds and beasts of prey. Her feathers moreover were her only protection from the elements. In the wild life she led they were undoubtedly in need of repair and renewal at the end of a strenuous season in brush and briar. It was to be expected, therefore, that wise Mother Nature would provide some regular, automatic method to supply the needed removal at the proper time.

Now, the wild hen had only to lay enough eggs to hatch out a small brood. When the chicks were old enough to shift for themselves she was as free from duties or responsibilities of any kind as a modern flapper is free from hosiery in the summer time. She was then at liberty to renew her coat and she could take the rest of the year for the job. Now, civilization has changed all that. Whereas the wild hen might lay a dozen eggs or less and started hatching at once, the civilized descendant is expected to lay 10 times that much and gets no chance to exercise mother instinct. Instead, her eggs are hatched by a machine and her chicks foster-mothered by a capon or a brooder.

Although now man provides shelter and protection from wild beasts, the hen takes no chances; she continues to molt. This would be of no great consequence were it not that egg laying and molting do not often go on together. A hen can neither eat and digest enough food nor supply enough energy to produce both new feathers and a regular supply of eggs. Consequently, the longer a hen takes for the molt, the less time she has for laying and the less profitable it will be to feed and care for her. The big problem in connection with the molt, therefore, is to make it as short as possible.

Careful breeding offers one solution. Good layers will not stop laying until late August, early September or later and are through in about six weeks. Eggs for hatching should always be from such hens. Hens that molt early and take two or three months for it should be watched carefully. The chances are they do not lay enough to pay for their feed and keep but would be more profitable if marketed for the table.

By constantly culling out the loafers and breeding only from the best layers, a flock will eventually be built up which will require only a very short vacation period for the molt with a corresponding increase in time devoted to laying. Very careful handling and feeding is desirable at all times, however, to keep the vacation at a minimum and the production period at a maximum. Avoid anything that hinders laying, like sudden changes of food. It might bring on the unproductive molt sooner than need be. On the other hand, correct feeding and a little extra care may accelerate feather growing so the hen can complete her new winter costume and get back to her profitable production in a very little while.

During the molt, fowls should have the very best of care. They should have ample shade, an abundance of green food and plenty of fresh water. They should be protected from dampness drafts and exposure of any kind. Very late molters should be especialy protected against cold. If possible, put moting birds to themselves. They are timid and self-conscious when bare, and the other hens will make life miserable for them. The less hens are disturbed at this time the easier it is for them to convert food into feathers.

Proper feeding is of poromount importance. Feathers are derived from the same material as eggs, being about 80 per cent protein. It is not right, therefore, to take away the mashes as many people do when hens are molting. The mashes contain the protein concentrates while grains do contain very little. To rob molting hens of their proteins is simply to prolong the molting period until enough proteins are assimilated to supply the feathers needed.

The regular scratch grains may be fed including oats wheat and carn, but not too much corn as it is too heating. Feed also some sunflower seed and linseed meal in the mash. Also a little more meat scraps or cut bone that is usually fed and give plenty of milk if possible. A good mineral tonic is also invaluable.

Remember the molting hen is really very much out of condition, but that careful handling and special diet will help to speed up the passage of this trying period. Then, as she begins to get back to normal, gradually work back to the regular feeding practice of the laying period. Avoid sudden changes as they will only delay full completion of the molt. Careful adherence to these methods is sure to speed up the molt with a commensurate increase in egg production just when prices are beginning to soar upward.

Chevrolet Sales Zones Enlarged

Creation of a new sales region, seven new sales zones and the promotion of several leading sales officials of the Chevrolet Motor Company were announced today by H. J. Klingler, vice president and general sales manager. These alterations in the company's sales map and the expansion of the field selling organization come as a result of the steady growth of Chevrolet sales and give the company the most widespread sales supervision ever commanded by an automobile manufacturer. Chevrolet now has nine sales regions, which embrace 52 sales zones.

Rapid developement of Chevrolet business in the eastern states has resulted in the opening of the new region, which has its headquarters in Buffalo. Wiliam E. Holler, nationally known automobile sales executive, has been appointed sales manager of the region which will supervise the operations of zone offices in Buffalo, Syracuse, Harrisburg, Baltimore and Richmond. It will be known as the Eastern region, and takes Richmond and Baltimore away from the Atantic Coast region and Buffalo from the Flint Region. Mr. Holler, who will be in charge of the territory, has been associated with Chevrolet for several years, serving the company in St. Louis, Detroit, Los Angeles and Pittsburg, where for the last two years he has been zone sales manager.

Each of the managers in these new zones is a seasoned Shevrolet sales executive. O. E. Nonn, Decatur, was formerly sales manager at St. Louis; G. I. Smith, Davenport, was sales manager at Charleston, W. Va.; K. M. Chase, Aramillo, was assistant sales manager at Houston; B. J. Swanson, Fort Wayne, was regional sales pomotion manager for the Flint region; J. L. Murphy, Harrisburg, was city sales manager at Washington and Baltimore; H. K. Bragile, Syracuse, was city sales manager at Pittsburg.

The size of the territories embodied by the different zones varies. All of the appointments are effective immediately.

CHEVROLET DEALERS SELL 154,624 USED AUTOMOBILES

What is believed to be a new record for the sale of used cars in the United States was established in May when the nation-wide Chevrolet dealer organization sold 157,624 used cars. This was in addition to the record volume of new car business which also soared to a new level during the month.

In commenting on the achievement, Chevrolet factory officials point out that it was made possible through the tremendous amount of public confidence that has been built up by Chevrolet dealers through the general policy of offering for sale only dependable merchandise. They explain that through the wide-spread use of the red tag "With an O. K. that counts," prospective used car buyers can be assured that every part of the car has been properly reconditioned and put in shape to offer thousands of miles of unused transportation

Compared with the corresponding month of a year ago, when 118,195 used cars were sold, the May 1929 total showed a gain of more than 33 per cent. It also outstripped the April 1929 record of 133,887 used cars.

In accomplishing this feat, the Chevrolet dealer organization sold an average of 6,063 used cars a day during the 26 business days of the month. This was at the rate of more than 600 cars an hour and more than ten cars a minute. The May record demonstrates that it pays to sell only dependable merchandise, officials point out.

Mr. "Red" Atkinson, the popular paper salesman for Eon Sanders Paper Company, was a business visitor to Clanton Saturday.

What right have you to criticise me? In what way have you given of your time, your money, and your labors for this cause? Do the people of Chilton County, in seeing your countenance paraded before them, remark that there is a man who has helped the cause of prohibition? In the next place, are you personally dry? Is it not a fact, Mr. Atkinson, that you personally partake of intoxicating liquors? And is it not a fact that you have in the past imbibed of wines and beverages? In the last election, did you not have liquor in your campaign headquarters and deal this out to friends, and would-be-friends?

"By the fruits Ye shall know them," is the heading of your editorial of June 13, 1929. Wonder what the people of the county think of your fruits. Yes, Ye shall know them by their fruits. I would that the people of the county could see the fruits your actions bore during the last local campaign. The prohibition record to my credit can not be destroyed by a few vile insinuations hatched in a politically distorted mind, venomous in defeat, shrinking in day light and brought forth in shame and recorded in a sheet where falsehood is the order of the day.

You occasionally mention the name of my son, Grady Reynolds, who is now United States District Attorney and is an applicant for the next term. Some year or two ago I mentioned this subject in reply to some of your letters. I said then as now that your ideas are coming from a distorted political mind arising in defeat, as you were defeated for this place then and naturally it brings bitterness to your heart to think of it. Your aspersions cast at my prohibition record emanate from a desire to cast reflection upon it and upon my son, trying to reap vengeance and trying to defeat his re-appointment. You claimed to be a Republican then, and as I have asked you before if you had been appointed United States District Attorney would you now be a Democrat or Republican? This question you have never answered. Mr. Atkinson, I have no newspaper in which to write, and writing is not my business; writing is your business, but I believe the ethics of good newspaper men is to publish the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. I don't believe people appreciate false insinuations and misrepresentation. I don't mind you writing my life, my politics or my official duties if you will only speak the truth and if you will only give me a fair deal. Do not under the guise of Billy Smith, Editor, think yourself free from any reflection or reactions when you print such insinuations against me or any other man. Call a spade a spade, and do not take advantage of me behind your printing press.

I do not know whether or not the people of the county enjoy this controversy between you and me. I do not know whether it is even read or not by a majority of the people; but I will say it to you publicly that through a newspaper, privately, officially or any other way, that I will never let any of your statements go unchallenged. I know the purpose behind them all and I want the people to know it. There is no campaign on now. I am not a candidate for any office, and what I say can not be charged to political reasons. As I have said before I have made my last race, and I have stood persecution from you too long already. I have tried to attend to my business without interference from you, but to no avail, and Atkinson, I am speaking directly to you. I want this distinctly understood, that I will meet you anywhere at anytime at any place on any subject. We will compare lives, present and past, and then if you open your mouth or fill your yellow journal with slander and libel against me, I will be there to meet you. Who may win in this fight is to be seen. Who has won in the past the people know. If you are the leader of the Democratic party, and if you are the Moses, and if you think that you are making votes or gaining political influence by persecuting me then the next election will tell as the past has told. But I want to say to you that I am not holding Billy Smith responsible for what this paper says. I am not holding the Chilton County News responsible, but I am holding J. B. Atkinson responsible. Let your persecution go as far as you may like. I am going to try to remain a gentleman and answer legality with legality, but on the other hand there is a limit and I am holding you responsible for your actions. Do the people of the county believe what you say? Does your past life warrant credence, publicly, officially and politically? Have you always been a man of your word? And I wonder what weight your meanderings and your would-be hypocritical writings and your lies, falsehoods and misrepresentations have? Do you think the people have little enough sense to believe your sheet and your writings? It seems to me that you want to resort to poetry, in your editorial of June 13, to express your side of the case. Now will you also allow me the privilege of expressing my side in poetry? This little piece of poetry was handed me by one of your political friends. That is, you think that you have fooled him, but he knows you. This piece of poetry is entitled "The Snake" and runs thus:

"He wiggles in, he wiggles out,
Leaving the beholder still in doubt,
Whether the snake that made the track
Is going home or coming back."

Reflecting upon your past record and the way you have changed, reversed, side-stepped, and re-tracked, I think it is very expressive of you and your life.

In conclusion there is one other matter which appeared in your editorial of June 13, 1929, this being one of the main editorials and being given a prominent position, which I would like to say, and in doing so I meet the issue with every deference for your religious belief, and for your connection with the Methodist Church of Clanton, Alabama. But it seems that there is no end and no place, and no time that your distorted political asperations did not allow you to go or say. But notwithstanding all of this, as I have told you, and I hope I have made it plain that I will meet you on any issue you bring up.

I might preface my remarks by stating that you are an official of the Methodist Church of Clanton, Alabama. The members of the Bible Class were asked to discuss prohibition, as that was the subject for the lesson that Sunday. You state in your editorial that a representative of the News was present, and I want to tell the people that you were that representative. I, with several others arose and made some remarks for prohibition in the best way that I knew how, as I have always done when the occasion and opportunity came. I tried to depict some of the conditions in this age and some of the evils of intemperance, and some of the failures of the prohibition law, and you sat there and listened to what I had to say and to what the others said, but you failed to say anything. You failed to express yourself on this important question as you have always failed to express yourself. Others had the courage to express themselves upon this question. You were not man enough to reply there and criticise my prohibition speech. You have not been man enough to come to me since this, neither have you had the courage to take this matter to the preacher, or to bring the matter before the church. You have not had the humanity in your heart as a member of the church to come to me, but what did you do? Just as you have always done, you have hid behind the sheets of your paper and written behind the name of Billy Smith, Editor. I would think a man who was an official in the Methodist Church, and a man who is trying to teach, I suppose, the women of the Church the righteous way, and the man who is a high official and a man who comes to Church on Sunday, that a man of this character would not drag his Church, his Sunday School Class thru the columns of your paper. In this Editorial are the same insinuations against me, and this coming from the sacredness of your church. I knew you would drag politics into everything in the world, but I figured you had honor enough to let it stop at the entrance of your church. This illustrates to me that there is nothing under the sun, no cause, no person, but what you would in any way your distorted mind could conceive but that you would try to destroy. Ye shall know them by their fruits. I wonder what are the fruits of this editorial. I wonder what fruits of good that you can display to the people of your town and your Church. I do not know whether or not your brother church officers, your Pastor, the members of your class and the members of your church appreciate this editorial or not. I do not know whether or not they appreciate the slurring insolence that you cast at me for making a prohibition speech in the Methodist church, but it is my opinion that, knowing most of these people, they do not appreciate it. I do not believe though that you ever consider the good of your Church, the honor that the members of the Church and the Church itself imposed in you, but I believe your idea was if you could criticise me and hurt me, and in this way raise your political power, that Church, office, honor would all have to step aside while your own selfish purposes were served.

It is no secret that in lodges, organizations, Church, politics, and other activities, that your own selfish motives and distorted ideas, if allowed to control long enough, will destroy and wreck all that you touch.

I believe every public interest that you have been connected with you have hurt, because I believe that your own selfish motives and your view-point eclipses the good of the activity.

I am sorry that you have seen fit to drag the Methodist Church into this controversy. It seems to me that you are very hard pressed for an issue and I state in conclusion that if you know of a single act of mine where I have not defended prohibition or any act of mine that could be construed as encouraging drinking, or selling liquor, please publish the same. Do not insinuate, but give the plain straight fact. Let the people of the County know the truth. I am asking no compromise. I want no consideration from you.—Yours truly, L. H. Reynolds.

CANE CREEK SINGING

The third annual singing at this place last Sunday was well attended and some of as good singing we believe as was ever heard. The singing began at 9 o'clock with Mr. Johnnie Miner as chairman for the day. A committee composed of Mr. Floyd Little, Mr. Royal Coggins and Mrs. Zula Retherford arranged the following program for the morning session: R. E. Jones, Royal Coggins, Lillie Mae Weldon, Floyd Little, Delene Lambert, Zula Rutherford singing three songs each. At the noon hour everybody enjoyed a bountiful dinner spread for the public.

After an hour and a half spent in eating and chatting we gathered back for the afternoon services. The program consisted of E. H. Traywick, Myrtle Weldon of Birmingham, Jasper Oaks, Amie Boswell, Tommie Mims, M. Lockhart, Sara Collins, singing three songs each.

Organists for the day were Mr. Amie Boswell, Misses Myrtle and Lillie Mae Weldon, Martha Jane Mims, and Mrs. Zula Rutherford.

We feel that the day was well spent and that everyone present enjoyed themselves greatly. We had with us visitors from far and near whom we thank for their help and extend to them a hearty welcome.

Public Barbecue : Picnic : Trade Day : Bank Opening

PEOPLES BANK WILL OPEN AT JEMISON MONDAY JULY 1

The Peoples Bank of Jemison will open for business on Monday, July the first, filling a need that has long been felt by the business men of the town and the farmers of North Chilton. This institution is owned and backed up by one hundred of the leading business men of Chilton County. It starts off with a paid up capital of $15,000, and a surplus of $1,500.

The banking house is in the old Wells Building on Jemison's main business street and near the L. & N. depot. But it is not an old building any more. The place has been virtually built over by the owner, Mr. C. C. Conway. It now presents every feature for the convenience and adaptability of a modern banking place.

The officers of the Bank are: H. G. Boyd, president; Dr. A. A. Conway, vice-president; C. R. Foss, cashier; Directors, Dr. R. B. McNeill, C. C. Conway, L. G. Posey, Dr. A. A. Conway, S. P. Shaw, John B. Moore, F. J. Callen, H. G. Boyd.

Visitors to Jemison are invited to visit The Peoples Bank especially on the opening day, Monday, July the first. This is the day set aside to receive visitors and it is hoped that every person who comes to Jemison will make it a point to visit the bank.

As already stated in another place in this paper, Mr. C. R. Foss will be the cashier of the new bank. The cashier is the man in whose hands the actual business of the bank falls. He is the man who handles the money and the man with whom you deal when you go to the bank. Mr. Foss is one of the best bankers in Chilton County. He is first of all a Chilton County man and is experienced in the banking business. As cashier he will be a great asset to the bank and in discharging his duties at the bank he will be in position to do many valuable services for Jemison and community.

When you have seen it we believe you will agree that The Peoples Bank of Jemison is the best looking bank in Chilton County. The fixtures and equipment are all new and of modern design and everything is arranged in the very best taste for both appearance and convenience.

We understand that the bank building will also furnish office quarters for the Jemison Produce Exchange which will be organized this year. This organization proposes to unite the farmers and business men of North Chilton for the growing and shipping of strawberries and other farm produce.

The slogan of the Peoples Bank of Jemison is "The Bank that backs the farmer." With the power and prestige of a strong friendly bank thrown together with the educational and experimental work which the Jemison vocational school is doing, it is perfectly reasonable to expect Jemison and vicinity to make great strides toward farm development in the next few years.

Jemison's New Business Section

Since the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway was built through Jemison, there has sprung up a new business section along that thoroughfare which consists mostly of garages, filling stations, and cafes.

The dental offices of Dr. A. A. Conway are now located in the building back of C. G. Glass's store.

Jemison Stands At The Threshold of A Wonderful Future

From a careful study of things at Jemison and a survey of the fine communities that surround the town we are convinced that Jemison stands at the threshold of a wonderful future. The door of opportunity has swung wide open to the people of North Chilton.

There is every reason why the farmers and business men of Jemison and vicinity should feel a renewed confidence in the future. In recent years they have had brought to them through the Jemison Vocational school a long needed chance of education upon the best and most progressive farm methods. They have learned to "make two ears of corn grow where only one grew before" on their farms. This school is a permanent fixture in the community and its value is just now beginning to bear full fruit.

The opening of a bank at Jemison adds the keystone to the already well-founded arch of progress.

We are glad of the bright prospects for the future of North Chilton. The dawn of a better day is breaking for the people who till the soil in that part of the county and every heart should be made to rejoice.

We commend to the people of Jemison the following statement which is made by Mr. C. R. Foss, Cashier of the new Peoples Bank at Jemison:

On next Monday, July 1st, 1929, the PEOPLES BANK, JEMISON, ALA., will open for business. To every citizen of North Chilton County the opening of this new ONE HUNDRED PER CENT home-owned bank should be of vital interest and importance. It marks a definite step forward in the financial and agricultural development of Jemison and vicinity.

The opening of this new bank is to be made the occasion of an informal reception on the part of the people of Jemison. We are taking this means of extending to you a special invitation to be present. We hope to make the opening day an event you will be pleased to remember in years to come when this part of Chilton County and the PEOPLES BANK have traveled far on the road to success and prosperity.

The officers and directors are all well-known Chilton County men, awake to the importance of encouraging the development of one of the best sections of the State of Alabama. They are ready to extend all possible help to legitimate business and farming enterprises.

We are anticipating the pleasure of seeing you in the Bank on next Monday, and assure you a hearty welcome.

EVERYBODY IS INVITED AS GUESTS OF BUSINESS MEN

The business men of Jemison have completed plans for the greatest day ever staged in that town on Monday, July the first, the occasion of the opening of the new Peoples Bank. A wide open invitation is extended to the people of North Chilton to come and be Jemison's guests on that day

Every business house in Jemison has done its part in meeting the requirements for furnishing ample entertainment of all visitors. The details of the arrangements were placed in the hands of W. C. Erwin, D. L. Langston and C. C. Conway. They have announced everything ready on the part of Jemison. It is now up to the folks to come and enjoy the good things that are to be provided.

The business men of the town will give a free barbecue at noon, when every visitor in the place will have his own chance at plenty of nice juicy barbecued meat. In addition to the barbecue, the committee announces that the good ladies of Jemison will prepare basket dinners also. Any visitors who may wish to do so are invited to bring a basket dinner and join right in with the plan to furnish every person in the town a bounteous feast.

There will be a number of visitors from Montgomery and perhaps other cities. It is expected that Judge C. E. Thomas, state superintendent of banks, will be present and make a speech to the folks. This part of the program has not been definitely settled yet, but will be worked out by the committee in charge.

For this big day, the merchants of Jemison are offering many specially attractive bargains at their stores. Elsewhere in this paper you will find advertisements telling all about what is offered by the different stores.

Many of the stores will give away a valuable prize on that day. With every 50c purchase made they will give a ticket which will entitle the holder to share in the distribution of these prizes. There is a special advertisement in another place in this paper telling what each store will give away and the exact hour the different awards will be made.

The people of Chilton County are extended an unconditional invitation to come to Jemison and spend the day on Monday, July the 1st. If you don't go and enjoy yourself it will be your own fault, for Jemison is fixing for you and expecting you.

Kiwanis Club To Go To Jemison

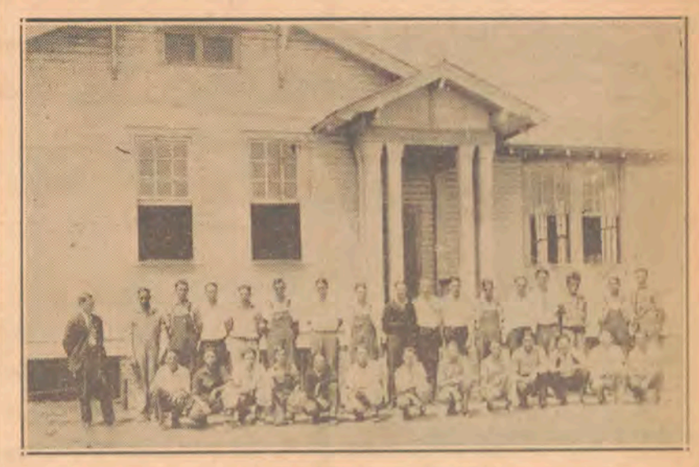
The Kiwanis Club of Clanton will hold its meeting for next week at Jemison. The meeting will be at the Jemison High School on Wednesday night, July the third.

The club will have as guests about 75 of the citizens of Jemison and vicinity, including all the business men of the town and many of the representative farmers of North Chilton.

This meeting is one of a series planned by the Kiwanis Club for this summer in different parts of the county in order to place the support of the club membership actively and definitely behind the program of farm progress in the county.

A luncheon will be served at the meeting Wednesday night by ladies of Jemison Parent-Teacher Association. A very interesting program is being arranged by the club committee on agriculture of which Mr. H. G. Boyd is chairman.

Progress in agriculture is recognized as one of the most important public activities for the Jemison community in the next few years. The business men of Clanton, 35 of whom constitute the Kiwanis Club, are enthusiastic over the fine prospects of Jemison and the northern part of Chilton County. They are anxious to aid in every way possible. It is in this spirit that they are coming to Jemison Wednesday night, July 3, to meet with the business men and farmers.



Jemison Churches

The Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches are represented in the town of Jemison, each having a house of worship and a live congregation.

Rev. J. W. Jones of Thorsby is pastor of the Baptist church. C. C. Conway is church clerk and Superintendent of the Sunday School.

Rev. Metcalf of Verbena is pastor of the Methodist church, and J. M. Langston is Sunday School Superintendent.

The Presbyterian congregation has no regular pastor at the present. They have a live Sunday school, but we were unable to get the names of the officers.

SHAW BROTHERS GIN HAS FINE RECORD OF SERVICE TO FARMERS

Many Thousands of Bales of Cotton Have Been Ginned During the Fifteen Years This Plant Has Been Doing Business at Jemison.

For the past fifteen years the Shaw Brothers Gin at Jemison has been a valuable asset to the farmers in the northern part of Chilton County. This territory produces a large part of the cotton crop of the county. It is an obvious fact that a good gin and warehouse is a thing of importance in such a community as Jemison.

The business is owned and operated by S. P. and C. N. Shaw, who established it fifteen years ago. They gin about 1,600 bales of cotton a year. Their patronage comes from a large section of splendid farming country from as far as Calera on the north, Montevallo and Randolph on the west, Thorsby on the South and Coosa River on the east.

In connection with their gin Shaw Brothers operate the only cotton warehouse in Jemison. Here they weigh all the cotton that comes to Jemison for market. This includes the output of their own gin and at least one other smaller gin located a few miles from Jemison. The total amount of cotton marketed at Jemison and weighed through this warehouse runs about 2,000 bales a year.

Jemison is a good cotton market. Three progressive business houses buy cotton there. They are L. H. Bean, D. L. Langston, and Hubbard's. Mr. Gerald Hubbard, who is now in charge of the business of the late R. M. Hubbard, says that he will have an expert cotton man to look after that part of his business this fall.

It might be added in this connection that the coming of the Peoples Bank to Jemison will have a most wholesome effect on the cotton business there in the future. One of the greatest benefits to the farmers will come from the bank's ability to serve them in the handling of their cotton. When a farmer brings his cotton to Jemison and sells it this fall, he can go right up to the bank and get his money, or better still deposit it to his account in the bank.

The record of Shaw Brothers in the conduct of their gin is one of the best we have observed. They render jam up service in every respect. Every summer the plant is thoroughly overhauled and kept in the best condition. There are four ginning units in the plant, one 80-saw machine and three 70-saw machines.

Last season the Shaw Brothers Gin was selected by the United States Department of Agriculture through which to make a test of the character of cotton produced in that vicinity. This test resulted in the finding of some facts of much interest and value.

Mr. Shaw submitted to the department at Washington samples from 1,498 bales of cotton ginned. These samples were graded and classified by cotton experts of the department. On March 7th Mr. Shaw received the report from the department of agriculture in which the following statements were made:

"By comparing the report for your gin with the report for the State of Alabama, you will notice that the distribution of grades and staples for your section was somewhate different from that of the State as a whole. Proportionately your section ranked higher in the production of white color, and correspondingly lower in the production of spotted cotton. The grade in your section averaged higher than that for the state, nearly 81 per cent of the production being of white color above middling, while for the state about 62 per cent was of white color and above middling. Your samples did not include any tinged, gray, or stained cotton, and the production of these colors for the state was small.

"The length of staple of the cotton from your gin averaged a little longer than that for the state. Your section had a slightly larger proportion of cotton less than 7-8 of an inch in length; also a larger proportion longer than 15-16 of an inch. You may be interested to know that the bulk of tye cotton consumed by American mills last year was 7-8, 15-16, and 1 inch in length of staple.

"I congratulate you on the fact that only one of the 1,498 samples from your gin was found to be gin-cut. The damage from the gin cutting was enough to lower the classification of the sample by one grade. The proportion of gin-cut bales for the state was a little more than one-half of one per cent."

These facts about the record of Shaw Brothers Gin and the government reports of samples submitted are given to bear out the statement that Jemison is a good cotton producing section, and that the producers there are being served by a good ginning plant. We commend the above report from the United States Department of Agriculture to the study of farmers in north Chilton. It shows in every test made that Jemison cotton is above the average for the state of Alabama, a fact which should be of pride and interest to the farmers in that part of the county.

Evening Schools Help To Farmers

By WILL R. CLEMENTS

Mr. Will Clements of Jemison, says that the evening schools conducted in his community by J. P. Montgomery, have proved to be the best thing that has [illegible] that community in many days. He said that the concentrated work that had been accomplished there had produced what he believes some improved permanent farm practices. The people of Pleasant Grove are now fertilizing corn and cotton the right way. Eighty per cent of the farmers were not using nitrate of soda around cotton three years ago. Today you could hardly find a man in that community who does not use the Auburn method of fertilizing cotton or its equivalent.

Mr. Clements states that the shipping of sour cream from Pleasant Grove had trebled in the last eighteen months, due mostly to the evening school work on dairying. He says people have cleared pastures and grown hay crops who have never before thought seriously about getting a profit out of cows. The cow business in Chilton County will be just a small sideline, but a very profitable one if properly managed.

Mr. Clements further states that the shipping of poultry by Mr. Stapp and the Farm Bureau was very encouraging to the farmer. It gives him a better market for his cull hens and fryers, and encourages him to take more interest in his poultry. He says that he is just now realizing the value of the Farm Bureau and expects to do all of the business he can through it.

Monroe Hubbard

We feel that a glance at the community of Jemison to-day as it has built and prospered during recent years reveals in many instances the sacrifice and service of one good man who just recently was called from his labors unexpectedly. This reference is made to Mr. Monroe Hubbard.

Mr. Hubbard worked hard and tirelessly for everything that meant advancement in his community. Especially did he make his usefulness felt in the building of the school of which the town has just cause to be proud. Building of this school was one of the greatest strokes ever made in Jemison for the future of the citizenship of North Chilton. There are no doubt crowns of glory for many of Jemison's citizens for what they sacrificed in the interest of this school. Monroe Hubbard has already gone to receive his.

For many years Mr. Hubbard was one of the leading merchants of Chilton County. In this capacity his influence was felt far and wide. And be it said to his honor that his business dealings were always pitched upon that high plane of sympathy and understanding for his fellow-man that made for him a worthy place of love and esteem in the hearts of many.

Paley's New Store

Mr. S. Paley has recently come to Jemison from Birmingham and opened up a modern dry goods business, which looks neat and attractive. Of course it is not necessary for us to explain Mr. Paley's nationality His name is sufficient for that; and people have long ago learned that when they see a store with the Jewish name tacked on to it, it means a place where mrchandise can always be had at bargain prices.

The Paley Bargain House is no exception. Mr. Paley has been open for business only two weeks, and he says he is delighted with the prospects of the future of Jemison. He offers a full line of Dry Goods, ladies' and children's ready to wear, shoes, men's clothing, notions, etc.

As a prize on the big day, Monday, July 1st, Paley's Bargain House will give away to the lucky person a ladies' dress. This will indeed be something worth winning.

LANGSTON DRUG STORE

The Langston Drug Store at Jemison is one of the oldest business establishments of the town. Its appearance and arrangement is very attractive.

The fact that the proprietor, Mr. J. M. Langston, has been in the business for 17 years, and the progressive appearance of the stores indicates that the people of Jemison and surrounding country have been liberal with their patronage of this firm.

The store offers for sale a full line of staple drugs, drug sundries, toilet articles. In fact, everything usually found in an up-to-date drug store. We heard a fellow say not long ago that the drug store as an institution had almost ceased to be; and that nowadays a drug store was almost esual to a modern department store.

The soda fount and ice cream department at Mr. Langston's store carries the usual degree of popularity that is accorded this side of such an establishment.

C. G. Glass Has Popular Store

Mr. C. G. Glass, who is known by his many friends and customers as Charley, is one of the most popular store-keepers in Jemison. Mr. Glass has the store directly across the street from the new bank. He sells most everything usually found in a general store. His record of business dealings with the people of Jemison and surounding country for the past few years since he has been in the store has been such as to bring to him the confidence and the highest esteem of the public.

On the big day, Monday, July the first, Mr. Glass will give a prize to somebody, and it is a prize that is worth having these days—a 24-lb. sack of the best flour in the store.

Some Interesting Facts About Jemison School

J. A. Peterson, Principal, with Thirteen Assistants, Constitutes Largest Facutly of Any School in Chilton County. Buildings and Equipment Second to None in Central Alabama. Two Modern Buildings Are Located on Birmingham Highway.

In summing up the progress that has been made by the town of Jemison in recent years, it is the opinion of the writer that it would not be amiss to say that the Jemison High School has been the inspiration that marked the day for Jemison's awakening. The people of the town and community built the school, and they built well indeed. The building of the school caused them to realize that they could do things in a big way. From there they set out to accomplish other things, and the future is bright with alluring prospects.

Elsewhere in this paper will be found a number of articles that deal with different phases of the Jemison School and its work.

The following teachers will constitute the faculty of the school for the coming session:

J. A. Peterson, principal, will teach advanced science.

J. P. Montgomery will teach vocational agriculture.

Zane Turner will teach science and coach athletics.

Miss Leacy Newell will teach home economics.

Miss Edna McInnish will teach history.

Miss Iola Gerald will teach junior English and mathematics.

Miss Beulah Naive will teach music.

Miss Margie Murphy, sixth grade.

Miss McMae McNeill, fifth grade.

Mrs. J. E. Littlejohn, fourth grade.

Miss Jessie Mims, third grade.

Mrs. J. P. Montgomery, second grade.

Miss Mary Clements, first grade.

The teacher for Senior English and Mathematics is to be supplied later.

The building and equipment of the Jemison High School is second to none in the county. Every department is fully equipped, from the first grades for the little beginners, on through the High School courses. The vocational department of the school makes it stand out as one of the most valuable institutions to the community. In this department is Prof. J. P. Montgomery, one of the best vocational teachers in the State. His work is not confined to the school, but takes in the farmers of the whole community. This phase of the work is fully covered by other articles in this paper.

The work of Prof. J. A. Peterson is deserving of the highest praise. We believe the record he has made will bear out the statement that Mr. Peterson is one of the best school administrators in Alabama. Jemison folks are proud of what he has done for them and their school, and they have a right to be.

The school is located alongside the Birmingham-Montgomery highway. We have heard of some instances where travelers were attracted by the appearance of the school and stopped in Jemison, finally becoming permanent residents of the community. There is nothing better for a community than a good school.

Mr. G. L. Posey, prominent farmer of Jemison community, was a visitor to Clanton Friday. He says he is having so much rain that his farm work is seriously hindered.

Jemison Hardware Co. Has Large Stock

Outstanding among the business firms that bring stability and progress to Jemison we find that the Jemison Hardware Company is always ready to go to the bat and do its best. Mr. C. C. Conway and Mr. J. A. Sims, who own the business, are among the permanent fixtures of Jemison. They are hustlers in every sense of the word.

One only needs to go into this big store to find out the measure of service it is rendering to the community in a business way. The entire catalog of farm and home needs is met at this store.

And we might mention right here that Mr. Conway and Mr. Sims are doing a great service for their town and community by giving their whole-souled backing to the Peoples Bank which is to open there Monday, July 1st. These gentlemen express themselves very unselfishly about the coming of the bank. It is for the good that it will do the community in a business way that makes them suport it. And that same unselfish loyalty on the part of these men is found in every movement that points toward the way of making Jemison a better place in which to live and do business.

The Jemison Hardware Company is joining with the other business men of the town in making Monday, July 1st a great day for the town and the community. Everybody in the county is being extended an invitation to come to Jemison on that day. The business men of the town will provide a barbecue for the occasion. In addition to the barbecue, everyone is invited to bring an old fashioned basket dinner.

On this day the Jemison Hardware Company will give to somebody absolutely free a $5.00 deposit in the Peoples Bank. Those who trade at the store can find out all the details about it.

L. H. Bean's Nickel And Dime Store

Jemison has a regular nickel and dime store. It is owned and operated by Mr. L. H. Bean, with the very able assistance of Mrs. Bean. The name of it is the Jemison Bargain Store.

As is the custom with stores of this kind, it contains thousands of little articles to name all of which would take the whole newspaper. Mr. Bean is to be congratulated upon the neatness and attractive manner of arrangement in his store.

The store has been opened only a few months. The proprietor says he plans to enlarge the stock this fall so that he will have both the first and second floors of his building full of merchandise.

JEMISON BARBER SHOP

Mr. Houston Rogers is proprietor of Jemison's barber shop. He has associated with him Mr. John Davis, Mr. Irby McNeill and Mr. J. V. Rogers. The shop is located on the corner across the street from Peoples Bank.

J. N. Scott made a trip to Shelby County Sunday to see his niece near Chelsea.

R. B. McNeill & Co.

We believe the firm of R. B. McNeill & Co., holds the record as the oldest business house in the town of Jemison. The men behind this business are Dr. R. B. McNeill and Mr. W. G. Atkinson. They formed a partnership in the store more than 25 years ago, and have been in business continuously ever since.

Their business with the farmers of the community has been one of the best proofs of the improvement of farming conditions in the northern part of Chilton County. Dr. McNeill says the credit business which they used to do almost exclusively with the farmers has about got to be a thing of the past. Farmers nearly always pay cash for what they get now, and business is thereby made more satisfactory and more profitable for both merchant and farmer.

Mr. Atkinson gives his whole time to the business, and he is recognized as one of the most substantial citizens of the community. Dr. McNeill is a practicing physician, and does not stay at the store very much. In addition to their mercantile and personal business in Jemison, both Dr. McNeill and Mr. Atkinson have extensive farming interests in the community.

Lots Strawberries Raised at Jemison

There is evident among the farmers and business men around Jemison a desire for the organization there of an association for the growing and shipping of strawberries and other products.

Plans are being made for holding a meeting for this purpose some time during the month of July. At this meeting it will be determined how many farmers want to go into the association. It is stated that there are already many acres of strawberries in the Jemison territory, the product of which have been moving through the Thorsby organization. Many more Jemison farmers are interested in starting in the berry business if they can ship from Jemison.

We understand that the Jemison Berry Growers Association when it is organized will have its business office in the new bank building, which is also handy to the railroad yards.

The opening of the bank at Jemison will make it easy for the farmers to transact their shipping business and handle their collections.

Reedie Taylor will Open a New Store

Mr. Reedie Taylor, one of the leading young business men of Clanton, is opening a new store at Jemison. His new place will be the second unit of Chicago Sales Company and the fourth in his chain of stores in Chilton County. He is proprietor of the Chicago Sales Co., Callen's and the Capitol Dry Goods Co., all of Clanton.

The new store at Jemison will be located in the old Union State Bank building and will be known as Chicago Sales Company No. 2. Mr. W. A. Kemp will be in active charge of the Jemison store.

Jemison should be proud of the coming of Mr. Taylor's store. A business man of his standing and ability can and will be worth much to the town and community. In addition to his own extensive business interests, Mr. Taylor is a stockholder in the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton and the Peoples Bank of Jemison. He is at present a member of the Town Council of Canton.

His new store at Jemison will have its opening sale on Saturday, June 29th and Monday, July 1st. Elsewhere in this paper you will see his advertisement telling all about the opening sale.

Ignorance Drops

A story about Jemison and Jemison folks would be sadly incomplete without mention of Mr. J. N. Scott, widely known as the periodical purveyor of that well-known and justly famous remedy, "Jap's Ignorance Drops."

This wonderful discovery has a history of many years successful and soothing ministrations upon the various and sundry ills of politicians and others afflicted by nightmares caused from broodings over broken political ambitions and dreams of three-mill taxes and other things of current unpopularity. Dr. Scott proudly claims that his "Ignorance Drops" cured more politicians than any remedy discovered by mortal man. He claims to have burned many gallons of midnight oil in years past while perfecting this famous remedy.

We called to see Mr. Scott the other day while in JJemison, intending to get some dots from which to write him up. But he was out. That is all right anyhow. We prefer to let him writet his own story. He has been saying for a long time that he intends to write the story of his life and give it to us for publication. When he does this it will be better than we could write it.

Mr. Scott is now running a store at Jemison. His life has been spent in very active participation in the business of farming, railroading and merchandising, and his success has been phenomenal considering the chances he had to start with.

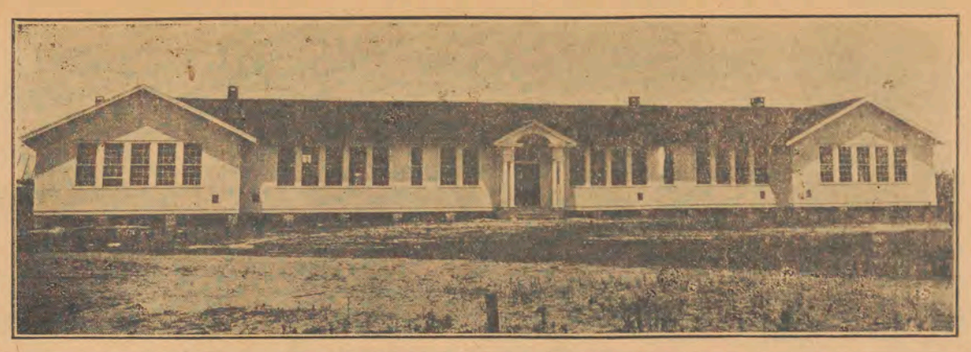
CLANTON



C. R. Foss, Cashier

The Cashier of the Peoples Bank at Jemison will be Mr. C. Reuben Foss, who is an experienced banker. He needs no introduction to the people of Chilton County, as he is a citizen of the county, and his long connection in the banking business in the county has brought him into a wide acquaintance with Chilton County people. In past years Mr. Foss has been connected with the banks at Clanton, and he was cashier of the bank at Thorsby for a long time.

Reuben Foss is naturally built for dealing with the public in a place like being a bank cashier. He is first of all eminently fitted for the job both by training and experience. Then his temperament and disposition makes him fit exactly into the job.

The Peoples Bank of Jemison is indeed fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Foss for cashier. Upon this job hangs the success of the bank, and it goes without saying that the job of cashier is safe in his hands.

Mr. H. H. Visit Mr. Hays that day and see that he makes good his promise.

Soil Improvement Facts

DR. H. W. BARRE, director of the South Carolina experiment station at Clemson, declares that the average yields of crops in the South are not more than one-third to one-half of what they should be. He points out that it is imperative that the fertility of the soil be increased by the use of commercial plant food, by soil improving crops, and by barnyard manure, to where profitable yields can be obtained.

In co-operation with the County Agricultural Agent of this county, we are presenting herewith information based on experimental data developed by the United States Department of Agriculture and the various agricultural experiment stations of the South. We believe that the farmers of this county can profit by studying this information, by consulting with the County Agent, and by working toward improving the soils of their farms to a point where crops can be grown at a profit where they are now grown at a loss and where present small profits can be increased to large profits. Jemison Well Supplied With Roads & Highway

The town of Jemison is well situated with reference to County public roads. In addition to being right on the paved highway from Birmingham to Montgomery, half a dozen of the main roads of the county lead into the town. All of these connect the town with important and progressive farming communities. Easy access to Jemison is enjoyed by the people of Mineral Springs, Union Grove, Oak Hill, Oak Grove, Minooka, Providence, Mars Hill, Pleasant Grove, Collins Chapel, Union Springs, Stumps Hills.

Jemison and these communities are in the District of the county which is served by County Commissioner, John Bean. The fine way in which Mr. Bean keeps up these roads is considered a very valuable thing for the community and the town. A vast amount of cotton and other farm products comes to Jemison for market. Good roads is the first thing necessary to bring progress and profit to the farmer. The main county roads to Jemison from any outlying community can be traveled by automobile, truck, or wagon every day in the year.

THE PEOPLES BANK

The Peoples Bank of Jemison will open for business on Monday, July the first, filling a need that has long been felt by the business men of the town and the farmers of North Chilton. This institution is owned and backed up by one hundred of the leading business men of Chilton County. It starts off with a paid up capital of $15,000 and a surplus of $1,500.

ELECTRIC POWER

The great awakening and renewed activity that has come into every phase of Jemison's community life in the past few years has been brought about largely because of the electric light and power service being rendered there by the Alabama Power Company. This service has done for Jemison what it has done for hundreds of other Alabama communities—brought them a new lease on life—given them a new place of unlimited opportunity for business and industrial expansion.

Jemison secures all-time electric service right from the main distributing system of the Alabama Power Company. There is no greater asset for the town than having this service.

DR. A. A. CONWAY

Dr. Arnold A. Conway practices dentistry at Jemison. When he is not busy in his office, he passes the time away by building business houses, or most any kind of profitable business that comes to hand. One is as likely to see him laying brick or painting a house as pulling a tooth.

Another side line with him is serving as City Clerk under the administration of Mayor McNeill. Now comes the Peoples Bank to Jemison and the name of Dr. Conway appears as vice-president of this important business institution.

To sum up this story of Dr. Conway in a few words, we would say that he is about the busiest man we have observed in Jemison. He is one of the fellows who really does things. And a fellow who does things always has much to do.

We might have had some really interesting things to say about the Jemison dentist, but we couldn't hold him and write at the same time. He always gets away to do something else before you can even ask him a question. It is the fellows like Conway that are fetching Jemison into a new life.

GERALD HUBBARD

Mr. Gerald Hubbard is now in active charge of the store of his father, the late R. M. Hubbard, who was killed in an automobile accident some months ago.

The business affairs of R. M. Hubbard are being administered by Mr. H. G. Boyd through the Probate Court of Chilton County. We understand that when the business of his father has been wound up, Mr. Gerald Hubbard will continue to operate the store at the same place in Jemison. Concerning a rumor that the store would be closed, Gerald Hubbard says:

"I want my friends to know that I intend to keep right on with this store after my father's affairs have been properly wound up. We are not going to quit business. I am just getting things in shape to really do business."

The store of R. M. Hubbard is offering some attractive specials to their customers for Monday, July 1st. Elsewhere in this paper is a large advertisement telling all about it. As a prize for that day they will give away a $2.50 deposit in the Peoples Bank of Jemison.

H. H. HAYS

Henderson Hays has one of the busiest stores in the town of Jemison. He sells everything you can think of and then some. But the selling end of his business is not all of it. He buys anything the farmer has to sell. One slogan of his business is that he will at an time of the year buy anything the farmer has to sell in any quantity.

Mr. Hays has been in the store at Jemison only a few years, but he is enjoying a splendid success. He has been in the trading business all his life, and when it comes to handling goods or making a trade he is thoroughly at home.

The farmers of Jemison territory have found that the ability of Mr. Hays to handle their surplus produce is a great help to them.

Mr. Hays is right in with the other Jemison business men to make Monday, July the first, a big day for everybody. At his store he will give away a sack of flour in the morning, and a bucket of lard in the afternoon.

VOCATIONAL HOME ECONOMICS AT THE JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL

Home Economics has made great progress in Jemison this year. This is the first year to have full-time vocational work. The addition to the building for this work was finished the first of November. This consists of three rooms, clothing, laboratory, foods laboratory, and a dining room. Besides the building nearly $150 worth of equipment has been added since January, including a mirror, filing cabinet, bulletin cases, books, waste baskets, chairs and small equipment, also shades given by the Parent-Teacher Association.

The enrollment for the year has been 37: Home Economics I, 19; and Home Economics II, 9; and Health, 9.

Girls Serve Faculty

The Home Economics I class gave a five course luncheon for the faculty. They planned, prepared and served the luncheon. This month completes their course in foods which consists of planning, preparing and serving all kinds of meals, including special diet needs, school lunches and food preservation.

Other than foods they have studied clothing and the house. During the study of the House the girls went to different homes and built lattices and set out shrubbery, sodded lawns, and learned how to care for them, also learned how to arrange furniture most effectively.

Home Economics II girls have made over a dress, planned and made two cotton dresses, one street dress and one afternoon dress. Their study of fabrics and color and their relation to different types and occasions enabled them to make their selection with good taste. Miss Cline, according to the citizens of Jemison, is unusually gifted with the needle. Under her supervision some of the students made their own graduation dresses, an art that is seldom attempted by high school girls.

During commencement the above classes presented a fashion show wearing the costumes they made this school year.

The Health Class has had a very interesting study of Household Hygeine, school, community and home; personal hygeine, and home care of the sick.

Interest in Home Projects

As a result of class work, Miss Cline says that every student has carried out one or more projects during the year.

The Home Economics I girls have chosen home improvement, interior and exterior, for their projects. All projects will be finished except those that will continue in the summer, but 30 hours or more of work has been put on them.

Home Economics II girls have taking clothing and home improvement for their home work. All projects have been completed.

Mothers Pleased With Work

Mrs. R. H. Bean says that Pauline's work this year has been unusually good. She has learned to cook and sew, which is something every girl should know. She is very much pleased with Pauline's project, which is a davenette made from an old bedstead. She says she did not know old things could be so useful. She has also sodded the lawn and planted the shrubbery. In the summer the home is to be remodeled, adding a sleeping porch and new front porch.

Mrs. A. C. Wells says that her daughter's work in Home Economics has been worth a great deal to her this year. For her home project Dody has made a chair from an old coach car seat and refinished some furniture for the living room, of which she is proud. This summer the home is to be remodeled adding a new kitchen, breakfast room, enlarging the living room, and putting in water works.

Mrs. Pierce is pleased with Thelma's work. During the year Thelma has planted shrubbery and a flower garden, sodded the lawn and painted her own room. They have painted their home and put in carbide lights this year.

Mrs. J. H. Martin says that her daughter, Violet, has learned many new things this year. For her home work she has made a dressing table from an old washstand that was almost torn up. She has painted a bedstead, table and mirror to match and made a place to keep her own clothes.

Langston's Cash Store

Langston's Cash Store, owned and operated by Mr. D. L. Langston, is one of the best looking business establishments in Jemison, and we believe it is the largest in amount of merchandise carried and amount of sales. The store is divided into two departments, one for groceries and provisions; the other for dry goods, shoes, clothing etc.

Mr. Langston is assisted in the store by Mrs. Langston in the dry goods department and Mr. G. M. Adams. The business has been established and in operation in Jemison for ten years.

In addition to the things already mentioned, Mr. Langston carries a full line of coffins, caskets, and burial supplies.

Mayor and Council Run Town Affairs

Jemison is an incorporated town, the government and business of which is administered by a Mayor and Council elected by vote of the citizens of the town. At present the Mayor is Dr. R. B. McNeill. The town council is composed of J. W. Sorrell, E. L. Lenoir, D. L. Langston, C. C. Conway, and W. C. Erwin. Dr. Arnold Conway is city clerk.

The financial affairs of the town are in good shape. According to Mayor McNeill, the municipality does not owe a cent of debt and has some money ahead.

The governing officials of the town of Jemison are men of outstanding business ability, and constitute an aggregate force of much power for the progress of the community. They have taken a special interest in the improvement of Jemison's school. For this purpose the city has spent considerable money, and the officials have given the school their moral encouragement in every way possible.

Dr. McNeill states that the city officials have been giving some consideration to the purchase of some property for a city park. The property under consideration is a block of old frame business houses north of the Peoples Bank building and east of the main street to the railroad If the city can carry this proposal through, it would be a fine addition to the appearance of the business district of the city, as well as the removal of a group of buildings that constitute a dangerous fire hazard. A nice park right in the center of Jemison's business district would be something unique, and withal most inviting.

Mayor McNeill touched very briefly on the subject of a waterworks and sewerage system for Jemison. While he states that no definite plans have been discussed looking toward this matter, he recognizes that therein is bound up much of the future progress of the town. While the present town officials are not committed to the proposition of waterworks and sewerage as a definite objective, the people of the community should take encouragement over the fact that they are broad mineded and able business men who would like to see it accomplished if they could find a way to do it. And for all we know, they might find a way sooner than we think.

ELECTRIC GRIST MILL RECENTLY INSTALLED

Mr. G. W. Lewis, one of the old citizens of Jemison, has recently installed the most up-to-date grist mill in this section of the county. Taking advantage of the opportunity offered, Mr. Lewis has designed his machinery to be run by electricity, which makes him always able to give the best and most instant service.

The location of Mr. Lewis's grist mill is next to the Monroe Hubbard Store, in the business section of the town.

W. H. Conway

Among the men who have contributed largely to the progress of Jemison and community and the whole of Chilton County, we feel that Mr. W. H. Conway should be among the first mentioned. He has lived in that part of the county for many years, and all his time has been actively spent in an effort to impress his fellow farmers with better ideals of living and more profitable business practices. He is a man who has not lived unto himself alone. "He that would be greatest among you, let him be servant of all," has been the one great moving principle of the life of this intensely useful man.

Mr. Conway was the first County Farm Demonstration Agent of Chilton County. In this work he labored faithfully among the people of Chilton County during the hard years of the past when improved farming was indeed a pioneering business. Many of our farmers and communities first heard of the gospel of better farming methods from the lips of W. H. Conway.

In discussing the work which he did as farm agent, Mr. Conway recalls a few of the main obpectives which he sought to carry out with those farmers who would enlist with him. He says: "I tried first of all to get the farmers of Chilton County to raise more corn and wheat; corn enough for their own use and some to sell; and at least enough wheat to provide the flour they needed at home. Many did this and proved that it could be made profitable. As a result we saw conditions change around. In place of corn being shipped into the county we soon began shipping corn out of the county by the carload. A number of wheat mills were established to manufacture the home-grown wheat into flour.

"Another thing I tried to get the farmers interested in was raising hogs for their own meat supply, and some to sell. It proved the same with meat as with corn. In a short while many farmers were selling a large amount of meat to be shipped out of the county instead of having their own meat supply shipped into the county.

"My work in dairy development and beef cattle proved that our farmers could do well in that line. While I was in the county agent work we went to prominent dairy farms in the South and bought pure-bred cattle and brought them to many farms. Our farmers found that they could provide year-round pastures and handle cattle to advantage.

"I am glad that I can now observe to-day among the farmers of the county many indications of progressive ideas that have grown up from some of the small beginnings which they made back in those years."

Perhaps the greatest contribution which Mr. Conway has made to his community and county is his two sons, Dr. A. A. Conway and Mr. C. C. Conway, both of whom are now prominent business men of Jemison. No better examples can be found of men who do things for their community than Columbus and Arnold Conway. A father who puts into his sons the principles that are found in these two sons has indeed made a most wonderful contribution to human welfare.

For many years W. H. Conway was a member of the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County. He brought to this important office the same diligent adherence to duty that has characterized every phase of his life.

Jemison May Get Phone Service

There are prospects in sight for adequate telephone service in Jemison and throughout the surrounding country. While nothing definite can be stated in this respect, we know that the telephone company is always looking for chances to extend their service and system. And they do not generally overlook places that have made such progress as Jemison has made in recent years.

We can think of nothing that would add more convenience to the community than the installation of an up-to-date telephone system. And we would not be surprised to see the people have a chance at this advantage in the next few months.

Jemison's Railroad Office Force

In strict accordance with its policy of rendering adequate service to every community it serves, "The old Reliable" L. & N. Railroad has always done its part in the development of Jemison and North Chilton County. Adequate freight and passenger facilities have been provided to take care of the increasing demands of the growth of business in the comunity.

Mr. W. C. Erwin is railroad agent at Jemison, having been at this important post of duty for the past nine years. His assistant clerk is Mr. C. D. Gibbons.

There is a full time telegraph office at the Jemison depot. Mr. Etwin works one shift. The other two operators are Mr. H. G. Jeffries and Mr. R. D. Gibbons.

There is a railroad section crew located at Jemison, of which Mr. W. P. Logan, as foreman. The railroad payroll which comes to employees at Jemison amounts to about $1,200 a month. The Jemison freight office last year did a total of about $31,000 worth of business.

Some Facts About Jemison High School

(By J. P. Montgomery)

Following are a few facts regarding the Jemison High School, for the year closing November, 1928:

The enrollment for 1928 was as follows: all day boys, 20; junior project boys, 9; evening school farmers, Pleasant Grove, 17; evening school, Freeman's, 24.

Every student carried one or more projects. The Pleasant Grove farmers carried two projects, one on cotton and one on dairying. The two outstanding types of work featured were dairying and cotton production.

Eighty-five per cent of the students enrolled as boys or farmers, used the Auburn method of fertilizing cotton as recommended by the county agent. Some used the minimum and some the maximum. Some of the cotton results are listed below:

School Farmers Win Radio

Thirty-two evening school farmers followed certain practices that qualified the evening schools to enter a state-wide contest between evening schools on the production of cotton. The radio was offered by the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Co. A number of evening schools entered the contest. The first prize, or radio, was given to the Jemison and Freeman schools jointly. Their production was between one-half and two-thirds of a bale per acre. The cost per pound to produce the cotton was also considered.

Dairy Evening School at Pleasant Grove a Success

The average number of cows per farm was 3.84. The net profit plus paid self for labor, but giving no value to the manure returned, was $45.70 per cow per year. All feed, pasture, use of buildings and interest on money was charged at market price. There were 81 meetings held at this dairy school, and great stress was placed on good pastures and the growing of feed crops. Dairying as a side line is progressing nicely in this community.

Farm Shop Work.

The students in vocational agriculture do farm repair work in the shop. They also build some furniture, but are not encouraged to do the finest cabinet work, as the course is primarily to fit a boy to do farm repair work.

The most outstanding work done by the boys in the shop this season is the building of the equipment in the vocational building. The tables were said by supervisors to be the best in the State. The boys also built eight tables for the home economics department, also one long one for the auditorium and did repair work of all kinds.

The School Grounds

The vocational teacher is held responsible for the condition of the school grounds. The State Department holds him responsible to some extent.

The P.-T. A. at Jemison has been very instrumental in the work of the school. That association contributed the money to buy the shrubbery for the main building, also to place the drive way and for the concrete work. This year shrubbery has been placed around the vocational building and plans to finish the work are being worked out.

The vocational teacher aids with many farm problems, such as terracing, buying seeds, fertilizers and other raw material that goes into production, the sale of products from the farm, pruning and spraying of orchards, controlling insects and diseases, wounds, etc., planning farmsteads and cropping systems, and any movement in the community that means for the progress and development of the community.

Ready to Serve You Again!

According to our custom every year, we are now putting our gin machinery in first class shape so that we will be able to give our farmer friends the very best ginning service when cotton begins to come in. We have been running our gin here for the past fifteen years. The class of work we do is known to every farmer in this part of the county. We want to assure you that your patronage is appreciated, and that our aim is to keep our service up to the highest standard.

Last year out of 1,498 samples submitted to the U. S. Department of Agriculture from our gin, only one bale was found to be gin-cut.

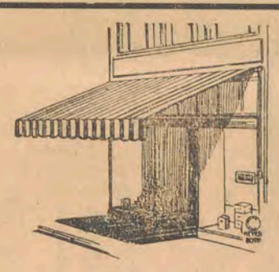
School Was Worth $1,000 To Posey



Mr. L. G. Posey of Jemison states that the first evening school held by Mr. Montgomery of Jemison High School, was worth $1,000.00 in cash to him. That was two years ago. Up until that time he had been fertilizing cotton with about 150 pounds of mixed goods per acre and making about one bale of cotton on five acres. After attending the night school meetings, he called his tenants together and suggested that they try the Auburn minimum method of fertilizing cotton. They tried it and as a result, the fall of 1927 he harvested 28 bales of cotton on 40 acres. This was the best cotton crop he had made since the boll weevil hit the country. The next year he insisted on an evening school in his own community. He used 650 pounds of fertilizer per acre. He also poisoned 5 acres and made 4 bales. His entire cotton land produced 30 bales on 36 acres.

Mr. Posey says he used to use mixed goods on his corn, but now he only uses nitrate of soda.

Mr. Posey believes in Chilton County, its people and its present and future possibilities. He is very enthusiastic over the vocational type of education.

Another Gin Will Be Built At Jemison

On a trip to the thriving little city of Jemison during the past week, we found that material has already been assembled for the construction of a new cotton ginning plant. The promoter and owner of this new business is Mr. J. M. Glasscock, who is an experienced cotton gin promoter. He has been in the business for sixteen years.

The location of the new gin will be on what is known as the Skaggs property near the Jemison school grounds. It will be a Munger gin of the latest improved type, consisting of four 80-saw units. The latest electric power devices for gin operation will be used to drive the machinery.

Mr. Glasscock states that he will construct a modern cotton warehouse in connection with his gin. This will provide him with ample facilities for handling the cotton of the farmers in a prompt and efficient manner.

The new gin will be ready for operation by the time cotton begins to come in this fall. The owner of the new gin is a prominent farmer and citizen of Jemison community. The success of his business adventure is already assured. The only reason there has not been more cotton maketed at Jemison in the past was because there was not more gin and warehouse facilities there for handling it. With the second gin and warehouse there it is exepcted that the amount of cotton maketed in Jemison wil be almost doubled. And too, the coming of the Peoples Bank to Jemison will be a great factor in making the Jemison cotton market better for the farmers.

NOTES OF PROGRESS FROM THE JEMISON CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL

He Likes The Cow Sow And The Hen

By J. P. MONTGOMERY

Hunter Rasco of Jemison, says that he likes the sow, hen and cow program—that it is the thing for him. He keeps rather close books on his farming, and while he did not have any figures with him at this particular time, he remembered that he had sold $140.00 worth of sour cream from three cows since October the 1st. Mr. Rasco states that his hogs, poultry and cows pay his living expenses, including his autmobile expenses and part of his fertilizer bill. That leaves him his cotton money in the fall without debts to pay.

Mr. Rasco gives his hogs, poultry and cows better attention than most farmers. He has good permanent pastures for his cows and hogs and raises his feeds, using basic slag and acid phosphate under all legumes.

Among the people around Jemison interested in poultry Mr. Montgomery says Miss Bertha Johnson is easily the most experienced and the best informed on poultry. Next to her he thinks is Dr. Johnson. They have always succeeded with poultry although handicapped by lack of space and land that is a little too low.

When Jemison farmers began to wish they wished they had had more poultry to sell when the Farm Bureau paid 25 cents per pound for hens this spring.

Many wished they had set out more strawberry plants when the price advanced to $3.85.

They wished they had sown Austrian peas and fertilized them with basic slag when they saw E. L. Lenoir turn his enormous growth this spring.

They wished they had cleared more lowlands for pastures and planted velvet beans in corn when they saw their neighbors getting 45 cents for butterfat in May.

In the northern part of Chilton County, in the little town of Jemison, is located a consolidated high school. This school was established seven years ago; since that time three units have been added to take care of the increased enrollment and broader curricula. The amout of money required for the erection of this building was aproximately $32,000.

The equipment used in the different departments of the schol is valued at $7.50. Courses in social seiences, in home economics, in science, in music, in physical education, in mathematics, in English and vocational agriculture are taught by fourteen trained teachers. About half of the teachers are college graduates and the others have had normal school training.

It has been said from an economic standpoint investment in a school library is the best ivestment that can be made with public funds. The quickest and most effective way to promote a love for learning is to develop the reading habit. Love for reading cannot be instilled too early. With this in mind, the Jemison high school has taken advantage of securing two or three state-aid libraries per year for the last five years. In this manner and with the aid of the Parent-Teacher Association, the library has been built to contain 690 volumes, valued at 14 hundred dollars.

The Parent-Teacher Association has been organized for a number of years. Since its organizaton its members have worked so earnestly and so consistently for the betterment of its school that they have attained a county-wide reputation for getting results.

The Parent-Teacher Association has undertaken some large projects. This includes raising funds to erect the building, equipping the auditorium with chairs and curtain, the home economics room with machines, shades for th e entire building, a suite of furniture for the stage, and the beautification of the school grounds. Much of the progress of the school has been made possible by this organization.

During the last five years the Jemison high school enrollment has increased 58 per cent. It is now rated the seventeenth school from the top, among the 146 rural high schools of the state, as compared to seventy-one of seventy-two schools four years ago. The number going to college from this institution during this time has increased 400 per cent.

Departments of vocational agriculture and home economics have been working on joint programs for home improvement. Although increased financial income has been one of the chief objectives of agriculture and better methods of home making a goal in home economics, the final success has been measured in better home conditions of the pupils who have had such success.

Individual home projects have been receiving attntion. This year several boys and girls in the vocational classes have sodded their lawns, planted shrubbery and installed a lighting system.

An exchange of classes for two weeks by the teachers of agriculture and home economics has been made for the last two years. The boys studying nutrition, table manners, selection and care of clothing. The girls have been given instructions in beautification of home grounds, use of paints and varnishes, repairs about the house, and the care of poultry.

The latest equipment added to the high school is an R. C. A. radio. The installation of th radio will enable the students to learn instructive lectures, to get daily market quotations at the noon hour, and will furnish entertainment for students and the public from time to time. The Progressive Farmer made it possible for the school to secure the radio by selling subscriptions to their paper. Jemison high school holds the distinction of being the first school to secure a radio under this plan. In view of this fact, the Progressive Farmer people gave the school and community an entertainment at the Jemison high school auditorium on Friday night, May 10th.

Jemison Post Office Is Important Factor

Uncle Sam's postoffice and mail business at Jemison is an item important in the proper function of things in the community. This matter is of concern to many people all throughout the northern part of the county.

Mrs. Jewel Bratton Sorrell is postmistress. Her assistant in the office is her husband, Joshua Sorrell. McDavid Elected Head of Kiwanis

Report of Convention Held In Milwaukee, Wisconsin Last Week

Milwaukee, June 27. Horace W. McDavid, of Decatur, Illinois, was elected president of Kiwanis International at the close of the 13th annual convention here today. He is a lawyer by profession and a former state legislator. He was governor of the Illinois-Eastern Iowa Kiwanis district in 1925 and for a number of years has been a member of the International board of trustees.

For vice-president the delegates elected: William C. Green, of St. Paul and Dr. C. C. Tatham, of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada. Raymond M. Crossman, of Omaha, was re-elected treasurer.

"The only solid claim on perpetuity for any organization must rest on usefulness," Mr. McDavid declared to the delegates and visitors after his election today. "While we are proud of the accomplishments of Kiwanis along various lines of endeavor, we should not indulge in self praise but rather give our energy and best thought to the things which add strength and give new impulse to the great field of work to which we have dedicated ourselves.

"Every Kiwanian should study the underlying purposes and principles of his organization. We should all study our objectives. They cover a great field of laudable human endeavor. They are broad enough in their scope so that no club need go outside of them to find a splendid program of community activity"

One of the greatest needs of our organization is a deeper appreciation of the responsibilities on the part of the individual Kiwanian. We ought, as a service organization, always to look ourselves squarely in the face. The greatest indictment against service clubs today is the failure on the part of the individual member, in a greater or lesser degree, to appreciate his own responsibility.

Every member should prize his membership with the kind of pride that prompts him to do some work. My opinion is that no man is big enough to belong to a service organization unless he is willing to give some time and energy and some of his heart to it, he said.

Apathy has no place in a Kiwanis club. The greatest menace to the welfare of our country, the greatest danger we have as citizens today is that of apathy, indifference. Kiwanis demands men who have a zeal for the public good, who have a true appreciation of community welfare.

We must be practical, words can mean little unless we do have performance. We do not realize the great power that exists in us. In our thinking we must not forget the vital and dymanic power of the influence that comes in carrying a program in which 103,000 men in the 1810 clubs in the United States and Canada are engaging.

Kiwanis has justified its existence. It has come to stay. The splendid work accomplished by our clubs forms a bright page on the history of our country. It is a great spiritual movement, built on fellowship and mutual endeaver for something outside ourselves. Let us see that we make the most of our opportunities. They come as a challenge to our membership, which can only be answered by every man giving the best of himself in organizing the manpower of his club into useful endeavor.

NO SINGING AT CONCORD ON ACCOUNT OF ONE AT THOMAS

At the request of Prof. W. M. DeVaughn, the singing at Concord which would have been held next Sunday afternoon, has been called off. We hope as many of our singers as possible will meet at Thomas High School at that time and help Profs. W. M. DeVaughn and O. L. DeVaughn in their afternoon singing. This event is the opening of their singing school at Thomas, and they hope to have the best singing ever held in that part of the county. —Secretary.

Hoover Pushes Board Choices

Washington, July 1.—President Hoover hopes to complete by the end of this week the selection of virtually all of the men who, as members of the federal farm board, will be entrusted with the task of bringing prosperity to agriculture.

Proceeding with great deliberation in view of the importance he attaches to the board's undertakings, he has filled three of its eight places and has offered one other to a business man and two to farm leaders, one of whom, however, is expected to decline.

Cotton is to be represented by Carl Williams, of Oklahoma; tobacco by James C. Stone, of Kentucky, and livestock by C. B. Denman, of Missouri. These three definitely have accepted appointment.

Those who have been offered appointments are Alexander H. Legge, of Chicago, who would represent general business, W. S. Moscrip, of Minneapolis, chose to speak for the dairying industry, and Charles C. Teague, of California, identified with fruit growing co-operatives. Teague is quoted in press dispatches as saying private business will prevent him from serving.

On the assumption that the place offered Teague will be filled by another representative of the fruit growers, two places on the board remain to be filled from other industries, with a spokesman for the important wheat section yet to be selected. In addition, Mr. Hoover announced when he signed the farm bill that one membership would be filled by a man experienced in the field of banking and equipped to advise his colleagues in the administration of the $500,000,000 fund authorized and partially appropriated by congress for loans to co-operative farming organizations.

There have been no definite indications as to who the wheat man will be, although Mr. Hoover has a long list of names, many of them impressively endorsed, under consideration. Prominently mentioned are James H. Sinclair, of North Dakota, and H. L. Hartshorn, of Kansas.

MR. BAKER'S FATHER DIED

Mr. W. T. Baker went to Hackleburg in Marion County last Saturday to attend the burial of his father, Henry M. Baker, who died Friday night.

The deceased was 89 years of age. He had been an invalid for the past four years. He had been critically ill for two months past.

Fifty-Four Examined At Clinic for Cripple

About Half Of These Have A Chance If Treatment Is Given Them

The clinic for crippled children held here last Friday proved very gratifying to those who have sponsored the movement. All indications tend to give promise of much good to come from the effort to help the cripple and unfortunate children of the county.

Under the expert direction of Dr. Sherrill and Miss Margaret Shook, 53 white children and one negro were examined. Copies of the recommendations of Dr. Sherrill for treatment of the cases will be sent back to Mrs. Stapp, child welfare worker of Chilton County. These will be used by Mrs. Stapp in assisting the parents of the children in following the recommendations for the treatment of the children.

Mrs. Stapp says it is estimated that about half of the cases examined can be remedied by treatment.

Dr. Napoleon S. Johnson gave the use of his X-Ray machine for making pictures. The Kiwanis Club of Clanton assisted in bringing the children in from the country, and served them ice cream during the day.

Miss Clark and Miss Beulah, teachers of child welfare work at Alabama College, Montevallo, brought their classes here to assist in the work. Dr. Ball of Columbiana was also a visitor at the clinic.

Dr. Sherrill and Miss Shook were highly pleased with the arrangements for the clinic. They stated that the Baptist Church offered a most delightful arrangement for conducting the work, and that the organization for handling the children was among the best they have had in the state.

We feel that Mrs. Stapp is to be thanked for her tireless efforts to get the clinic here. It means that many of the cripples will be benefitted, whereas, if this effort had not been made, they would never have received any attention from anyone.

COMMITTEE WILL PICK THE TWO BEST VOICES IN CHILTON COUNTY

Test Will Be Conducted At Clanton At Some Time In Near Future

Plans are being made and other work is in progress to select the two best voices to represent Chilton County in the Atwater Kent audition for 1929. G. W. Moore, Chilton County Chairman, is selecting the county committee now and this committee will work with the chairman in making the selection.

A county audition will be held at which time the county winners will be determined. One young man and one young lady between the ages of 18 and 25 will be selected. The county winners will have completed the first step in the struggle for supremacy among the greatest undiscovered voices of the nation.

Each young man and each young lady wishing to enter the contest should see the chairman or one of the members of the committee for the necessary application blanks. Each may select the song he or she wishes to sing. The contest is entirely vocal although each contestant may have an accompanist.

Young men and young women will not compete with each other. Young men will compete among themselves as will the young ladies. The county winners will go to the district contest which is to be held early next fall and the district winners go to the state audition to be broadcast from Station WAPI in Birmingham about the middle of October. The Alabama winners will then compete with the winners from nine other states in an audition to be broadcast from Station WSM in Nashville in November. The Nashville winners will enter the finals or the national audition which will be broadcast from New York over a network of the National Broadcasting Company.

The winners of first place (one boy and one girl) will each receive $5,000 in cash and two years tuition in an American conservatory. Winners of other national honors will receive handsome cash prizes and tuition at American conservatories.

The audition is the third to be sponsored by the Atwater Kent foundation. Those sponsoring it in Alabama are determined to produce one of the national winners this year. Mrs. O. C. Carmichael of Montevallo is state chairman and P. O. Davis of Auburn is state manager.

It is sincerely hoped that some Chilton County girl or boy will be lucky enough to show his or her ability in this contest, for we know there is much natural talent in this county. Boys and girls should see Mr. Moore at his drug store and music store for further particulars.

Bill Miner Hurt In Auto Wreck

Four boys, a fast automobile, a joy ride in the night on the paved highway, a curve and a swerve, one boy seriously hurt, the ambulance and the hospital—this is the condensed story of what happened to Aubrey Taylor, Bill Miner, Paul Cox, and Red New last Saturday night.

They were up the highway in Roland Taylor's Buick. On their way back they wrecked the machine a few miles this side of Calera. Bill Minor was the worst hurt of the group. He sustained cuts about the head and face and was in serious danger from loss of blood by the time he got back to a doctor at Calera. Martin's ambulance was summoned and the injured ones brought to the hospital at Clanton.

It is said the car was so completely torn up that it was impossible to remove it from the scene where it plunged its way through the guard rails beside the highway.

Jemison Big Day Went Over Good

Deposits Of First Day At New Peoples Bank Were Over $18,000

The big barbecue and celebration at Jemison last Monday was a success from start to finish. The town was full of visitors from all over Chilton County, and everybody had a good time.

The new Peoples Bank opened for business according to schedule, and according to Mr. Reuben Foss, the cashier, the opening was better than was expected. Deposits for the first day went above $18,000.00. Mr. Foss says he is well pleased with this showing, considering the fact that this is the time of the year when folks haven't much loose money laying around.

Visitors to Jemison were impressed with the fine appearance of the new building. Mr. Columbus Conway and Mr. J. A. Sims the owners of the building, have gone to great trouble and expense to make the building and equipment the very best possible. One has only to see the banking house to realize that they have done a good job of it. The Peoples Bank of Jemison has a home that is the neatest banking place in the county, according to the opinion of many visitors who expressed themselves Monday.

The town of Jemison was looking its best for Monday. The Mayor, Dr. McNeill, and the town officials had the town cleaned up as neat as a pin. It is a fact that Jemison has a board of city officers that take great pride in their home town, and are always on the alert to make things show up good.

The barbecue that was given the visitors by the business men of Jemison was excellent. There was plenty to eat and plenty to drink, and everybody enjoyed it greatly. Speeches were made by the following: Pratt Thomas, son of Judge C. E. Thomas, of Prattville, J. P. Montgomery, J. N. Dennis, C. E. Stapp, and L. H. Reynolds.

NOTICE TO OUR READERS

You will notice that you are getting your paper a day earlier this wek than usual. This is due to the fact that Thursday, our regular publication day, is the Fourth of July.

Quite a number of our correspondents sent us letters for publication as usual, but were too late for this week. We shall try to use as near all of these as we can for next week.

Telegraph Worker Hurt By Train

A Mr. Westbrook, workman on the lines of the Western Union Telegraph Company, was seriously hurt near Mountain Creek Monday morning when hit by a fast L. & N. freight train.

The man was on a motor car traveling on the railroad tracks. According to what he understood to be the train schedule, he figured he had time to get into a side track ahead of the approaching freight; but the train overtook him before he reached the siding.

It is said that the train was traveling about sixty miles an hour when it struck the motor car. Just a second before the collision occurred, Westbrook is said to have jumped from the car and the freight engine struck him while he was in midair.

The man was seriously hurt. Martin's ambulance was summoned and brought him to Central Alabama Hospital at Clanton, where physicians pronounced his injuries very serious, but probably not fatal.

Second Anniversary Of DeMabel's Shop

Monday, July the first was the second anniversary of the opening of DeMabel's Beauty Shop in Clanton. Miss Mabel Howard of Thorsby is the proprietor of this establishment. During the two years of its operation, the business has had a very satisfactory growth.

Catering to the wants of the ladies, Miss Howard specializes in permanent waving, hair bobbing, manicuring, care and treatment of the skin. Her studio is located in the Mullins Building on the highway, where it was started two years ago.

According to Miss Howard, during the Past two years she has done approximately three hundred permanent waves. Her customers are perpetual boosters, for she gives them the most careful personal attention, and studies their needs with exactness.

DeMabel's Beauty Shop enjoys the patronage of the ladies of all parts of Chilton County, as well as many from other counties, who prefer to come here on account of the reasonable charges and the unusual personal attention which they receive.

Notice To Members Of Baptist Church

Just before leaving for his vacation, your pastor, Dr. Sam Ezell, left you in my care. This is to give you warning that you had better walk straight.

Dr. Ezell will certainly expect me to report on you after his return. Now, if you will attend services twice each Sunday while he is away I'll report for you favorably, otherwise I can not vouch for you.

Seriously, I want to be of service to you. Please notify me in case of sickness or trouble and I will do my best to take your pastor's place.—E. A. Childs.

WRECK HERE SUNDAY

A car driven by Earle Ellis crashed into the car of E. J. Vinson last Sunday morning in front of the Dixie Cafe. Considerable damage was caused to the Vinson car. No one was hurt.

Mr. Vinson was parked in front of the cafe. Just as he was pulling out into the street the Ellis car came by and struck his machine throwing it against a third car that was parked just ahead.

L. B. Pounds Died At Auburn Home

Former Prominent Citizen Of Chilton County Expired Last Thursday

Lewis Barnett Pounds, age 72 years, died last Thursday, June 27, at his home in Auburn, where he was engaged in the business of operating a filling station. Heart disease was given as the cause of his death.

Funeral services were held at Auburn Friday morning, and the body shipped to Clanton on the afternoon train. Burial was at New Salem cemetery late Friday evening, with a short service conducted by Rev. W. P. Lowery.

The deceased was born in Bibb County, the son of Isom Pounds, who came to Bibb County from South Carolina in the pioneer days. His mother was a Barnett. He is survived by his wife who was before their marriage Miss Ludie Riggins, daughter of Rev. Gantt Riggins.

L. B. Pounds lived a most active life. He was a most brilliant character, and in years past he was one of the most prominent men in the public affairs of Chilton County.

He began his public career as a Baptist preacher. The Farmers Alliance movement caught his fancy, and he was one of the leaders in that great wave of popular sentiment. In politics Mr. Pounds first gained prominence as one of the Populist leaders, later aligning himself with the Republican party. He was elected as Tax Assessor of Chilton County, which office he filled with a high degree of efficiency.

His last political adventure was as a champion of the Socialist party. In this cause he established a Socialist newspaper in Clanton, which soon went the way of all Socialist ventures.

With all his political notions which were more or less eccentric, Mr. Pounds was an honest crusader for what he believed to be right. He was a good man at heart.

J. M. Moore Resigns Agriculture Position

Quit Because State Board Cut Off Appropriation for Drainage Work

Montgomery, Ala., June 29.—James M. Moore, who served Alabama from 1923 to 1927 as state commissioner of agriculture, Saturday afternoon tendered his resignation as chief of the division of markets, gins and warehouses to S. P. Storrs, who was appointed commissioner of agriculture and industries by Governor Bibb Graves when S. M. Dunwoody died a few weeks ago.

Moore quit because the state board of agriculture, on the suggestion of Storrs, refused to make an appropriation for drainage promotion work and for publication of the market report.

He resigned despite the fact that his salary was raised at the last meeting of the state board of agriculture. In making this announcement he said: "You abolished the drainage work and the markets news letter in the name of economy and then turned around and put an amount in salaries approximately equal to the cost of carrying these services to the farmers.

Refuses Salary Increase

"I refer to the unsolicited increase which you made in my salary to become effective July 1 and the salaries of other employes of the department and also to the cost of putting on several new employes."

This declaration, in the opinion of persons who have watched political campaigns in the past, means that Moore will be a candidate against Storrs in the campaign next year.

Moore was the choice of Dunwoody before he died suddenly a few weeks ago. Storrs succeeded Dunwoody on the state board of agriculture at the time of Dunwoody's election to the office of commissioner. Storrs was appointed by Governor Graves. When Commissioner Dunwoody died Governor Graves turned to Storrs because Storrs had been the governor's friend, and he had supported Governor Graves in the campaign of 1926.

Marbury Woman Died Last Week

Mrs. Margaret A. Wickham, age 58, died last Friday at her home near Marbury. The body was brought to Clanton by Martin and prepared for burial. Shipment of the body was made Saturday to Newark, New Jersey. The husband, George Wickham, accompanied the remains to its destination.

Mr. and Mrs. Wickham had been living at Marbury for about three years. They came to Alabama from Ridgewood, New Jersey. For some time Mr. Wickham was employed by the Birmingham News in its circulation department. They came to Marbury on account of failing health. They have no children.

Paulk To Help Farm Bureau

Mr. O. C. Paulk, field agent of the Farm Bureau in Chilton County, will leave this week for Conecuh County in South Alabama, where he will spend two weeks engaged in a membership drive for the Farm Bureau in that county.

Mr. Paulk has made a fine reputation with the Farm Bureau of Alabama. Particularly in the work of enlisting members, he is regarded as one of the best men in the State.

After his campaign in South Alabama he will be sent to North Alabama to help out in membership work in the counties of Morgan and Marshall.

Ormond Headley Will Preach Here

Rev. Ormon T. Headley, pastor of a Methodist church at Minaville, New York, will arrive here with his family this week for a visit with relatives and friends. He was reared in this county out at the Fairview neighborhood, but has been away for a long time.

Rev. Headley was licensed to preach in the Methodist Church at a district conference held at the Clanton church 25 years ago. On next Sunday he will preach at the Methodist church here. He has many friends and acquaintances who will be glad of the opportunity to hear him.

FIT FOR HIGH PLACE

We hear that Hon. Oliver D. Street, Republican National Committeeman from Alabama, is an applicant for Judge of the United States Court of Claims at Washington to succeed Judge Moss, deceased. The placing of Mr. Street in this important position would be a recognition of his fitness and ability which he justly deserves.

Mr. Street is one of the most able men in the South. As a lawyer and jurist, he is one of our really big men.

As a citizen of Alabama he stands in a position of honor among his fellow citizens wherever his name is mentioned. Only last year he was Grand Master of the Masonic Lodge of Alabama, an honor which can be claimed only by one who has the undisputed confidence of a large group of the best men of the State.

Alabama would be honored by the appointment of Mr. Street to the United States Court of Claims.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

FRANK P. LITSCHERT

One of the busiest little cults in the world just at this time is the one which believes that the question of eternal peace could be solved by the absolute elimination of national lines. The proponents of this school of thought tell us that patriotism and national feeling are archaic and that we want to think rather in terms of the world. They would have national boundaries wiped out and the world become one nation. Each nation, they say, is bent on serving its own interests and it is the commercial and political rivalries of the various peoples which cause war. They would have a United States of the world, modeled after the United States of America and they feel sure that in this way war would be eliminated. One of the distinguished men of the world who advocates this doctrine is Mr. H. G. Wells, the British author, who has recently written a pamphlet entitled "The Common Sense of World Peace." Mr. Wells would bring about a pooling of national sovereignties and make all the peoples eventually into a United States of the World, and he seems to think that this would not be so difficult a problem if gone about sensibly.

But, as the Boston Transcript aptly puts it:

"In reality, it is very far from being so simple. Mr. Wells seems to overlook the fact that the people of the United States are really one people, speaking the same tongue, serving the same national ideal. They are animated not by world-citizenship but by nation-citizenship. The nation, any nation, represents a stage in the evolution of social order and human purpose which is as much an inevitable part of the development of the race as the wearing of clothes or the teaching of children to read. Evolution is a thing that can not be hurried.

"Let us suppose that Mr. Wells' scheme were carried out immediately, and that all the nations of the world pooled—that is, turned over unreservedly to a central force—their soverignty; what should we have? Lacking the cohesive force of a single nationality which keeps the American states together, the nations would revert to a sort of tribal organization. Alsace would go her own way, and Brittany hers; Catalonia would stand alone, and so would Viscaya; Wales would be making faces at Cornwall, and Napolitana at Tuscany. Instead of fewer nations, the world would have more. The number of rebellions that the Central World Government, the federal police of the globe, would have on its hands would beggar the imagination. The 'world-order' would represent anarchy, not universal peace and order."

The United States is of course interested in world peace, but not by pooling our soverignty with that of the rest of the world. The economic as well as the political situation, would have to be taken into consideration. The United States has the highest standard of living for the people as a whole, that has ever been known in the history of the world. It has achieved this standard and its present situation of prosperity by certain methods of production and distribution which are now known pretty generally as the "American idea." Now in pooling our sovereignty we would of course forego the right to work out our problems in our own way. Our living standards would not long remain different from those of Europe, and it is a good guess that ours would go down rather more than Europe's would come up.

This fact taken in consideration with the difference in languages, traditions, governmental and commercial ideas in all of the countries, to say nothing of the century old grudges which many of them hold, make Wells' scheme seem, from this distance, decidedly impractical. Nor is there any assurance that the elimination of international competition would bring peace, progress and prosperity. Most of the world's development so far has been the result of competition. The elimination of competition between nations might result in the deterioration of the entire human race.

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

IS THE WORLD REALLY GOING TO THE BUGS?

Scientists Tell Us That The Insect Kingdom May Someday Dominate The World. Drastic Measures Are Needed To Keep This Ever Present Menace In Check.

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

A letter recently placed on my desk announcing the opening of a National Insect Killing Week to begin July 7th, reminded me of a conversation I once overheard in a pullman while en route to California. Two fellow travelers were derisively discussing a magazine article one of them had discovered in which a well known scientist had asserted that some day man's boasted civilization would be utterly obliterated by the ever increasing myriads of the lowly insect kingdom. "A lot of sensational rot!" scoffed one. "Yeah," agreed the other. "Guess these college profs haven't anything to do but write fool stuff like that."

I said nothing for it would have done no good. I would merely have been considered another of those fool profs with nothing to do but concoct lurid poppycock for popular amusement. Nevertheless, I sympathized very much with the writer's point of view. I recalled the fact that, had it not been for the late General Gorgas's brilliant campaign against the mosquito, the Panama Canal would have been the same dismal failure as the French fiasco in Nicaragua. As a matter of fact, I would almost be willing to back the mosquito to accomplish the downfall of man single handed were it not for the recent arousing of public consciousness to the fact that these insects carry the germs of malaria and other dangerous diseases. The use of insecticides to combat those pernicious pests has now become fairly general but much is yet to be done. There can not be too many spray guns in action against this really formidable enemy.

Should mosquitoes need an ally in their attempt to conquer mankind they could hardly do better than enlist the aid of the lowly house fly. Born in filth, the fly never loses his liking for it. Nothing seems to suit him more than a chance to dabble his feet in every conceivable form of germ laden nastiness and then transfer it to food intended for human consumption. Screening is only partial protection. Flies will get in in spite of every barrier erected against them and a good Fly and Insect Powder should be constantly on hand to strike them down as fast as they show up.

But while discussing the various insect pests that threaten the health and comfort of mankind let us not forget that athletic fellow the flea. To most people he is merely a minor nuisance treated more as a joke than as a serious menace. Yet, science now recognizes this tiny broad jump champion as a carrier of the dreaded Bubonic Plague. The fact that almost all domestic animals are occasional hosts to the flea is reason sufficient enough for extreme vigilance. Fly and Insect Powder for the smaller animals and especially household pets and occasional dipping for infested livestock will help to keep the flea down. Let it not be forgotten, too, that the rat is a carrier of these plague ridden insects—so swat the rat at every possible opportunity.

Mosquitoes, flies, fleas, bedbugs and we're just getting a good start. Who said civilization wasn't menaced by bugs? And how about the roaches? Comical clowns of the insect world, but dangerous pests just the same. They annually destroy thousands of dollars worth of foodstuffs and much that they do not actually consume is so polluted by their filthy bodies that it is not fit to eat. They leave a disgusting odor on everything they touch and there is no question but what, like the flies, their feet and bodies are living incubators for millions of disease germs which they strew about with reckless abandon wherever they go. More work for the blowgun and the insect powder! By all means remember the roach when you celebrate National Insect Killing Week.

So far we have not gone outside the walls of the home. Yet, we have already found enough germ carrying, health endangering, comfort destroying insects to make us wonder if the scientist mentioned at the beginning of this article might not be somewhere near the truth. Yes, and we haven't even spoken of the moth that causes untold damage to clothing, bedding and upholstering in thousands of homes every year.

And that notorious nocturnal prowler, the bedbug. No home is so carefully kept but what the vile intruder may occasionally find a way in. They seem to be able to subsist indefinitely without nourishment, but anyone who has ever acted as an involuntary host for them will certainly testify that they make up for lost time once the opportunity presents itself.

As tormentors of live stock, too, flies and mosquitoes qualify for the championship honors of the insect world. I have seen cows tormented almost to the point of insanity by the whirling, buzzing, biting hosts that swarmed around them in clouds. Horses and other domestic animals also suffer painfully from the same plague. At least temporary protection can be given by spraying them with a good Fly Chaser liquid and their usefulness will be greatly increased thereby.

Going further afield, think of the many forms of insect life constantly threatening the welfare of our poultry flocks—lice and mites, to mention only two. Plenty of work for the right kind of insecticide there. A good Lice Powder for dusting his birds and a supply of Dip and Disinfectant solution should be considered part of the essential equipment of every poultry raiser.

The gardener, too, is aware of the seriousness of the insect problem. Almost ovenight any garden may be overrun with innumerable hordes of tiny but destructive warriors that in point of numbers would put the combined armies of the World War to shame. For some the Garden Insecticide powder and for others the liquid insecticide, but unremitting warfare of one sort or another must be carried on throughout the season if a paying crop is to be harvested.

So, after all, our scientific friend was unquestionably much nearer the mark than our two friends who jeered at this prophecy. The insect conquest, if it ever comes, is a matter of centuries in the future, that is quite true, but there is plenty of reason for starting a determined offensive against all forms of insect pests right here and now. No less an authority than Colonel M. A. Reasoner of the United States Army Medical Corps has stated that, directly and indirectly, insects have caused more deaths than all the wars of history added together. When you consider on top of that the billions of dollars worth of property they destroy every year, it is easy to see that no small problem confronts us. Let us put into effect that well known maxim, "A determined offensive is the best defense," and prepare in all seriousness to defend our lives and property against these tiny but all too powerful adversaries.

Only one thing can break up a home quicker than a designing woman and that is the painters and paperhangers.

Three birthplaces of the Republican party have been found, but what is worrying the Democrats more is that they can't find where it going

THE STORY OF EZEKIEL

GOLDEN TEXT—As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from his way and live.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Ezekiel, a Messenger of God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Ezekiel, a Messenger of God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Frankness in Friendship.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Prophet-Pastor.

Ezekiel prophesied in the land of the captivity. The purpose of his ministry was threefold.

(1) To keep before the house of Israel that they were in captivity because of their sins (14:23). (2) To show that God is righteous in His visitation of judgment upon them (7:8, 9). (3) To sustain their faith by assuring them of their national restoration, the punishment of their enemies, and their final exaltation among the nations when Messiah should reign (34:11-31).

I. Ezekiel's Call 2:1, 2).

1. Command to stand up (v. 1).

He was given a vision of the Almighty God on His throne of glory (ch. 1). The purpose of this vision was to give a synthetic grasp of the execution of the divine will through the powers and forces which God had created. Before this vision the prophet fell prostrate upon his face. When one sees the diversity and complexity of the agencies employed, including the animate and inanimate creation intelligently moving forward, under the direction of the Almighty, he will be ready to face any task regardless of its difficulty.

2. Filled with the Spirit (v. 2).

By the Spirit the divine energy entered him and enabled him to execute his commission.

II. Ezekiel's Commission (vv. 3-8).

1. The moral condition of the people (vv. 3, 4).

(2) Impudent children (v. 4). Impudent means literally "hard of face." It means the grossest perversity which caused them to stand up in the presence of the prophets of God without a sense of guilt.

2. The charge (v. 4).

He was to deliver God's message. It was to be, "Thus saith the Lord God."

3. The difficulty of his task (vv. 5-8).

The prophet was to deliver the message of God whether they would hear or forbear. He was to fearlessly execute his commission, though the attitude of the people be as "briars, thorns and scorpions."

A faithful minister's life and testimony will run counter to the world (II Tim. 3:12).

III. Ezekiel's Experimental Qualifications (2:9-3:16).

Before one can preach to others he must have a personal experience.

1. Eating the book (2:9-3:9).

This book contained God's woes upon the stiff-necked and rebellious people. In order to speak God's threatenings effectively to others we must inwardly digest and appropriate them ourselves. The result of this eating was that Ezekiel was made "hard of face and forehead" to go against the people who were "hard of face and forehead."

2. Urged on by the Spirit (3:10-14).

In order to strengthen Ezekiel for his task, the wonderful symbolism of God's providential agencies which had been before him in chapter one was brought to his attention, assuring him that God would accompany him to his new destination.

3. Entering into sympathy. (v. 15)

In order to minister to a people one must show that the message is from the depth of the heart. Ezekiel mingled his tears with theirs.

IV. Ezekiel's Grave Responsibility (3:17-21).

Two things were required of him as a watchman over the flock.

1. To hear the Word at God's mouth (v. 17).

2. To sound the warning. (v. 17).

After he had heard God's message he was to speak it out; then his responsibility was discharged.

V. Ezekiel's Courage (24:15-18).

He was to be taught by a sorrowful experience. He was to turn his face from even natural desire. At the death of his wife he was forbidden to mourn. By this means God sought to impress upon Israel the seriousness of the situation.

(F. O. B. Detroit, plus charge for freight and delivery. Bumpers and spare tire extra.)

FRICTIONLESS ball or roller bearings are used at every point in the new Ford where they will contribute to smooth operation and long life.

Spiral roller bearings, for instance, are used in the rear hub and on the drive shaft at the universal joint. Taper roller bearings are used in the front wheels. Steering is easier because of the roller thrust bearings used on the spindle bolts.

A ball thrust bearing is used for disengaging the clutch and the front end of the clutch shaft is carried in a radial ball bearing in the flywheel. Another reason for the ease of shifting gears in the new Ford is the use of ball and roller bearings in the transmission.

Throughout the new Ford you find this same quality and careful attention to every detail that contributes to good performance. In the words of the experienced mechanic, "the new Ford is a sweet mechanical job."

BOLL WEEVIL MENACE CONTINUES SERIOUS

Auburn, Ala., July 2.—As the season advances the boll weevil menace in Alabama appears to be more serious, according to reports received by W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist at Auburn, from farmers and from county agents. Weevils are abundant in the southern two-thirds of the state, and Mr. Ruffin will not be surprised if they become numerous in the northern part of the state before the end of the season.

Weather conditions until the end of June have been almost ideal for boll weevils. With the exception of a few days there has ben no weather hot enough for effective control. On the other hand, rains have been excessive; and weevils thrive under such conditions. Rains the last week in June were especially favorable to them.

Mr. Ruffin is encouraged over the preparations being made by farmers to poison with calcium arsenate. Information in his hands indicates that twice as much poisoning will be done this year as was done any other year in Alabama. Leading farmers generally are concerned about it and county agents are advising them to use poison.

By early July practically all of the over-winter weevils will be gone and the first generation will be emerging in southern and central Alabama. This means that poisoning should start immediately, said Mr. Ruffin. The first application should be made when 10 per cent of the squares are found to be punctured. Two other applications should be made at intervals of 4 or 5 days; and other applications made when needed.

By keeping on the job with poison cotton growers can protect their cotton against boll weevils, and it is a very profitable thing to do, said Mr. Ruffin.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The financial turnover of international payments between the United States and foreign countries reached the stupendous total of $22,000,000,000 in 1928, according to the annual report of the Department of Commerce.

To study methods of extension work in agriculture and home economics, 29 Mississippi extension specialists and county agents visited Auburn, June 27. Auburn was one of many stops made on a 3,000 mile trip through nine state. They traveled as far north as Washington, D. C.

The United States is the acknowledged world leader in the supply of rubber goods, exporting in 1928 goods valued at $73,410,400, or about 31 per cent of the total world exports, according to Harry S. Newman of the Rubber Division, Department of Commerce.

The Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn has published Circular 53, entitled "Dusting Cotton with Calcium Arsenate for Boll Weevil Control." It was prepared by Prof. J. M. Robinson and F. S. Arant, who have for the last few years been conducting a series of boll weevil tests. Write for a copy.

It is expected that cotton will be used in the manufacture of parachutes, which are now made of silk not grown in the United States. The Army and the Bureau of Standards have been experimenting for some time, and have developed a cotton yarn mercerized under modified conditions followed by the application of a "dope" which at the present time appears to comply with the required conditions.

Mack Wyatt, Otto Jones, Julius Reynolds and Lester Jones will leave in a few weeks for an auto trip to New York, Washington, and other points of interest. They expect to go as far as Canada if the gas holds out, and as long as they have Julius with them they are assured of plenty of gas.

ALABAMA EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION

If your child was enrolled in either of the six elementary grades of Alabama's public school system during the past year, you will be interested in seeing the picture of Miss Average Elementary Teacher. This is not the picture which your boy perhaps drew in school one day last February and marked "Teacher" neither is it the photograph of that boy's teacher. It is, however, a picture of Alabama's average teacher for 1928-29, as developed from statistical material taken from the annual report of the state superintendent of education at Montgomery, recently submitted to the state board.

This young woman (for the great majority of elementary teachers in Alabama are women) was twenty-three years old. She possessed less than two years of training above the high school, had had 3.8 years experience as a teacher, but was new in the particular job which she held last year. Her daily schedule called for sixteen recitations of twenty minutes each, and included assignments of seven different subjects. Each day between the home and school she walked down a sand-clay road, a combined distance of 5.6 miles. She shared her room with another woman, and for this room and board she paid $21.11. Her salary was $85.50 a month for a school term of 7.44 months. This gave her an annual income of $636.12, which based on the calendar year provided her with a daily gross income of $1.74.

"Well, you see," said the farmer, "some cows is born without horns and never has any, and others shed theirs, and some we dehorn, and some breeds ain't supposed to have horns at all. There's a lot of reasons why some cows ain't got horns, but the big reason why that cow ain't got horns is because she ain't a cow—she's a horse."

There's A Reason

"Oh, what a strange looking cow," exclaimed a sweet young thing from Detroit. "But why hasn't it any horns?"

Curious: "Why do they call sail boats 'she'?"
Cautious: "Because they make better showing in the wind."

JIM MOORE'S RESIGNATION

We regret to see Jim Moore resign and retire from his connection with the State Department of Agriculture. But when we consider his viewpoint in the matter, we can not blame him for his action.

When the State Department of Agriculture ruled to stop all expenditures in the encouragement of drainage measures in the State. It seems that Mr. Moore regarded it as a policy which he could not endorse. This is a natural conclusion for Mr. Moore, especially in view of the fact that he has labored constantly since 1915 in the interest of great benefits to agriculture and to farmers by the development of the drainage program.

The people of Alabama will soon regret the severance of Jim Moore from the Department of Agriculture. We predict that he will not be out of the work very long. There will be an election coming around right soon, and somebody is going to raise a call for Jim Moore to come back to the State Department of Agriculture.

MINERAL SPRINGS

Health of this community is fine. Crops are still better. We are all looking forward to our singing the first Sunday in July, the 7th. We invite all good singers and lovers of music to be present with a well-filled basket.

My, but can't you all just smell the fried chicken, roast beef, and other good things. O, boy, what you'll miss if you are not present!

Everybody, hurry, be there on time. We have the promise of the Clanton Quartet, State Fire Marshal from Montgomery, and also the Ganus Quartet of Birmingham, and some good singers from Ensley.

We want to make that day one that will be remembered in years to come. We are now looking and listening for you all.

Miss Gladys Dobbs had as her guest Sunday Miss Birtie Lou Gore.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lonnie Gore spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dobbs Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dobbs, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gilmore and Mr. and Mrs. Lomer Giles of Clanton were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Paschal Sunday.

Mr. Clifford Giles of Birmingham was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Shirm Giles, Sunday.

Don't anybody forget the singing, and what's in store for you.

Frank James of the James Sign Shop was a visitor to Birmingham Tuesday.

SARDIS

Please announce in the paper that the Liberty Hill singing class will be at Sardis next Sunday afternoon. We cordially invite all singers and lovers of music to come and help us out.—George Anderson, Secretary.

Rev. J. Toy Williams, the missionary to China, was a visitor to Clanton several days recently. Mr. Williams states that he and his family will start back to China about the first of August. He promised The Union-Banner that he would write a story for publication quite often when he gets back to his work in the old world.

CEDAR GROVE

A wedding of much interest which took place June 23, was that of Mr. Kermit Lowery to Miss Lucille Price. Both are of this vicinity. Rev. Homer Carroll officiated.

Kermit is the promising young son of Mr. J. W. Lowery and also the president of our singing society here. Lucille is the daughter of Mrs. Kallie Price. Their many friends wish them much happiness in their future life.

Misses Bertie, Myrtis, and Mamie Logan were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Smith last Sunday.

Miss Gertrude Jones had as her guest last Sunday Miss Frances Wilson.

Mrs. Albert Smith from Birmingham was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mims, last week.

Some of the people of this community attended the afternoon singing at Pleasant Grove last Sunday. All reported a good singing.

Miss Lela Melton spent a very delightful day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Ward last Sunday.

The death angel visited this community last week and took from our midst Miss Beckie Hayes. She died at the home of her neice, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Eiland, last Wednesday. She was about 74 years old. The remains were buried Thursday morning at Cedar Grove, Mr. Martin in charge.

The services were conducted by Rev. P.A. Lynch with Rev. Limbrick making a consoling talk. Miss Hayes had been ill for quite a while, but her condition became worse last Monday. Kind and loving hands did all in their power to keep her here, but all in vain, for God knew best. Before she became unable Miss Hayes attended church here at every opportunity. She was a kind woman whom everybody seemed to love. She leaves lots of relatives and a host of friends to mourn their loss, but her gain, for she has gone to a better land we know, where we hope to meet her some sweet day.

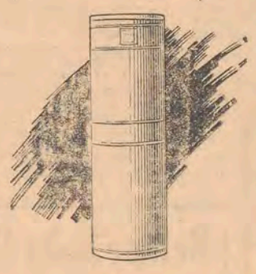
Where working together is everything

IT IS the aim of the Bell System that anyone anywhere in the country can pick up a telephone and talk to anyone anywhere else clearly and without delay. That is the meaning of universal service. To provide it, the means of telephoning must be uniformly good. This company, for example, has full access to all the improvements and methods that are continually being made.



There are 5,000 workers on the Bell staffs whose sole occupation is to develop constantly improving methods and equipment for the 350,000 employees of the Bell System to use in serving the public. The results of the efforts are evident, not only in the extension of telephone service across the Atlantic, but in the constantly improving local and long distance service at home.

When the eggs are sold for the high prices next winter, farmers will receive the remainder of what the eggs bring, less storage charges.

I would get constipated, and then feel all out of sorts. I would get up in the morning feeling dizzy, and everything I ate would disagree with me.

"Someone asked me why I did not try Black-Draught. I found it to be just the medicine I needed. When I feel a spell coming on, I begin by taking a dose of Black-Draught, dry, at night. I continue to take it for several days, and in a short while I am feeling fine. It is all the medicine I need."

Strong Bait, Strong Story

One afternoon a Kentucky moonshiner came up to a fellow fishing, and said:

"Having any luck?"

"Mighty little," said Sam.

"Here, put some of this on your bait," he said, pulling a bottle out of his pocket.

The worm was thrown back in the stream and ver ysoon a great commotion was noticed. Pulling upon the line Sam discovered that the worm had a stranglehold on a big pike and was punching him in the eye with his tail.

Maybe it would help the wheat farmers if the flour manfacturers would give away with each bag of flour coupons which could be saved up for parlor rugs or bed lamps.

County Farm Agent's Notes

FARM WOMEN TO MEET IN AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., June 29.—Annual Farmer's Week at Auburn, August 5-10, will be featured by the presence of a larger number of women than usual. Plans for this are being made by the home demonstration extension staff in cooperation with the home economics department of the College under the direction of Miss Helen Johnston, State chairman of home demonstration work, and Miss Louise Glanton, professor of home economics.

During the first two days, August 5 and 6, the women will be engaged in the annual meeting of the Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Agents, and also in attending the annual meeting of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, with which organization the Women's Council cooperates.

During these two days the State Council of Farm Women will hold business sessions during which officers for the ensuing year will be elected and other business transacted.

Mrs. W. F. Jeffers of Glencoe, is president of the State Council which is composed of 40 county councils having a total membership of 8,000.

Following the State Council meeting a program of demonstrations and lectures on subjects of interest to the farm women is being arranged. It will be conducted along practical lines.

In addition to these lectures and demonstrations general programs are being arranged for entertainment. Both women and men will participate. Special recreational hours will be provided.

Home demonstration agents thruout the State are arranging to bring delegations of women to Auburn to spend the week.

FARM NEWS FLASHES

T. C. Marriott, Uriah, Ala., planted vetch in his 80-acre pecan grove last fall. This spring he turned this under, thereby adding the equivalent of 300 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre. He has found this the best way to fertilize his pecan trees.

On a five-acre field in Marengo County, 200 pounds of nitrate of soda more than doubled the yield of oats, County Agent E. E. Hale reports.

Soybeans, cowpeas, sudan, and sorghum are hay crops in Madison County. Farmers fertilized with basic slag at the rate of 400 pounds per acre, according to J. B. Mitchell, County Agent.

Three registered bull calves and one cow with register of merit record have been bought by Lowndes County farmers.—R. S. Parker, County Agent.

Madison, Jackson, and Limestone Counties have organized a herd improvement association. J. T. Belue, county agent in Limestone, says that farmers are anxious to locate and get rid of their unprofitable cows.

Five purebred Hampshire rams and one purebred Southdown ram were added to Hale County flocks recently.

TREES KILLED BY PACKED EARTH

Montgomery, Ala., July 1.—A tree will usually die if earth is placed above the normal ground line close around it, states the Alabama Commission of Forestry. This is very noticeable when small seedlings for reforestation purposes are planted too deep. If they are planted deeper than they grew in the nursery beds a large percentage of them is lost. There is a distinct line of demarcation between the root system and the stem which is called the root collar. Trees should never be planted deeper than this collar.

Builders and property owners are usually at a loss to understand why attractive trees, which were healthy before building was started, get sickly, are attacked by borers and die just about the time the house is completed. This is usually attributable to the filling in of earth around the trunks of the trees and may be entirely avoided if drained wells are provided around each individual tree.

In addition to this precaution builders should place guards around all trees to prevent mechanical injury while construction is in progress and should not permit material or debris of any kind to be placed against them.

The beauty, charm and financial value of our towns and homes are largely dependent on our trees and every effort should be made to give them normal growing conditions, says the Commission.

ALABAMA FARM NEWS

In St. Clair County one-fourth acre top-dressed with nitrate of soda produced 80 bundles of oats; one-fourth acre not fertilized produced 24 bundles.—R. M. Reaves County Agent.

Randolph County farmers are saving about $30.00 per ton on starter and $5.00 to $10.00 per ton on laying mash and scratch feed by buying through the Farm Bureau, County Agent G. B. Phillips says. During May they bought 19.1 tons this way.

Wilcox County reports a good crop of high-grade beef calves. Last season about 18,000 were shipped. County Agent W. A. Cammack expects a slight increase this year.

By using the Auburn mixture for cotton (200 pounds super-phosphate, 100 pounds nitrate of soda, and 25 pounds murate of potash) Pickens County farmers saved $8.00 per ton, according to F. A. Rew, County Agent. He estimates that farmers of his county saved $12,008.00 this spring by buying fertilizers cooperatively.

The average feed cost per dozen eggs produced by 20 demonstration flocks in Montgomery County was 34 cents in November, 29 1-2 cents for December, 13 cents for March, and 13 1-2 cents for April County Agent L. A. Edmonson calls attention to the difference in cost between fall and spring months.

Monroe County has purchased 40 acres of land, on which one of ten branch experimental fields of the experiment station at Auburn will be operated.

WHY THE CHEVROLET STARTS SO EASILY

The cold room of General Motors Research Laboratories designed to put cars through tests in freezing temperatures is one of the chief reasons for the heralded ability of the Chevrolet six to start easily and quickly no matter how frigid the weather. The cold room was the first of its kind in the automobile industry and was originated and developed six years ago by General Motors engineers, since which time is has been used as a pattern by other manufacturers.

The object of the cold room, obviously, is to furnish Chevrolet engineers an opportunity to study at intimate range the reaction of the Chevrolet car to the temperatures an automobile must withstand in winter, whether left overnight in an unheated garage or parked for hours alongside the curbing of a street. It is, in short, an indoor "proving ground" where winter "weather" can be produced at will. Through the use of ammonia ags, much after the manner in which it is employed in cold storage plants or in establishments devoted to the manufacture of ice, the thermometer readings can be raised or lowered by the engineers within a short space of time. For instance, with the mercury at zero, the temperature can be dropped to 45 degrees below zero in three hours.

The use of an electric dynamometer, which is both motor and dynamo, is a part of the program which follows when a Chevrolet car is lowered on an elevator and rolled into the cold room. By means of the dynamometer it is possible to furnish a road torque for the car, when its rear wheels are placed against a set of steel rollers set in the concrete floor of the room. The torque can be made to parallel the resistance the car would encounter when driven outdoors on a highway in the same temperature. In other words, the car can be made to haul its load in the cold room. To add to the severity of the test, a blast of air is directed against the radiator to simulate the wind resistance which the car would have to conquer on traveling in the open.

It is no easy road that a Chevrolet car travels when it is being tested out in sub-zero weather by earnest but unfeeling General Motors engineers. Even though it remains inside of four concrete walls for hours, when the test is completed the car knows that it has "been somewhere."

Experiments in the cold room can be made singly—and are—with any unit of the car—the manifold, the universal joint, the action of the rear wheel in low temperature, the performance of the fan, the starter, the carburetor, and so on. Likewise, the engineers are able to make a detailed study of how the motor itself reacts to the frigid atmosphere, and what effect 45 degrees below zero has on the lubricants and on the gasoline that are in the machine. Or if they wish, the engineers can make a blanket test of the car as a whole under the same circumstances. Any car, in order to meet a thorough test, must remain in the cold room for a period of five days.

The "cast of characters" in the cold room consists of capable engineers garbed in aviator's suits, even to helmets, patterned after the costumes worn by round the world fliers as the temperatures in which their work is done is on a par with the bitter cold which our fliers are made to undergo at an altitude of 10,000 or 20,000 feet. Passers-by in the busy and more or less congested area of Detroit, where the General Motors Laboratories are located, are more or less puzzled on a hot summer's day when they see these heavily clothed young men standing about taking the sun bath treatment. The engineers are merely enjoying a respite from extreme cold, in order to get warm after having worked in "weather" that would do credit to a first class January blizzard in our northern climes.

Chevrolet engineers are constantly engaged upon experiments similar to the one outlined. Not all of these, however, are conducted in the laboratory. General Motors Proving Ground is used summer and winter for test purposes so that the car will be as nearly a perfect product as automotive science can produce.

JACKSON'S CHAPEL

The crops of this community seem to be very promising after the few days of refreshing showers. The boll weevils are very numerous and they are getting their part of the cotton. Though we hope to have several days of hot sun that it might drive them to the shade that we may reap a reasonable reward this fall.

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1929

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1929 there were 4 lynchings. This number is 1 less than the number 5 for the first six months of 1928 and is 5 less than the number 9 for the first six months of the yars 1925, 1926 and 1927; it is 1 less than the number 5 for the first six of 1924; 11 less than 15 for the first six months of 1923; 26 less than the nuber30 for the first six months of 1922; and 32 less than the number 36 for the first six months of 1921.

Of the person lynched 1 was white and 3 were negroes. The offenses charged were rape, 2; killing plantation owner, 1; not removing rubbish from in front of store and resisting officers of the law, 1.

in the clear, soft, filtered water this laundry uses

All the water used throughout our entire plant is sparkling clear and absolutely soft because every speck of dirt and hardness is removed from it by a Permutit Water Softener.

This wonderful machine does not use any chemicals—it removes every speck of hardness from the water by the scientific Permutit Zeolite method, and delivers a supply of crystal clear water that is ideal for washing and all personal uses.

Notice the two illustrations shown above. These are photographs taken through a microscope of two fabrics that were washed respectively in hard and Permutit softened water. The magnification is so great that only the very small fibres are visible. The one on the left shows clearly the deposits of soap curds that are formed on a fabric when it is washed in hard water. The hardness combines with soap, forming insoluble sticky curds that cannot be washed off, and that seriously impair the quality of the work.

That is the cause of dull colors, grayish-looking linens and the soggy feel that hard water washed fabrics have.

We are the only laundry in this section using Permutit Softened Water for all washing purposes. Our work is sweeter smelling and cleaner than even you can do in your own home.

Let us relieve you of your wash-day troubles and worries.

HIGHER PORK PRICES MAY BE IN SIGHT

Will it be hats off to the hogs in another year? Most any hog raiser would feel like lifting his hat to a porker which had markedly increased in value over present prices. Whether hogs will rise materially remains to be seen during the next year. However, according to figures released Saturday by F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician, the U. S. is short exactly 4,300,000 pigs over the number last year.

This shortage is felt in Alabama where the reduction is given as 6 per cent by Mr. Gist. Only 89.4 per cent of the sows farrowed this spring compared with 100 per cent in 1928. One compensating feature lies in the fact that the average number of pigs saved per litter is 5.4 compared with 5.1 last spring and 4.6 last fall.

Another striking feature shows that for every 125 sows bred for farrowing the coming fall, only 100 were bred one year ago. This indicates an increasing effort to produce fall pigs.

Alabama, however, has a higher percentage of pigs than for all other southern states, with the exception of Georgia, which with the increasingnumber of sows bred indicates that Alabama is tending to produce more pork, relatively than any other state.

The prices of hogs are determined largely by national supply and demand, rather than by conditions in any one state. The indicated shortage of pigs throughout the United States indicates that there will be a continuation of good prices.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

A STUDY IN PALESTINE

Think of Palestine. Think of the land of Israel. It has been called one time in the Bible, and a great many times since the birth and ascension of Christ, the Holy Land. We are there this morning. I am riding through this Holy Land. I am walking in this Holy Land. To me it is a sacred journey. It is a longed-for journey being fulfilled through the kindness of loving friends.

I though I would just go with you to-day on a fifteen hours' journey there, and tell you what I saw there and what I learned there. We are going to leave the Sea of Galilee. Now we turn to the left near Magdala. Magdala was the little neighborhood named after Mary of Magdala, the distinguished witness bearer of Jesus Christ. She was the woman who was last at the cross and first at the sepulchre. She was a woman who placed her wealth along with her mental talents at the disposal of Jesus.

As we travel along the road is rough, and the heat is intense. The road is really sandy, and enveloped in clouds of dust. You are moving along now over the old road that has been there for centuries. It was the caravan road between Damascus and Egypt. Camels marched along this road carrying heavy bundles of merchandise. The camel is still held in high esteem as the locomotive or ship of the East.

As we are riding along this road we are studying the Bible events on both sides. In other words as we study the scenes of Biblical history we are endeavoring to visualize the past. Truly we are finding as we go along that it is a country exceedingly rich in scriptural associations. The truth is that every hill, every valley, every plain, every mountain, and a great many trees and the rivers are associated with Biblical events. Many of these events are associated with the life and earthly ministry of our Lord. Along this noted caravan road our Saviour walked.

You are bound to think about Christ more, and I feel confident that you will think and read more about Him and love Him more every day. As you ride along about five miles farther you see Mount Tabor on the left. It is a very rugged mountain to climb. It used to be called the Mount of Transfiguration, but this is erroneous. It was on the side or the top of this mount that Christ met His disciples and appeared to them first after the resurrection, and He did not leave Peter out. It was here that Christ gave His parting command and His parting promise to them in these words: "Go ye therefore into all the world and preach my Gospel to all nations, and Lo, I am with thee always, even unto the end of the ages."

You move along a little farther, and looking to your right for a little distance you see a few houses on the side of the mountain. It is a city called Saffir. It was this town that Christ looked at and said, "A city that is set on a hill can not be hid," meaning to say you can not hide the light of a Christian. His light can not be put under a bushel.

Gazing on as we journey along you see a Mount we call the Mount of Beatitudes. The Arabs call it Mount Hatten. You have a strange feeling because on this mount Christ spoke what we call the Sermon on the Mount which is really the constitution of His Kingdom. A few miles farther on you come to Cana of Galilee. It was called Cana of Galilee to distinguish it from another Cana in that country.

Cana of Galilee stands out preeminently in the New Testament as the place where Christ worked His first miracle, changing water into wine at a marriage feast. Thus he dignified and sactified marriage as a divine institution. It was here that the nobleman came to Christ to speak to Him about healing his son who was at the point of death. Jesus said unto him, "Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe." The nobleman pleaded that Christ come down ere his child die. Then Christ said, "Go thy way; thy son liveth." The man believing went forth and found his son as Christ said. This was the second miracle which Christ did, when He was come out of Judea into Galilee and was during the first year of His public ministry. Think of these miracles. One was just before Christ proclaimed His Messiahship and the other was right after He had proclaimed it and public sentiment was very much against Him.

Christ came back to Galilee and performed His second miracle there. His first miracle was performed among happy, cheerful people rejoicing at a marriage feast. But now His second miracle there was performed among the weeping and sorrowful over the passing away of a loved one. The first miracle made happy the gay and rejoicing by sanctifying marriage, and the second one made happy the sad and bereaved by bringing to a living condition a loved one.

Cana of Galilee was also the home of Nathaniel or Bartholomew. He was one of the early disciples and apostles of Christ. It was he of whom Jesus said, "I knew thee, or I saw thee Nathaniel when thou wast under the fig tree at prayer." O, if we should meet Jesus to-day and have Him say unto us, "I knew thee when thou was at prayer at such and such a place." I wonder how many people Jesus would commend in such a fashion as He did Nathaniel. Do you not think it would be wonderful to have Jesus commend you, or even remind you that He saw you at prayer at some stated time?

But we hasten on now and stop at Nazareth. This city is not mentioned in the Old Testament. It has been called by a number of names. Nazareth gets its name from the word "Natzor" which means trees. There are a great many trees there to this day. One also finds quite a few carpenter shops there to-day. Then you see Mary's Fountain, and the location of the Jewish Synagogue where Christ went for Sunday School and worship services on the Sabbath. We see the Hill of Precipitation which is said to be the hill over the brow of which the angered Nazerenes would have sent Jesus to an untimely death.

Riding on you come to a few stone houses. This place is called Nain. It was just outside this city that Christ met the funeral procession bearing the bier of the only son of a widow. Then Christ broke up the funeral procession by raising the widow's son from the dead. This is another example of rejoicing where there was sorrowing. The mother was happy over having her son restored to life.

You move along and just east of the only low range of hills which you have seen is the Plain of Esdraelon, the gateway of travel from prehistoric days. This great plain stretches across Palestine beginning at the Mediterranean and reaching as far as the end of the broad valley of Jezreel. It is known as the battle field of Biblical history. Certainly those battles determined the political history of Palestine. It is really known as the greatest battle field in all the world. The first Biblical battle there was Deborah and Barak leading an army against the Canaanites, and a sudden storm swept away the hosts of Sisera. This one battle broke the power of the Canaanites.

On this plain to-day one finds a Jewish colony. You see signs of soil fertility because of the cultivation of the land in various districts. You move on and come to Guinea which is believed to have been the place where Christ cleaned ten lepers and only one returned to thank Him for the blessing. You ride on a little farther and you see Shunem, the home of Shnnamite women who prepared a well furnished room in her house for Elijah the prophet of God. You can but think, as you go along and see a candle giving light through a window of some house, of that furnished room in the Shunamite woman's home with a candle burning at night for Elijah as he passed that way. You also think of Christ's own statement, "Do not light a candle and put it under a bushel, but on a candle stick and it giveth light to all." Christ also said, "Let your light shine like a candle that giveth light to all."

You move along a little farther and you come to Jezreel where Naboth had a goodly vineyard. Ahab coveted Naboth's vineyard and thru a plot by his wife, Jezebel, Naboth was killed and Ahab took possession of the vineyard. You see a great many grapevines there to-day. Truly this story of Ahab and Jezebel portrays the most awful example of greed and self-will that has ever been told of humanity. You look up just ahead of you and see Mount Carmel. That is the scene of Elijah's great combat and victory for the one true God as he encountered with Baal and Astoreth the idolatrous worshippers. There the prophets of Baal prayed and prayed unceasingly, but got no answer at all. But here comes Elijah the man of the one true and living God, and his prayers are answered.

You look a little farther down the hill to what is called the Hill of Prayer. It was there Elijah prayed for rain which had been staid from the earth for a period of three years and six months. Presently a cloud like unto a man's hand moved over from the Mediterrenean Sea. The rains descended in answer to Elijah's prayer.

"My! you look lovely to-night"

SHE knew the compliment to be true—for the last pimple had vanished.

If you are one of the embarrassed—and men are not exceptions—with skin blemishes that linger, and sometimes leave scars, you must realize that the logical cause may come from the blood.

A clear, smooth, velvety skin bespeaks loveliness. Men admire it. Women praise and secretly envy. Hope, joy, happiness, and even love, may depend on the possession of a clear, unblemished skin.

On the other hand—skin eruptions are outward evidences of the condition within. Authorities state it is an indication that the body's power of resistance to disease and infection is low. Meaning, that there is a deficiency of red-blood-cells.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

When you get your red-blood-cells back to normal, that sluggish let-down feeling, loss of appetite, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again and you sleep soundly; firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong. Your nerves become steady. You are resistant to diseases.

S.S.S. is Nature's own tonic for improving the appetite, building strength, and clearing the body of so-called skin troubles, by increasing the red-cells of the blood.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test of over 100 years.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

MOTORIST USING STANDARD OIL TOURING SERVICE

Free Routing of Motor Trips Saves Them Time and Trouble

Over two hundred motor trips a day are being routed by the Standard Oil Company Touring Service at Louisville, Kentucky. Trips to the mountains, to the seashore, to the Pacific Coast, to New York and New England, to Canada and Mexico.

These trips average well over 500 miles each, showing that more and more the American public is turning to the idea of vacationing by car.

Within two days after this free Touring Service was announced by the Standard Oil Company Incorporated in Kentucky, the inquiries began to pour in from all over the South, showing that a need existed for such a service.

To date, over 10,000 inquiries have been answered, and hundreds of letters of appreciation have been received from motorists who used this routing and found it saved them time and trouble.

If anyone contemplating a motor trip will write to the Standard Oil Touring Service, 426 W. Bloom St., Louisville, Ky., stating their destination, they will be sent free of charge maps and up-to-date information on the best roads and shortest route to take.

Through constant contact with the state highway departments thruout the Union, the road information dispensed by this Service is kept accurate and up-to-date.

NEW FORD WINS FIRST PLACE IN LONG RACE

Winning first and second place in the recent Copenhagen-Paris-Copenhagen, 1440-mile race, the Model A Ford car has again demonstrated to Europe its endurance, speed and durability.

Details of the performance of the two cars have just reached here. From those accounts it was learned that the car winning first place—a Tudor sedan not in any way outfitted for racing—already had been driven 23,000 miles by the owner before the race.

"My car is now as good as ever," said the owner, Paul Tholstrup, of Roskilde, at the conclusion of the race. "I am ready to drive to Paris again without even giving it a once-over."

Eleven cars started the race. Six finished. The most formidable difficulties were encountered. Great stretches of road were deeply rutted and for many miles impassable. For hours the cars had to be driven through fields. Dense fogs made the night driving extremely hazardous. Many detours added to the difficulties.

"We just went, that was all," Mr. Tholstrup said. "No matter how deep the ruts, or whether, as in one instance, we had to go into the fields, in fact, we just flew over everything. And we did not have one single mishap, aside from a couple of punctures, on the entire trip."

The contest was sponsored by the Danish Motor Union and the well known Danish newspaper "Politiken."

THORSBY SECTION

S. E. NORTON, Manager

Mr. E. R. Piper recited recently a list of between 45 and 50 residences built in Thorsby since the 1920 census. This does not include houses re-modeled. Less than five are unoccupied.

Prospective students of Thorsby Institute who would like to get "lined up" for their next year's work in any way, or any parents or others who wish to ask any questions regarding it, may find Mr. H. R. Maddox in the office of Helen Jenkins Hall from 2 to 6 each Friday afternoon, during the month of July.

In last week's Union-Banner we noticed an unsigned recommendation for the liberal use of Nitrate of Soda on Strawberry plants, which must have been written by someone without experience as a grower of strawberries commercially. There are two reasons why Nitrate of Soda should be used sparingly on strawberry plants, one is, it stimulates the growth to such an extent that the plants become tender and can not withstand drought. The next reason is, that where much Nitrate of Soda is used the plants run to foliage instead of fruit and whatever fruit they bear is too soft for long distance shipments.

Thorsby fruit and truck growers association have been in successful operation for many years and the writer was told by their manager that while they believe in heavy fertilization at the proper season the kind of fertilizer they use contains but a small percentage of Nitrate of Soda.

We also note in the Jemison section of last week's issue a suggestion that a strawberry growers association be organized at Jemison. For some reasons this might seem desirable, but there are so many elements entering into the successful operation of such an organization that it would be well to cosider the matter from all sides before launching such an enterprise.

Strawberry growers in the Jemison district have the advantage of experience leading to successful operation of their business by membership in the Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers Association, and although it may at times seem inconvenient to haul their product to Thorsby there are other things to consider not only in marketing but in production of the berries. It is sincerely for the good of all concerned that no definite steps will be taken in this matter without thorough investigation and consideration of all its phases. The trend of things in these days is for consolidation and co-operation and not segregation.

SHELTER THE OLD FOLKS

Give the dear old folks a home;
Never, never let them roam,
While you have a crust of bread
And a place to lay your head.
Of your portion, Heaven blest,
Let them have the very best;
With the corner next the fire,
Dear old honored dame and sire.
Time has changed them in its flight;
Be to them both tongue and sight.
Let them feel their presence here,
Is to you a joy most dear.
Should the worn-out memory fail,
Should they oft repeat the tale
In their quaint, old-fashioned style,
Listen with a patient smile.
Softly smooth the silvery hair,
Shelter them from every care;
Let them feel while taking rest
That their last days are the best.
As they near the better land,
Hold them gently by the hand
With a tender loving clasp;
Never let them miss your grasp.
Whatsoe'er be your increase,
Through all sorrow and all peace
Never, never let them roam,
Give the dear old folks a home.

Auburn Now Has Applied Arts Course

Auburn, Ala., July 2.—The course in commercial art promises to be an important part of the work of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute next year. The course was inaugurated one year ago and 150 students took one or more of the subjects offered. Beginning with the second year additions to the staff will be made and the course expanded, according to Professor Frank W. Applebee who is in charge.

It is part of the work of the school of architecture and allied art and is offered to train students for commercial art work, including art for newspapers and magazines, designing for manufactured products, interior decoration, and related subjects.

During the first year young men who took the course showed a decided preference for commercial or advertising art while the young ladies who took it were interested more in interior decoration, Prof. Applebee said.

"Interior decoration appeals to girls as one of the most attractive occupations," he added. "Perhaps it is because it deals chiefly with the homes. A beautiful home being one of the dominant desires of the average woman, it is not strange that girls should show a strong inclination toward a field of work that offers them a chance to create such homes."

In conference with students, Prof. Applebee has found that advertisements in newspapers, magazines, and other periodicals have acquainted them with opportunities offered by commercial art. Newspapers and magazines are giving more attention to illustrations for news stories and feature articles in addition to advertisements. This means a bigger demand for men and women trained to do this work, Prof. Applebee explained. Pictures by Norman Rockwell, Henry Raleigh, Dean Conwell, and others are familiar to students in commercial art and the fame that these men have attained is inspiring talented youth to follow their examples, he declared.

Creative work is emphasized in the work at Auburn. In advance of this an effort is made to help students to find themselves. Investigations have revealed that few students upon entering college are aware of opportunities in applied art. For example, textile designing, furniture designing, rug designing, costume designing and many other branches of applied art offer splendid opportunities for those having creative minds and are trained to use them. Courses in commercial art were introduced by Prof. Frederic Child Biggin, dean of the school of architecture and allied arts, to meet the demands from Alabama industries and business enterprises for trained men and women to serve in these capacities. Steady increase in enrollment is expected.

Dr. J. E. Edgar wishes to announce that his little girl who has been sick is improving, and that he will be back in his office the latter part of this week.

Farm and Home

After potatoes have been drained set them back on the stove for a few minutes to dry.

Cooking custards too long or too fast will cause them to become watery.

The farmer who has kept his breed sows is ready to profit by higher prices for hogs.

The main reason why so many farm women are overworked is because they do not have enough equipment in their homes. Electricity and running water will lift much of the burden.

A balanced ration—educational, social, recreational, spiritual—is the biggest need of many country communities.

The wise farmer who has a surplus of fruit to market whether it be apples, peaches, or pears, or some of the small fruits, as berries or grapes will have his sales made long before the fruit is ready to be gathered.

It is said that a world combine is about to be set up by the Chilean producers of the natural nitrate and the European manufacture of the synthetic material.

The main purpose of culling flocks of poultry is to locate unprofitable birds and get rid of them by slaughtering or by selling. Both growing flocks and mature flocks should be culled at this time of year.

W. H. GILLESPIE SHOT BY SHINER

Federal Officer Seriously Injured While Conducting A Raid In Coosa

Federal Prohibition Officer, Walter Gillespie, was shot while conducting a raid on a still in Coosa County last Tuesday. He was carried to a hospital in Sylacauga, where his condition was reported serious, though not likely to prove fatal.

Wilson Faulkner, who was sought by officers and bloodhounds Wednesday as the moonshiner who shot Gillespie, was arrested late Wednesday afternoon and carried to the Coosa County jail at Rockford. He was held without bond pending the outcome of Gillespie's condition.

It is understood that the arrested man declared the still that was being raided was owned by Duncan Blocker. Those captured in the raid were Dewey Pressley, I. C. Wesson, Clarence Ellison, all of whom are in jail at Rockford.

A federal officer stated that Blocker is owner of a saw mill near the still and that the arrested men are employees of the mill. He declared Blocker pays the men for operating the still the same wage they receive at the mill.

When federal agents Kellog and Myrick passed through Weogufka about dark Wednesday en route to Rockford, they were stopped by a Mr. Johnson, school teacher at Weogufka, who said that Faulkner had come to him and asked that he be bound over to officers. Mr. Johnson delivered the prisoner, who was takin the car to Rockford.

The three men in jail with Faulkner were arrested at the still, which was less than a stone's throw from the home of Faulkner, six miles northeast of Weogufka. Faulkner is said to have fired on Gillespie as he walked up to put him under arrest. Gillespie had drawn his gun. He was shot in the arm and chest. He dropped his pistol and as he stooped to pick it up, Faulkner is said to have fired again, the shots taking effect in the side of Gillespie's neck. The officer chased Faulkner about 100 yards when he became exhausted.

Bloodhounds were placed on Faulkner's trail and chased him to a point where he had dropped his gun and entered an automobile. Faulkner is 30 years old, married, and has two children.

Officers participating in the raid besides Gillespie were Sheriff R. O. Snider of Coosa County; state officer Harvey Foshee, and deputy sheriff Newton of Coosa County. Officers from Elmore, Chilton, and several other counties participated in the search for Blocker and Faulkner.

John W. Steely Died Last Sunday

Mr. John W. Steeley, age 76, prominent farmer, who lived about three miles from Clanton on the old Thorsby Highway, died at his home last Sunday afternoon. He had been in ill health for quite a long time. The body was prepared for burial by Martin and carried to Union near Bessemer and interred Monday afternoon.

Mr. Steeley came here from Bessemer several years ago. He was originally from Coosa County, the son of Rev. J. R. Steely, a well known minister of the early days.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ellen Steely, four sons, Bob Steely, of Woodward; J. C. Steely, of Clanton; Rev. T. E. Steely, pastor of the Baptist Church at Manchester, Ga.; W. R. Steely, of Bessemer; and one daughter, Mrs. Jane Ford, of Woodward.

Miner Family Move To Montgomery

Mr. Andrew Miner plans to move his family to Montgomery in the near future, where he will continue his connection with the Nettles Gorcery Company in that city.

On account of his plans to leave Clanton Mr. Miner tendered his resignation as Secretary of the Clanton Baptist Sunday School last Sunday.

The many friends of "Shorty" Miner and his excellent family will regret that they are to move away from this, their home town. Mr. Miner has had various business connections here in years past and has formed an attachment with the folks of Chilton County that is hard to break.

Hubert Gardner Is Brought Back Here

County officers Dudley Collins, George Murrah, and Billy Foshee, went to Malvern, Arkansas, last week and brought back to Clanton, Hubert Gardner, who was wanted here in connection with charges of non-support of his wife and child. Gardner married a Miss Prince here some years ago. He was at work with a road construction company in Arkansas.

The officers left here last Tuesday morning in an automobile and returned Thursday night. Sheriff Collins reports that they saw much good crops, but did not see a single drunk person nor a single wreck, which seems unusual, especially since they were traveling on the Fourth of July. The Sheriff, who is a practical farmer himself, noticed that livestock on the route looked good, as did the pastures. But he did not notice any young horses or mules. In this connection he mentions the fact that a young horse or mule is something you very seldom see in any part of the South these days.

Last Services In Old Thorsby Church

Much interest will be attached to the services at the Thorsby Baptist Church next Sunday, July 14th. The occasion will be the last services to be held in the old wooden church building which has been in use as a house of worship for the past several decades.

Rev. J. W. Jones, the pastor, will preach at the morning service at 11 o'clock, and a former pastor, Rev. W. P. Lowery, will occupy the pulpit at the evening service at 7:45. The Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. will be held at the usual hours. The pastor hopes to make this a kind of home-coming as well as farewell service in the historic old building, and he hopes to have a large crowd present at both services.

And on next Monday morning work of wrecking the old building will begin so as to get the lumber necessary to do the framework of the new brick building. Excavation will be started soon for the new church building to be erected on the site near the public school.

GARDNER MAKES BOND

Hubert Gardner, who was brought here from Arkansas last week and placed in jail on a charge of failure to support his wife and child, was released on bond this week.

SINGING SCHOOL BEGAN MONDAY

DeVaughns Open Music Institute at Thomas Junior High School

The singing school under the direction of Profs. W. M. and O. L. Devaughn opened last Monday morning at Thomas Junior High School. A fairly good number of students were on hand to meet the teachers the first day—64 were enrolled Monday, and many more were expected to enter by the end of the week; 10 new entries were on hand Tuesday morning, bringing to a total of 74.

After a song led by Prof. W. M. Devaughn, prayer was offered by Rev. W. H. Wilson. After a song each by the two instructors, talks were made by Messrs. W. M. and O. L. Devaughn, J. L. and W. H. Wilson and J. L. McDowell.

A good number of the patrons were out the first morning to offer encouragement to the students to study hard and take full advantage of their opportunity to learn something of music.

In addition to the large class in the rudiments of music, under the direction of Prof. O. L. Devaughn, Prof. W. M. Devaughn has two classes in harmony. Teachers and pupils seem very much interested, and much good is expected from the school, which will run through July 27.

Visitors days are each Saturday afternoon, at which time visitors are invited and expected to be present.

Anyone desiring musical instruction will do well to attend this school, as the teachers are highly capable of the task undertaken, and the enrollment so far is much less than can be taught to advantage. Thomas Junior High School is about three miles south of Clanton, on the Montgomery highway. More pupils are urged to attend, and visitors are extended a cordial welcome to attend each Saturday afternoon.

Filtering Plant Is Nearly Completed

Work of erecting the filter plant in connection with Clanton's waterworks system has been pushed forward rapidly during the past week under direction of an expert from the factory which puts out the filtering equipment.

All indications now are that it will be only a few more days until the job will be completed and the filtering process put into actual daily operation.

WILLIAMS FAMILY ENJOY REUNION

Gathering Held At Home Of Mrs. Leila Williams Here July 4th

Mrs. Leila A. Williams of Clanton, Ala., had forty-five children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren to join her in a family reunion in the grove near the home of Leonard Williams on the Fourt of July. All the children were present except one daughter and her family who were prevented from attending by illness.

In the beautiful grove of oak trees the family enjoyed a real feast of barbecued meats and other good things. During the day there many jokes, and games and practical pranks which were reminders of the days gone by.

In the afternoon the group came together for a short service. The family joined in quoting Scripture and singing songs, after which the three preacher boys had a brief part in the service. Though brief, the service was very impressive and full of meaning to all.

The missionary brother, J. T., is home from China where he and his wife have been serving for some fourteen years. The family will return to China in the near future. J. O. is past pastor of the Fourth Avenue Baptist Church in Louisville, Ky. T. L. is well known locally by his connection with the Alabama Power Co. T. E. is a banker in Decatur, Ala. J. H. at Guntersville, Ala., is also in the banking business. H. G. is pastor of the Gambrell Street Baptist Church, Seminary Hill, Fort Worth, Texas. Grace, now Mrs. Wallace Wood, is living at Lock 12. Vera, now Mrs. Joe Parrish, is living at Nitrate, Alabama. J. D., a district salesman for the Proctor and Gamble Company, is located at Tuscaloosa, Ala.

It was a beautiful sight to see this noble Christian mother surrounded by her sons and daughters, grandsons and granddaughters, whose lives are a testimonial to her true motherhood.

Ford Truck Takes Place Of Oxen

For as many years back as we can remember, Mr. John Bates of Providence, Beat 16, has been coming to Clanton driving a yoke of steers. Mr. Bates grew up in that age of long ago when oxen were the only beasts of burden. Naturally he took to the custom, as there was plowing and hauling to be done and nothing but oxen to do it with.

Later as the world made progress, horses and mules took the place of oxen. But not with Mr. Bates. He kept right on with old Tom and Jerry.

When motor vehicles became common and more and more numerous, he kept on coming to town driving his faithful oxen. He plowed his farm and made his crops with them.

Now, imagine our surprise the other day when we saw him coming down the main street of Clanton driving a Ford truck. It took a second and a third look before we could believe our eyes.

Verily, indeed, we are bound to admit that they all flop sooner or later. This is the last yoke of steers gone from the roads of Chilton County; but we had already made sure that John Bates would be driving them when Gabriel blows his horn.

SINGING SCHOOL AT LIBERTY HILL CHURCH

Mr. Dave Melton of Liberty Hill asks The Union-Banner to announce that Prof. W. M. Devaughn will teach a singing school at Liberty Hill church beginning on Monday, July 29th. Plans are being set for the best singing school ever taught at that place, and Mr. Melton asks the help and support of everyone who might be in position to help.

Still Destroyed Near Stanton Tuesday

County officers went into the woods west of Stanton Tuesday for the purpose of locating a still which they suspected was located in that region. After a search they found the still and were coming out to wait for further developments. As they came out of the woods they ran into the parties who were suspected as the owners of the outfit.

The officers then went back and destroyed the still.

Goodgame To Have New Gin Here

Burns and Bill Goodgame will operate two gin and warehouse plants in Clanton this season, according to a statement released by them this week. They have acquired the old Wade Gin in West End and have torn down the old machinery and remodeled the building. They now have on hand a brand new Murray high speed air blast outfit which will be installed. The work will start next week when a factory representative will be here to supervise the job.

The new gin which will be known as unit No. 2 of The Farmers Gin & Warehouse Co., will be the same kind of a plant as the one whcih they installed on the east side of town and operated during the last cotton season. It will consist of five 80-saw gins electrically driven. Those who patronized the Murray gin last year know that it is one of the best and most improved gin systems.

Last Chance To Get Adult Schools

This week is the last chance for any community in Chilton County to get an opportunity school for this summer. Any place that wants a school and can get up the required number of students may get the list to me not later than next Saturday morning at Clanton, and we can give them a school. This is the last chance as all schools will open next Monday morning. No school can be organized later than next Saturday.

There are a number of communities that ought to have one of these schools, but I have been unable to visit all of them personally. I urge you to get busy this week and get your applications to me next Saturday.—H. A. Harris.

TEACHERS CONFERENCE HERE NEXT SATURDAY

All teachers who expect to teach in the opportunity schools of Chilton County this year are requested to meet me in a conference at Clanton on next Saturday morning at nine o'clock. It is absolutely necessary that every teacher who is to teach in these schools attend this conference.—H. A. Harris.

Rev. E. A. Childs, pastor of Clanton Methodist church is in South Alabama for a few days helping in a revival meeting.

LADY DROWNED AT RIVER CAMP

Member of Montgomery Party Lost Her Life on the Fourt of July

Quite a commotion was aroused in the vicinity of Norman's Camp on the lake above Mitchell Dam on the evening of the Fourth, when word was spread of the drowning of Mrs. Fred Rodriques of Montgomery. Reports say that the young lady was learning to swim and got out into the deep water. She could swim some, but from her actions those near her presumed that she was attacked with cramp as she had just eaten a hearty meal before entering the water. A man reached her just as she was going down the last time and grabbed her bathing suit, but the strap on the suit became unbuttoned and his holt on her slipped. The body was found twenty minutes later clinging to a root in the bank of the river.

The first-aid team from Mitchell Dam was summoned and they appeared on the scene in a few minutes. They, together with Mr. Sid Gibson and others worked heroically for over an hour, but of no avail.

The body of the lady was carried to Montgomery and prepared for burial by a local undertaker. It was shipped to Nashville and buried Saturday.

Mrs. Rodriques was 19 years old and had been married one month to Fred Rodriques, a noted Indian ball player.

Mr. W. A. Ware celebrated his 87th birthday at his home at Sweetwater, Ala., on Wednesday. His two daughters, Mrs. W. W. Fox and Mrs. W. A. Reynolds, who live in Clanton attended the party.

Mr. Ware visits Clanton quite often when his health permits. He has many friends here who extend him best wishes for health and happiness on his birthday.

KIWANIS CLUB VISITS JEMISON

Held Joint Meeting With The Farmers and Business Men Of The Community

The members of Kiwanis Club of Clanton went up to Jemison last Wednesday night for a good-will meeting with the business men and farmers of Jemison community. Despite the fact that there were only about half of the Club members present, it was a good meeting. Attendance of Jemison farmers was also very short; but the Jemison businessmen turned out well.

President Stapp presided at the meeting. He spoke of the program and purpose of Kiwanis in such meetings, getting the idea over to his hearers with apropriate emphasis. Others who made short talks were Prof. J. P. Montgomery, W. H. Conway, J. N. Dennis, C. C. Conway, H. G. Boyd, J. C. Page, and W. L. Popwell.

The big speech of the evening was made by Mr. W. D. Barton, of the Alabama Farm Bureau. His address was well calculated to teach a powerful lesson on the subject of co-operation among the farmers and business men of the community. He illustrated his lecture with a number of stories about what certain communities in Alabama have actually accomplished under the co-operative plan.

Something of the manner in which the people of Jemison look upon the visit of the Kiwanis Club to their town may be had from a reading of the following statement by Prof. J. P. Montgomery, vocational teacher in the Jemison High School. Mr. Montgomery said:

"The entertainment given the business men and farmers of Jemison by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton brought to our attention some very interesting facts. One business man of Jemison said there were one or two of the fellows from Clanton whom he had been prejudiced against, but after the Kiwanis meeting he saw these men in an entirely different light. He was made to realize that he had not really known these men before. Others remarked that it was a type of entertainment that they had never had an opportunity to take part in before.

"The genuine spirit of fellowship and friendliness and good will which is a real part of every Kiwanian, radiates to his guests and brings a feeling of friendship between men who have always been just acquaintances. This meeting has really done a great good which can not be measured in dollars and cents," concludes the expression of Mr. Montgomery.

The Kiwanians of Clanton expressed themselves as most delighted with their entertainment and association with the folks of Jemison. The luncheon which was prepared and served by the ladies of the Jemison P.-T. A. was wonderfully fine.

Kiwanian Sam Ezell while on his visit to folks in South Carolina, mentions the destruction he is carrying to the yaller legged chickens of the old home town. But he remembers that the Kiwanis Club also has on its weekly program an item which calls for the destruction of a certain number of yaller legs. Well, Sam, old fellow, you should have been with us at Jemison. There was fried chicken and then some. It would have taken twice as many men as were there to have made a decent showing against all the grub those ladies had spread out for us.

Mr. J. P. Crumpton, salesman for Hill Grocery Company in Clanton, and Miss Minnie Jones of Autaugaville, were married last Wednesday night.

Pud Walker Missing For Several Days

Mrs. Sallie Walker of Clanton reports to The Union-Banner that her deaf and dumb son, Pud, has not been home since a little over a month. She says that it is unusual for Pud to stay away from Clanton this long, and she expresses fear that some trouble has come upon him. If any of our readers know anything of the whereabouts of Pud or can give Mrs. Walker any information about him, she would certainly appreciate same.

Most everybody in Chilton County knows Pud Walker, but to those of our readers who do not know him will say that he is deaf and dumb and is about 30 years old. Mrs. Walker will appreciate any information about her son, Pud.

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

BETTER BOARD FOR BREEDERS

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

It seems fairly easy for most people to understand that horses, hogs, and other animals whose young are born in the same way must be in prime condition at the time of mating or the offspring are likely to be inferior. Consequently, every precaution is taken in the way of careful housing, feeding and conditioning to make sure that animals selected for breeding are in good physical condition. Peculiarly enough, the fact that the same care should be exercised with fowls whose young are hatched from eggs does not seem to be so generally understood. Possibly the fact that any one egg looks so much like all others causes an instinctive deduction that such is the case. However that may be, the fact remains that the same need exists for proper care of breeding fowls as for any ohter form of animal life. In this article, therefore, I shall give briefly some of the most important points to be observed in the care of breeders.

As the first step working toward a stronger, more vigorous, high producing flock for the future, you will naturally select only such birds as are most likely to transmit these desirable qualities. They should be one year old or over, and of good size. You will choose only your finest specimens—birds of good form with vigor, perfect health, good individual records, and desirable ancestry. Breeders must be properly fed, housed and cared for if they are to provide eggs of sufficiently high fertility.

Not the least important consideration is proper feeding. As everyone knows, chickens can be fed certain materials in such proportions as to force a relatively high yield of eggs. This should not be done with breeders. What is wanted is quality—not quantity. During the breeding season, you want as many large, perfect, fetile hatching eggs as possible, eggs from which will come strong, vigorous chicks that will live, thrive and grow rapidly. If the breeding female is forced during the winter, she may come into the breeding season in a weakened condition so that her eggs will lack fertility and vitality.

Give breeding birds a good rest after the molt and do not force egg production during the winter. Keep them on what is practically a maintenance ration—a good laying ration with the protein bearing foods such as meat scraps that are reduced in quantity and green feeds. Rely mostly on hard grains well buried in litter so they will have to scratch for it.

As the breeding season approaches gradually go back to a laying ration by increasing from time to time the quantities of protein bearing materials which constitute a considerable part of mash feeds. Be content with a fair normal yield from breeders that are never forced and you are most likely to get eggs of high quality for hatching.

Keep plenty of water, grit, charcoal and shell before your breeders at all times.

Feed breeding birds liberally, but do not overfeed so they become fat and lazy. Keep feeding down to what you can see keeps the fowls in good physical condition and promotes normal egg yield.

As a further guard against excessive fat as well as to insure necessary health and vigor, give your breeders plenty of exercise. Give them run of unrestricted range if possible, preferably where there is some fo mrof green feed. Such a range also affords the opportunity to pick up bugs, worms and similar natural food materials which require exercise to get them.

See that houses are always well ventilated, clean and sanitary. Disinfect frequently with a good Dip & Disinfectant, to keep down lice, mites and disease germs. Remove droppings frequently and change litter often.

As for the type of house best suited for breeders, no special type is required. Any good house of the open front type that is weathertight and free from drafts or dampness will serve the purpose. Allow each bird at least 5 square feet of loor space and I would prefer 10 or more. Better too much space than too littl.e

In extremely cold weather, guard against frozen combs and wattles. Adequate feeding is one precaution as properly fed birds have greater stamina. It is also necessary in unusually cold weather to have curtains over the front opening of houses; also to drop curtains before the roosts. In the case of males it is sometimes even desirable to put them in separate boxes or coops covered with burlap, since their large combs and wattles are more likely to freeze than those of the hen.

While it would be possible to elaborate considerably on the froegoing suggestions I believe that enough information has been given to guide any intelligent poultry raiser who wants to get better results from his flock.

IN MEMORY OF MRS DOSHIA BOLTON

On the 23rd day of June the Death Angel visited the home of Mr. E. L. Bolton and took away the loving wife and mother. She was 52 years old, and leaves to mourn her loss, her husband and eleven children, all of whom are living, 6 boys and 5 girls, John, George, Burbel, Alec, and Oney, all of Clanton, Ala. Ernest of Wetumpka. Mrs. Robert Ellison, Mrs. Orrville Martin, Annie, Janie, all of Clanton, Ala. Two Daughters-in-law, Mrs. John Bolton and Mrs. Ernest Bolton and eight grandchildren.

She seemed to be feeling as well as usual on Sunday mornnig and went to Pleasant Hill to an all-day singing and about the noon hour she was struck speechless and was rushed to Clanton by her son and daughter, Burbel and Annie to Dr. N. S. Johnson, and lived twenty minutes. She was brought back home by Martin. She had been in bad health for about eight years. She had tried several doctors, but none seemed to do her any good.

She was a loving wife and mother and we all loved her dearly and hope to meet her some sweet day in a better world, and we want all of you good people to pray for us that we may live better than we ever have.

She had a bright shining face, she wore a bright smile, she was a good church worker and belonged to the Baptist Church at New Hope. We ask the prayers of the praying people to pray that our homes will quit being so lonesome without her, for it is so hard for us to give her up. But our loss is heaven's gain.

May God bless each and every one who lent a helping hand during her death. Everyone was so kind and willing to help.

She was laid to rest Monday at Pleasant Hill cemetery at 11 o'clock Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. R. Cost.

We thank you all for the beautiful floral offerings. Weep not, dear children for our loss is heaven's gain. The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord.

We miss thee from our home dear mother,
We miss thee from thy place.
A shadow o'er our life is cast.
We miss the sunshine on thy face,
We miss thy kind and loving hand,
Thy fond and earnest care.
Our home is dark without thee.
We miss thee everywhere.

—Written by her dear husband and children, Ellic Bolton, Clanton, Ala., Route 5.

HAVE YOU AN UNMARKED GRAVE?

How unthoughtful is he who permits the remains of a loving Mother, Father, Sister, Brother or a little Child to rest in an unmarked grave with nothing to distinguish that hallowed spot from the commonplace surface of the earth, indifferently trampled by man and beast. Great comfort will be gained by consecrating the spot where sleeps the departed with a beautiful and lasting monument.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.

M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

PAINS
In Side and Back

"I HAD BEEN miserable for a long time. My health was poor, and I suffered a lot from weakness. At times, my strength was so little that I could not stand on my feet, I would have to give up and go to bed. My sides and back hurt dreadfully.

"I grew discouraged, for I could do so little. I worried about myself, and almost gave up hope of ever being strong and well. I could scarcely lift a bucket of water. My house work went undone, for I was not strong enough to do it.

"After I had taken Cardui for a little while, I began to feel better. I grew stronger, soon found that I could do my work with less effort, and the pains in my back and sides left me. I think Cardui is a wonderful medicine. My health has been excellent since then."—Mrs. D. L. Beckner, W. Main St., Salem, Va.

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow us a small space to say a few words about our church and community.

Everyone seems to be very busy after the nice rain trying to get thru to have a good time the 4th.

Our Christian Endeavor met as usual last Sunday night and rendered a nice little program, although it seemed that some of them are napping on the society and church work generally. We hope to see them wake up to their sense of duty and attend regular for the church needs their help and they need the church. Don't miss any of the services, for you might miss something that would help you along life's way.

The society is planning on returning Pleasant Hill's Society program the second Sunday night, July 14. We would be glad that all would go with us down there, for that will be our first trip off.

There seems to be lots of work that needs doing on our cemetery, church and church grounds, so there has been a time set, July 17, 1929, to meet and clean off same. Those who have loved ones buried here are specially requested to remember the time and place and be governed accordingly. Meet early in the morning, July 17, 1929.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

SUBJECT: THE BOYHOOD OF SAUL OR PAUL.

I wish to speak to you on the young manhood and the young ladhood of Saul of Tarsus. Tarsus was a famous city in Cilicia. It was a free city and a great trade center. Not only was Tarsus a commercial center, but it was also a great center of learning, with universities no doubt equal to those of Athens and Alexandria.

With all these advantages in his own home town Paul was educated early in his life. His father probably might have been wealthy and thus gave his young son wonderful opportunities. However, we do not know about this because the Bible does not tell us. But we infer from reading the Bible that his home enviroment, his life with his parents in Tarsus was very stimulating to his boyhood. Therefore it must have been stimulating on until his young manhood.

In Tarsus, his native city, no doubt his parents took great pride in sending him to grammar school, high school, and perhaps to the University of Tarsus because he seems to have possessed some knowledge of Greek literature when he went to Jerusalem. Truly his early training in Tarsus was very commendable and of inestimable value to him in later years.

Saul of Tarsus was one of the most distinguished Benjamites, of the Tribe of Benjamin, one of the proudest and most independent of the 12 tribes of Israel, descending from the youngest son of Jacob. Now while Paul, or Saul it was then, was growing up in Tarsus Jesus was growing up in the quiet country town of Nazareth. In Tarsus or on the mountains surrounding Tarsus goats grazed in great numbers. And since Paul's parents were Jews their young son must, as all Jewish boys were, be taught a trade. So he was taught early in life to make tents of the long fine hair of the goats. No doubt there were many other boys in Tarsus who were taught the same trade. Some of them no doubt were taught the carpenter trade as was Jesus in Nazareth. No doubt others were taught the merchant trade.

But with all his training in Tarsus this Hebrew of the Hebrews, Pharisee of the Pharisee's education was not completed. This was because his parents no doubt wished him to attend the college in Jerusalem where Jewish boys were trained to become a Rabbi. No doubt this was Paul's choice of a career. As a Jewish Rabbi, and a member of the Sanhedrin he was destined for high honors. So Saul was sent from Tarsus to Jerusalem where he entered as a student in the theological college.

Here Paul fortunately sat at the feet of Gamaliel for personal training. Gamaliel was the most learned, and the most distinguished teacher of his time. Under the personal training of this noted educator he was trained to be Saul, the Jewish Rabbi, a member of the Sanhedrin who was to be honored and revered. No doubt the religious life of Paul's parents was of the strictest kind as was also Pauls' religious life.

The first time Saul is mentioned is in connection with the stoning of Stephen, one of the first seven deacons, and the first Christian martyr. There Paul held the cloaks of the men who stoned Stephen. He had been from the time of his early boyhood no doubt, a persecutor of the Christians. No doubt as he stood there and heard the innocent dying prayer in these words: "Lord Jesus receive my spirit and lay not this sin to their charge," he must have been moved toward Christianity.

No doubt deep down in his heart he entertained doubts of his own religion on until his conversion on the road near to Damascus in Syria. He was a dreaded terror of the Christian Church and had started to Damascus to persecute the Christians who had assembled there for refuge and to carry forth the Gospel of Light. Paul driving on in a blind fury, raging and breathing out threatenings of slaughter at midday was arrested and struck down by a great light. There Jesus appeared to him and said, "Saul Saul, why persecutest thou me?" These words of rebuke and warning from Jesus changed the life and career of Saul of Tarsus. Henceforth he was to be heart and soul the bond servant of Jesus Christ.

Paul emerged a saved man with a faith in the Gospel of Salvation through faith in Jesus Christ, not only for the Jews, but also for the Gentiles, even to the remotest parts of the earth. Then for him to live was Christ and to die was gain. It was upon his conversion that his name was changed from Saul the Jewish Rabbi, to Paul, the heralder of the Gospel of Christ.

As Paul went forth on his missionary journeys we find that his early training at Tarsus helped him to make contact with the outer world which was necessary in his labors with the Gentiles. As he went forth he declared himself as "all things to all men." Think of him as he enters a town where he inquires if there are any tentmakers and find that Aquilla and Priscilla are of that trade and goes forth and finds employment in his known trade. Here Paul lived in Corinth with these Jews and worked at his trade for two and a half years. But don't forget that he was preaching too all this time.

Paul labored and preached tirelessly because his restless, mighty spirit was yearning for greater service to Christ. Just as he had persecuted the Christians at Jerusalem, he was persecuted after his conversion by the Jews. He was even driven from the synagogue. Truly this hostility which was bitter and implacable followed him all his life, but his bold spirit, his adventurous spirit could not be halted. He went forth to bear the name of Christ before the Gentiles, and Kings and children of Israel endured unto the end. He fought a good fight, kept the faith and finished his course to receive a crown of righteousness.

CHEVROLET SERVICES PAST MODEL CARS AS WELL AS NEW

What Chevrolet Motor Company has been doing since the introduction last January of the new six cylinder line to insure ample parts and efficient service to the millions of owners of Chevrolet four cylinder cars, is revealed in a factory statement released recently.

Among the adjustments effected to safeguard the continued usefulness of former models have been the establishment of service machine shops at Detroit and Flint, specializing in the exclusive manufacture of past model parts; additional service training schools where dealer's mechanics are taught the latest methods for servicing the old and new models; additional zone warehouses which expedite the delivery of parts to dealers; and revisions in the system by which the dealer is stocked with past model parts.

Independent manufacture of past model parts became necessary just as soon as intensive production began on the new sixes. When the company was specializing in four cylinder manufacture the turning out of past models was relatively easy. Temporary suspension of production in the Flint Motor Plant and the Detroit Gear and Axle Plant permitted the building of past model parts without serious inconvenience.

The drastic changes represented in the 1929 car, however, and the increased demand for precision work on the main production lines made it impossible to follow the former method. Hence space has been set aside in these two giant factories and special machinery installed for the exclusive manufacture of past model parts.

Chevrolet's training schools have been generally given credit for the expertness of mechanics in the dealers' service garages. This skillful army of trained workers has always been recognized by the company as the keystone around which the efficient Chevrolet service system has evolved.

Invariably the man who makes your adjustments, if you are a Chevrolet owner, is a thoroughly trained worker because he is a graduate from one of these schools. There are now 38 schools, and they are open the year around. Each of the 10,000 Chevrolet dealers is required to send at least one of his shop men to these schools annually.

In charge of competent instructors, the course is of five days duration, and is followed by a rigid examination. Amplifying this formal instruction, Chevrolet has made available for all service men a complete reference library. This consists of the carefully edited four cylinder repair manual, back issues of Service News and a comprehensive series of slides, detailing in picture and text the latest approved procedure.

Chevrolet's chain of zone warehouses is being increased regularly. At present there are 32, and before the year ends seven more will be put into operation. These warehouses wholesale old and new car parts to the dealer. Located strategically, there is no dealer so far away from one of them that delivery of his order can not be made within a few hours. In addition the warehouses serve as quarters for the service schools.

The factory cooperates fully with the dealer in protecting him against overstocking with Past Model parts or running short of them. The Balanced Stock Parts Plan and the Dealers Order Pad, based on past sales and monthly inventories insure the dealer of an adequate number of past model part at all times.

At present Chevrolet is manufacturing 9,000 different past model parts. According to the records of the service engineering department the company has during its history manufactured between 100,000 and 125,000 distinct parts.

MR. J. P. JACKSON WRITES

Editor Union-Banner:

Upon reading Judge Reynold's reply to editorials in Chilton County News I feel impressed to say a few words regarding my views and which I believe by evidence to be the sentiments of the majority of the people of Chilton County regarding the insinuations of certain parties upon the character and record of our worthy judge, L. H. Reynolds. I wish to say that I helped elect Judge Reynolds and do not regret it. I did so because of his loyalty to his party and official duties.

We people of Chilton County have known Judge Reynolds and his official record long enough not to believe every kind of false propaganda brought up against him. I have never heard the remark of Judge Reynolds that he was drinking nor seen him when I thought he was under the influence of liquor or any form of intoxication. I have never heard of any act of him that would condemn him as a "fullblooded" prohibitionist, and as far as I am able to know he is always at the post of duty and never interefering with the other fellow's business as are those who are always trying to down him.

I do not know all about his private life, but the great principle that he has proved to have will surely guide him in every respect.

The people of Chilton County owe credit to Judge Reynolds for the improved conditions of our county since he became the leading official, and we can all see that Chilton County has prospered under his control. I believe if those who are trying so hard to down him would use their influence to a more noble purpose it would be better appreciated even by their own party. I am sure there are some who have quit the Democratic party because of its leaders in Chilton County.

I don't believe there is any who are willing to believe the truth that will accept such falsehoods against Judge Reynolds. Respectfully.—J. P. Jackson.

MRS. T. W. CANNON OF TALLASSEE VISITS HERE

The Union-Banner was pleased Wednesday morning to have Mrs. T. W. Cannon of East Tallassee call upon us. Mrs. Cannon was before her marriage Miss Emma Connell, a daughter of Bill Connell who used to live back on the river.

Mrs. Cannon had with her her adopted daughter, Lillian Cannon, who is the blood daughter of Jim Beck Connell. Mrs. Cannon was on her way to Birmingham where she will see about getting Brady Connell released from the East Lake Industrial School. Brady will also be under the care of Mrs. Cannon.

We were glad to have this former Chiltonian call upon us. Her many friends over the north-eastern part of the county will be glad to know that she is faring well. She owns and operates a store at East Tallassee, Alabama.

Boyish Figure Is Latest Concern of Science

DOES the feminine practice of self-starvation for the sake of a slender form encourage fatigue and cut down the efficiency of the business girl? Large numbers of employers say it does, and Dr. Thaddeus L. Bolton, head of the Department of Psychology, Temple University, Philadelphia (standing before the window), is now conducting an exhaustive investigation with a view to settling once and for all this much debated question.

Delicate laboratory instruments measure the motor and sensory responses of a group of skilled stenographers before and after "afternoon tea" consisting of cake, candy and sweetened orangeade—all foods having a fairly high sugar content. Sugar, as one of the most highly concentrated and quickly assimilated sources of energy, provides an ideal substance for use in determining the extent to which an additional food ration will offset loss of muscular and nervous control, and other fatigue effects that impair rate and quality of work.

John Carter Caught Operating Still

John Carter, a white man, was arrested Monday morning while engaged in the operation of a wild cat still in Mulberry swamp east of Stanton, near the Dixie Bridge. Sheriff Collins and his deputies had gone into the swamp to look for a still and unexpectedly came upon Carter with his outfit in full operation.

When the sheriff approached the place he was seen by Carter, who made a dash to get away. He ran into a marsh of mud and water and got stuck. The officers brought him in and later allowed his release on bond.

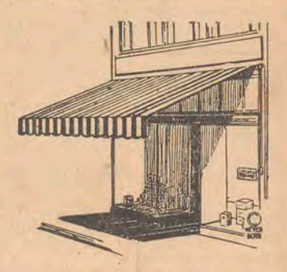
Farmers Meeting Here On July 18th

On Thursday, July 18, a County-wide meeting and rally of farmers of Chilton County will be held at the courthouse at 10 o'clock. A prominent speaker will speak at that time. Every man, woman and child interested in farming in this county are invited to attend the meeting.

Similar county-wide meetings are being conducted all over Alabama. They are being held to aid farmers in solving their agricultural problems. During the last two weeks in July agricultural leaders will make a tour of the state speaking to the farmers gathered at these meetings.



Plans for the gatheings have been completed by J. T. High, R. G. Arnold and Emmett Sizemore, extension district agents who cooperated with the county agents and other agricultural workers.

These county-wide meetings are considered by agricultural leaders as one of the most forward steps which the extension service and the farm bureau have taken in recent months in creating enthusiasm in the farming of the state. The purposes of these meetings is to get farmers and their families together and get them to talking about agriculture and how they can improve agricultural conditions.

President O'Neal said that a great work is being done for farmers and their families through vocational schools of the state and the extension service. It has been found that the most effective work in extension work can be done through group action, therefore, seven years ago the farm bureau was organized to aid in carrying out this work. Since that time most of the agricultural work of the state has been carried on thru organized action. As an out-growth of this group spirit the county-wide meetings are being held with a belief that most farmers can be reached in a most effective manner.

The agricultural leaders will tell what is being done for farmers and what is expected to be done in the future. County agents and county farm bureau officials are at present sending invitations to all farmers in each county to attend the meeting in their county.

CAPITOL News

The first anniversary of the removal of Alabama's convicts from the coal mines was appropriately observed with a program at Atmore Prison, July 1st. Visitors from many parts of the State were on hand and viewed with gratification the splendid farm project with its 2,800 acres in cultivation, where there was formerly a cut-over pine forest. Atmore Prison came into being as a direct result of the abolition of convict leasing, the State having acquired and developed this farm in order to provide employment for part of the prisoners taken from the mines. There are 3,640 acres in the tract, of which 2,800 have been brought under cultivation and are producing splendid crops.

The abolition of the convict leasing system was an issue in Alabama for many years, and was often promised and often delayed, until finally Governor Graves and the Legislature of 1927 brought to an end the lease system, which had been widely denounced as a relic of barbarism. In accordance with an act of the last Legislature, the last of the convicts were removed from the mines June 30, 1928, some being placed on road work and some on farms.

As a part of the celebration at Atmore July 1st, a luncheon was served in the convict dining room, attended by a number of notables. Speakers paid high tribute to Governor Graves for having ended the lease system, and for other constructive work of his administration. Charles Moffett and Hamp Draper, Members of the State Board of Administration, were also lauded for the efficient and business like manner in which they have handled the many problems arising from removal of convicts from the mines.

Mr. Draper spoke in the highest terms of the able management of the new project by Warden G. K. Fountain, who has personally directed the details of the wonderful transformation which has been wrought at Atmore. Warden Fountain has served two terms as sheriff of Escambia County, and brought to the office of warden a familiarity with convict problems as well as wide experience in working labor of this type. He has the added advantage of being familiar with local conditions, Atmore being in his home county. "I doubt whether we could have found another man in the State who could have achieved what Mr. Fountain has accomplished," Mr. Draper said.

Placing of game birds imported for propagation purposes on the free list is being advocated by the National Committee on Wild Life Legislation. At present there is a duty of 25c apiece on imported birds, and under the new tariff bill this would be increased to 50c. The importation of game birds has grown to important proportions and sportsmen generally hold that birds brought in for restocking depleted covers, or introducing new species, should be allowed to come in duty free. Commissioner, I. T. Quinn, of the State Department of Game and Fisheries, is a member of the National Committee on Wild Life Legislation, which is waging the fight not only to prevent the proposed increase, but to place imported game birds on the free list, holding that the levying of a duty on such importations is an unjust tax against sportsmen.

Bob-white quail are being brought into this country in large numbers from Mexico, to restore sport in shot-out areas in various States. Other importations include Chinese pheasants and Hungarian partridges. Interest for Alabama centers principally in the importation of quail from Mexico. In 1928, approximately 15,000 quail were brought into this State, on which a duty of 25c each was paid, which would be increased to 50c under the tariff bill now pending. Commissioner Quinn has requested sportsmen to use their influence with their Congressmen to get all game birds and animals placed on the free list.

Dear Old Farmer

To the Dear Old Farmer:

Lift up your heads and move on, your work is the greatest work known to the world. In the morning of time when God made Adam and Eve He gave them life and put them out in the garden, and Cain and Abel were soon found in the fields at work.

So, you see farming was the first and best occupation known to the human family. It is the oldest occupation. In the morning of time we had no doctors to cure us when we got sick. No preachers to comfort us and save our souls from hell. No lawyers to protect us and keep us out of the penitentiary. No judges to tell us when we should be punished and when we should not. No County superintendents of education to correct us when we made a mistake in selecting a teacher to teach our children.

Dear old ignoramus farmer, did you know that we are the mainspring of the wheel of progress, and that we are the only real source of all wealth, and the only TAX PAYER.

Isn't it a fact that we have made the doctors, lawyers, judges, preachers, merchants, and thousands of other professions our superiors? We pay them from five to ten times as much as we get. They can go nice and clean and most of them have their servants to do their little work. And we, the farmers, have to toil day in and day out and endure the heat and sweat and stir up such a dust until we get like a mass of dirt from head to feet and take all the soap the old woman had and scrub off most of the dirt and put on some clean patched clothes, and go out to our school meeting and meet our trustees and patrons of our school and discuss the condition of our community and finally decide that our teacher gave us such good service during the last school that we should employ them for the next term of school. So, we go back home feeling good thinking that we have done our duty as a citizen.

Then the trustees report the result of the meeting to the county superintendent of education then in action the superintendent tells the trustees that their community is very illiterate and doesn't really know who they should have for a teacher, I am the one to appoint your teacher. So, you see Italy isn't the only nation that has to bow to a monarchial power. We have some of it right here in Chilton County. We are informed that we have officials in Chilton County that can take a case of first degree murder and change it to a light degree of man slaughter.

Dear old farmer, lift up your heads, study your condition, and let us get out of the rut of ignorance, and checks the machine that puts out so many human beings that is so much superior to our occupation, farming, which is the greatest of all occupations of the human family.—Respectfully, Old Ignoramus.

By the way, now that woman is taking man's place and there is equality of the sexes all along the line, why can not one of our young bachelors of arts be called a sweet boy graduate?—Hartford Courant.

The census will be taken next year and it's our judgment that the census takers are going to find that most of the women are younger than they were ten years ago.

PROHIBITION KILLINGS

Last Wednesday Federal Prohibition Officer W. H. Gillespie was shot three times by a bootlegger in Coosa County. But how many editorials did you see in the daily papers about this atrocious crime? When a bootlegger is shot by an officer you can't hear the last of it for weeks, but let an officer get shot and it is passed up merely as the regular routine of daily events.

In our estimation, the thing that happened in Coosa County last Wednesday is worse and more deserving of punishment than the killing of forty bootleggers.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

FRANK P. LITSCHERT

For the past few weeks, and especially since Congress has recessed for the summer, one question which has been especially in the public eye is that of further limitation of armaments. The report that Ramsay McDonald, the new British premier, would visit the United States in the near future and confer personally with President Hoover on the naval situation was hailed with general satisfaction. There were reports that General Dawes, our new ambassador to Great Britain, was devoting his unusual ability toward solving the question of limitation and there were reports that a new naval conference would be held in a short time and that the situation, since the British elections, was such that almost anything constructive might be accomplished.

All of which is of course interesting and encouraging. It would seem, however, in light of the cold and hard facts, that one of the real dangers which now confronts this program of further disarmament, is too great a spirit of optimism which may necessarily be followed by a sense of national disappointment calculated to hurl us farther away than ever from the goal which it is desired to reach. Indeed, the recent speeches of Mr. Dawes and Mr. MacDonald were followed by a wave of disappointment in America. In these addresses the two gentlemen referred to undoubtedly went as far as they could along the desired path, but the disappointment was due to a vague public feeling that already some golden rule of disarmament had been discovered and needed only to be formally ratified. In other words, too much had been expected.

In view of this, therefore, it may be well to point out a few facts that have too often been unheeded or passed over as unimportant. In the first place it is to be conceded that the American people are in favor of naval limitation, providing always that America keeps a navy as effective as the best, and a navy to which she is entitled by all the rules of the game. It may be conceded also that the British people as a whole might welcome a plan which would reduce the burden of naval taxation. But it is to be remembered that Mr. McDonald and his government are not on a very firm footing. His is a minority government at best and depends on the favor of minority factions in the British parliament. With some of this support withdrawn the Labor government of Mr. McDonald would come crashing to earth. Therefore Mr. McDonald's hands are tied and he has his limits. It must be remembered also that behind Mr. McDonald is the British naval tradition with centuries of sea domination. This tradition permeates the whole British race and for this reason no question which Mr. McDonald has to tackle is more filled with dynamite than that of doing something toward relinquishing British supremacy on the sea. It is to be remembered again that we in America have a naval tradition, too, and that any agreement entered into will have to pass the test of the United State Senate.

For the reasons recited and for many more, therefore, it will not do to take for granted that a final solution of the naval question is at hand. Much more stormy sea must be travelled and many more thrills and disappointments will have to be encountered before the goal of equitable limitation is finally reached. For example: the British navy is now superior to ours in the matter of cruisers. When we have built the fifteen cruisers now provided for the British navy will still be superior to ours in cruisers. Therefore, if equality is to be established, Great Britain will have to cut down its number of cruisers and it remains to be seen whether Mr. McDonald with his delicate grip on the government of Great Britain will be able to "put over" any such program on the British admiralty. For certainly the United States will not consent to a condition of inferiority. Such a procedure would be worse than foolish—it might well prove fatal to our further security and progress.

LITTLE COUNTRY PAPER

A far cry from the dailies, that on Sundays weigh us down;
It's printed every Friday, and it has no supplement,
Nor colored rotogravure, but I'm always glad it's sent.
It gives no clever verses by syndicated bards,
But states that Mrs. Williams entertained some friends at cards;
"Ye Scribe" saw Judge McArthur shaking hands with friends today;
It says the Curtis family sold out and moved away.
On Boulder Dam it's silent, and there's nothing on finance—
It tells that the Rebekahs gave an installation dance.
That Miss Day is returning soon to open up her school,
That Alexander Hargrove lost a valuable mule.
It's glad that Jimmie Gallagher can be around again.
It claims that the alfalfa crop is much in need of rain;
The supervisors voted for the road work to commence;
Will Anderson hauled lumber for his new garage and fence.
The worldly ones may smile at it, but theirs are tender smiles—
These home town items form a bond through many years and miles.
I like to wander with you down remembered roads and walks.

L. O. BRACKEN WRITES UP CHILTON COUNTY

In a recent issue of The Progressive Farmer, there appeared an illustrated story about farming in Chilton County, which was written by Mr. L. O. Bracken, editor of the Alabama Farm Bureau News. The pictures accompanying the story were of W. L. Popwell, president of the Chilton County Farm Bureau, C. E. Stapp, County Agent, and some scenes showing agriculture classes at the Jemison and Isabella Vocational Schools.

Farm progress in Chilton County in recent years has drawn the attention of the whole state of Alabama. Our farmers have responded well to the work which has been done by County Agent Stapp, and we are able to see that Chilton County is fast coming into its place as one of the leading agricultural counties of the state.

Rev. Malcolm Lockhart of Refuge came in last Saturday with the biggest tomato we have ever seen. We didn't weigh it or measure it. But we did eat it. The thing was big enough to provide a liberal portion of tomato at two meals for a family of nine persons. If you know how much it takes to furnish nine people something to eat, you can get a fair idea of the size of the tomato. You will also know how much the editor appreciated receiving the tomato.

OUR REAL MOTIVE

Says LeDroit, published at Ottawa, Quebec: "The Americans, who make such a parade before the world of having ratified the principles of the Kellogg pact, should be the first to practice it. Since they can have no fear of any war, why do they vote immense and costly programs of warship construction? This conduct leaves us with the impression that our neighbors are more inspired with the desire to see no other military power superior to theirs, to dominate others in fact, instead of to protect themselves against a real danger."

Our contemporary in the dominion to the north is right when it says that we are inspired with a desire to see no other military power superior to ours, but it is mistaken when it assumes that we desire to dominate others.

We feel that we are within our rights when we seek to maintain for ourselves a navy equal to the best. We have the wealthiest country of the world with the highest standards of living from a material standpoint at least. Since we have so much at stake we feel that we would be foolish not to have as good defensive implements as would seem in any way necessary.

But we do deny that we have any desire to dominate others and we feel that the very friendly relations we have had with our good neighbor to the north is ample proof of this. The boundary between the United States and Canada is unfortified and will continue so. We desire at all times to maintain friendly relations with the great Dominion. We feel that her people can be numbered among the finest in the world and we want to be neighbors with them. Had we any desire to be dominant, to play the bully in a military sense, here would have been an excellent opportunity, and we would want to "do our stuff" while we still had several times the population of the Dominion and could make our bluff good. That nothing like this has happened or will happen is the best evidence that the charge we desire to dominate others is a mistaken one.

The people of the United States do desire peace. We are prosperous and contented. We would have nothing to gain in war and everything to lose. We need no additional territory and we have no century old grudges to pay off. For that reason we promoted the Kellogg pact. Having done this we see no inconsistency in attempting to make our navy as good as the best. This is not an indication that we desire war but that we do not desire to be attacked by a better armed foe. As individuals and as a nation we are collectively and separately against the scourge of smallpox. We get ourselves vaccinated, not that we revel in infested areas, but to avoid getting the disease. The smallpox danger is with us always and we can not avoid it simply by denying to ourselves that the germs do not exist.

Likewise were we to disarm in the face of the armed nations of the world as an example to humanity we would not promote the cause of peace but would put ourselves in a situation of inferiority which might have the gravest consequences. We have found that a good capable navy on our part is the best way to peace and limitation of armaments.

For example: the naval disarmament conference of 1921, limiting the construction of battleships, was successful because Uncle Sam had the most battleships built and under construction. The other nations agreed to limitation because they knew we had "the edge." When a conference to limit the number of cruisers was held at Geneva a few months ago it failed because some of the other nations were ahead of us and would not relinquish superiority for equality. For that reason there was nothing else for us to do but go ahead and build our navy up to the point where it would be as good as the best. When this is done it will make for peace and limitation of armaments because we will then have something to sacrifice and the other nations of the earth seem to get a good deal of enjoyment out of Uncle Sam's doing some sacrificing.

Maximum mileage at Minimum Cost

Kelly-Springfield Heavy Duty Truck Tires lower operating costs by giving unusually long, trouble-free mileage. This long mileage is the natural result of correct design, high quality materials and skilled workmanship.

The tread is so designed that as the tire wears the nonskid qualities are increased. The heavy center running strip increases the tire's mileage and affords additional protection against cuts and bruises.

The side walls are protected and reinforced by heavy curb rings and the bead is of the strongest possible construction.

If you want exceptional tire service whether it be for trucks, busses or passenger cars, you will find it in Kelly Heavy-Duty Tires.

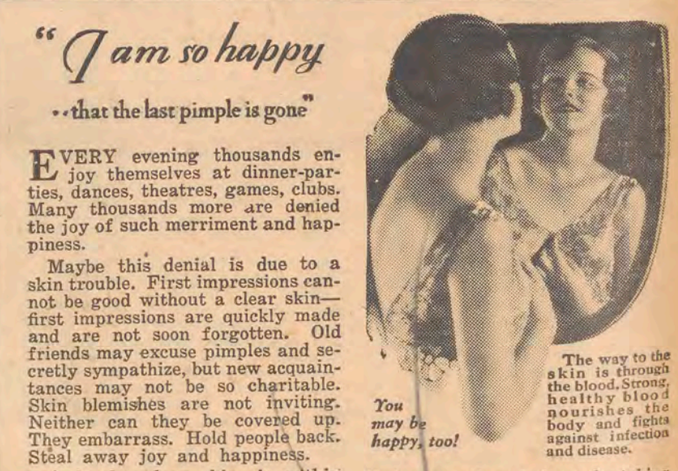
"I am so happy
..that the last pimple is gone"

EVERY evening thousands enjoy themselves at dinner-parties, dances, theatres, games, clubs. Many thousands more are denied the joy of such merriment and happiness.

Maybe this denial is due to a skin trouble. First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize, but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.



A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered. You, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Many thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking S.S.S. It is Nature's own blood tonic for raising the body's power of resistance to disease, improving the appetite, building firm flesh, and clearing the skin.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

Take S.S.S. at meal-time. You will be delighted with its blood building and tonic effect.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

RE-ADJUST SHOCK ABSORBERS ON NEW MODEL A FORD FOR USE DURING THE SUMMER

Drivers of the Model A Ford will find it advisable, in order to obtain the maximum riding comfort in the summer months, to make a slight adjustment of the shock obsorbers with which the car is equipped.

The Ford automobile obtains much of its smoothness on the road from double acting shock absorbers operating entirely on the principle of hydraulic resistance. The fluid used in the reservoir offers resistance to road shocks by being forced from one chamber to another. In cold weather the fluid has a tendency to thicken, while in warm weather it flows more readily. To compensate for these changes the shock absorbers are provided with an adjusting needle. In warm weather, it is advisable to tighten the valve on the shock absorbers so as to give the fluid less play.

Hydraulic shock absorbers were adopted for the Model A Ford after thorough tests had demonstrated their effectiveness in easing the worst type of road bumps, and of greatly reducing what otherwise would be severe shocks to occupants of the car. It is pointed out that their effectiveness is pronounced under any circumstances. Best results, however, will be obtained by a seasonal adjustment.

Ford dealers and service men are thoroughly conversant with the method of making shock absorber adjustments. These may be made quickly and to suit the riding requirements of the driver.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Teel went to Montgomery Sunday afternoon.

County Farm Agent's Notes

SOW PEAS IN CORN IF YOU HAVE SEED

Auburn, Ala., July 8.—If you have cowpea seed on hand and do not have to buy them R. Y. Bailey, assistant agronomist of the Experiment Station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, recommends that you sow them in your corn middles at laying-by time. In tests conducted at Auburn cowpeas planted in corn middles and turned under have increased the yield of corn six bushels per acre over a 20 year period.

On the other hand, Mr. Bailey does not believe it is a good practice for farmers to buy cowpeas for sowing in corn middles this year. "If you have $3.00 to buy cowpeas," he said, "save it and buy either hairy vetch or Austrian peas for fall sowing. For the same money per acre spent for winter legume seed that cowpeas would cost, you can hope to turn under all the nitrogen that a crop of corn will need. Also with winter legumes there is much less chance of failure, due to dry weather.

"Results of experiments at Auburn show," he continued, "that winter legumes plowed under in the spring and followed by corn have been just as efficient in increasing the yield as stable manure or nitrate of soda."

Mr. Bailey and J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist at Auburn, are urging farmers to place their orders for vetch or Austrian winter pea seed early, as the supply is limited. "It is now time," they said, "for farmers to begin thinking about how much winter legume seed they intend to plant this fall. Within the next few weeks local Farm Bureaus and county agents in all parts of the State will begin taking orders for seed. In some counties orders have ben placed already."

ALABAMA FARM NEWS

In Monroe County 99 farmers have poisoned boll weevils with calcium arsenate as recommended by County Agent A. V. Culpepper.

Grass and bud worms are injuring corn on low lands of Bibb County. T. Pete Long, county agent, reports that farmers on the Cahaba River poisoned.

County agent W. F. Murphy reports that Henry County farmers save $2.20 per hundred pounds by buying cooperatively a carload of calcium arsenate for poisoning boll weevils.

Farmers are becoming more efficient. They use trap nests to find out which hens are laying the most eggs and employ official testers to find out which cows are producing the most butterfat.

LEADERSHIP WORK TO BE MAIN THEME

Auburn, Ala., July 8.—Training of men and women to serve in positions of rural leadership will be the main theme of the farmer's week program at Auburn, August 5-10. This was made known by the program committee of which Prof. L. N. Duncan is chairman.

This decision was made by the committe because of an urgent demand for leadership for rural advancement — community, county, state, and national.

"Agriculture," said Prof. Duncan, "has reached the point where unity of action is essential to advancement and progress in keeping with the advancement and progress of industry, banking, commerce, transportation, and the professions. This nation requires community leadership, county leadership, state leadership, and national leadership."

Prof. Duncan explained that in each community there are problems requiring organized action in the behalf of those concerned. The same is true of the rural life of a country and of other divisions made for government of the people.

Leadership will be the main theme of the daily sessions of men and women from 10 a. m. in the forenoon and in the afternoons there will be group meetings of those interested in different subjects for lectures and demonstrations.

Nights will be given to social hours, motion pictures, and recreation. One night will be devoted to a banquet given by The Progressive Farmer at which time master farmer awards will be made.

CLEAN EGGS WILL BRING MORE MONEY

A clean nest is essential in producing a clean product. Provide at least one nest for every five or six hens in order to avoid over-crowding in the nest. Over-crowding in the nests may cause breakage, and breakage causes dirty eggs. Be sure there is an adequate supply of litter in the nests. During rainy seasons change the litter often.

Clean eggs should be placed in clean containers or cases. Remember that dirt is acquired by the egg thru contact. Old nail kegs, orange boxes, straw hats, and the like, make reasonably good nests if kept clean. Construct a nest aproximately 14" by 14" by 14", and, where practical, use 1-4" wire mesh for the bottom.

Clean, quality eggs will bring added profits and stimulate consumption. With greater demand we generally have improvement in prices. Clean, wholesome eggs of first-class quality, both externally and internally, should be t pride to the producer, and should induce the consumer to buy more. Clean eggs, properly produced, will apeal to thep consumer and sell themselves. Cleanliness is an enemy of waste.

Our difficulties today in the marketing of eggs and poultry lie not so much with the agencies handling the product as in the product the agencies have to handle. A dealer can not make a clean egg out of a dirty egg unless he increases the cost of the product, nor can he sell dirty eggs for prices that clean eggs will bring. He is not a magician and can not perform miracles. We can improve the marketing of poultry and eggs when we all agree that waste can be eliminated.—G. A. Trollope, Extension Poultry Specialist, Auburn, Ala.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Washington County Board of Revenue has ordered an election to determine whether the razorback hog and goat should be allowed to run at large, according to a report by County Agent H. H. Best.

Upon suggestion of County Agent F. G. Wrenn of Tallapoosa County local banks are paying for a series of advertisements in local papers endorsing the recommendations of the Experiment Station of Auburn for boll weevil control.

"By sowing vetch this fall you can produce more corn next year. Too many Alabama dollars are flying to Iowa and other Mid-Western states to buy corn that should be grown in Alabama. It is time to place your order for seed."—J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, Auburn.

COACHING COURSE AT AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., July 8.—A two weeks intensive summer coaching course will be held at Auburn, August 19-31, inclusive. The Plainsmen coaching staff of five men will devote their entire time in giving lectures and demonstrations so that as much material of college grade in two week's time as can ordinarily be given in a full term of the Auburn Summer Session will be provided. College credit will be given for the course.

Coach Geo. Bohler, mentor of the championship S. I. A. A. gridiron eleven in 1927, and the two new additions to the Tiger athletic department—Earl McFaden and John Floyd—will teach football during the short session. Bohler, who also coached a winning basket ball quintet while at Mississippi college, will teach the fundamentals and other fine points of the hardwood game.

Coach Floyd will teach the National pastime—baseball—to the visiting coaches as well as assist with football. The assembled track coaches will be under one of the leading cinder mentors in the United States—Wilbur Hutsell, assistant coach for the 1928 Olympic team and producer of the South's leading hurdlers and sprinter for the past several years, will also give a course in first aid for athletic injuries. Bohler and Hutsell will teach this course jointly.

The total fee for instruction and for locker and towels will be $12.50. Room and board may be obtained for $15.00 for the two weeks.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

Crops on the Experiment Station at Auburn are not cultivated any later than grass and weeds warrant it.

All brown rot peach mummies should be taken from the tree and burned as plowing these under does not destroy the fungus.

In every field examined where poisoning with calcium arsenate for boll weevil was done correctly County Agent P. R. Pettis, of Conecuh County, found that infestation had been reduced to 5 per cent or less. In fields where no dusting das done infestation ranged from 14 to 60 per cent.

The Jefferson County Truck Growers Association enrolled 500 members during the year closing June 1. County Agent J. L. Liles reported that this is the largest membership ever enrolled in one year. Business handled for members during the year amounted to $60,690.65. This is an increase of $10,000.00 over the previous year, and is the greatest amount of business ever handled by the association in one year.

Base plantings are the same thing to a home that a pair of shoes is to a well dressed girl. If there is need for it, get a nursery catalog and make plans to beautify your farmstead. A "barefooted" home is unsightly.

Begin to make plans now for a fall and winter garden. Alabama farmers should furnish their tables with vegetables from their own gardens the entire year. It will mean money saved and health gained.

Plans are under way in St. Clair County to get banks to assist in financing ten poultry projects of 200 to 500 baby chicks each. County Agent R. M. Reaves is a leader in the movement.

As a result of meetings held by County Agent W. R. Turnipseed, 115 bushels of soybeans were planted on 500 acres of land in Marion County. Mr. Turnipseed says that farmers of that county are interested in more feed and better soils.

An ounce of calcium arsenate prevention may be worth a dollar of profit in the cotton field.

Good farmers clean and store their farm machinery immediately after they finish laying-by their crops. A little oil, labor, and care is not expensive as is a machine.

If harnessed the wind that blows over a farm home will furnish power for pumping water for farm needs. Erect a windmill and attach it to water equipment and the job is done.

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for July 14

EZEKIEL TEACHES PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 33:1-20.

GOLDEN TEXT—Every one of us shall give an account of himself to God.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Ezekiel's Message of Warning.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Ezekiel's Message of Warning.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Does God Take Note of My Life?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Individual Accountability to God

I. Ezekiel's Responsibility (vv. 1-9).

The commission of the prophet is now renewed. Hitherto his utterances were mainly of a threatening character, having as their objective the turning of the people from their wicked ways. They refused to heed the prophet's words, the result of which was the falling of God's judgment upon them in their complete captivity and the destruction of Jerusalem. When it became clear that the people would not heed God's warnings through the prophet, the prophet was to be silent—dumb. This tragic situation was portrayed through the death of Ezekiel's wife. Awful as this blow was, he was to desist from weeping, showing that even natural sorrow was not to be expressed at the time of God's awful judgment.

After the renewal of the prophet's commission, his messages were mainly consolatory. His responsibility is set forth under the figure of a watchman. God gave him this position. Every minister and Sunday School teacher is a watchman. Indeed, upon every believer has been imposed certain responsibilities. Two things are required of a watchman.

1. To hear the word at God's mouth (v. 7).

The source of the message of every minister and Sunday school teacher is God's Holy Word. As the prophet did not originate his message but received it at God's mouth, so should it be with every minister.

2. To sound the warning (v. 7).

After hearing God's message he was to proclaim it to the people. The watchman's duty is both to hear and to speak. The people are to be warned of the impending danger. Failure to sound the alarm makes the watchman guilty of the blood of the sinner (v. 8). After the warning the sinner carries his own guilt (v. 9).

II. God's Attitude Toward the Sinner (vv. 10, 11).

God had declared in His word that unfaithfulness on the part of His people would cause them to "perish among the heathen," to "pine away in their iniquity" (Lev. 26:38, 39).

In view of this pronouncement, some were disposed to say that their case was hopeless. To meet this attitude of despair, the prophet assured them that God had no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that his sincere desire was for the wicked to turn from his way and live. Regardless of what their past had been He assured them that the future was bright, but God's command and plea is, "Turn ye from your evil ways, for why will ye die O house of Israel?"

III. The Sinner's Personal Responsibility (vv. 12-20).

God has created the members of the race as volitional beings, possessing freedom of choice. They have moral discernment, enabling them to distinguish between right and wrong. The following principles govern the sinner and the watchman:

1. Past righteousness will not avail for present sins (v. 12).

When a righteous man turns to do iniquity, his past seeming righteousness will be of no avail.

2. Past sins do not make impossible present acceptance with God (vv. 12-14).

By virtue of the law of habit, every sinful act makes it harder for the sinner to repent, but God's mercy and enabling grace are such that if the sinner repents, God will restore.

3. Restitution required (vv. 15, 16).

The proof of penitence is that so far as possible the sinner makes amends for wrongs done. There is no merit in the act of restitution, but such act helps the individual to overcome his besetting sin.

4. God's ways are equal (vv. 17-20).

God holds man responsible for his own deeds. The child is not condemned because of the deeds of its father. This does not do away with the law of heredity. Regardless of what one's past life has been, God's grace in Jesus Christ blots out his record and he stands accepted in the Beloved.

On the Job

While Moses was caring for the sheep God's great commission came to him. If God has any great thing for us to do, we need not fear that He will miss us because we are busy with our common tasks.

Belief in Jesus Christ

The condition of salvation is that kind of belief in Jesus Christ which authenticates itself in repentance for the past and in amendments of life for the future.—L. L. Noble.

POULTRY TIPS

Mr. Geo. Trollope, poultry specialist from Auburn, was in the office of County Agent, C. E. Stapp, and called attention to the following poultry tips:

The Early Hen Molt

When a bird's physical condition becomes so run down that she can not maintain her body and continue to produce eggs the feathers commence to die and molting takes place. Insufficient feed, the wrong kind of feed, parasites, sudden change of feed, and other factors may be causes of early molting. Under the best treatment a poor layer may stop laying early in summer and molt so gradually that the renewal of feathers is scarcely noticeable. Birds bred with the ability to lay heavily, and properly cared for, lay some eggs even when the body is not being well maintained. These molt late and rapidly and are ideal for breeders the following spring. The early molters should be disposed of by continuous culling at this season.

Much early molting may be prevented by good management, proper feeding, regular cleaning, correct ventilation of houses and supplying of clean yards with shade and green feed. Keep the birds in good flesh.

Control measures to checks parasites consist largely in sanitary equipment and management of flock in such a way that the life cycle of parasites is broken so that infection can not get back to the fowls. Prompt disposal of droppings, plowing up or scraping off the top soil of yards, rotation of yards, use of disinfectants, and providing of clean feed and water vessels are among the most practical means of prevention of round and tape worm infection.

Culling the Pullets

It is time to cull pullets when any of them show lack of vigor or weakness. In most flocks there will be culls or runts among them, due often to wrong feeding or care, or sometimes due to inherited weakness. If the brooder chicks should have coccidiosis or white diarrhea, or other disease, there is likely to be an unusual number of culls among them. The sooner these are taken out of the flock the better. Don't expect them to regain lost ground and catch up with the rest of the flock.

Late Chickens

Poultrymen who have failed to raise enough early chicks need not hesitate to try a late hatch providing the chicks are given the proper care. Late chicks are given a chance to develop normally. They require good feeding, green feed, shade, clean ground and more attention than the early ones. Keep them separate from other poultry. Heavy milk feeding works wonders in the development of late hatched chicks. Perhaps the most common error is to reduce the heat supply too early. May and June nights are often cool and cause the chicks to crowd and sweat.

New Lice Enemy

The usual trouble of handling and treating birds individually for body lice may be avoided in one night by placing nicotine sulphate (Black Leaf 40) on the perches just before the birds go to roost. The lice are killed by the fumes released by the heat from the birds bodies. Nicotine sulphate should contain 40 per cent nicotine. It is poisonous and will kill any animal that eats or drinks it.

Nicotine sulphate is not effective during cold weather. Clean dirt and dust from top of perches and paint them with the preparation at the rate of one ounce to about 20 linear feet of perch. Four ounces of Black Leaf 40 will treat the perch space ordinarily required for about 100 hens.

It is much more sanitary to feed the scratch feed in long troughs or hoppers than to throw it on the ground or in litter.—C. E. Stapp.

THORSBY SECTION

S. E. NORTON, Manager

Mrs. Each and family and Mrs. Robert Johnson spent the Fourth at the home of Mrs. Martha Petersen. The children had a fine swim in the morning and during the day the dozen people of the party assembled and made and ate four and a half gallons of ice cream. After returning home they made up another party and spent the evening at Gore's Pond.

The Transfiguration Day service at the Lutheran church will be Sunday morning at 10:45, July 14 in the Scandinavian language.

Mr. E. N. Steiner with his mother and daughter, Gertrude, expect to leave Thorsby Tuesday, July 16, for a motor trip to Ohio where they will spend two weeks visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Williams and family returned from Georgia, where they had been spending their vacation, Friday evening.

Last Monday we called at the home of Mr. Martin Petersen where we inspected his crop of fine peaches both Hale and Elberta which are now beginning to color up and will be at their best from the 15th to the 25th of this month. Although the peach crop in Alabama is considered almost nil this year, Mr. Petersen's trees are so loaded that the branches of many of them have to be propped up to avoid breaking with the weight of their fruit. None of which has been stung. All seem to be in perfect condition. He has about a hundred bearing trees that apparently will run from two to five bushels each. He says they will be sold to people who come for them bringing their own packages, thus avoiding the trouble and expense of shipment. On account of scarcity of peaches this year prices are apt to be high.

Organizing Boy Scouts

A movement is on foot in Thorsby to organize a troop of Boy Scouts. This matter has often been thought of as something very much needed, but has been held back because of inability to find available a good man for Scoutmaster. This difficulty has been overcome and it is hoped in the near future that Thorsby will have a fully organized Boys troop. To augment the more than three million of our American boys already members of this organization, which is national and has for its object the training of boys from 12 to 16 years of age in many things they ought to know to help them to become good citizens. For the benefit of those who do not know exactly what a boy has to promise before he can become a scout, we hereby publish as it is no secret. The Boy Scout Oath, as follows:

"On my honor I will do my best:

1. To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout laws.

2. To help other people at all times.

3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight.

6. A Scout is Kind (He is a friend to animals. He will not kill or hurt any living creature needlessly, but will strive to save and protect all harmless life.)

7. A Scout is Obedient (He obyes his parents, scoutmaster, patrol leader, and all other duly constituted authorities.)

8. A Scout is Cheerful (He smiles whenever he can. His obedience to orders is prompt and cheery. He never shirks nor grumbles at hardships.)

9. A Scout is Thrifty (He does not want only not to destroy property. He works faithfully, wastes nothing, and makes the best use of his opportunities. He saves his money so that he may pay his own way, be generous to those in need, and helpful to worthy objects. He may work for pay but must not receive tips for courtesies of good turns.)

10. A Scout is Brave (He has the courage to face danger in spite of fear and to stand up for right against the coaxings of friends or the jeers or threats of enemies, and defeat does not down him.)

ABOUT BOOZE AND BOOZERS

We hear a lot said about whiskey and its evils. Many speeches are made about liquor. The speakers tell us of the people it has ruined; of the sufferings of women and children caused by drink.

I have seen with my own eyes men crazy from drinking whiskey. I saw one man dead drunk at his wife's funeral. I have seen women with bruised and bloody faces and driven from their homes at midnight, all on account of whiskey-drinking husbands.

But it doesn't do the whiskey problem any good for me to tell all the horrible things I have seen and know about what whiskey will do. That doesn't help us to get rid of it. What I would like to know is what are we going to do and how are going to save this country from ruin.

I want to ask every God-loving man and woman to make this an object of prayer for a great revival of religion in this country. Pray for a conviction to take hold of sinners so strong that they will accept Jesus. If we can get people to accept Christ that will do away with the whiskey business in our country.

I pray to that end. Brothers and sisters, will you join me?—H. F. McCary.

When the four o'clock train got here two negroes unloaded from the blinds and the officers gave them a chase. One of them was caught in the alley back of the Ford place. WE'RE HERE!

We suppose that everybody sometime has wanted to run a newspaper of their own.

We plead guilty, not only on that score, but also to wanting to be an editor.

Mack Wyatt of The Banner, says running a newspaper is full of grief, but if we insist, he'll rent us this little corner each week and it'll be up to us to make good.

So we'll be here everyThursday with The Clean-Up in which we will talk about

You People
Our Community
It's Improvements

and maybe a little bit about the Laundry and Cleaning business.

We'll promise to be interesting all the time.

But we'll need your HELP with contributions.

He: "Do you like dancing?"
She: "No."
He: "Why."
She: "It's merely hugging set to music."
He: "Well, what is it you don't like about that?"
She: "The music."

We want to call your attention to the fact that Clanton is soon to have filtered water. Work is nearing completion on the new filtering system, and it won't be long now until the filtered water will be let into our city water system. This is a great improvement and one that is badly needed.

Probably the reader is a customer. In the event that he is, we wish to thank him for his patronage. If not won't you give us a trial? Satisfying you is our aim and we feel that we can do it, too.

SARDIS

Please give me space in the paper to give our singing report. The society was called to oredr at 3 o'clock by Prof. J. W. Lowery of Liberty Hill who sang that good old hymn, "Leaning on the Everlasting Arm," after which prayer was offered by Rev. J. D. Deason. The following committe was appointed to arrange a program for the afternoon. The committee is as follows: Brother W. M. Headley, Brother G. W. Sansom, and Prof. Glover Smith. The following is a list of directors who were asked to sing two and one songs each:

Miss Meldie Sansom, Miss Arrie Ratliff, Mr. E. E. Smith, Miss Mae Sansom, Mr. Kermit Lowery, Mr. Sam Henley, Miss Irona Headley, R. W. Kendrick, G. B. Williams, G. I. Smith.

The organists for the afternoon were Mrs. Lucile Lowery, Miss Arrie Ratliff, and Prof. George Anderson.

After the singing there were seven encouraging talks made. The singing was closed by the Liberty Hill Quartet singing the song, "Plant a Spark of Love," were dismissed with prayer by Rev. J. D. Deason.

We wish to thank the Liberty Hill singing class for the valuable assistance they rendered in our singing. We cordially invite them back to Sardis again. We also cordially invite all who will to come and help us out in our singing. Our singing afternoons are the first Sunday at Sardis, and Pilgrims Rest the third Sunday. So please don't forget the dates mentioned and come one and all and help us out in our singing society. Remember our doors are opened to the public.—George Anderson, Secretary.

THE THOMAS HIGH SINGING

Notwithstanding the intense heat, the singing at Thomas High School last Sunday afternoon was very good. Several of the leading singers of the vicinity were present, and enjoyed two and a half hours of some of the best singing of the season. If the Profs. Devaughn improve that class very much with their singing school they will have a dandy when they get through with it.

WALNUT CREEK

Complete List Of Teachers For Chilton County High Next Session

We are glad to announce that the Chilton County High School faculty has ben completed for another year. Every teacher is a graduate from a four-year, Class A College. But few high schools over the State have this high a literary standard among its teaching force. Some of the teachers are working on their M. A. degrees and specializing in their particular lines of work.

The faculty stands as follows:

Lloyd C. Warr, Principal; Peabody and Columbia University.

W. M. Green, Lafayatte, Ala.; Science and athletics, B. S., Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

Horton T. Walker, Stanton, Ala.; Manual arts, A. B., University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa.

Polk Brothers Have Branch at Jemison

Polk Brothers Motor Co., local Chevrolet dealers, have recently enlarged their field of operations by establishing a branch sales and service department for Chevrolet at Jemison.

The service department of the new place is in charge of Mr. C. W. Johnson, who is an experienced factory-trained Chevrolet mechanic. Chevrolet Motor Company recommends Mr. Johnson as one among the best service men they have ever trained.

The sales force at Jemison will be headed by Red Sherrod, together with Mr. Harris and Mr. Burnett, the two last named having been representatives of Chevrolet in that territory for some time.

Mr. George C. Polk, member of the firm of Polk Brothers Motor Co., has active charge of the Jemison branch. It is stated that new equipment and machinery is being added to the repair shop. This, with a complete stock of Chevrolet parts, will make the Jemison branch of Polk Brothers measure up with the best Chevrolet service plants.

Alred Drug Store About Completed

Will Have Formal Opening The Latter Part Of Next Week

Visitors to the store of Alred Drug Co. in Clanton may now see what all the recent disturbance has been about. The place is all diked out in a brand new set of interior fixtures and the appearance is so much improved that one would not recognize it as the same place, but for the familiar faces of those who are on hand to keep "the home of Quality" going according to schedule.

There are the proprietors, Hance and "Coos," happy as can be and their pride is every bit justified. Anybody could feel a bit chesty for having such a beautiful new store.

Of course, though, the "big cheese" at "the home of Quality," is Robert Alred, who feels just as proud of the new place as any of the bunch. Robert is the axle grease at Alred's. Last but by no means least, we mention Albert Davis, who is as happy as he used to be when Santa Claus brought him a new red wagon.

We congratulate Alred's upon their new store and upon their business achievement in Clanton. About 20 years ago they began business with the slogan "the Home of Quality." The business has been a success and is one of the worthy business institutions of Chilton County.

Farmers Meeting

There will be another meeting of the farmers at Stanton next Saturday at 10 o'clock a.m., in the interest of the strawberry association. All farmers in the Stanton territory are urged to attend.

County Agent Stapp and Mr. Crowther, agricultural agent of the Southern Railway, will be there to discuss subjects of value to the farmers.

Tourists In Wreck Here Last Sat.

A new Ford car going north smashed into a big work truck of the telephone company last Saturday morning near Ellis Filling Station. Both machines were severely damaged, but fortunately no one was hurt.

The owner of the Ford was an old gentleman from down about Tuskegee, who had just bought the car and started on a trip to the North. A young man was driving for him. After spending the rest of the day in the Ford service plant here, the new car was prepared to go along on its venture.

It is said the wreck was caused by the driver of the truck swinging into the road ahead of the Ford without giving proper warning.

Work Started On New Schoolhouse

Work has already been started on the erection of the new rural school building for Mt. Pleasant community, to take the place of the old one which was burned last year. The contract was let week before last to a Mr. Sewell of Birmingham.

The location of the new building is about a quarter of a mile west of where the old building stood, and is on the road that extends from the John Duncan place south to Monroe Foshee's. The people of Mt. Pleasant community have been pushing the building proposition with all their might in order that they may have a place to hold their school this winter.

Three Applicants Take State Exam.

At the state teacher's examination for Chilton County on Monday of this week only three applicants appeared to take the test prescribed by the state.

All three applicants were for second grade certificates. Their names were Irving P. Kennedy, Clark Barnett, and Mattie Ford, colored. This is the only examination for teachers to be held in the county this year, according to Superintendent Lawrence.

IVAN BURKHALTER IS KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Ivan Burkhalter, farmer of the Floyd community in the southern part of Chilton County, was killed by lightning Tuesday evening as he sat on the front porch of his home during an electric storm. Two sons of the farmer were on the porch with him, but were not injured, according to reports.

Mr. Burkhalter was widely known as a producer of fine watermelons. He carried his melons to the cities of Montgomery and Birmingham. As a uniquie way of identifying himself to his customers, he always went barefoot with his pants rolled up. In this way people were sure to pick him out from among the great number of folks who peddled melons.

Lowery Will Sing At Revival Meeting

Those who love good singing and who will attend the meetings at Friendship beginning the fourth Sunday in July, will be pleased to learn that Mr. Herbert W. Lowery will have charge of the singing at the night services. He will not be able to attend at the day services, however.

Rev. Holland of Bessemer will do the preaching, who will occupy the pulpit the first time on Monday at the 11 o'clock service. Rev. Holland is pretty well known in this section as he has ben preaching at Liberty Hill for the past several years. He is pastor there now.

It is hoped and expected that this will be the best series of meetings that has ever been held at this place. and the people of adjoining communities are invited and urged to come and join the people of Friendship in making this meeting a glorious success for the cause of Christ at this place.

Clanton Quartet Widely Known

The Clanton Quartet is gaining a reputation that already extends far beyond the confines of Chilton County. This week Mr. W. G. Culp, manager of the Clanton singers, received a special invitation to bring his singers to Birmingham next Sunday afternoon to sing at the session of the South Jefferson Singing Convention.

The invitation was extended by Mr. C. W. Riley, president of the Convention, and one of the leading singers of the Birmingham District. Mr. Culp was unable to accept his invitation because of the fact that the Clanton Quartet is already engaged for four Sundays ahead to sing at various places in Chilton and Shelby Counties.

Clanton Teachers Do Special Work

A number of the Chilton County High School faculty are away this summer doing special work at college and universities, which will fit them to better carry on the duties assigned them in the school here this winter.

Prof. L. C. Warr, the principal, is at Columbia University, in New York City.

Miss Annie Laurie Clay, Mr. H. T. Walker, and Miss Inez Perry, are studying for M. A. degrees at the University of Alabama. Mr. W. M. Green is working for a Master's Degree at Auburn, and taking special training in coaching there. We might add that Coach Green has had five years experience as a coach and teacher. He comes to Chilton County High School most highly recommended, and with a splendid record behind him.

Miss Louise Jackson and Miss Virginia Murphy are doing special work in physical education in Asheville, N. C.

T. L. ROBINSON SERIOUSLY ILL

Mr. T. L. Robinson has been seriously sick at his home in Verbena for the past week. He suffered a stroke of paralysis from which he has been unable to rally. Little hope is held for his recovery.

HERSCHEL LOWERY ARRESTED

Herschel Lowery was arrested in Clanton Saturday afternoon on a charge of public drunkenness. He was released on bond.

Visitors Here From Monroe, Louisiana

Mr. J. D. Wright from Monroe, La. was among those who called on The Union-Banner last Saturday. We were indeed glad to have this splendid and accomplished gentleman call to see us. Mr. Wright had with him a collection of the sketches of Dr. T. U. Crumpton which he wrote in The Banner twenty-nine years ago from the Holy Land. Mr. Wright suggested that we re-publish some of these old letters which would be of considerable interest to the younger people. We hope to do this some time.

Mr. Wright was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. J. W. Wright of Thorsby. Mr. Wright used to live in Chilton County, having lived at Maplesville and at Thorsby. He has been away from here about 20 years. He is connected with the railroad business in Louisiana.

The Clanton Quartet will be there to do their part to make the service a success.

Remember the time and place and come, if you don't you are going to miss something.—Respectfully yours, H. A. Harris.

VISITORS HERE FROM SILVER CITY, MISS

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Henderson, of Silver City, Mississippi, have been visiting relatives in Clanton and other parts of Chilton County for the past few days. Mr. Henderson is working for a railroad company in Mississippi. They formerly lived here.

Albert Jackson Ware's Eighty-Seventh Birthday

The children and grandchildren of Mr. Albert Jackson Ware, age 87 years, gathered at his home at Sweetwater, on July 10th, in celebration of the birthday of this venerable old gentleman who enjoys a place of profound love and respect in the hearts of his descendants that must be a fountain of great joy to him in the evening shadows of his life.

A report of the occasion has been brought to The Union-Banner by Mrs. W. W. Fox, of Clanton, daughter of Mr. Ware. It is stated that the following children of Mr. Ware were present:

L. H. Ware and two children; J. L. Ware and two children from Texas; Mrs. J. B. Cox (Sally Ware) and nine children; Mrs. W. A. Reynolds (Sudie Ware) and seven children; W. A. Ware and five children; Mrs. D. Hathcock (Nettie Ware) and four children; J. E. Ware, of Brent; Mrs. T. J. Eddings (Emmie Ware); T. P. Ware, of Akron, Ohio; Mrs. W. W. Fox (Mattie Ware) of Clanton.

The gathering was at the home of W. A. Ware at Stweetwater, a son, with whom Mr. A. J. Ware now makes his home. It was a sad fact to the children and grandchildren that Mr. Ware was sick in bed, and unable to mingle with his loved ones. He was placed in his bed beside a window, where he could look out upon the assembly as they enjoyed their barbecue picnic dinner upon the lawn of the Ware home.

Mr. W. W. Fox stood near the window and made a short talk to the family in which he very touchingly referred to some of the outstanding incidents in the life and character of the man in whose honor they were gathered. At the conclusion of his talk he offered thanks to God for the blessings of the life of Mr. Ware, and for the good things that were provided for the children and grandchildren upon this occasion of his 87th birthday. Mrs. Fox provided the birthday cake with 87 candles.

He was born and reared in Perry County, Alabama. His wife was Miss Susan Elizabeth O'Neal, also of Perry County. She died forty years ago. They had ten children, five boys and five girls.

Mr. Ware has been a member of the Masonic Lodge at Montevallo for about fifty years. He is also a member of the Grotto. His connection with the Baptist Church dates back to his early years, and his life in every respect has been an example of the finest Christian character and conduct.

When the Civil War broke out in 1861, Albert Jackson Ware, then a youth, full of vigor and great promise in life entered the cause of the South as a member of Company A, 20th Alabama Regiment, under Captain A. S. Picherin, with Lieutenant Colonel Pettus and Colonel Garrett. He was in battles at Missionary Ridge, Tennessee, Lookout Mountain and Vicksburg.

At Jonesburg, Georgia, he was taken prisoner by the Union forces and carried to Atlanta where he was kept 19 days. When Lee surrendered he was at Kingston, North Carolina; was then carried to Charlotte, paroled and sent home.

As mentioned before, it was after his return to Alabama from the war that he was married to Miss Susan Elizabeth O'Neal, the sweetheart of his youth, whose love and prayers had followed him through the horrors of the conflict, and waited to join hands and heart with him to begin anew the battle of life.

Gone To Market

Mr. W. W. Fox is in New Orleans this week to buy a couple of car loads of furniture for his store in Clanton.

"I already have a wonderful lot of furniture in my store," said Mr. Fox on leaving for the market, "but when I get back home from this buying expedition I am going to have something to offer the people of Chilton County this fall and winter that will beat anything ever seen in this county."

Taylor Returns from A Trip To New York

Mr. Reedie Taylor, prominent young merchant and member of the Town Council, returned Friday night from a week's pleasure trip to Washington, Baltimore, New York, and other cities in the East. "I had a mighty fine trip," said Mr. Taylor, "and I feel very greatly refreshed by having a week away from the cares of business."

While in New York Mr. Taylor spent a night with L. C. Hendrix and Charles Moore, two Clanton boys who have been there for several months.

Shooting Scrape At Coopers Saturday

As the climax of a personal dispute regarding some lumber, James D. Cooper shot O. T. J. Smith last Saturday morning at Coopers. The weapon was a pistol, the ball from which inflicted a wound in Smith's knee.

Mr. Cooper came directly to Clanton and reported the matter to the Sheriff, who released him upon the making of a bond. Mr. Smith was able to be here Saturday afternoon.

Preliminary trial in the matter was waived, and the case will go directly to the grand jury for investigation.

Bud Williams Arrested Sat.

The Sheriff and his deputies made a search of the place of Bud Williams in the Liberty Hill settlement last Saturday afternoon and found a quantity of whiskey. Williams was arrested and released after making bond for a charge of violating the prohibition law.

While the officers were at Williams's place they encountered Grover Barker, who had a quart of liquor in his possession. Barker saw the officers and ran into the barn and set his bottle down, but a deputy was right there with him by that time. He was brought to jail.

LONG DISTANCE FISHING

When Mose Simpson takes a notion to go fishing, he merely picks cut his place, and the distance there and back makes no difference. Last Wednesday morning at nine o'clock he left Clanton for Dead Lakes, Fla., by automibile. Wednesday night he fished in the lakes. Thursday night he was back home in Clanton by supper time.

We haven't heard how many fish he caught, but it is our opinion that a fellow who can accomplish such a long distance fishing trip in so short a time would be entitled to tell most any kind of a fish tale.

Demonstrations Of Top Dressing Cotton

Several demonstrations are being conducted in Chilton County this year to show the value of top-dressing cotton with nitrogen and potash mixtures.

The farmers conducting these demonstrations are: D. J. Scroggins, Clanton; W. T. Hilyer, Coopers; and J. C. Crane, Maplesville. On each of the demonstrations a mixture equivalent to a half-and-half mixture of nitrate of soda and muriate of potash is being used at the rate of 200 pounds per acre. This mixture contains 7.5 per cent nitrogen and 25 per cent potash. It is being used at the above rate as a top-dressing in addition to the regular fertilizer application being used by each of the men mentioned above.

When passing any of these demonstrations it will be well to stop and examine them. It is especially important to watch the demonstrations with reference to fruiting and premature shedding.

The Leader, popular store of Mr. M. Lande in Clanton, is showing off an improved appearance this week, having received a new coat of paint throughout the interior last week. "The Leader is preparing to lead the way with bargains this fall and winter," says Mr. Lande.

STATE

CAPITOL News

With 186 delegates representing 60 counties in attendance, the Association of County Commissioners of Alabama was organized, officers elected and a constitution adopted, at sessions held in the capital city, July 9-10. The purposes of the organization are to promote development of good roads, and to develop a cooperative spirit among the various counties on matters of mutual interest. Membership in the new association is composed of members of county commissioners' courts and of boards of revenue, and probate judges in those counties where the probate judge is ex-officio chairman of the county board.

Harry Culverhouse, chairman of the Jefferson County Board of Revenue, was elected president of the association; Haygood Paterson, Montgomery, first vice-president, Judge John D. Petree, Franklin County, 3rd vice-president, and Judge M. McFountain, Monroe County, fourth vice-president, James Heustess, Clerk of the Montgomery County Board of Revenue, was elected secretary of the association. A Legislative committee was named, composed of the following: Judge W. H. Lindsey of Choctaw, Judge Fred Winkler of Butler, Judge Harry Martin of Houston, Judge E. A. Hammett of Talladega, Judge E. J. Garrison of Clay, Joe Shepherd of Tuscaloosa, Judge C. E. Adkins of St. Clair, Judge M. D. Wiggins of Morgan, Harry Culverhouse of Jefferson and Judge E. W. Long of Walker.

The association passed a resolution asking the Governor to call a special session of the Legislature for the enactment of good roads legislation, and also went on record as favoring aid to the development of aviation and of the Coosa-Alabama river waterway.

A decision of statewide interest which is calculated to strengthen officers of the law enforcing the prohibition statutes was handed down recently by the supreme court, which upheld a hard labor sentence of six months imposed in Montgomery County in a vagrancy case brought against a man said to be a bootlegger. The defendant in this case had been convicted several times previously of violating the prohibition law. In the absence of specific evidence of another violation of the prohibition law, Chief Walter K. McAdory of the State Law Enforcement Department brought a charge of vagrancy against this man, and also against several other alleged bootleggers. A conviction and hard labor sentence was secured in the circuit court. The case was appealed and carried to the court of appeals and then to the supreme court, the decision of the trial court being upheld. This decision opens the avenue for similar cases against bootleggers against whom sufficient evidence to suport a charge of prohibition law violation can not be obtained, but who are without visible lawful means of support.

S. A. Burns of Talladega has been appointed to the position of Chief of the Markets Division of the State Department of Agriculture by S. P. Stoors, Commissioner of Agriculture. He succeeds J. M. Moore, resigned.

Mr. Burns represented Talladega County in the Legislatures of 1923 and 1927, and had an active part in the enactment of progressive agricultural legislation. He is one of Talladega County's most successful farmers and is vice-president of the Alabama Cotton Association, having for some time been a leader in the cooperative marketing movement.

N. C. Fuller of Centreville was elected to succeed himself as President of the Alabama Branch of the National League of Postmasters, at a recent meeting of that body held at the State Capitol. Mrs. Alice L. Vest of Wilton was reelected secretary-treasurer, and W. L. Adams, Letohatchie, W. W. James, Brent, and L. W. Johnston, Hanceville, were elected vice-presidents of the organization.

"S.S.S. has brought me health and happiness"

WITH the last blemish gone, confidence returns. More friends — more invitations — more good times. With the joy and pride of possessing a clear skin, self-respect increases.

Everybody wants to be attractive. It is a just and natural ambition. But no one can be attractive without a clear skin.

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils, eczema and other skin eruptions as being an indication that the body's power of resistance is low.

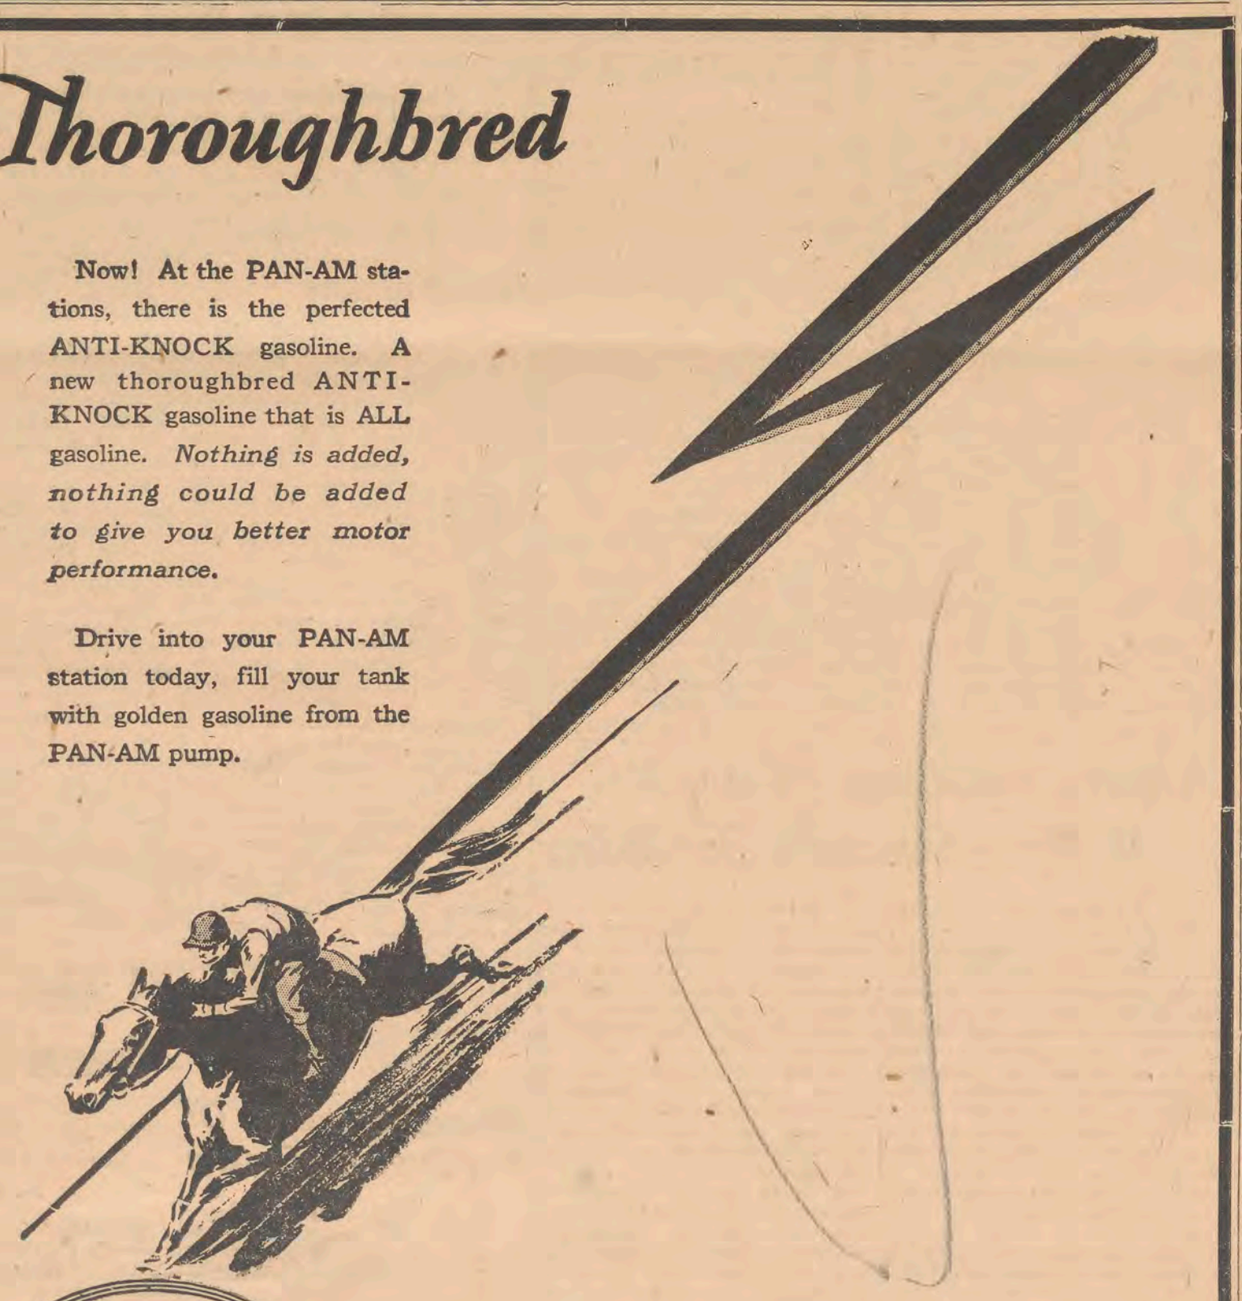
The sure way to remedy this condition is to restore the red-blood-cells to normal.

This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful skin annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

S.S.S. helps Nature restore the blood to its normal state. Healthy blood nourishes the body and works against infection and disease.

Without plenty of rich, red blood there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or healthy, beautiful women.

If you are troubled with so-called skin disorders take a few bottles of S.S.S. Seek energy, vitality and a clear skin through the remedy, which is made from fresh vegetable drugs, and has stood the test of over 100 years.



All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

BEATING THE HEN AT HER OWN GAME

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

Because an incubator is of a more or less mechanical nature, there is undoubtedly a temptation to treat it as if it were almost entirely automatic in its action. A good incubator will accomplish much with astonishingly little attention, but it must have a reasonable amount of the right kind of care if the best possible results are to be obtained. Quite often I have seen an incubator condemned as a failure when the operator was really at fault. Proper attention is just as essential in the artificial incubation of eggs as it is in any other mechanical operation. I shall, therefore, give a few pointers which I hope may show at least a few of my readers how to get better results than they have been able to obtain heretofore.

First of all, I want to say a word to those who have not yet used incubators but expect to do so. Above all things, don't select your machine with price as the principal consideration. Poor construction almost always goes hand in hand with a too cheap price and the first saving is lost many times over.

Secondly, I advise getting a machine that is plenty large enough for present needs and those of the immediate future. One big machine is cheaper to run and gives better results than two small ones. When making your purchase, therefore, take the future needs into consideration. Of course, it would be foolish to buy a machine out of proportion to your needs.

I have no special preference as to the brand of incubators, nor do I consider that it makes any difference in results whether the hot air or hot water type is used. Either, if properly tended, will prove entirely satisfactory.

Caring for the incubator is not a hard task, but it does require attention to details, good common sense and judgment. The machine should be visited at least three times a day to be sure that whatever source of heat may be used is functioning properly, that temperature remains constant and that conditions generally are as recommended by the manufacturer.

Large hatcheries usually have specially constructed houses or cellars for their incubators. Smaller operators can not afford the expense of constructing such quarters, and indeed, do not require them. An incubator should, however, be placed in the most favorable position possible to secure best results. The room or cellar used should be well ventilated, but free from draughts, should be so arranged that temperature can be kept even at all times, and must have a goodly amount of moisture. The temperature where incubators are operating should never fall below 40 degrees; between 50 and 70 degrees is good, and an unvarying temperature of 60 degrees is ideal.

Incubators should never be operated in a room where there are odors of gases such as come from oils, vegetables or decaying matter, nor dust nor dirt of any kind should be permitted. Baby chicks should never be brooded in an incubator room or cellar. The shells of eggs are porous and their contents would rapidly absorb odors with harmful results.

An incubator must be absolutely level to secure even distribution of heat within. Eye judgment should not be trusted. Use a spirit level and be sure to secure a level in all directions—not merely from front to back or from side to side.

When all details of installation are completed, a good dip and disinfectant should be sprayed into every portion of the inside of the machine to kill all disease germs. Then the machine should be closed up and operated for a day or two at about 102 1-2 degrees before eggs are placed in it. The next step is to get the temperature up to the point recommended by the manufacturer and regulate the thermostat so it will keep the temperature constant.

Any incubator will be accompanied by detailed instructions for operating, maintaining heat, regulating the source of heat, what heat and moisture to maintain at various stages, and all other details of operation. It is not necessary therefore to give minute instructions to these points. I receive hundreds of letters from people all over the United States asking how they should operate their incubators. My answer is always the same, "Follow the manufacturer's instructions closely and you will be successful." The manufacturers of each machine should know more about the minute details of operating their machines they make than I do, therefore, their directions should be followed closely in every detail.

An incubator is a real convenience and a wonderful time saver when properly operated. One attendant will consume no more time caring for an incubator containing 2,000 eggs than would be necessary to give adequate attention to a dozen hens. On the other hand, because individual hatches are quite large, carelessness or lack of proper understanding may cause material losses. It is easy to see, therefore, why the manufacturer's instructions should be carefully followed in every detail.

County Farm Agent's Notes

BIG INCREASE IN COTTON ACREAGE RECORDED

Alabama farmers have planted more acres of cotton than during the past 15 years, according to the annual crop acreage report released by F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician at the State Department of Agriculture at Montgomery. Quoting statistics, Mr. Gist said:

Alabama farmers planted 3,789,000 acres of cotton this year. This is exactly 4 per cent over plantings for last year. That this is a large increase may be shown by the fact that a total of 146,000 acres more was planted than in 1928. This is a much larger acreage than is grown in Madison, the greatest cotton producing county in Alabama.

No statement will be made by Mr. Gist relative to the condition of cotton until August 8—it being contrary to law for the U. S. Government to give the condition of cotton until that date.

In addition to cotton, the acreages of only four other crops show an increase, these being oats, sweet potatoes, sugar cane and soybeans. The following show a decrease: corn, hay, peanuts, Irish potatoes, sorghum for sirup, cowpeas and truck crops.

That farmers went heavily into cotton may be shown by the fact that the total acreage increase of all crops amounted to only 100,000 acres. On the other hand, the increase of cotton alone was 146,000 acres. There was a marked decrease in 7 staple crops; a marked increase in oats, and minor increases in sweet potatoes, soybeans and sugar cane.

Mr. Gist shows in his complete report that the composite crop condition, excluding cotton, is about 2 per cent above the ten year average. Farmers have begun operations in 1929 with increased optimism. The amount of fertilizer used has been large, next to the record year.

The most unfortunate aspect of the report is corn, which shows a decrease of 26,000 acres over last year. Although the prospect for a crop is better still a shortage of 4 million bushels in Alabama is forecast. The condition of corn is 76 per cent as compared with 60 per cent last year, and a 10 year condition of 79 per cent. The farmers of Alabama seem determined to raise less corn than they need and to buy corn from their cotton money, concludes Mr. Gist. Taking the condition as a whole, Alabama farmers are facing a good crop outlook on the whole. Little can be forecast regarding the production of cotton as the crop has not yet progressed sufficiently and the first condition report can not be made until August 8.

NEWS IN BRIEF

There are 160,000 fewer horses in South Dakota than there were seven years ago. Increased production of colts on South Dakota farms, particularly for replacement needs, is being advocated by the South Dakota State College and the United States Department of Agriculture.

Cooperative marketing is on the increase in Soviet Russia. Before the war there were only 22,000 individual cooperative societies in the territories now forming part of the Soviet nation. There are now 100,000, and fully half of the farming households in Russia are associated in one way or another with the movement.

President Hoover has called a conference to meet next year to consider the health of the children of the Nation. It will be the first national conference held for this purpose since the Roosevelt administration. Expenses of the survey and conference are being borne by private individuals, who, the President announced, have placed $500,000 at his disposal.

Figures released by the United States Department of Agriculture early in July show that more tuberculin tests were applied to cattle in connection with the cooperative tuberculosis eradication work in May, 1929, than in any previous month. During May 1,193,660 cows were tested.

Continued good prices for hogs throughout the year are indicated by figures from the Bureau of Agricultural Economics at Washington, according to F. W. Gist, State and Federal statistician at Montgomery. Mr. Gist reports that there is a shortage of 4,300,000 pigs n the United States as compared with last year.

IN MEMORY OF MOTHER

Mrs. C. A. Miller who passed away July the 16, 1928. Dear mother has gone to that beautiful home. She is there with the Saviour on high. I can not but weep and mourn her demise. To Jesus it draws me nigh. She is there with the Lord. She is free from all strife. With angels she is singing always, sweet songs of His love in heaven above. I'll sing with her there some day. Ah, what a great day up there it will be when I my dear mother shall see. I'll tell her my love, the same as of old. Oh, wonderful time it will be.

Dear mother has gone on her journey long. How we miss her none can tell, for my mother used to sing "Nearer, My God, to Thee." She did her Master's will.

Mother, oh mother, how I have missed you since the angels took you away, but I hope to meet you in a better world some day.—Written by her daughter, Mrs. J. L. Burnett.

Lesson for July 21

EZEKIEL'S VISION OF HOPE

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 47:1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Ezekiel's Message of Hope.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Ezekiel's Message of Hope.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Will the Right Finally Win?

Ezekiel's final vision, chapters 40 to 48, exhibits a comprehensive view of the restored order when the Messiah shall hold sway over the whole earth. Our lesson for today is but a small part of this vision. It can be understood only in the light of the whole. The following outstanding facts should be noted:

1. The restored temple (chs. 40-42).
2. The return of Jehovah. (ch. 43).

3. The arrangement of the services of the temple (chs. 44-46).
4. The river flowing from the temple (47:1-12).
5. The land apportioned among the people (47:13-48:29).
6. The holy city (48:30-35).

In the attempted interpretation of this vision, some five different views are held. The one preferred by the present writer is that it is a prediction of the temple which shall be erected in Messianic times. The literal view prevents wild speculation and at the same time permits the fullest figurative application. In fact, the Holy Spirit gives the interpretation of the waters flowing from the smitten rock (I Cor. 10:4) in such a way as to leave no doubt as to its meaning. The river flowing forth from the sanctuary typifies the river of life, the salvation of Christ flowing forth to the world. Observe:

I. The River's Source (vv. 1, 2).

It flows forth from the house—the restored temple where God has come to dwell. It flows from the divine presence. This flowing of the waters is miraculous. So is the eternal life which proceeds from Calvary's cross. Because Christ is divine, His shed blood has power to give life. It is to be noted that the stream came by way of the altar (v. 1), showing that eternal life for the world proceeds from God by way of the cross. Perhaps the deepest mystery of life is how life can spring out of death. Despite its mystery, the student of the Holy Scriptures and of physical science knows that life out of death is the philosophy of the universe. "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone."

II. The Deepening River (vv. 3-5).

The deepening and enlarging is without any tributaries. For the first quarter mile the depth was to the ankles. By the time it had reached one-half mile it was to the knees. Till the distance of three-fourths mile was reached it was to the waist, and at the end of the first mile it was too deep to ford—"waters to swim in." The spiritual truth to be derived from this figure is that the life and salvation which have flowed forth from Calvary made vital by the Holy Spirit, have widened and deepened through the centuries and dispensations. This is especially true of the individual who yields himself to the Holy Spirit.

III. The Healing Effect of the Waters (vv. 6-21).

There is life in the progress of this river. "Everything shall live whither the river cometh" (v. 9). It flows from the altar toward the east country down into the desert and into the Dead sea. "The region of the Dead sea which has been the embodiment of barrenness and desolation, in the coming day is to be changed into a scene of life and fruitfulness."—Gray.

1. Trees on the banks of the river (vv. 7, 8).

Just as vegetation flourishes near the river, so wherever Christ's salvation is witnessed to in the energy of the Holy Ghost, life comes. This has been true throughout the centuries of church history. The details of fruitfulness are enumerated in verse 12.

2. Everything in the waters shall live (v. 9). Wherever the stream flows, there shall be life.

3. The waters of the Dead sea shall be healed (v. 10). Fishers shall gather from the Dead sea even as from the Mediterranean. The gospel brings life to those in trespasses and sin. The world is dead and therefore in need of the life-giving stream from Calvary.

Christianity

The distinction between Christianity and all other systems of religion consists largely in this, that in these others men are found seeking after God, while Christianity is God seeking after men.—T. Arnold.

Memorial to Alabama Dead Soldiers Be Erected at Birmingham Stadium

ALABAMA WAR MEMORIAL

Through three administrations of Birmingham Post No. 1 of the American Legion there has been uppermost in the minds and hearts of the officials of that Post the erection of a suitable War Memorial to the sons of Alabama who lost their lives during the World War. With the cooperation of the City Commission of Birmingham, the contract for this Memorial has been let, and the work has actually begun.

This memorial is to be in the form of an attractive and impressive entrance to Legion Field, the great municipal stadium of Birmingham. On Tuesday, May 14, the first shovelfuls of dirt were lifted in beginning this work, by several of the Gold Star Mothers of Birmingham. At this impressive ceremony all the members of the City Commission, a number of the officials of Howard and Birmingham-Southern Colleges, representatives from the American Red Cross, American Legion, American Legion Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, United Spanish War Veterans and a number of other interested organizations, together with a large group of friends, were present to participate in the solemn and impressive ceremony of the occasion. The Memorial is to be finished sometime in October or early in November, and will be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies at the time of the annual Howard-Birmingham Southern football game on Nov. 23, 1929.

It has been estimated that approximately 2,650 natives of Alabama lost their lives during the World War. The officials of Birmingham Post No. 1 are now busy compiling a list of these deceased comrades, and it is desired that this list be fully complete and accurate. The names of these comrades who gave their all are to be inscribed on bronze tablets on both sides of the monumental gateway entrance.

It has been determined that the names of all those who were killed, and all who died of disease from the time America entered the war on April 6, 1917, until the Armistice was signed, and who lost their lives from any cause while actually in the service until the formal declaration of peace with Germany, July 2, 1921, shall appear on these Memorial Tablets.

As already stated, this is an undertaking of great importance to the entire State of Alabama. It is not our purpose to limit the names on the tablets to the sons of Jefferson County, but we want to make it, a perpetual and enduring memorial in which ALL of the 67 counties of the State may claim an interest. We feel that the surviving relatives of any soldier, sailor or marine who lost his life during the period mentioned, would like to see the name of this honored relative on the War Memorial in the City of Birmingham. That is why we bespeak your careful attention and cooperation in this important matter.

A list of those comrades of ours from your county whose names, according to our present records, are entitled to appear on this perpetual memorial, is printed below. It is hoped that the readers will study this list, and if they find that we have omitted a name of a soldier, sailor, or marine entitled to this recognition according to the requirements set forth above, it is hoped that they will fill out the form at the end of this article and mail promptly to "Post No. 1, American Legion, Birmingham, Alabama."

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

RUTABAGAS SHOULD BE PLANTED IN JULY

Of the vegetables to be planted this month, rutabagas should surely not be overlooked. Most every family enjoys eating this vegetable, but so few take advantage of our opportunity to grow them. Rutabagas should be planted during July. Select a low piece of ground for this vegetable and plant at a time when there is plenty of moisture in the ground, if possible. Plant in rows just as you would ordinary turnips to facilitate spraying or dusting for the control of insects that might appear. Plant lice are usually the only serious enemies of the rutabaga, and they can be controlled by dusting with nicotine or spraying with nicotine sulphate at the rate of two teaspoonfuls to one gallon of water.

Crowder peas and snap beans should be planted this month. There is quite a scarcity of crowder pea seed in Alabama this year. However, these seed may be had, and this crop should prove very profitable from the standpoint of markets as well as very enjoyable for home use.

Cabbage plants should be set this month for fall harvest. The late Flat Dutch (Drumhead) is a good fall variety. Collards should also be planted this month and treated about the same way as cabbage.

If you have not already planted tomato seed for your late crop, it is suggested that you use cuttings instead of planting the seed this late. Many prefer to use cuttings for the late crop instead of setting plants. Sizes being equal, the cuttings will produce fruit earlier. For rooting these cuttings, a bed of sand four or five inches deep is preferred. This should be so located that it will partially be shaded and convenient for watering in case of very dry weather. Cuttings should be taken from the tenderest shoots, cut into pieces four or five inches long, and placed in the bed as prepared. These cuttings will begin to put out roots almost at once and should be transplanted to the field about ten days after placing in the bed. If the plot of ground set aside for this crop of tomatoes contains sufficient moisture, or if there is much rainfall at this time, the cuttings may be rooted directly where they are to grow. Moisture is the limiting factor in the growth of all young plants at this season, and this is true with the cabbage and collard as well as the tomatoes.

In many sections of the State the Mexican Bean Beetle is causing quite a bit of damage. This pest can be controlled by dusting with one pound of calcium arsenate and nine pounds of hydrated lime, thoroughly mixed, and applied while the dew is on. This material must be dusted on the under side of the leaves, since the pest feeds on the under side. As a precaution in keeping down the number of beetles, all bean vines should be destroyed as soon as they stop bearing.—Julian Brown, Extension Horticulturist.

JACKSON CHAPEL

The Sunday School at this place seems to be progressing nicely. We received seven new members last Sunday, which made us twenty-seven enrolled, and we hope to have more next Sunday.

There are several in this community who have not visited the Sunday school, neither have they sent their children. Of course that is their business, but we feel that Sunday school is of great necessity, for we are commanded to study to show ourselves, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed.

We should be proud of the opportunity that is given us to meet in Sunday school and study the Word of God that we may know His commands and that we may also keep them.

The Bible tells us that if we love our Master we will keep his commands. Therefore, it is necessary that we meet in Sunday school and study to show ourselves workmen who are not ashamed.

We should also study that we may not be deceived in ourselves, and that we may not be tossed about with all kinds of doctrines, but that we should hold fast to the faith that was once delivered to the saints.

As we read in the thirty-third chapter of Ezekiel that he was set a watchman unto the house of Israel to warn the wicked from his way, and if he warned not the wicked and the wicked died in his iniquity his blood would be required at the watchman's hands. This passage of scripture makes me believe that every father and mother of this land and country are set watchmen unto their children to warn them from the wickedness of this world and that they should bring them up in the way that they would have them to go; and if they warn not their children the children's blood will be required at the parent's hands.

Fathers and mothers should be very careful as to the example they set before their children, and one of the best ways to warn them from the wickedness of the world is for father and mother to turn from the wickedness themselves, and do that which is lawful and right. Now, we hope to have a number of fathers and mothers out at Sunday School next Sunday with their children that the Sunday school may be a success and that God may have the glory and honor and we may have the blessing. Sunday school will begin at 2 o'clock p. m. We ask everybody to be there on time if possible.—Secretary.

THE CLOCK THAT TOLD A STORY INSTEAD OF THE TIME

A CLOCK that does not run nor tell time but that does tell a story has been added to the Edisonia exhibits which Henry Ford is collecting for his Historical Museum at Dearborn, Michigan. It hails from the Fort Myers laboratory of Thomas A. Edison and is of the vintage of the early eighties.

The works of this clock were removed by Mr. Edison immediately after he purchased it. He also replaced its face and its pendulum with cross-sectional pieces of log. Originally the clock was a rather good-looking timepiece, being enclosed in a walnut case of ornate design. Edison's face-lifting operation upon it did not improve its appearance but it portrayed very graphically his aversion to "clock watchers," and he preferred to have it tell that story to his assistants than to tell them the time.

Mr. Edison's other early laboratory was at Menlo Park, New Jersey, where both Edison and his assistants frequently worked for more than 24 hours at a stretch. It was in this laboratory that the incandescent lamp and numerous other inventions were worked out. The successful lamp, it is reported, was the climax of forty hours' continuous work.

Both the Fort Myers and Menlo Park laboratories have been removed to Dearborn, where they will be seen by distinguished visitors on October 21st, when the fiftieth anniversary of the invention of the electric light is celebrated there. Mr. Edison himself will be the guest of honor that night at a banquet which Mr. Ford is planning as his personal tribute to his old friend.

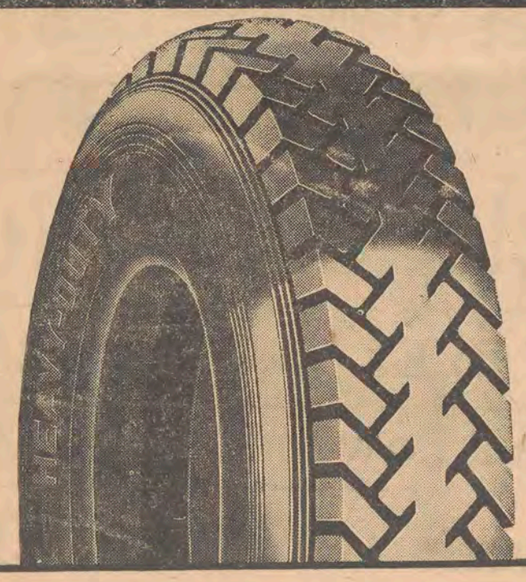
THE SITUATION IN A NUTSHELL

When Ramsay MacDonald is prepared to pledge Great Britain to observe the rule of freedom of the seas for all neutral commerce in time of war, the United States will gladly give the same pledge. From that moment the size of the British navy as compared with the size of the American navy will be an academic question of no practical importance. Each government will provide for its needs, without reference to the other's needs, and neither will menace the other. They can readily agree to reduce their fleets and save much money.

Until such time as the security of American neutral commerce is otherwise assured, it will be safeguarded by warships and the navy will be increased to that of any other navy, whatever it may be.—Washington Post.



WHY KEEP IT UP?

The condition of the Nebraska bank guaranty fund goes from very bad to much worse. It has been decided by the supreme court that notwithstanding the insufficiency of the fund to pay claims, interest of seven per cent a year must be allowed to any depositor whose claim against a failed bank has been allowed previously. The guaranty fund now has unpaid claims of ten million dollars. Seven per cent a year on this fund is $700,000. The assessments that the fund is allowed to levy on solvent banks are insufficient to pay interest, not to speak of the principal. How is the fund ever to extricate itself from this imbroglio?

The courts have held that the former heavy assessments are confiscatory. If, by some means, the present relatively low assessments are increased, the burden will drive more banks into insolvency. Nebraska ought to confess that its bank guaranty experiment is a failure and it ought to terminate the experiment, and compensate, or at least partially compensate, the depositors.—Chicago Journal of Commerce.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

FRANK P. LITSCHERT

That there is no panic or depression in the offing so far as the United States is concerned can be gathered from a reading of Secretary Mellon's statement on the budget surplus for the fiscal year which closed on June 30. This statement revealed the fact that instead of a deficit which had been anticipated several months ago there was a budget surplus of $185,000,000. It was also shown that during the fiscal year the national debt was reduced in the sum of $673,000,000.

Mr. Mellon's statement sets out that the aggregate of tax receipts including customs, income tax and miscellaneous internal revenue receipts was $176,000,000 greater than in 1928. Income tax receipts aggregated $2,330,000,000, as against $2,174,000,000 in 1928, an increase of $156,000,000, and the report declares that "there was a remarkable increase, amounting to about $200,000,000, in receipts from the current individual income tax. Until the returns have been analyzed, it is impossible to assign definite reasons for this abnormal increase, but generally speaking, it was unquestionably due to widespread prosperity, the cumulative results of the reduction of surtax rates to a more reasonable point, and more specifically to increased income realized on the sale of capital assets due, in the main to an exceedingly active and constantly rising public security market.

"Customs duties, including the tonnage tax, yielded $602,000,000, as compared with $569,000,000 in 1928 and the Treasury estimate of $582,000,000. The increase is accounted for, in large measure, by the impending change of our tariff rates, experience having shown that imports tend to increase prior to tariff legislation."

With this unexpectedly large surplus, reports immediately began to be put in circulation in Washington to the effect that there would be shortly another reduction in the income taxes. It is not believed however, that any such reduction will be made until after the returns for 1930 are in, at least. It is pointed out that a part of the increase in income tax receipts this year may have been due to increased earnings by the public on the stock exchange. There is no assurance that the returns will be as large in another year, and in addition there may be considerable call on the Treasury due to farm relief. For these reasons it is not thought that the administration leaders will favor further income tax reduction at this time.

At the same time it has been announced that President Hoover favors a budget for 1931 which will not exceed the total which has been set for the fiscal year of 1930. There has ben a trend in the past year or so toward an increase in governmental costs and the President has sent notice to the department heads, it is said, that they will be held to full responsibility in this move to keep the expenses in 1931 down to the budget provided for in 1930.

This action, too, will meet with general public approval. It is to be expected, of course, that there will be mounting costs of government within the next few years and it is of course wise policy to keep the expenditures down to the lowest level consistent with public service. That the national debt has been reduced so materially during hte past few years, while at the same time there has been a reduction in taxes, says a good deal for the constructive policies which have been followed. Today the United States has the highest standard of living for a great nation in the history of the world. Our present prosperity is due in no small part to the policies, at home and abroad, which our government has been following during the years of post-war reconstruction.

Watermelons—yes, you see them on every hand by the truck loads. And large patches of fine ones are in evidence all about; the Enterprise community always raises lots of fine ones, and this year they are exceptionally fine. Arthur Chandler has a three-acre patch that is fine to look at, and so has L. P. Cagle. From the way the Strouds and others are hauling them away from down there, they are plentiful and fine all over Enterprise community.

ECONOMY TO CONTINUE

President Hoover's announcement to the heads of departments and independent government establishments that he expects the estimates for 1930-31 not to exceed the total of those for 1929-30 is a timely warning that the Harding-Coolidge policy of economy is to continue. The fiscal years of 1928-29 ended with a surplus well over $100,000,000. although twice since July 1, 1928, a deficit has been indicated. Intensified bureau and department savings on current appropriations and fortunate increases in individual income tax receipts in March and June again pulled the Treasury through. Once more a substantial surplus is to be applied to the reduction of the national debt.

The country hopes to see the Harding-Coolidge record of debt extinction maintained through the next four years. The President is rightly confident that the government will be able to go on living within its income. The fedeal service has been so indoctrinated with the Dawes-Lord budget philosophy that it now practices economy of its own volition and takes pride in combating avoidable expenditure. The Two Per Cent Clubs and the Woodpecker Clubs testfy to the new spirit of efficiency and economy which radiates from Washington and which may some day penetrate to Albany and other state capitals.

The 1929-30 budget is limited to $3,780,719,647. It is true, as President Coolidge pointed out at one of the budget gatherings last year, that with the expanding governmental demands there is little prospect of holding annual expenditures below that figure. Mississippi Valley flood relief, naval construction, the public building program and income tax refunds have added to the charges of the last two years. Ths year the Postoffice deficit has been abnormally large, and under a Supreme Court decision heavy refunds have had to be made to the railroads for underpayments for carrynig the mails. But the income tax refunds have probably passed their peak and there is no sign of a slackening of prosperity and a consequent drop in tax receipts.—New York Herald-Tribune.

AIRPLANE ESTIMATES OF STANDING TIMBER

Montgomery, Ala., July 15.—To estimate the amount of standing timber from several thousand feet in the air appears to be an extremely difficult achievement, but nevertheless it can be done within a reasonable limit of accuracy, points out the Alabama Commission of Forestry. The medium of accomplishment in such cases is the aerial camera.

An air photograph taken from a great height shows many markings that possess little meaning to a beginner. Photographers experienced in this line of work, however, are able to interpret everything shown in the photograph, including the various shades and degrees of density. This enables them to identify the predominant species of trees in the forest, it being quite easy to distinguish between pines and oaks and other varieties.

Merely identifying the principal species as shown on an air photograph, however, is a simple process compared to ascertaining the approximate amount of timber in board feet. Looking straight down upon the leafy tre tops would appear to yield little information as to the diameter and height of the stems. The aerial timber estimators, however, have not been daunted by this difficulty. By taking photographs of a large variety of timber stands and later estimating the board feet content of these areas by ground methods, they have been able to correlate the appearance from the air as shown in the photograph with certain stands in board feet per acre. This requires a great deal of experience and skill, but the results are sufficiently accurate to inform lumbermen as to whether certain areas contain stands of timber of sufficient density and quality to warrant exploitation.

LUXURIES IN U. S. A.

It is said that the citizens of the United States have developed a taste for luxuries since the war. They smoke many more cigarettes, they eat vast quantities of ice cream, and the production of perfumes and motor cars has greatly increased. These seem for the most part innocent tastes enough, and scarcely of the kind that would warrant the local Jeremiahs in prophesying the swift downfall of the nation which indulges in them.

One does not hear so much in these days of the somewhat ostentatious ways of the new-made millionaire. I once heard of one who complained that the diamond hobnails on his boots wore out his cloth of gold carpets. Nowadays the very rich buy old masters rather than spend their money on more useless show, which is far better, especially for those who sell the old masters. As to the people who eat ice cream, they seem to do very well on it. Perhaps if we ate more we might play golf better and cut more ice generally.—London Mail.

KATIE WYATT'S BIRTHDAY

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me space to report what a good time I had on my birthday last Sunday. I was first of all, glad to have present a large crowd of my friends. A big dinner was prepared, the table was fixed and the blessing was asked by my grand father, Mr. Jack Powell.

I had a birthday cake and Clifton Mims and Amherst Powell guessed the prize.

After dinner we had plenty of watermelons and music. We had a mighty good time. I hope to have my friends with me again on my next birthday.—Katie Wyatt, Clanton, Rt. 1.

J. M. Deramus of Maplesville was a visitor to Clanton Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cary Baker of Tarrant City have been visiting relatives and friends in Clanton during the past week.

PAINFUL INDIGESTION

"I SUFFERED a good while before I found something that would help me," writes Mr. E. W. Berry, of Neosho, Mo. "My trouble was indigestion, pains in my chest and a tight, bloated feeling that would make me feel smothered.

"Speaking of this to a friend of mine, he told me that Black-Draught was good for this trouble. I went over bought a package. It certainly did help me, so I continued to use it.

"I am in the transfer business, and sometimes when I would be hungry and ready to eat, I would have a call and would have to eat later. Then I would eat too much or too hurriedly. This would cause indigestion. After I started using Black-Draught, I found it did me a world of good. It is splendid for biliousness and stomach troubles."

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

SUBJECT: "WHY BEHOLDEST THOU THE MOTE THAT IS IN THY BROTHER'S EYE, BUT CONSIDEREST NOT THE BEAM THAT IS IN THINE OWN EYE?"

The text this morning is found in the 7th chapter of the Gospel according to Matthew and the 3rd verse: "And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?" The chapter begins with these words: "Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again."

Jesus, as we read in the 5th chapter of the Gospel of Matthew, seeing the multitudes, went up into a mountain: and when he was set, His disciples came unto Him: and He opened His mouth and taught them the words in the 5th, 6th, and 7th chapters of the Gospel according to Matthew. We call it the Sermon on the Mount. It is the constitution of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ. In it we are taught what He taught His disciples that day, how to live, act, speak.

The text teaches us that Jesus commands us not to judge our brother, meaning that we are not to criticise our brother. Judging one and criticising one are twin sisters, and criticism and lying are brother and sister. The devil is described as the father of lies. Then his child of criticism is a descendant of the father of lies.

Criticism began as far back as the Garden of Eden. God told our first parent not to eat of the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil. The devil criticised that statement of God by saying to our first parents, "God is wrong, you eat of that tree and you will not die, but live forever." Since that day criticism has been going about like a roaring lion seeking whom it might devour. It has been following Christians and barking at them like hounds of hell.

Think a minute of the sources of criticism. The sources of criticism is of the devil. Envy is a friend of the devil and a great deal of criticism which we hear and with which men are thrust is from envy. For instance there are famous musicians. One will play and then another one performs. Someone at once begins to criticise by saying that the one who played first was the best musician. Now this very critic no doubt is no more of a judge of good music than a dog is of Sunday.

Some men envy others of their smart children. Many envy their fellowman of their wealth, their health, their brain, mind. As a fruit of this envy they criticise. They critcise them of their position in life. Sometimes we hear this: "How did he or she ever get that position? I am sure that he is not smart." It is said that other nations are envious of America's prosperity and have sharp things to say about America and its citizenship.

Another source of criticism is idleness. We read that an idle brain is the devil's workshop. God made Solomon write a good bit of advice to the idler in these words: "Go to the ant, thou sluggard, consider her ways and be wise." It is an idle brain then that criticises. This leads us then to say that criticism is unkind, un-Christian, un-Christ-like.

We heard of a town in which there was a boys' and also a girls' school. The women of that town had servants and very little to do. They spent their time in criticising. They criticised the attainments and accomplishments of the school set. They criticised the last concert which the music study class gave. They criticised the last drill given by the athletics. They had nothing else to do so they just created a spirit of criticism.

The reason the Athenians criticised Paul at Mars Hill was because they had nothing to do but to stand around the market place of the town and gossip over that which did not concern them. Right here I wish to say that another source of criticism is ignorance, lack of knowing the facts in the case, for the want of information. The Athenians did not know about Paul's God, the God of the universe.

Ignorance is one of the checkers of civilization. It is one of the giants that tears down character. It discourages men who are trying to make the world a better place in which to live. We find this criticism in all walks of life. It is right with us regardless of what we do. And remember this that the men who do it are the very ones who do the least to advance God's Kingdom and church. They spend their time criticising, but this should not discourage us, for if God be for us who can be abainst us?

The question is how are we to meet criticism? Suppose I just tell you how Jesus met criticism. In that period of ignorance Christ received more criticism than any man who was ever born of a woman. He was not silent when they criticised Him. It is erroneous to say that Christ met criticism silently. When they criticised Him by saying that He broke the Sabbath law, He turned and said to them, "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath."

The Sabbath was made to help man physically and spiritually. It was made as a day of rest for man. It was made as a day of Holy rest and worship to God to develop the spiritual nature of men. It was not made for a day to make money. It was not made as a day for men to satisfy the lusts of his flesh. It was not made for men to engage in worldly things. It was not made for men to cultivate a spirit of amusement, and satisfy his carnal desire for amusements.

Jesus said, "When David was hungry he ate the shew bread. Now why could I not pass through the wheat fields and satisfy my appetite by gathering the grain and eating it? I will cleanse the leper on the Sabbath. I will open blind eyes on the Sabbath. I will heal the paralyzed on the Sabbath day. It is lawful to do good on the Sabbath day."

Another criticism which was hurled at Christ was that He ate with publicans and sinners. Jesus was not silent to that scathing criticism. He said, "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance. They that are whole need not a physician, but they which are sick." They criticised Christ for what He taught. They said, "Never man spake as this man. No other man said, 'As ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them,."

Christ continued to speak and the common people heard Him gladly. He answered the criticisms which they brought against Him with words of truth. Some of them said, "You claim to be God and are therefore guilty of blasphemy." He answered by saying, "I and the Father are one. He that hath seen me hath seen the Father. My Father works and I work. I do the works of my Father. The Father loves the Son and giveth all things into His hands."

Now how are we to meet criticisms which cripple our hearts and impairs our usefulness. I have talked to you about the sources of criticism, and of how Christ met it. Now some criticisms are for correction and help. If that is the case it does not pain the person to whom it is thrust. But the majority of criticisms are just like javelins thrust through the heart.

Christ was not silent to criticism neither should we be. If we tell the truth, if we act the truth and live the truth, the truth will triumph it does not make any difference how much criticism we meet. For forty years an one month people have criticised me. If the criticisms are lies I just say quietly and calmly that it is a lie. If I think it is done in ignorance I make it a matter of prayer, and never make any reply to it.

If I think a criticism is done to cripple my work I just keep on doing the same thing. Paul was criticised for preaching Christ and the resurrection. He met the criticism by continuing to preach Christ and the resurrection. The writer has received many letters of criticism for speaking on certain things which he knew to be against the laws of God, and things which ruin character. The way I meet that I pray over it and continue to preach on the same topic. There is nothing to do but to face the issue with the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

As I have already said there are criticisms to be met in all walks of life. We meet criticism among housekeepers. It is among the business men and women. We find it among bankers, among farmers, among school teachers, among lawyers, among stock raisers, among musicians, among physicians, and I reckon among dogs. One finds it everywhere. It is among preachers.

I heard one of the greatest preachers since the time of Solomon. He had criticisms thrown at him from every side until he was very weak. All of the doctors which they called to examine him said they could not find out what was the matter with him. His loved ones sent him to his old home and the old family doctor said, "John is dying of a sick heart." Criticism sent him to his grave. But remember that criticism should not discourage us. We must meet it boldly. Since criticism is of the devil, and it is the devil's business to cripple the Christian and the institutions which are doing the most service for Christ; the church is criticised all the time. If she were not I would say that she was just sitting on the side of the road doing nothing.

Mr. W. F. Chambers of Warsaw, Ga., was a visitor here Saturday. Mr. Chambers used to be at Maplesville with Twin Tree Lumber Co. He is now with Warsaw Lumber Co. at Warsaw.

Mr. William Rudolph Baker of Birmingham was in Clanton Saturday. Mr. Baker is just up from an illness of four weeks.

SAFETY

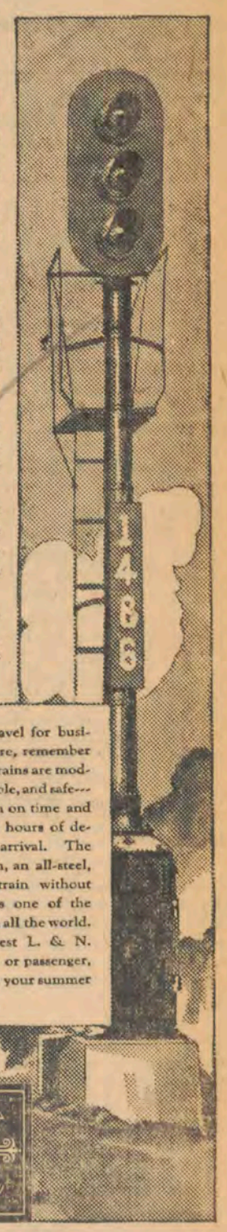
Here are facts and figures respecting the safety record of which the L. & N. Railroad may be justly proud.

ITS PUBLIC RECORD: During the last nine years the L. & N.'s trains have carried 123,549,000 passengers an average distance each of 57.4 miles without one single passenger having been killed in a train accident. That is equivalent to hauling nearly 7,000,000,000 passengers one mile without a fatality. In 1928, L. & N. trains carried 7,418,093 passengers an average distance each of 71.8 miles without a fatality, and with only 37 passengers injured in accidents.



ITS PRIVATE RECORD: The number of casualties among the 48,000 L. & N. employes in 1928 was 1,250, or a reduction under 1927 of 54%. In the mechanical department, with 18,000 employes, a reduction of 70% was made. Six of the 33 shops went through the entire year without a reportable injury and 10 of the 21 operating divisions made safety records of 100% for periods of one calendar month. Included in one of these divisions were the South Louisville shops where 4,000 men are constantly employed.

In the American Railway Association contest to reduce accidents 35% by the end of 1930, the L. & N. has nearly doubled this percentage two years ahead of time, by the end of 1928, with a reduction of 68%.

In the Railway Employes National Safety contest, sponsored by the National Safety Council, the L. & N. ranks fourth, with a rate of 10.68, the road holding first place having a rate of 8.00.

Needless to say that "eternal vigilance," the price of safety, must be maintained, and to that end the L. & N. and its employes, in addition to the constant installation of improved automatic signals, automatic train control, and other safety devices, and intensive activities through a continuous safety campaign, pledges its untiring support and appeals to its patrons, friends, and "everybody" to Always Be Careful.

When you travel for business or pleasure, remember that L. & N. trains are modern, comfortable, and safe—trains that run on time and at convenient hours of departure and arrival. The Pan-American, an all-steel, all-Pullman train without extra fares, is one of the finest trains in all the world. Let the nearest L. & N. agent, freight or passenger, help you plan your summer vacation trip.

CARD OF THANKS

Editor Union-Banner:

We take this means to thank our many friends and relatives for their kindness and sympathy shown us during the sickness and death of our baby, Jack Morgan, and the beautiful flowers.—Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Dennis, Jemison, Ala.

Mr. J. N. Scott of Jemison, with a party of relatives, returned last Thursday from a week's visit to relatives in Lawrenceburg, Tennessee. Mr. Scott reports a most interesting trip. While in Lawrenceburg he attended an old time singing at the courthouse. Crops are good up there, much later than ours, according to Mr. Scott.

Messrs. Charlie Foshee, Greer Culver, Mack and Jack Culver returned last week from an automobile trip to Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas. The object of ther trip was to make a visit to Hot Springs and to see the country along the way. They went by way of Vicksburg and Pine Bluff, returning the northern route through Little Rock and Memphis.

Mr. S. R. Powers, superintendent of the power plant at Lock 12, left this week for a two weeks vacation trip to Chicago. He was accompanied by Mrs. Powers and son, Bobby. They are traveling by automobile.

WEST CHILTON

Well, West Chilton is still on the map, politically, industrially and otherwise.

Mr. E. G. Cofer has returned from an extended visit to Birmingham. His daughter, Mrs. Scott, came down with him.

Mr. John F. Armstrong is still confined to his room with heart trouble.

Mr. and Ms. Ralph Martin came down for the 4th on a visit to L. G. Posey.

Hoyt Freman, B. F. Rasberry and son are gone to Oklahoma on a visit.

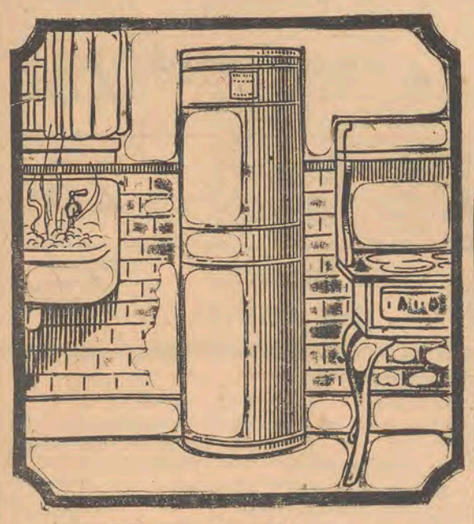
Mr. and Mrs. Hodgens attended the big singing at Camp Branch in Shelby County on the 4th.

Miss Bevie Smith of Birmingham was expected to come down on a visit to her mother, Mrs. Hubbard Saturday evening.

We noted with interest Mr. Headley's letter in a recent Banner on birds and insects. It contained a world of truth. The slaughtering of birds just for fun is surely both unwise and wrong. Now the insects are taking us.

Miss Modene Waldrop of Beat 2 is assisting John S. Waldrop in his store near Randolph.

We noted with sadness the passing of Hon. L. B. Pounds. We concur with The Banner that he was a man of brilliancy. Yes, far above the average along that line. He was a man of deep thought. Self-made, of course he had imperfections like other people, and under a withering fire those imperfections would manifest themselves, yet his heart was noble and kind. Mr. Pounds was a man of vision, and a greater writer never lived in Chilton County. His work as Tax Assessor was beautiful. He served one term n the Legislature of Alabama. He was sympathetic with the poor and needy. He was fearless and brave. His vision was beyond the average.



Mrs. Bessie Martin Bates of Slyacauga is here holding Gospel services. She labors with zeal and earnestness appealing to people in this, the end of the ages, to reform.

Mrs. Emma Sims of Boothton came by the other evening en route from Selma to visit her brother, Mr. Armstrong.

Rev. W. W. Robinson of Providence, Beat 16, was in town Monday.

BOY SCOUT ITEMS

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees of Thorsby Institute held on Thursday of last week it was unanimously voted to sponsor a troop of Boy Scouts for Thorsby. (Every troop of Boy Scouts must be sponsored, or under the supervision, of some permanent organization, such as a school, a church, or other responsible body to which the National Council of the Boys Scouts of America can look for proper functioning of the troop.)

Their first duty is to select for and elect a Troop Committee consisting of not less than three reputable citizens to act as a governing Board for the Troop, also to elect a Scoutmaster and his assistant or assistants. The men elected by the Board were C. M. Williams, J. Monroe Smith, and G. W. Leslie, all of whom have promised to accept this service and do all they can to carry forward. Mr. H. R. Maddox of Thorsby Institute and A. D. Leckie, Cashier of the Bank of Thorsby have been chosen as the men who will probably be elected for Scoutmaster and Assistant Scoutmaster respectively.

There is some literature to be procured from which the boys who desire to become Scouts must learn certain things before they can be admitted as members of the Troop. We understand that this literature has been ordered from headquarters in New York and as soon as possible there will be a meeting for the boys with the duly elected officers who will specify the time and place. Mr. S. E. Norton was also appointed by the Board to represent them in Boy Scout matters.

Many people will remember Mrs. Locy, as the revivalist in charge of the meeting held last spring in the court house. From that meeting she is well known to most of the people of Clanton and surrounding territory. In this meeting she will be assisted by Rev. Harold D. Bessonnette, a graduate of the Bible school at Angelus Temple, and an excellent preacher. Just as Mrs. Locy was closely connected with Aimee Semple McPherson for years as a helper in actual preaching, Rev. Bessonnette likewise was closely connected preparing the paraphernalia for her illustrated sermons, for which she has become famous. Mrs. Locy's sermons here last spring were excellent, but she comes this time with an entirely new series, and by having Rev. Bessonnette present to prepare materials for her, those who attend the coming revival may be assured they will be well worth coming to "see" and hear. Other workers are expected to be present, also.

Through the generosity of Mr. F. B. Goodgame, his enormous warehouse has been secured in which to hold this meeting. This building should be large enough to accomodate the crowds expected. The court house fell far short of holding the people at the meeting in April, but no such condition is expected this summer. Free camp ground has been provided for any who may wish to attend from long distance.

More complete details will be given next week as to hours of service, etc. The meeting is being widely advertised, and good crowds are expected.

BONDSMEN IN SHELBY BOOZE CASE WITHDRAW

Ask Relief After Long Is Jailed On Dope Charge

Bondsmen in the prohibition conspiracy case of James L. Long, former chief of police at Calera, who is now being held at the county jail in default of $5,000 in a narcotic case, surrendered the bond for $3,000 Monday afternoon.

The bondsmen, J. W. Bevis and H. T. Brown, withdrew the bond in federal court here, after Long was arrested last week in an alleged narcotic violation involving 15 ounces of morphine.

C. J. Falkner, former sheriff of Shelby County, and H. C. Moss, former policeman under Long, are now under $5,000 bonds each in the narcotic case. Falkner is under $3,000 appeal bond in the liquor case.

Mr. W. Quitman Childress of Liberty Hill was in Clanton Tuesday.

FIRE AT MAPLESVILLE

The planing mill and lumber business of Mr. Guy Higgins at Maplesville was destroyed by fire last Thursday night. It was stated that about a million feet of lumber was consumed by the flames.

The fire fighting apparatus of Clanton was sent to hold the fire down and keep it from spreading to other nearby property.

SINGING SCHOOL AT CONCORD WILL BEGIN MONDAY

Prof. L. T. Grant Will Open School. Singing at Church On Sunday Afternoon

The people of Concord community are thoroughly sold on singing schools; they scarcely ever let a summer pass that they do not have at least three weeks of singing school. And they always get among the best teachers obtainable. Among the teachers they have used in the past are: W. H. Robinson, Jno. L. Gore, James Franklin, Jno. M. Dye, James Henson, H. M. Eagle, J. D. Patton, W. M. Devaughn, O. L. Devaughn, and Frank Stamps. Of course Concord can not claim fully the credit for these schools, because they were aided materially by Walnut Creek, Temple, Poplar Springs, and other nearby communities. It was through the efforts of all these communities combined that the schools at this place netted such favorable results.

This year they have centered upon Prof. Luther T. Grant of near Coopers to steer the good old ship, and he must be eminently competent to pilot it through successfully. Prof. Grant helped W. M. Devaughn in a school at Concord schoolhouse in 1910, and every year since that time has taught from one to three schools with the exception of one extermely congested year during the World War. Somewhere between 25 and 30 schools are to his credit, the big majority of which were taught in Chilton County. A number of good singers and teachers of Chilton and adjoining counties either had their beginning with Prof. Grant or attended one of his schools during the progress of their musical education. He has taught in the best communities of the county, including his home church and community at Chestnut Creek, Coopers. He has taught more schools there than any place else, which shows the confidence and esteem that the people who know him hold in him.

To say the least of it, Concord is fortunate in securing the services of Prof. Grant to teach their singing school. It begins next Monday, July 29th, and will run either 20 or 24 days, whichever is asked by the patrons and pupils of the school. The usual tuitions will be charged as are in other singing schools.

In this connection The Union-Banner is asked to announce that singing will be held at the Church next Sunday afternoon, beginning at two o'clock. This is not the regular time for the society to meet, but inasmuch as the school opens Monday, other adjoining communities have given way and will join Concord in trying to make a good show for the informal opening of Prof. Grant's school. The singers of the county are urged to attend and help make this one of the best afternoon singings of the season.

And those who wish to attend the singing school and who have not already taken up the matter with Prof. Grant should do so at once. He will be glad to talk over the matter with you and tell you all about the many good things he hopes to do for the cause of sacred singing at Concord this summer.

ORGAN RECITAL AT METHODIST CHURCH

Mrs. Beatrice Pate Wright of Birmingham will give an organ recital at the Methodist Church in Clanton tonight, Thursday, July 25, at 8 o'clock. Tickets have been on sale at Polk Brothers Motor Co., this week.

The public is cordially invited, with the assurance that the entertainment will be highly interesting.

Boy Died From Fractured Spine

The sad death of little Charles Norman Martin, 4 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Martin of Lock 12, occurred at the Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton last Saturday night.

On the previous Sunday night the little boy was playing and fell off the bed. His father and mother noticed that his neck was hurt; before long the child became paralyzed in one side. He was brought to the hospital and an X-Ray picture made; which showed that one vertebra in the child's spine was fractured.

The remains were buried Sunday in the City cemetery near Thorsby, Martin in charge.

Officers Get Still Near Macedonia

Late last Thursday evening State officer Harvey Foshee with Sheriff Collins and Deputy Murrah came into town with three white men and one liquor still. The men were: Leon Hughes, Hickman Hughes and George Lewis; the still was a 100 gallon copper outfit, and according to Officer Foshee was made on the same order of those usually found in Coosa County.

The men were arrested while putting up their beer at the still just at the rear of Macedonia church in the northwestern part of this county. Two of the men live near Billingsley, a distance of about twenty-five miles from the still. The third one lives near the still. All three men were placed in jail and later released on bond. The officers say that these men moved to Chilton County from across the River about a year ago.

TRIED IN MAYORS COURT FOR V. P. L.

John Owens and Lee Nunley, two negro men, were tried in Mayor's Court before Mayor Hart Monday morning. Owens was fined $50 and cost, all amounting to $84.50. He was given three months suspended sentence for good behaviour for the town, and is now working out his time on the streets.

Lee Nunley's case was continued to next Monday, July 29th. Both faced a charge of violating the prohibition law. They were arrested Saturday night and were placed in the county jail until time for their trial Monday morning.

Rev. Toy Williams Here Next Sunday

Rev. J. Toy Willims, missionary to China will deliver his farewell message to home-folks in Clanton next Sunday morning at the Clanton Baptist church, eleven o'clock. Rev. Williams will leave in a few days on his return to China, and this will be his last message before setting sail to the Orient.

A special invitation is extended to all friends of Mr. Williams throughout Chilton County to attend the services and hear his parting message.

IS IT DISCRIMINATION?

One day last week, if you looked close enough, you perhaps saw in some of the daily papers, a minute news report from Canada stating that a certain Province of the Dominion had voted on the whiskey question, which resulted in a big majority in favor of the drys.

We would like to ask those daily papers if they really intended to hide that bit of news from the eyes of the public.

Why do they not give such news that is favorable to prohibitionist advocates the same front page prominence as they give to items that encourage the wet propagandists?

If that province had voted wet, we would most surely have seen it reported in front page headlines with editorial comment to boot.

J. T. ELLIS SELLS FILLING STATION

Wofford Oil Co. Purchasers of Valuable Property On The Highway In Clanton

Mr. John T. Ellis gives out a statement this week saying that he has sold his filling station and three adjacent lots to the Wofford Oil Company. The property included in the deal is located on the Birmingham highway just north of the Maddox Gin.

For some months yet Mr. Ellis will continue to operate his business there selling Sinclair products. When delivery of the property and equipment is made to the new owners it will be converted to the sale of Woco Pep and other Wofford products.

Together with the sale of the Ellis property the Wofford Company gets the lease on a filling station which Mr. Ellis has been holding and operating on the south side of town.

This transaction on the part of the Wofford Oil Company is considered as one of great business importance, since it will put Woco Pep right on the Birmingham - Montgomery Highway available to the many motorists who pass this way. Heretofore there has not been a Woco Pep station right on the highway in town.

16 PEOPLE HURT IN AUTO WRECK

Martin's Ambulance Picked Up Victims and Carried Them to Hospital

Martin's ambulance was called 3 miles above Calera Monday night about 8:30 to take some wreck victims in to Birmingham. Two big cars, a Chandler and a Buick, had run together with serious consequences. One of the cars had nine people in it and the other had seven.

The seriously injured were Mrs. R. A. Balentine and Mrs. R. W. Balentine, who together with seven others were in the Chandler car on their way from Birmingham to visit someone in Clanton. Mr. Mike Thomas was also pretty badly injured. Mr. Thomas with his family of six besides himself was headed north from Cairo, Ga. They were traveling in a Buick car.

Both cars were almost completely demolished. Mr. Martin reported that he reached the scene about 9 o'colck, only a few minutes after the accident, and the men, women and children lying all around on the ground, groaning and taking-on, presented a most gruesome spectacle. The injured were administered first aid by Drs. Curtis and Lawrence, who also assisted in getting the occupants of the two cars back to Birmingham.

The two Balentine women and Mike Thomas were carried by Martin to the Baptist Hospital in Birmingham. All the rest of the passengers of the two cars were more or less injured in various ways, but were not so serious as to have to be carried to the hospital. One little child about four years old was said to be quite badly bruised up.

7 ARRESTED FOR SUN. GAMING

Seven superlative brunettes were arrested by Chief Boockholdt and his son last Sunday afternoon, while they were engaged in a game of those galloping dominoes in a negro house a short distance from the Clanton Baptist church.

The negroes were: Homer Green, Sylvester Payton, Julius Chatman, Walter Roberts, Cliff Oden, Herman Stobe, and Jink Pearson. They were all released on bond, and appeared before Mayor Hart Monday morning. They were each fined $5 and costs.

HEAVY INROADS MADE ON LIQUOR

57 Stills Smashed and 34,200 Gallons of Beer Destroyed In Raids Last Week

State law enforcement officers destroyed 57 stills and poured out 34,200 gallons of beer which was being made ready for distillation during a series of raids in 12 counties during the past week, according to reports received by Walter K. McAdory, chief supervisor of the law enforcement department, Saturday. Twenty-seven stills were destroyed in Shelby county.

The raids constituted the largest drive made on distillers in Alabama by the state department in one week for many months. Tuscaloosa county furnished the second largest number, seven.

Counties in which raids were conducted with the results follow:

Report Of Kiwanis Club Meeting With Farmers At Collins Chapel

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton met at Collins Chapel schoolhouse last Thursday night, where about 80 of the farmers of the community had been invited as guests of the Club. Luncheon for the occasion was prepared by the ladies of the community, and it must be said to the credit of these women that their part of the affair was the biggest success of the whole entertainment. There is indeed no entertainment for a man that is more pleasant than eating such fine things as were there in super-abundance.

This was one of the meetings on the program of the Kiwanis Club to go into different rural communities and get better acquainted with the farmers. The program was planned and carried out along the line of better understanding and closer friendship between the man on the farm and the man in town. Several speeches were made with this as the subject. Some very valuable ideas were brought out by the discussions.

Collins Chapel makes the claim that it is the best rural community in Chilton County. In order to become convinced that this is a fact one needs only to attend such a meeting as the one held there Thursday night.

Among those who made short talks were County Commissioner John Bean, Andrew Davis, Perry Gore, Reuben Jackson, all farmers of the community. Zack Appleton, principal of Collins Chapel school, welcomed the Kiwanis Club on behalf of the community. C. E. Stapp, president of the Club, expressed in a very impressive way the spirit and purpose of Kiwanis in reference to the farmer and his business and social problems.

The principal speech of the evening was made by Mr. Hayden, agricultural agent of the L. & N. Railroad. Mr. Hayden proved to be a most interesting speaker.

Mr. Jasper Dennis of Clanton and Prof. J. P. Montgomery of Jemison offered some most encouraging remarks along the idea of modern farm and home development.

The following members of the Kiwanis Club were present: H. G. Boyd, C. B. Cox, V. J. Elmore, A. L. Farley, B. R. Goltsman, M. F. Jones, J. Mell Martin, J. R. Mullins, Evan Parrish, P. M. Pitts, W. M. Polk, Geo. C. Polk, Reedie Taylor, E. E. Upchurch, T. L. Williams, W. A. Willis, W. M. Wyatt, Raymond C. Smith.

A number of special guests of the club were Dr. Samuel E. Johnson, Supt. Buford Lawrence, Sheriff J. D. Collins, L. E. Diefenderfer, J. N. Dennis, J. P. Montgomery, Billy Smith.

The following is the list of farmers who were invited as guests of the Club:

M. C. Jackson, Wilbur Bean, Geo. Davis, Mat Benson, Miles Benson, Wallace Hill, Vollie Littleton, S. A. Littleton, Zack Appleton, Lee Smith, Cecil Smith, H. E. Robinson, Reuben Jackson, Elijah Mims, Charlie Roper, J. D. Cox, George Burnett, Cobb Burnett, R. S. Burnett, Robert Jones, Perry Cleckler, Walter Smith, Phillip Gentry, Ottis Robinson, Carter Willis, John Caton, Herlie Mims, Andrew Davis, Edgar Davis, Perry Gore, John Bean, C. D. Collins, Martin Gore, Dalton Martin, Zeb Lockhart, Wash Heflin, Bennie Davis, Milford Gore, Floyd Gore.

Several of the farmers named in the invitation were not present, but their places were taken by a number of others who came at the special invitation of some friend.

T. L. Robinson Buried, Verbena

The remains of Mr. Tillman L. Robinson were laid to rest in the Verbena cemetery last Thursday afternoon. The funeral was held in the Verbena Baptist church, conducted by Rev. Arthur DeLoach.

Mr. Robinson died at his home in Verbena about three o'clock Wednesday afternoon. He had been suffering from a severe stroke of paralysis for nearly a week, the latter part of which time he had been apparently unconscious and unable to speak.

The deceased was born in this county not far from Clanton 71 years ago. He joined the Baptist church at Providence 45 yeas ago, and had been a deacon in the Baptist church for 30 years. His membership was moved from Providence to Salem, and from there to Verbena.

T. L. Robinson is survived by his aged wife, Mrs. Lafadra (Calloway) Robinson, five sons and two daughters. The sons are: Alfred L. Robinson of Mitchell Dam, Jasper and Lee Robinson of Verbena, Jim and Ethan Robinson of Verbena Route 2; Mrs. E. A. Norris of Corinth community and Mrs. Ed Connell of Coopers are the two daughters. One daughter, Mrs. Blackwell, of Elmore County, died some three or four years ago. Two brothers survive him, Riley Robinson and W. Henry Robinson of Providence.

ERIC HART IN HOSPITAL

Mayor Eric Hart has been at the Central Alabama Hospital for the past week recovering from a minor surgical operation. He is getting along well and will be out again in a few days.

Apology to Burkhalter Family

Mr. W. J. Huett of the Floyd community informs The Union-Banner that the family of Mr. Evan Burkhalter is offended at the manner in which this newspaper reported the death of Mr. Burkhalter last week.

It is stated that they object to our mention of the manner in which Mr. Burkhalter is said to have gone barefooted in order that people might know he was the man with the fine watermelons. Mr. Huett further states that it is a mistake; that Mr. Burkhalter did not go barefooted when he carried his melons to the cities.

By way of explanation we will say that this report about the unique manner which Mr. Burkhalter used in connection with his melons was given to us by a lifelong friend and acquaintance of the man; and we are sure that it was not his intention, and we know it was not our purpose to cast any reflection upon him or his family by mention of the same.

We extend our apology to the Burkhalter family. We do not think the public will construe our remarks as defamatory of Mr. Burkhalter. We are sorry that our publication has offended the feelings of the family. Especially do we regret the occurence as it came at a time when they were in deepest sorrow at the loss of a good husband and father.

REVIVAL BEGINS AT FRIENDSHIP

Clanton Quartet Will Furnish Special Music Next Tuesday Night

The special attraction at the summer protracted meeting at Friendship will be that Mr. Bill Culp and his Clanton Quartet will sing as many selections as will be appropriate for the services on Tuesday night of next week.

As has been published before, the meeting begins the fourth Sunday at 11 o'clock. The pastor, Rev. A. L. Foshee, will preach Sunday and Sunday night; Rev. Holland of Bessemer will occupy the pulpit Monday at the 11 o'clock service and from then on until the close of the meetings, according to present arrangements.

Mr. Herbert W. Lowery, prominent singer and choir director of Clanton, will conduct the singing at the evening services. Mr. Lowery is well known, and everyone who knows him is aware of his ability as a singer as well as to get those about him to do the same thing. Try to arrange to attend as many of the services at Friendship next week as possible.

24 OPPORTUNITY SCHOOLS MADE A PROMISING START

Total Enrollment of 419 Entered in Opportunity Schools During First Week

Twenty-four opportunity schools for adults in Chilton County were off to a good start, according to figures gathered by Prof. H. A. Harris covering the first week of school activities. Much interest is found to be developing in the work, according to Mr. Harris, and every indication points to a wonderfully fine program of work in the schools for this summer.

Mr. Harris reports that some of the schools are below the standard and must increase their enrollment and attendance if they are to continue. He expects, however, that the second week will show every school in the county to be up to the requirements in this respect.

It is requested by Mr. Harris that each community check up on its school, and if found to be lacking in any particular, to get busy at once and make it better. The people and the teacher in the community are the only ones who can do this. Every community that has been given the chance at one of these schools certainly ought to take hold of the matter and put it over successfully. There is nothing that can be of greater value to the community.

The following is given out by Mr. Harris as showing the enrollment made at each of the schools for the first week which ended last Friday:

Providence, Beat 13	8
Baker	19
Fairview	19
Concord, Beat 4	14
Cane Creek	14
Pinedale	26
Mt. Pisgah	28
Shiloh	19
Mars Hill	43
Pate's Chapel	14
Flint Hill	18
Vermont	31
Oak Grove	17
Union Grove	17
Pleasant Grove	20
County Line	19
Thomas Junior	7
Smith Schoolhouse	14
Shoults	13
Enterprise	5
Coopers	23
Collins Chapel	14
Mineral Spring	10
Isabella	7
Total	419
Total average attendance in all schools for the first week	275

It is reported that when school opened Monday morning for the second week, a number of the schools that show a low enrollment in the above table registered an increase that puts them well up in the average.

Preach at Thorsby

Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Thorsby Baptist Church, will preach Sunday in the Grammar school building at Thorsby, and a large attendance is very much desired, as business of importance will be brought before the church. The Building Committee will make a report and ask for action so they can proceed with the work. It is very evident that ground will soon be broken and that a church will be erected that will be a credit to the town of Thorsby and the community.

Singing Convention At Maplesville, Ala.

Mr. Herbert W. Lowery, president of the Chilton County (Modern) Singing Convention, asks The Union-Banner to announce that the fall session of the convention will be held at Maplesville, in the high school auditorium, on Sundy, September 1.

Mr. Lowery is now at work making the arrangements to get some prominent quartets and noted singers present at that convention, and the prospects look promising for one of the best conventions ever held anywhere in Chilton County.

The public will be informed from week to week as to the progress of the arrangements for the convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Alva Wade and children of Birmingham visited relatives in Clanton last Sunday.

Mrs. Frank Callen and Mrs. John DeRamus were visitors to Birmingham this week.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

TO BUY OR NOT TO BUY—NOT "HOW EXPENSIVE?" BUT HOW EFFICIENT?"

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

A man fed from a solid gold table service will be no better nourished than if his food were taken from dishes of the heaviest and cheapest earthenware, neither will he rest any better in a bed made of mahogany than he would in a bed made of pine. By the same token, poultry get along no better if raised with the aid of expensive devices rather than something far cheaper. As a matter of fact, homemade devices serve just as well in many cases as anything one can buy.

Of course there is ample justification for buying factory made equipment made of such materials as galvanized iron or earthenware. As a rule, it is more sanitary and also more durable. It is often essential, however, to keep the investment for equipment as low as possible. If so, the right kind of homemade equipment will serve just as well as the most expensive factory-made article. Moreover, with but little more effort, if any, it can be kept clean and sanitary. As an example, I have some nests made from ordinary soap boxes that have given satisfactory service more than ten years continuously.

Troughs, which are undoubtedly the most generally used of all feeding appliances, are also easily made by the home workman. A number of excellent factory-made troughs are also available if wanted. The familiar V bottom trough made entirely of wood is, I believe, the most commonly used for feeding wet mashes as well as the easiest to build. It is very good, too, because feed can not lodge in the corners. Whatever material or style of construction is used, a grating of some sort should protect the food so the fowls can reach it easily, but can not roost over it or get their feet in it. All feeding troughs and water vessels should be up off the ground or floor, on platforms or racks, so the chickens can not scratch litter and dirt into them.

The reel hopper is best for dry mash feed. This can be made by making an open box 12 inches wide, 7 inches high at each side, and any length required up to 12 or 14 feet. Have the ends of this box project up 7 or 8 inches and hang a reel in the center of these end pieces four inches square, which will prevent the chickens from roosting on it and will keep them from getting into the box or hopper with their feet and still permit them to eat the mash feed. On the top of each side have a lip project into the box at least 3-4 of an inch. This will keep the chickens from wasting the feed. It should be upon a platform where the hens can jump up and eat from each side.

In addition to the various kinds of troughs and hoppers which can be of homemade construction, there are several very practical styles of homemade drinking equipment which are more or less satisfactory. Drinking vessels should be made of tin, galvanized iron, glass or crockery. A wooden vessel or trough is not easily cleaned or sterilized; therefore, should not be used for either water or milk. An ordinary pan, bucket, or pail can be used for a drinking vessel or excellent sanitary dringing fountains can be bought from any dealer in poultry supplies. If homemade equipment is used, be sure to protect it in some way so the fowls can not get in the water with their feet or turn it over.

For watering poultry, the best plan is to build a platform 24 inches square and have it up 20 or 24 inches from the floor. Make a round hole in the center of this platform just large enough to let a tapered galvanized pail or bucket haly way down in the hole, and the chickens can jump up on all sides of this platform and drink. A platform can be made 2 feet wide and 6 feet long, if desired to accommodate three pails. Plenty of pure, fresh drinking water should be available at all times, convenient for the hens to find.

Space is lacking to describe even briefly the various other accessories which may be desirable in the poultry yard. All of them may, as a rule, be made at home of simple material and at very little cost if so desired. Not only does the maker of such equipment effect a worth-while saving, but I know from personal experience that he gets a whole lot of genuine, personal enjoyment out of making his own equipment. He has the additional satisfaction of knowing his percentage of profits will be greater because his investment has been kept as low as possible.

Recent news from Uncle Remus, nee Mr. C. T. Walker, of Shoults, says that an awful hail storm hit him last Friday afternoon. Only a small territory was struck, but it seems to have left considerable sign in its wake.

A recent report from the census department at Washington says there are 1,793,474 cotton mill spindles in Alabama. Of this number it is reported that 1,744,589 are active at this time. It will be noted, therefore, that there are comparatively no idle cotton mills in this state.

Misses Louise and Nell McRae of Montgomery helped us in a wonderful way with the music during the week.

TO THE DEAR OLD FARMER

How is your crop by this time? Have you a good prospect for a bountiful harvest. You know, if we fail the wheels of industry will fail. It is a fact that we farmers have to support our families and every industry, profession and official under the sun. Are we getting a fair deal by them? I say no. We made industry rich and powerful by keeping our nose to the grindstone and giving them more of our profit than they are entitled to. We have placed our professors far above us by giving them a good soft position and a large salary for a little service compared with what we have to do, and we are their servants and they our bosses.

Next we come to our officials. Some of them are so crooked it makes some of us think that our government is not what it ought to be while we have the best government in the world. We are to blame for putting men in office that are crooked. Haven't we an ex-governor who was caught with a bunch of prohibition violators, and he went unpunished and still holds a high position? What about the highest official of Chilton County being at the home of the next highest official to the governor and there offered wine and Scotch liquor by the wife of that home and that home was not molested so far as law enforcement is concerned. But if the Sheriff of the County happens to catch a poor old farmer sauntering around an old still or near by one he is arrested, taken to jail and later tried in the courts and convicted and handcuffed and chained to another criminal and marched to jail and there await for the big criminal truck to take him to the pen to serve a year and one day. And if an old farmer knocks another old farmer in the head and kills him it doesn't make much difference, so long as he is kin to the sheriff and has a lot of relatives who stands in with the court house ring. His case is handled in a way that he gets a light sentence and then is turned loose and allowed to go when and where he pleases, and the poor wife and little fatherless children are left to fight the battles of life without a husband and father.

Doesn't such conditions prove to any old ignoramus that it doesn't matter so much what a man does, but the main thing is who was it that done it. Now, some one may bob up and say that our officials should not be criticised, and the people of Chilton County owe credit to them. I say they owe credit to the people of Chilton County. Let the farmers of Chilton County make the platform on which every official of the county should stand, and then see that they stand on it. Dear old farmer, let us look facts right square in the face. You know, by their fruits we shall know them.

How about electing officials next year who are connected with farming only. You know we could do it, why not? Now if there is anyone that doesn't think the farmers should control the affairs of Chilton County please let me hear from them.

In conclusion, let me suggest that we old farmers pray God to help us elect good honest, God-fearing statesmen to serve our country who will not give Class enforcement of law, but enforce the law to all alike regardless of Class, race or color.—Yours for a change, Old Ignoramus.

Mr. R. D. Woodson of Lock 12 left on No. 3 last Thursday afternoon for New Orleans, where he will be in a government hospital for treatment perhaps several weeks.

TEXAN TO TALK FARMER'S WEEK

Auburn, Ala., July 22. — Dan Scoates, professor of agricultural engineering at A. & M. College of Texas, will tell Alabama farmers how low cost cotton is produced in Texas during farmers' week at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, August 5-10. Prof. Scoates will speak twice to all the farmers and farm women visiting Auburn. His addresses will be illustrated with moving pictures.

He will show and explain the methods Texans have adopted to reduce the cost of growing cotton. By a judicial use of farm machinery many of the cotton growers of northwest Texas grow cotton at a very low cost. They use two-, three-, and four-row cultivators. Some of them use machinery to harvest the crop.

Cotton growers of Alabama are beginning to feel the ever increasing competition from Texas. That state now produces approximately one-third of the United States' crop, and produces it at far less cost than Alabama produces its crop.

Prof. M. L. Nichols, head of the agricultural engineering department at Auburn, believes that in certain sections of Alabama, where large, level fields prevail, farmers will profit by following in the footsteps of Texas in the use of machinery. In fact, he says, some Alabama farmers are already finding they can reduce cost of production by using two-row cultivators.

Prof. Scoates understands the problems confronting Alabama gorwers as well as those confronting the farmers of his own state. Before going to Texas he was for 10 years head professor of agricultural engineering at Mississippi A. and M. College. In that state he came in contact with cotton growing conditions similar to those of Alabama.

Thirty-eight nations have protested against the proposed high rates in the new tariff bill now before the United States committee of finance. Among the nations protesting are Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Austria, Spain, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, the Netherlands, and practically all the countries of Latin America.

JULY RAINS HELP TIMBER

Montgomery, Ala., July 22.—The South's long growing season is one of the features that makes this region the chief timber growing section of North America, says the Alabama State Commission of Forestry. The period of rapid growth does not depend wholly upon temperature limits but also upon the amount of moisture available.

In addition to warmth and moisture young growing trees require sunlight. In Alabama it happens that the warmth, light and moisture required for the best development of tree seedlings in the forest come at just the right times to give the best results. March is the rainiest month of the year and naturally affords abundant moisture for seed germination. However, the clouds of the winter season are largely dissipated by April and the sunlight that is badly needed by the young seedlings is sufficiently available to aid rapid growth.

Precipitation falls off materially by May allowing still more light to each the young trees. In June the rainfall increases. However, the rains of this part of the year are in the nature of thunder showers which keep the sky clouded but for a comparatively short time, still allowing plenty of moisture. July is the second wettest month of the year. However, the days are long during this season and there is abundant light between showers. The temperature, also, is such as to permit continued growth of forest seedlings. The total of these conditions contributes enormously to the phenomenal timber productivity of Alabama's nonagricultural lands.

CAPITOL News

Alabama's progress along educational lines was outlined to educators from all parts of the country by Dr. John W. Abercrombie, Assistant State Superintendent of Education, in a recent address before the National Education Association at its annual meeting at Atlanta.

"A long step in providing needed funds for educational purposes in Alabama was taken by the Legislature of 1927 under the leadership of Governor Bibb Graves and State Superintendent of Education, R. E. Tidwell." Dr. Abercrombie said, "The unified education program, which was prepared by the legislature committee of the Alabama Education Association, of which committee Superintendent Tidwell was chairman, was accepted and made an administration measure by Governor Graves. The bill embodying that program passed the Legisiature by a practically unanimous vote. As a consequence, every branch of the public school system from lowest to highest has been tremendously improved.

"For the current quadrennium (1927-1931), legislative appropriations for elementary and secondary education will exceed those of the preceding quadrennium by 145.7 per cent; for institutions of higher learning, by 291.9 per cent; for elementary and reformatory institutions, by 145.2 per cent; for all educational purposes, by 188.4 per cent.

"Within the past decade the annual expenditure for elementary and high schools has increased by 375 per cent; the value of public school property, by 400 per cent. The school term has been lengthened by 25 per cent. The average enrollment has increased 25 per cent; that in high schools, by 300 per cent. The average attendance has increased by 40 per cent; that in high schools, by 440 per cent.

"The last federal census showed that from 1890 to 1920 Alabama reduced her white illiteracy by 66 per cent, her colored illiteracy by 54.7 per cent, her average illiteracy by 60.7 per cent. Our population is 38.5 per cent colored. It is believed that this record has not been excelled by any other state in which similar conditions have obtained.

"More and more the people of Alabama are recognizing that education is a state as well as a local responsibility; that every child, regardless of accident of birth or place of residence, is entitled to an equal chance in life with every other child; that without equality of adequate educational opportunity there can be no equal chance; that the more a state taxes itself for education the better able will it be able to tax itself for all purposes.

"All the states are definitely committed to the policy of providing universal education at public expense. All are making commendable progress. However, owing to variations in wealth, income, and ability to bear taxation, when all districts, all counties, and all states shall have provided to the limit of their powers equality of educational opportunities for all children within their respective jurisdictions, there will exist gross and retarding inequalities between districts, between counties, and between states.

"These inequalities will not be removed until adequate education programs, local, state and national, have been formulated and executed, programs that will guarantee equal educational advantages to all the children of all districts, all counties, and all states without imposing upon any district, county or state, a tax burden materially heavier than that born by any other."

Michael Cody, prominent Montgomery financier, has been appointed by Governor Graves as a member of the State Banking Board, succeeding W. S. Garner of Ozark. Mr. Garner has resigned to accept the position of Probate Judge of Dale County. Mr. Cody is one of the state's best-known bankers and is president of the Union Bank & Trust Company of Montgomery.

L. D. Carlton has been appointed warden at Wetumpka Prison, succeeding T. A. Wall, resigned. Mr. Carlton has served for 20 years as deputy warden at Wetumpka.

Satisfactory progress is being made in erection of the fifteen toll bridges which are being built by the Alabama Bridge Corporation under authority of an act of the last legislature. According to H. H. Houk, Bridge Engineer of the Highway Department, four of these bridges, on the upper Tombigbee and upper Coosa Rivers will be opened, according to present expectations, before the end of this year, and the balance early in 1930. The amount of tolls to be charged has not yet been fixed, but will be only sufficient to retire bonds issued for construction of the bridges, after which they will be free bridges.

It's rather remarkable that the newspapers which seem to be afraid Uncle Sam will get into a tariff war if a new tariff bill is passed are the newspapers which favor little or no tariff of any kind.

SPELLS OF BACKACHE

"I HAVE used Cardui at intervals for sixteen years, when I suffered from weakness, and it always helped me," says Mrs. J. W. Jinright, R. F. D. 2, Troy, Ala.

"Mostly I was afflicted with bad spells of backache. At times I felt as if my back would break. I would drag one foot after the other, in a helpless sort of a way, and once I got down in bed. My husband urged me to take Cardui, and I soon found what a fine medicine it really was.

"When my second child was little, I was in very bad health. I did not pick up as I should have. I was weak and sickly. I do not believe that I would have come through, but for Cardui."

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.

M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

HAVE YOU AN UNMARKED GRAVE?

How unthoughtful is he who permits the remains of a loving Mother, Father, Sister, Brother or a little Child to rest in an unmarked grave with nothing to distinguish that hallowed spot from the commonplace surface of the earth, indifferently trampled by man and beast. Great comfort will be gained by consecrating the spot where sleeps the departed with a beautiful and lasting monument.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

SUBJECT: "IN THEE SHALL ALL FAMILIES OF THE EARTH BE BLESSED."

In the 12th chapter of the book of Genesis beginning at the first verse you read of the conversation God had with Abram. The whole conversation is properly called Abraham's call to be a child of Jehovah. In this call which was in Ur of Chaldea God said to Abram, "In thee, that is, in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." This is certainly one of the clearest, one of the outstanding prophecies concerning the coming of the Messiah who was the descendant, on the human side, of Abraham.

Abraham would not only be blessed by the families of the earth, but his children, his grandchildren and his great grandchildren and on down the line would be saved from sin. Isiah looks down through the centuries and beholds this eypected Messiah and Good Shepherd of Israel, Jesus Christ and writes of a part of His mission in words like these: "He, the Good Shepherd, will gather His lambs in His arms and carry them in His bosom."

That means that Christ would take the little children in His arms and carry them to the heights of heaven in His bosom. The person who wrote the hymn: "Safe in the arms of Jesus; Safe on His gentle breast." certainly had in his mind this wonderful prophecy in Isiah which was used by the prophet to describe the relationship of the child of God to Christ, the Good Shepherd.

In the 12th chapter of 2nd Samuel we read of the death of David's child. As the Hebrew text says the child went to sleep. David in deep trouble and sorrow for the child besought God, and fasted all night upon the earth for the child. But after the child died he arose from the earth, washed and anointed himself, changed his apparel and went into the house of the Lord and worshipped. Then he came to his own house and did eat as the bread was set before him, saying, "While the child was yet alive, I fasted and wept thinking that God might be gracious to me and let the child live. But now the child is dead, wherefore should I fast? Can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me."

David's son was then housed in heaven. David went to the house of God and in prayer to God he would receive the comfort which God alone can give in the hours of sorrow. Jeremiah used an expression which is also quoted in Matthew, "A voice was heard in Ramah, lamentation and bitter weeping; Rachel weeping for her children, refused to be comforted because they were not. Rachel was the wife of Jacob and in this verse she is the representative of the Hebrew women weeping for their children six centuries later when their infants were slain because of the heartless, cruel Herod in Bethlehem. Matthew 2:17.

Somewhere around the shores of Galilee Jesus was walking and some parents who loved Him were bringing their little children to Him. Some o fthe disciples urged solicitude on the part of the parents and requested that Jesus be given rest and time away from the children. But Jesus rebuked them by saying, "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not; for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." Today He is saying, "Suffer your children to come unto me. Suffer them to come unto me from your homes, from their play in the yard. Suffer them to come unto me when they go to sleep at night."

He gathered them in His arms and blessed them, and then He said, "Even so it is not the will of your Father which is in heaven that one of these little ones should perish." How comforting that is to parents. What more could Christ say to them to assure them of His kind and loving, watchful care of their precious children? When they leave their earthly parents they are only asleep in the bosom of Christ up in heaven Every infant, every baby on this earth is saved in heaven. Christ Himself said this. He also said, "Behold, their speaking of the little children—angels behold the face of the Father in heaven.

When the Philippian jailer came in to Paul and Silas on that memorable night when the shackles fell off their arms and set them loose in the jail, he fell at their feet, and said, "Sirs, what shall I do to be saved?" They said to him, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved and thy house."

The promise of salvation was not just simply for the jailer, but also for his family. Paul writes of it unto the household of Stephanus. O, what a precious Jesus we have. He can take care of your little girl or your little boy, and He does take care of them. He takes care of the one He came down from heaven one night and took unto Himself. Don't trouble about the child because it is saved, but trouble about yourself.

The fact that so many Jews took their children to the temple and dedicated them teaches that the promise of salvation was not simply for them, but also for all Gentiles, even for them who are afar off. Remember that the household of Cornelius was saved which represented that salvation was also to the Gentiles. The record is that Cornelius and his household was saved. Now Cornelius was a Gentile.

Paul in writing to Timothy says, "From a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures which are able to make thee wise unto salvation. It was taught thee by thy grandmother, Lois, and the mother, Eunice." He here emphasized the attitude of a pious mother and grandmother and no doubt a grandfather. Again when Paul was at Philippi on the first day of the week he went out on the bank of the river Gaggitas and met Lydia and some other women who were assembled for prayer. Lydia was a business woman, a seller of purple in the city of Thyatira. She and her household were saved. The family is a type of the family in heaven, and the house of the house not made with hands eternally in the heavens.

CENSUS WILL BE A BIG JOB

The year 1930 will be of unusual interest to all of us because it is the year in which the official census will be taken. All of us will be glad to know how much the old town has grown in ten years, especially if it has grown vigorously and well. An interesting story of the preparations being made for taking the census, together with a history of our census taking will be found in the current issue of the National Republic. It was written by William M. Steuart, Director of the Bureau of the Census of the United States Department of Commerce, under the title "Uncle Sam to Go Visiting." In setting out the history of the development of our census taking in America, Mr. Stuart says in part:

"Some three thousand years ago King David set out to number the people of Israel and Judah. It took nine months and twenty days to make the count, and the returns showed 1,300,000 'valiant men that drew the sword.'

"At the beginning of our own national existence, we took a census approximately equal in magnitude to that taken by King David. The United States marshals, to whom the task was assigned, were allowed 13 months for the enumeration, and returned a total population of a little less than 4,000,000. The census of population was established as a decennial event by the Constitution of the United States, and is the only current statistical inquiry which rests on such fundamental legal authority.

"Prior to 1790, the date of the first census of the United States, little had been done in any country toward establishing a regular periodic census of population. Since that date, the nations of the world have been developing methods and machinery that make possible a speedy counting of the people and the accumulation at the same time of a vast amount of data regarding educational, social and economic conditions. The development of modern statistical methods has probably gone farther in the United States than in any other country, and the director of the census is required in one month to enumerate 120,000,000 people and to obtain rather extensive information for about six and a quarter million farms, 14,000 mines and quarries, and more than 100,000 irrigation and drainage projects.

"The population of continental United States is now increasing at the rate of 1,400,000 persons per year, or approximately one person every twenty-six seconds. The total increase is made up of the annual excess of births over deaths, which amounts to 1,150,000, and the excess of immigration over emigration, which amounts to an additional 240,000 per year. By 1930 the population will be more than thirty times as great as it was in 1790 and nearly twice what it was in 1890, or only forty years ago.

History records no other instance in which the population has increased so rapidly. Further, there has been no other nation in which the increase in population has been accompanied by such improvement in the comfort and well-being of the people. As a statistician, I believe that this advancement has been due in no small degree to the definite knowledge we have of our production, our resources, our facilities for transportation, and our population, as expressed in current statistics. It is the duty of the Bureau of the Census to compile much of this information and give publicity to it so that every individual and every industrial and commercial enterprise, big or little, may have it and may be in a position to make sure of it."

Automobile manufacturers each year are striving to put out cars which have a quicker getaway. What we really need is a quicker getaway for pedestrians.

ADJUSTED COMPENSATION OR BONUS

All World War veterans who had an honorable period of service of over sixty days (dates of service between April 6, 1917 and Nov. 11, 1918) who have not applied for their adjusted compensation or bonus should by all means make application for this benefit before Jan. 2, 1930. Congress recently extended this time in order that veterans who had not already made application might have the privilege of doing so.

Dependents of deceased World War veterans who died in service or who might have died after discharge and prior to filing application for his adjusted compensation or bonus should file application as dependents prior to Jan. 2, 1930, as the law provides that where a deceased veteran died before making application that his widow, children, mother and father are entitled to make this application. The preferred class of dependents are in the order given: first, the widow, then the children, the mother, the father, in the order named.

BPo,O no wis the time for all good

Application blanks may be secured through the U. S. Veterans Bureau in the Federal Bldg., Birmingham, Ala., or from the sub offices of the Veterans Bureau in Mobile, Montgomery and Gadsden. They may also be secured through the State Service Commissioner's office at 912 Martin Bldg., Birmingham, Ala.

In case there is a doubt as to the preferred dependent or the right to file application the veteran or his dependent should by all means communicate with the Veterans Bureau asking for full information and that application blanks be furnished.

Widows, children, mothers, and fathers, in the order named, are also entitled to make application for dependency compensation if the veteran died in service or has since died after discharge from the army with a service connected disability. This dependency compensation is payable monthly to the class named and is entirely different from insurance. Widows and children of deceased World War veterans are, of course, dependent and when proper application is made dependency compensation is paid. In the case of mothers and fathers, dependency must be shown to exist by evidence as required by the law and regulations governing such claims.

In all cases where the right to file claim for this benefit is not clear the parties interested should communicate with the Veterans Bureau or the State Service Commissioner's office at the address given at which time the claims will be investigated and the right to receive this benefit determined. The local Post of the American Legion will also advise and assist veterans or their dependents in claims if appealed to for their assistance.

He has already taught half of a twenty-day school, and the people of the community are most highly pleased with his work."

RURAL HEALTH SERVICE IN THE UNITED STATES

The United States Public Health Service has recently issued a report dealing with the extent of rural health service in the United States. On January 1,1929, 467 counties or districts were provided with whole time health officers.

As health condtions in a rural community in one State influence those in other communities in that State and in other states,, it seems that all the state governments and the federal government may properly be concerned with the development and maintenance of efficient local health service, throughout our extensive rural area. Local health officers, in doing their work efficiently, necessarily perform duties such as the collection of morbidity and mortality statistics and the carrying out of measures to prevent the spread of infection in intercounty and interstate traffic, for which the State governments and the Federal Government have a degree of definite responsibility.

There are in the United States about 2,500 counties or districts comparable to counties wholly or in considerable part rural to which health service under the direction of whole-time county or local district health officers is applicable and in which such service would be highly advantageous. The number of these units of population in which such service was in operation at the beginning of the year 1929 was 467, as against 414 at the beginning of the year 1928.

Experience indicates that the best foundation for rural health service in the Unted States is the county health department under the direction of a qualified whole time county health officer. It becomes more and more evident to those concerned with practical experience in public health fields that agencies concerned with the promotion of specialized health activities, such as typhoid fever prevention, hookworm control, tuberculosis prevention, malaria control, venereal disease prevention, or child and maternity hygiene can perform most effectively and economically by combining their specific activities in with and making them a part of a well balanced comprehensive program of local official health service under the immediate direction of qualified whole time local health officers.

Efficient well balanced whole time rural health service throughout the United States would cost about $20,000,000 a year. Apart from loss of human life, human health and human happiness, our national economic loss annually in wage earnings and other items incident to preventable diseases because of lack of reasonably efficient county health service is estimated at over one billion dollars. Money invested for well directed whole time county health service yields to the average local tax paying citizen an annual dividend in dollars and cents ranging under different conditons from 100 to 3,000 per cent.

The practical value of previously organized whole time county health units in times of disaster was remarkably demonstrated in the flood in the Mississippi Valley in 1927.

All evidence obtained in the course of prolonged studies of the subject supports the claim that the dollar invested for well directed comprehensive whole time county health service yields to the public welfare more money than any other dollar obtainable by taxation of the people can be made to yield in normal times.

BOOZE AND BOOZERS

Let every soul be subject unto the higher power for there is no power but of God. Whosoever therefore resisteth the power resisteth the ordinances of God and they that resist shall receive unto themselves damnation. Roman 13:1. The man, woman, boy or girl who violates the law of the state, county or United States resists the higher power and if you will read all of Romans 13 you will find out that is not pleased to be moonshiners, bootleggers and booze drinkers for God has ordained the prohibition law and it is a higher power. Let everyone read God's holy word and pray for power to give up sin. It tells us that the law was not made for the righteous, but for the transgressors. I see some good-hearted men that have violated the law and have got to suffer the shame of the penitentiary, and it leaves a stain that never will bleach out. I know men that served out terms in the State prison and have reformed and are good men now, but I hear it said, "He is a good man, now, but it took the pen to make him what he is now." So, men and boys, think upon thy way and turn your footsteps unto the Lord and help make this a good world to live in.—H. F. McCary.

The 1928 Yearbook of the United States Department of Agriculture is now being distributed. Those who can not get a copy from a senator or congressman, or who are not on the list to receive one from some bureau of the department may receive a copy for $1.50 from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printnig Office, Washington, D. AUBURN DAIRY WORK IS TO BE EXPANDED

Auburn, Ala., July 22.—Dr. Bradford Knapp, president, and Prof. J. C. Grimes, head of the department of animal husbandry of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, have announced that Auburn is to have a commercial dairy manufacturing plant. It will be installed in the new animal industry and dairy building which will be erected here during the summer and fall.

"We are installing the new plant," Prof. Grimes said, "in order to give students specialized training in all phases of dairying. We want to train them to fill positions of responsibility in the various dairy plants that are being built in Alabama and other states. In the past—due to lack of equipment—our dairy work has been limited, and many positions in Alabama dairy plants have been filled by graduates of other institutions. In the future our graduates will be prepared to compete with men from any institution in the United States. Only the most modern equipment will be used in the new plant."

Prof. A. D. Burke, now head of the dairy department of Oklahoma A. & M. College, will come to Auburn, August 15, to take charge of the work in dairy manufacturing. The new plant will be under his direction.

Under Prof. Burke's direction butter, buttermilk, ice cream, cheese, Hungarian buttermilk, and condensed milk will be manufactured at Auburn. Students who specialize in dairying will have an opportunity to get practical experience in producing all these products.

As part of the general expansion in dairy work, the college herd, that now comprises 35 cows, will be increased to 56 cows. These animals will be housed in a new dairy barn which will be erected this summer and fall.

Miss Alma Robinson will return this week from a visit of several days to Gulfport, Miss.

BOLL WEEVIL TO REDOUBLE EFFORT

Auburn, Ala., July 22.—Farmers of Alabama may expect an increased infestation of boll weevils in the remainder of July and in August, according to W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. There will be a continued increase n the number of weevils throughout the remainder of the season," he said.

The first generation of weevils, whch began appearing in late June, will continue to come out until the end of the season. In this manner the weevil redoubles his efforts against the cotton crop. When the second generation is out weevils begin migrating.

When infestation warrants it, Mr. Ruffin points out that poisoning with calcium arsenate will pay, if the cotton has been well fertilized. He advises farmers who have poisoned to watch for the appearance of migrating weevils and be present with a dust gun to meet them. Where cotton was poisoned early in the season two applications of calcium arsenate a week apart, using 8 to 10 pounds per acre, should take care of the migrating weevils.

"Fields that have not been attacked should be watched," Mr. Ruffin continued. "Migrating weevils can enter and do much damage in a short time. If as much as a 15 per cent infestation is reached three applications of 8 pounds calcium arsenate per acre, given five days apart, will pay."

THE BEST COMMUNITY IN CHILTON COUNTY

We have heard people of Collins Chapel community say many times in years past that theirs is the best community in Chilton County. It was stated again with emphasis at the Kiwanis Club meeting there last Thursday night. From numerous appearance that are plainly visible, one would be bound to admit that Collins Chapel is fully justified in making such a claim.

It is a good community, with good farms, good schools, and good people. One who is talking to the folks of Collins Chapel alone may say without fear of contradiction or argument that it is the best place in the county. All of them are boosters and are strong for their home community. That is what makes it such a good place.

On our visit to the community last Thursday we chanced to stir around the country quite a bit. We saw the fine homes and farms, the fine school house, etc., all of which any community may be proud. The only thing we saw that did not measure up to the average of the community was the church house.

In all frankness, we are forced to say to the folks of Collins Chapel, if they are going to insist that they have the best community in the county, they ought to have a better looking house of worship. Paint the old building at least.

OPPORTUNITY SCHOOLS

In Isabella community there's a school of opportunity
For the old to learn to read and get the information
They actually need.
They need to learn how to write and get out of darkness into light.
They should make their own calculation.
And get started for an education.
They should not idle away their time,
For the tuition charges are not even a dime.
So, come and learn your lessons fast,
And let ignorance be a thing of the past.

But should be extensively patronized.

In their behalf we drop the sympathetic tear, we fondly cherish their memory; and the working tools which have dropped from their nerveless grasp we take up that we may carry toward completion the glorious work which the Grand Architect of the universe has laid out on the tressel board of life.

We then bow our heads in humble submission to Divine Providence and extend our sympatheties to the loved ones of our deceased brothers.—Respectfully submitted, S. M. Pate, J. W. Hays, T. D. Whitsworth.

Nest Building Time

DORIS looked anxiously at the cheap alarm clock as she shrugged into the thin jacket: "I wonder," she blushed a little as she calculated the time required to walk to the park, if Dick will be waiting?"

Doris had felt much more at home in the crowded city since her chance meeting with her old friend. Dick had left the village years before she had made the plunge, and she felt sure that he had already gained success although he did not make any mention of it.

He dressed very well and had a competent, up-to-the-minute air of affluence. She recklessly squeezed the package of sandwiches she had made from the remnants of her hurried breakfast cooked over the gas flame. She would have hated to have Dick guess that she carried her luncheon with her.

"Oh, Miss Weeks," the landlady's voice hailed her as she opened the front door, "here's a letter I forgot to give you last night. Must have come while you were away."

Taking the letter she inserted her thumb under the flap as she went down the tall steps of the dingy, old-fashioned house. The envelope bore the name of Grisby & Son and her heart pounded as she read it; that was the firm that employed her. All the gayety left her face and the slim shoulders drooped as she slowly read and refolded the letter: "They will keep me on a week longer to give me time to look for something else," she murmured gloomily, "and every firm cutting down expenses and laying off people."

At the entrance to the park she stopped doubtfully. "I'd hate to have him know I've lost my job," she reflected, but she walked on again as she saw the familiar gray overcoat hurrying toward her.

"Hello, Doris! In a big hurry?"

She shook her head.

"Well, I'm not. I've thrown up my job. I only came out here on the chance of seeing you. Dad wants me back in Franklin and I'm going. There isn't anything to this city life. Gee, I'll be glad to taste some real food again. Remember those lemon layer cakes you used to make? All thick with white icing on top?"

"But I thought you were such a success!"

"I'll do better back home, but—" he paused and studied her downcast face. "I've been thinking of going back for some time, but when I found you were in town I kinda hated to go."

Doris did not feel the chill winter air. In her heart had sprung a delicious warmth. She knew now why she had awakened with such a gay zest for each workday; it was so she could reach the park in time for the daily chat before going on to her daily work.

And Dick, also, had been intrigued by the inconsequent chatter in the wide spaces of the windy park where the trees stretched bare. A fat sparrow alighted near them and in her bill she carried a bit of string.

Dick colored furiously: "See there, that sparrow thinks it's nesting time. She is a bit ahead of the season, but it's a good idea. Would you be satisfied to live back in Franklin? I'm going partners with dad."

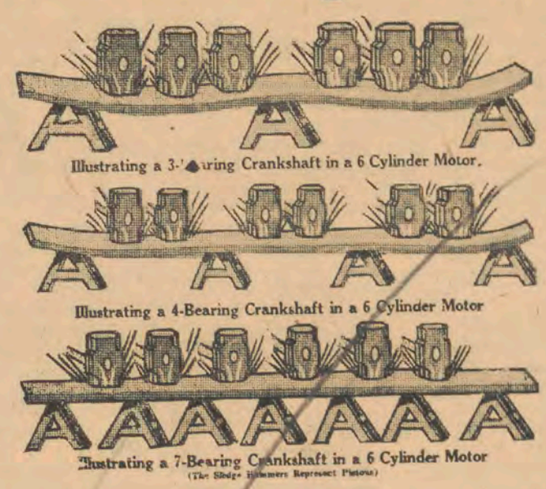
"I'm thinking of going back." Her words came slowly.

Dick stood up very straight: "Is it Fred Miller? I thought that—that is, oh, of course, it is not my business," he ended coldly.

The brightness faded from the day, the chill of the winter and the lost job suddenly overwhelmed her. How had she so misunderstood him. "I have not seen Fred Miller for over a year. I must be getting on. I'll be—" she stopped. She could scarcely be late. Grisby's would not want to see her again.

"Don't let me keep you," his miserable young voice fell dully upon her ears. "Of course, you'll want to marry a city man—"

She had started to rise when the magical word "marry" stunned her with its unexpected entrance into their conversation.



She looked up at him, but he was staring at some late, shriveled leaves that were making ghostly progress over the frozen grass. She wished ardently that he would go on and propose properly, but, instead, he stood dejectedly and in silence. She could scarcely snatch at the magic word and urge him on, but all the time her heart ached with loneliness. She wanted to be back home where the houses wore familiar faces instead of the bleak city wilderness of bricks and granite.

Jumping up blindly because of the unwelcome tears that had suddenly blurred her vision she held out her hand in its much-mended glove: "Well, good—" At that inopportune moment her bag slipped and fell to the ground and burst open. She made a retrieving gesture toward it, then stepped backward in dismay. The soft, round package that she had mercilessly squeezed into it had fallen out, and the stale bread sandwiches, spread with lumpy butter because of the almost freezing temperature of her room, lay exposed for criticism.

"Why, Doris! Do you carry your luncheon? Then you would be willing to save and—" He had grasped both her hands and looked directly into her misty eyes. "Marry a poor man," he finished dominantly.

FATHER GONE HOME

On Wednesday, July 17, 1929, the Lord in His wonderous plans had the death angel enter the home of Bro. T. L. Robinson and carry his spirit to its heavenly reward, leaving a devoted wife, five sons, two daughters, two brothers, number of grandchildren, several graet-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren, and a host of loved ones and friends to mourn our loss.

Bro. Robinson was born in Chilton County, January 9th, 1858, and spent his life in service for the Master. He has been a member of the Verbena Baptist church for seven and a half years, where he has faithfully strengthened its links. In his death the community has lost a highly consecrated fellow worker, a man who was ever ready to do his best. Thru the week of suffering which was caused by a stroke of paralysis, he was not known to complain. He seemed to know the Lord knew best, so like Jesus Christ, he suffered without a murmur.

The funeral services were held on Thursday at two o'clock in the Verbena Baptist church. A great concourse of flowers and friends present bespoke the esteem in which he was held.

May the God of comfort be with the sorrowing loved ones and help them to say, "Thou art gone, dear, loved one; thy face on earth no more we see, but, by the grace of God, the Father, we will come across to thee."

IN MEMORY OF MR. W. P. ADAMS AND CARD OF THANKS

I want to thank the friends and neighbors for their kindness shown through the death and burial of our dear husband and father. We also thank the many friends for their beautiful flowers. It was hard to give our dear husband and father up, who had been so faithful and true to his family. He had been in ill health for two or three years.

But God saw fit to call him home to that sweet beyond where we hope to meet him some day. So a place is vacant in our home which never can be filled and a voice we loved is still; so, may God bless each and every one for their services rendered the 5th of July, 1929.—Mrs. W. P. Adams and daughter, Mrs. Clara Rucker.

NOTHIN VENTURED —NOTHING WON

The present Mayor and Council of Clanton may, after they have finished their term of service as officials retire from that service with a list of things which they hope to see accomplished for the betterment of the Town. Doubtless they will not be able to do all they would like to do or that ought to be done.

One fact is already established, however. The present officials will have to their credit the accomplishment of some most worthy public service for the good of the town.

They started with what was generally recognized as nothing—no chance at all. Today they have on their list of things well done the building of the new Grammar School and the installation of a filter plant that insures the town first class water supply.

And they yet have another year of service in their present term.

WHAT HE LEARNED IN COLLEGE

All capped and gowned, dignified to the "nth" degree, but with a grin struggling through, a proud senior was returning from the graduation exercises of the University of South Carolina. The sad echoes of his last "We hail thee, Carolina," sung within alma mater's walls were still ringing in his ears. In his hands he clutched the hard-won sheepskin.

"I am through; educated!" proclaimed his every appearance.

But this is what he was overheard to say to his companion in the heat and stress of commencement:

"I know just enough to know I don't know anything."

Hasn't this sage young man gathered true fruits of "education?" A peep into the unlimited store of the world's knowledge has shown him something of what he has yet to learn, and, it is hoped, the paths to follow in order to learn more; also if he has had even a few of the right kind of educators, the desire to follow those paths.

Let us hope that many young graduates share the wisdom of this one.—Columbia State.

Human nature changes little, if at all, as the centuries roll on, so far as we can see, and we'll bet it wasn't more than a day or two after Moses had come down from Mount Sinai with the newly enacted Ten Commandments before prominent citizens had made up their minds which to obey and which not.—Ohio State Journal.

It begins to look as if the Senate Finance Committee is going to have a sweet job fixing a sugar tariff.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

FRANK P. LITSCHERT

When we read that the average uninformed European regards America as a land of millionaires where every citizen owns a high-powered motor car and cottage by the sea, we are often mildly surprised and moved to wonder "how they get that way." The explanation usually given is that the American movies, so popular in Europe, have given the people over there an idea of luxurious American life. That American stenographers wear silk hose to work, and that American workers ride to the scene of their labors in six cylinder motor cars, must indeed be a source of wonder to nations in which the majority of the workers are still confronted with the problem of keeping the wolf from the door.

But if Europeans marvel at our prosperity it is equally true that Americans, especially those who do not travel abroad, often fail adequately to appreciate it. In this respect it is well to call attention to a few sentences from an address delivered recently at Jackson, Mich., by Arthur M. Hyde, the United States Secretary of Agriculture, referring as these sentences do, to our prosperity and progress. Mr. Hyde declared:

"The progress of America in the last seventy-five years is a record of unparalelled achievement. In population we have grown from 26,000,000 to 120,000,000. Our railroads have increased their mileage from 18,374 to 249,123. Our national wealth has grown from ten billion dollars to about 420 billion dollars. Our per capita wealth has increased from about $400 to about $3,500. Since 1850, the number of paupers in almshouses per hundred thousand population has decreased 66 per cent; the number of children in schools per hundred thousand of population has increased 35 per cent. We number but six per cent of the world's population, yet we consume 78 per cent of the world's automobiles, 60 per cent of its telephones, 48 per cent of its radios. We use 39 per cent of the world's coal, 61 per cent of its petroleum, 35 per cent of its electricity. Our manufacturers require 43 per cent of the pig iron of the world, 43 per cent of its copper, 36 per cent of its lead, 35 per cent of its zinc, and 46 per cent of its tin. Our people consume 15 per cent of all the wheat grown on the earth, 23 per cent of the sugar, 51 per cent of the coffee, 26 per cent of the cotton, 17 per cent of the wool, 72 per cent of the silk and 66 per cent of the rubber. Considering the fact that we are less than one-sixteenth of the peoples of the world, all this indicates a very high standard of living. The quality of food is higher. The quality of clothing is better. Homes are more comfortable. The spread of education throughout all the classes of our people is equalled only by the increase in the standards of education. America has achieved a wider distribution of the good things of life than has ever been achieved by any nation on earth."

All of which is true without any fear of successful contradiction. Small wonder then that so many people of Europe look upon us as a nation of millionaires and are eager to flock to the shores of a land where every one seems to live in what they regard as comparative luxury. The lesson for us Americans is that we should learn to apperciate our country more. True all is not perfect here. Perfection can come in a free government no more than in any other human institution. But our progress during three-quarters of a century, as Mr. Hyde points out, has been nothing short of marvelous. It has been due in large measure to the inventive genius, the industry, the integrity and the organizing ability of the American people. And it has been made possible, too, by wise national policies which have put the welfare of the American producer above that of the rest of the world. If we want to know the real value of the great home market we have only to study Mr. Hyde's percentage figures quoted above. The American people will be slow to countenance any risking of this great market for the pot of gold at the end of the European rainbow.

No doubt the average boy would rather spend Saturday night in Hong Kong than any place else. The city just now doesn't have any more water than is needed for drinking purposes.

It is very discouraging to dress up in your new clothes and attend a party hoping to make a special impression on your girl friend, only to find that she looks right over your shoulder and smiles at the fellow who has on last year's suit.

You can't blame Ambassador Dawes for not wanting to dress up in knee breeches. Suppose he should happen to run into some of the boys from back home.

According to the economist the dollar today will buy just two-thirds as much as it would in 1914. But it is not to be forgotten that the average fellow has two or three times as many dollars in the pay envelope on Saturday night.

REORGANIZING THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH

According to press dispatches from Washington, on the fourth day of the month when the youth of the nation was doing its best to make a lot of patriotic noise, and the older folks were trying to get into the country to escape the noise, President Hoover braved the heat of the National Capitol and remained at his desk busy with the problem of the reorganization of the executive government's many bureaus and commissions, along lines which will make for economy and efficiency of administration.

We have heard a great deal during the past few years about the reorganization of the executive branch of the government to permit the wheels of the administration to run more smoothly and efficiently. Back in the administration of the late President Harding it was recognized that something along this line should be done and an inquiry into the overlapping of various government departments was entered into under the direction of Walter F. Brown, who has since become Postmaster General in President Hoover's cabinet.

Up to this time, however, nothing tangible has been accomplished. Many of the bureaus which it is sought to change and consolidate have been in existence in Washington for a long time and resent any effort toward changing them. They came into being, many of them, so easily and noiselessly that they seem, like Topsy, to have "just growed." Many of the bureaus of course have stalwart friends inside Congress as well as out and this has slowed up the process of consolidation and coordination.

According to the news dispatches from Washington, President Hoover has for some time been studying the question of simplifying and coordinating the bureau activities in the interest of efficiency and economy, and he hopes to have a definite program ready to present to Congress at the next regular session. That this program will be an interesting one and a comprehensive one goes without saying. It will meet with some opposition of course, some of the reasons for which have been enumerated above, but there is little doubt that sooner or later the reorganization of government departments will become a reality. Friends of the administration who favor the reorganization plan say that if it is put into effect the savings in the executive department of the government will be such that a reduction in taxes in 1930 will be made more likely. This assertion of course, will be a trump card in the hands of those who favor the plan.

It will be remembered that President Hoover has long been in favor of such reorganization and coordination of the government departments. The plan was more or less of an issue in the campaign. It is not surprising therefore that the President is busy at work these hot summer days on a plan designed to carry out this pledge he made in the campaign. The people of the nation, regardless of politics, will be in sympathy with his effort to make the government at Washington more efficient at less expenditure of money. At any rate, bureaucratic government has never been popular in America and it has become even less so during the past few years.

FREEDOM OF THE SEAS

During the past week or two there has been a noticeable slowing down in the enthusiastic predictions in America and England of an immediate solution of the naval armament question. While the plans are going forward and there can be no doubt that sooner or later a conference will be held to discuss this all important question, it is equally true that much water must flow through the Potomac and the Thames before the disarmament problem is satisfactorily settled. When it is settled, if it ever is, another source of international friction will be removed, but it does not hasten the cause of peace to predict, without reason, that everything is practically agreed on and nothing much more remains aside from ratification of the details of the program.

The nations interested must naturally proceed slowly and carefully. While they may desire a lessening of the naval burdens, they can not ignore entirely their national needs, and this is as true of the United States as of Great Britain or any other country. For instance: it will not do to say that because there are three thousand miles of ocean between the United States and Europe, an adequate navy for Uncle Sam is not necessary. Our merchant marine is growing and our trade can be found on every sea. In case of hostilities between the United States and another nation, or between two foreign naval powers, the prosperity and progress of the people of the United States could be seriously interefered with in case we had no adequate navy to insist on our rights and protect our foreign trade.

There are many questions to be settled before there can be complete naval accord between the United States and Great Britain. One of the most troublesome of these questions is freedom of the seas, a question so much discussed during the World War and then, unfortunately, lost sight of during the framing of the Versailles treaty. Great Britain and the United States have never "seen alike" on the question of the freedom of the seas. Until these two great nations do see alike there is prospect of trouble no matter what sort of disarmament agreement is entered into. The question is complicated too by the declared right of the League of Nations to boycott an agressor nation in case of war. Now in case of trouble between two powers, assuming the United States not involved, the agressor would be the one which had the least friends on the governing board of the League when the trouble arose. The one which had the most friends or the greatest political pull would be "on the defensive." The "agressor nation" could then be blockaded by the nations in the League. But if Uncle Sam had a different idea about which was the agressor nation, what would he do about it, and to what degree would he insist on his right to the freedom of the seas? In case of war, Great Britain for centuries has assumed herself to be the "mistress of the seas" and she has played her part well. The British admiralty therefore is apt to have an entirely different view from the American admiralty as to what should be considered "freedom of the seas."

Here is a question, therefore, which requires settlement before there can be complete peace and agreement on the naval question. And it is not a question which can be easily settled. It is full of complications and packed with dynamite.

That it will be satisfactorily settled is of course the hope of all Americans who desire nothing more than to live at peace with the other nations of the world. But it is there just the same and nothing will be gained by ignoring it and claiming that "everything is over but the shouting."

A clear skin is irresistible
...in fact, popularity depends upon it..

THAT priceless treasure—a clear, flawless, lovely skin—charms, with admiration, the hearts of men.

First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered. You, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

NEWS IN BRIEF

After five years' experimentation, Dr. R. T. Renwald, Omaha, Neb., poultry fancier, announces that he has produced a brood of chickens without wings or to nails. Normal hens, Dr. Renwald points out, are bothered each year with the moulting of their wing feathers; during this period egg production falls off. The new type hen, having no wings, can keep on laying the year round, he says. In addition, the new chickens will be easier to keep in the yard, since they can not fly or scratch.

Since 1913 the Swedish Cooperative Union has grown in membership from 100,000 to 336,000. During the same period the turnover of business for the union increased from $5,896,000.00 to more than $19,000,000.00 The cooperative was founded September 4, 1899.

"Statistical studies show," says Dr. A. F. Woods of the United States Department of Agriculture, "that for each dollar invested in agricultural resarch, there is an annual return of $500.00 or 50,000 per cent on the investment."

CLOTHING HINTS

Cotton material is cool for summer because cotton is a good heat conductor. It releases body heat.

Cheap cotton material is generally sized with starch, clay, and other materials. Some of this sizing washes out, leaving the material sleazy.

Test your cotton material before buying it. Rub a small piece between your fingers. Does the sizing come out? If so, do not buy. It is not worth your money.

Materials that are guaranteed not to fade and with careful washing fade the first time, should be returned to the store. This is one way the housewife can help to improve the standard of material on the market.

Always buy sunfast and tubfast materials. It pays in the end.

Machines that are used daily should be oiled daily and cleaned once a week.

Large people should not wear vivid colors.

Save Your Sacks

Flour, seed, and fertilizer sacks make attractive house dresses, coats, childrens' clothes, bed spreads, rugs, etc.

Limestone County women are going to wear to Farmers' Convention held in Auburn, dresses made from feed sacks.

OLD CHEVROLET

San Antonio, Texas, July 22.—A Chevrolet with a chassis built in 1913, a full year before the World War began, and a motor that was assembled when our doughboys were encamping back in 1917, is still in daily use at Goliad, Texas.

It is called "Spark Plug" by its proud owner, Hugo Wilks, and of the millions of Chevrolets in use today on both hemispheres it is perhaps the oldest.

True, the 1929 Chevrolet with its smooth six cylinder motor can outclimb, out-speed and out-haul it. True, too, that "Spark Plug" appears a bit antediluvian when contrasted with the handsome new Fisher bodies of the 1929 Chevrolet. But "Spark Plug" can do plenty of climbing, speeding and hauling on its own account and is beyond question an outstanding example of a long-lived and dependable automobile.

On several occasions Wilks has hitched a trailer to "Spark Plug" and pulled a load of 2,000 pounds, plus the 815 pounds which the trailer weighs, all the way to San Antonio, 125 miles distant.

Not long ago he piled it high with a 1515 pound load of cotton bales and drove it through a dry creek bed—a road which no other driver in the section would dare traverse in a modern car. Many times he has driven it with water up to the floor boards.

No hill in the section is too tough for "Spark Plug," and Wilks says that it is sufficiently economical, continuing to give as good as 20 miles to the gallon.

One objection, however, is lodged against it by Wilks and this is a friendly one. It is his complaint against the crowds which his car invariably attracts when he drives it into San Antonio.

"Spark Plug" had many owners—eight to be exact—before Wilks purchased it from the Goght Chevrolet Company of Schulenburg, Texas, 9 years ago. For four years he got splendid service from the 1913 motor which might yet be encased beneath the 1913 hood but for an accident which occured five years ago.

At that time a 1917 Chevrolet owned by one of Wilks' brothers caught fire and its chassis was destroyed. The motor was unharmed so it was decided to give "Spark Plug's" original motor a well deserved rest and substitute the newer one.

"Spark Plug's" total mileage is indeterminable. Since Wilks has had it, three speedometers have been in use. One registered 75,000 miles, the second 60,000 and the present one has run up 15,000.

The total repair bill during Wilks' nine years ownership has been $150. In this connection, however, it might be stated that Wilks does all his own repairing. Recently 15 new rings were placed in the car and other minor adjustments made.

All of the Wilkses are mechanically inclined and all prefer the Chevrolet. The father of "Spark Plug's" owner has had four Chevrolets. One of the brothers is still driving a 1917 model and another brother has a 1924 model.

THE STORY OF DANIEL

GOLDEN TEXT—They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and ever.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Boy Who Obeyed.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Boy Who Obeyed

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Preparing for a Life Work.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Character and Career of Daniel

I. Daniel In Captivity (1:1-4).

His captivity took place in the third year of Jehoiakim's reign by Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon. While a tender youth, he was torn from home ties and made a captive in a foreign land to be trained for court service.

II. Daniel in Training (1:5-20).

In order to be of the largest service in the kingdom, it was necessary that he be taught to love the king and nation and to be detached from his own people and religion.

1. Daily portion of the king's meat and drink appointed (v. 5).

The object of this was:

(1) To gain the good will of Daniel. Such recognition would encourage him to give himself to the king's service.

(2) To supply the proper food for his physical and intellectual growth.

2. His name changed (v. 7).

He was named Belteshazzar. The object in this change was the obliteration of national and religious connections, and his identification with the Babylonian nation. Daniel means God is my judge. Belteshazzar means Bel's Prince.

3. Daniel's purpose of heart (v. 8).

Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile nimself with the king's meat and wine. He requested to be tested for ten days with the food which the law of his God allowed, agreeing to abide by the results.

4. Daniel's reward (vv. 15-20).

(1) Physical health (v. 15). The king's meat and wine would have been palatable, but to have partaken would have violated his conscience.

(2) Mental growth (vv. 17-20). He was found to be ten times wiser than the magicians and astrologers.

(3) Socially (v. 19). He was not only next to the king, but president of the college of wise men and prime minister of the empire, continuing through several dynasties (v. 21).

(4) Spiritual (v. 17).

God revealed to him Nebuchadnezzar's dream and gave visions stretching across the centuries. The secret of Daniel's success was:

a. Conscientiousness.
b. Loyalty to God.
c. Decision of character.
d. Prayerfulness.
e. Patience.
f. Courtesy.

III. Daniel Interpreting Nebuchadnezzar's Dream (2:14-46).

1. The dream revealed (vv. 14-35)

Nebuchadnezzar had a dream which made a tremendous impression on his mind, but its content had been forgotten. He urgently demanded of the wise men that they make known the dream and its interpretation. Because of their failure to do so the king was furious and commanded all the wise men of Babylon to be slain. Daniel sought an interview with the king and obtained time. In answer to prayer, God gave to Daniel the content of the dream. He told the king that in his dream he had beheld a great image with a head of gold, breast and arms of silver, belly and thighs of brass, legs of iron, and feet part of iron and part of clay. He beheld this image smitten by a stone which became a great mountain.

2. The dream interpreted (vv. 36-46).

(1) The head of gold represented the Chaldean monarchy, with Nebuchadnezzar as its head (vv. 37, 38).

(2) The breast and arms of silver represented the Medo-Persian power (v. 39).

(3) The belly and thighs of brass represented the Grecian empire under Alexander the Great (v. 39).

(4) The legs of iron represented the Roman empire (vv. 40-43).

(5) The stone cut out of the mountain (vv. 44, 45). This is the Kingdom of Heaven so graphically set forth in the New Testament.

a. The stone is Christ (Isa. 28:16; Matt. 21:42-44).

b. When did the stone strike? Observe that the impact upon this man was upon his feet (v. 34).

c. The Kingdom of Heaven is brought into realization through a great catastrophe.

Accepting Christ

We urge men to accept Christ, to accept Him now, and they say, "Well, we will think about it," or "Yes, I know it ought to be attended to." Why, you wouldn't act that way five minutes about your health or your wife's health, or your business.—Dr. Maltbie D. Babcock.

Trust the Creator

All I have seen teaches me to trust the Creator for all I have not seen.—Emerson.

MISSISSIPPI DRY OFFICERS NAB 86 IN BIG RUM RAID

13 Women Included In Those Arrested in Widespread Drive

Gulfport, Miss., July 21.— Wholesale arrests in what prohibition agents termed as "the greatest drive against prohibition law violators on the Mississippi Coast," Saturday netted 86 arrests, among whom were at least 13 women. All but six of those arrested were released Sunday under bonds ranging from $500 to $1,000.

The first raids were conducted Friday night when officers swooped down at various points in three counties and began filling the Harrison and Hancock County jails. The federal agents were armed with more than 100 warrants charging sale or possession of intoxicating liquors. The drive followed the activities of undercover agents on the Gulf Coast for several days.

Among the women was Mrs. Wiley Ladner, who held her three-months-old baby in her arms. She was released on bond Sunday. A man and his wife were also among those arrested.

The first arrests were made in the vicinity of Bay St. Louis, but soon the Hancock County jail was filled to overflowing, and the prisoners were transferred to the county jail here.

County officials stated Sunday that they expected the federal drive to continue throughout the week with the possibility that many more arrests would follow.

JUST FROM SHOULTS

On last Friday, 3 o'clock in the after noon a rain, wind and hail storm sweeped through this section leaving distraktion jn it's path, blowing up shade trees and larger timber by the roots. Some roofing was blown off of houses. Cap was out after the old hen and little biddies. Cap had on a thin shirt and being a little bald headed he got his part of the hail. His shirt was damaged worse than his head. The storm was 2 miles wide and 25 miles long. Corn was very badly damaged. Melons, cotton and other crops was damaged some. Like the old lady said, "It could have been worse." Cap say cotton is in better shape now than it was before the storm. He say cotton was burning for want of rain, and too much poison had bin put on. Cap say don't grieve over the past, but look to a better future.—Uncle Remus.

The evening services are inspiring and uplifting under the direction of Evangelist W. E. Thurmond, of Cairo, Ill. Good interest is being shown by the public in general in these services. Mrs. Thurmond is doing fine work at the piano, and her special numbers are particularly enjoyed by all. Next Sunday night will be the closing night; and a special subject will be discussed at the morning hour by Rev. Bell on the second coming of Christ. The church asks that the general public come and hear these men of God. This is a church where you will always find a hearty welcome."

THORSBY SECTION

S. E. NORTON, Manager

The music service at the Congregational church last Sunday night proved to be somewhat different from usual, in that several vocal and instrumental numbers were interspersed with the singing by the congregation.

Dr. Leslie gave two numbers as Cornet Solos. His playing indicated that he is no novice in technique and expression and the selection of music appropriate for such an occasion. Miss Agnes Gerald proved to be a sympathetic organ accompanist. She also sang a beautiful solo.

Others who assisted creditably were Misses Lois Primm, Ruth Gerald, Dorothy Butler and Mary Ella Gerald. Mr. H. R. Maddox served as announcer. The singing by the congregation was spirited and enjoyable.

Mr. Martin Petersen brought us some of his fine peaches Monday. Such stock shows him to be a successful fruit grower. Hale peaches are no novelty in Georgia, but in and around Thorsby few others have attempted to grow them. One we had measured 10 3-4 inches in circumference and weighed 10 1-2 ounces, and was as good as it looked to be.

A very peculiar accident happened at Lock 12 last week which caused the death of little four year old Norman Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vascar Martin, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Martin of Thorsby.

The child was playing with others on a bed and somehow fell backwards landing on his head and shoulders on a mattress lying on the floor. His neck and spine was so injured that he died within a few days. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. P. Lowery at Thorsby Public school building Sunday afternoon and burial was in Thorsby cemetery.

Next Sunday the regular services of Thorsby Baptist church will be held in the Public School auditorium, which has been secured for use by the Baptist people during the erection of their new church.

Only Sunday School and Christian Endeavor will be held in the Congregation church next Sunday in the absence of the pastor the congregation will worship with the Baptist people at morning and night services.

After an absence of about a month in Birmingham Mrs. W. H. Townsend has returned to her home in Thorsby.

Mrs. W. H. Townsend has as her guests her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Feenker, of Birmingham with her small son.

Miss Mabel Howard returned from Chicago by bus after spending two weeks visiting friends in that city.

Mrs. R. M. Smith is quite ill at the home of her niece, Mrs. E. N. Bentley. Mr. Smith also spends most of his time there.

Rev. E. W. Butler left Monday with his daughter, Dorothy, for Southern Alabama in the interest of Thorsby Institute. They will attend a Congregational District Conference at Hartford where Rev. N. A. Long has a church.

Thorsby Institute Library is open to the public on Tuesdays from 8 to 12 a. m. and Friday afternoons from 2 to 6 in care of Miss Margaret Butler. The service is free if the few simple rules governing any well regulated public library are observed.

Mrs. J. R. Boyd, sister of Mrs. P. H. Goddard, left Sunday evening for her home in Pittsburgh, Pa. She will spend a few days en route at Columbus, Ohio, as the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Harold Bogen.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Goddard and Mrs. Webster Sharpe spent Wednesday in Clanton as guests of Mrs. Sharpe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Pate and Mrs. Pate's nephew, H. L. Collins, motored to Centreville one day last week.

Mr. M. D. Walker and Paul Nixon of Centreville visited H. L. Walker Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover A. Bice and children and Mrs. H. L. Walker went to Birmingham on Tuesday of last week, taking with them Mr. J. Bice to Dr. Drake, eye specialist.

Mrs. Bergie Erdahl announces the marriage of her daughter, Inga, to Mr. Hans Johansen, on June 29th, at Los Angeles. Mrs. Erdahl and family were for many years residents of Thorsby.

Miss Elizabeth Leslie left Sunday to spend a week in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Haygood of Greenville were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Leckie in Thorsby Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Day of Birmingham, and little daughters, Betty and Dorothy, spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Lorell. In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Morton of West End, motored from Birmingham bringing with them Mr. Laurell's sister, Mrs. J. L. Moore, with her husband and two children and Mrs. Morton's little daughter.

The Y. W. A. sponsored by Mrs. R. R. Franklin will hold their first evening social on the lawn of the Congregational parsonage Tuesday night, July 30th. These young people have pledged $250 for the Baptist church building fund, and they invite cooperation of all Thorsby people, regardless of denomination. Refreshments will be served at the usual price of 10c, but larger contributions will not be refused.

Boy Scout Items

The organization of a troop of Boy Scouts in Thorsby is moving along as fast as posible. The troop committee who will have charge of troop affairs has been organized with C. M. Williams as chairman, and J. Monroe Smith and Dr. G. W. Leslie as other members. The troop committee has elected H. Rascoe Maddox as Scoutmaster and A. D. Leckie as Assistant Scoutmaster who with the troop committee will form the troop council. Application has been made to the buildings and grounds committee of Thorsby Institute for use of one of the class rooms in Helen Jenkins Hall for Scout meetings indoors and for space on the boys dormitory for outdoor meetings. Indications are that the application will be granted.

Mr. Maddox has already had one meeting with about a dozen boys anxious to join, and as soon as they can qualify, application for a Charter from the National Council of Boy Scouts of America will be forwarded to the headquarters in New York, which is necessary for complete organization.

Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor-evangelist, and Mr. Gresham Lowery of Thorsby closed a very successful revival at Marbury Sunday night. At the close of the evening service seven were baptised and five were received by letter.

Rev. J. W. Jones is assisting in a meeting at Collins Chapel this week and is preaching to large and attentive congregation and the prospects are good for a good revival.

SCHOOL AT LIBERTY HILL

According to plans which have been taking form for the past several weeks Prof. W. M. Devaughn will open a singing school at Liberty Hill church next Monday morning, July 29th. Melton at once.

ANOTHER SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC NEXT THURSDAY

The Clanton Baptist Sunday school will go to Shelby Springs for another picnic on next Thursday afternoon, August 1st. This time the party will be made up by members of the Young Mens Class of Mr. Meeks, the Young Ladies Class of Mrs. Renfroe Mullins, and the Intermediate Department. However, attendance is not limited to these classes. Anybody and everybody in the Sunday school is invited to attend.

Full details of the plan will be announced at Sunday school next Sunday morning.

The picnic of the Intermediate Department last Thursday was reported by Superintendent Armstrong as a partial success. "It was all right," said Mr. Armstrong, "but there was not enough water for a Baptist affair. They must have thought it was the Methodist Sunday school coming, for they had about enough water in the swimming pool to sprinkle us. We are assured that there will be enough water for immersion when we get back there again on August 1st."

EZELLS RETURNING THIS WEEK

A letter from Rev. S. J. Ezell and family states that they will return to their home in Clanton Thursday or Friday of this week. They have been vacationing with relatives and friends in South Carolina since the first of July.

Next Sunday the pastor will resume his regular preaching engagements at the Baptist church, holding services both morning and evening.

Farewell to Rev. Toy Williams

Rev. J. Toy Williams delivered his farewell message to friends in Clanton and Chilton County on last Sunday morning when he spoke from the pulpit of the Clanton Baptist church. A large congregation was present to hear him and give him the parting hand shake.

Mr. Williams first went to China as a missionary sixteen years ago. He has been at home with friends and relatives in Alabama and Georgia for the past year, which is his second visit to America in the 16 years.

He and his family will sail from Vancouver, British Columbia, about August 29, on their return to China. The trip to the Pacific Coast will be made in his automobile, which will then be loaded on the ship and taken on to China.

The prayers and best wishes of the home folks of Clanton and Chilton County are for a long season of happiness and useful service for Brother Williams as he departs from us once more.

IN MEMORY OF DULCIE GLENN

Martin Appointed

Clanton Man Named Coroner of Chilton County

J. Mell Martin, of Clanton, has been appointed coroner of Chilton County by Governor Graves. Arthur Heustess, secrtary to the governor, announced the appointment today in the absence of the chief executive who is in New London, Conn., attending the annual governor's conference.

The state department was notified recently of the vacancy, citizens of the county apparently having failed to elect a coroner at the last election.

Grand Jury Report

The following is a report of the Grand Jury of the Circuit Court in session here last week:

State of Alabama, Chilton County, Circuit Court of said County and State.

To Honorable Geo. F. Smoot, as Judge of said Court:

The Grand Jury impaneled for the July term of said court after receiving your Honor's able and instructive charge entered upon its investigations of matters that came before it and herewith submits the following report:

During its investigations 32 cases and 62 witnesses have been examined, and 15 true bills are herewith returned.

We have made a personal inspection of the County jail and believe it to be sufficiently safe for the keeping of the prisoners and find that the prisoners confined therein are being well fed and cared for with reasonable comfort. On our inspection of the alms-house we found 16 inmates, of which 9 were women and 7 men, all of them being cared for as well as the present arrangements will permit.

We have examined the fee book of the Probate Judge and find it neatly kept and correct in so far as we were able to ascertain. We have examined the bonds of the various county officials and find that they are ample for the protection of the public, and on our examination of the sheriff's account with the state for feeding prisoners we find it being kept in accordance with the law. We find on our examination of the office of the County Superintendent of Education that his books, records and papers are being kept neatly and fully in accordance with the law in so far as we were able to ascertain.

The Grand Jury wishes especially to thank your Honor for the very able charge given us when we were first impaneled. It has been most helpful to us throughout all our investigations.

We wish to thank the sheriff and his deputies and Mr. S. W. Collins, the Grand Jury Bailiff, for the prompt manner in which they secured witnesses that we needed to complete out labors, and for conveniences given us during our stay as Grand Jurors.

Now having complied to the best of our ability with your Honor's charge we respectfully ask that we be dismissed until such time as your Honor may see fit and think proper to have us again convene.

This July 24th, 1929.

W. T. PATTERSON,
Foreman.

Old Folks Service For Next Tuesday

One Day's Services of Revival Will Be Given Over To Old People

This service will be turned over to the old people of not only Providence but of all other communities who may wish to come and participate; they may use the time just as they choose.

Already a number of old people, both men and women, have expressed their intention to come, and the purpose of this announcement is to invite and urge many others to be present. It is hoped that this may be made just a real, genuine old-time gospel revival meeting, and all old people who can are invited to attend.

Officers Capture 300 Gallons Of Whiskey

Two Men Also Arrested In Raid Across The Line In Perry County

Federal officers Gillespie and Fridge, with State officer Harvey Foshee and Sheriff Collins and Deputy Murrah staged a raid just across the line in Perry County last Friday. Two men, Kelly Barnett and Eddings were arrested. Three hundred gallons of whiskey was taken by the officers.

Barnett and Eddings had been suspected of operating a still which had been located in the vicinity of where they lived. When the officers got to the place they found that the still had been moved.

Search of the premises of the men revealed the large quantity of liquor buried in barrels in the ground. Some of it was in a chicken house. The officers state that the barrels were arranged so the whiskey could be drawn out without disturbing the barrels.

Barnett and Eddings were brought to jail in Clanton and later carried to Selma by Federal officers.

Jemison Berry Growers Organize

Sutley, J. H. Martin, E. F. Conway. A committee was named to draft constitution and by-laws for the association.

It was determined that the farmers who were present at the meeting and signed up with the association represented 68 acres of strawberries. It is estimated that there are over 100 acres of berries already in the Jemison district.

Reports from the meeting of last Thursday say that the spirit of the Jemison farmers and business men in the formation of their berry association is most encouraging.

MAKING ROOM FOR NEW STOCK OF FURNITURE

Mr. W. W. Fox began Monday morning to set his house in order to receive two carloads of new furniture which will arrive from New Orleans this week. This new stock was purchased by Mr. Fox on his recent trip to the Crescent City.

During the month of August Mr. Fox is putting on a special sale to remove many items from his store in order to make room for his new fall and winter goods.

Folks who want real bargains will do well to keep their eyes on Mr. Fox's advertisements. He is going to cut loose on something that is worthwnile during this month.

Home Burned

About noon Sunday fire destroyed the home of Alfred Baker, five miles northeast of Clanton. Reports say that the blaze started from the stove flue or probably a spark from the flue set the shingles on fire nearby.

Practically all of the household goods were destroyed. The kitchen was burning almost all over when Mr. Baker first discovered it.

Search for Best Singers

Montevallo, Ala., July 29.—One of the distinct differences between the methods of combing the country for baseball players and for singers, as the National Radio Audition of the Atwater Kent Foundation combs it, lies in the fact that every locality in every state will have its searchers for singers—since every locality in Alabama has now a local chairman appointed by the Atwater Kent Foundation for the purpose. In baseball the scouts go out from the big leagues or the minor leagues to find players, on notification from some interested or authoritative sports experts. In music the National Radio Audition workers are residents of the various localities and get to work in these localities as they are working throughout Alabama.

In Alabama the local chairmen include such well known music lovers as Mrs. H. S. Doster, Prattville; Prof. George Lundberg, Silverhill; Mrs. Dean Blackmon, Eufaula; Miss Grace Ward, Centreville; Mrs. J. S. Wittmeier, Oneonta; Mrs. Henry Rosenstihl, Union Springs; Mrs. Philip Speir, Greenville; Mrs. J. J. Willett, Jr., Anniston; G. W. Moore, Clanton; Mrs. John N. Ingram, Lineville; Raymond Cox, Andalusia; Mrs. H. A. Teal, Rockford; Mrs. Ethel Tankersley, Luverne; Alonzo Meek, Selma; E. Lippe, Russellville; Miss Elva Holman, Hartford; Mrs. Mabel Taylor, Greensboro; Mrs. W. S. Wilson, Dothan; Mrs. E. T. Rice, Birmingham; Mrs. Carrie Samford Giles, Opelika; Prof. F. M. Church, Athens; Mrs. R. L. Lane, Milstead; Mrs. Herbert Rice, Demopolis; Mrs. John Luck, Guntersville; Mrs. John L. Moulton, Mobile; Miss Lily Bryon Gill, Montgomery; Mrs. John McGehee, Decatur; Mrs. W. H. Tayloe, Uniontown; Mrs. L. M. Stevenson, Roanoke; Mrs. Mildred W. Wallace, Columbiana; Mrs. L. I. McGriff, Livingston; Mrs. J. Samford Mullins, Alexander City; Mrs. Harry N. Eddins, Tuscaloosa; and Mrs. R. L. Cheatham, Jasper.

These local chairmen were appointed through nominations by Mrs. O. C. Carmichael, state audition chairman, and are all at work now preparing for the local auditions for which any non-professional singer between the ages of 18 and 25 is eligible. Two singers are to be selected by each local audition to compete through elimination tests in five district auditions held throughout the country in November. These five competitions will select two candidates for national honors. All of the national finalists will participate in the division if $25,000 in cash and ten scholarships.

The purpose of the National Radio Audition is to find, and to enlarge the opportunities of, ambitious young men and women who wish to make music their career, the state chairman states, and every non-professional singer within the age limit is eligible to compete in the local contests.

Singing Audition At High School

The arrangements have been completed and committee is now working for the Atwater Kent Foundation toward an evening of good music at the County High School in the very near future. Mr. G. W. Moore, County chairman announces that Mrs. T. W. Robinson, Thorsby, Miss Nell Wells, Jemison, and Mrs. Dr. N. E. Parnell of Maplesville and Mrs. W. A. Gulledge of Verbena, are all working with the idea that this committee can and will assist all singers in Chilton County between the ages of 18 to 25 inclusive, to compete in the local audition. Any male or female person either married or single can and should get in this work and let their talent be shown to the general public. It is to be hoped that local singers will look upon this as a means of winning a free scholarship and perhaps world wide fame should the judges decide their voices are best. For further information interested parties can see either member of the committee named above.

Wedding of Interest

On Monday afternoon of this week, July 29, Miss Ollie Busby and Mr. Earl Gore, two popular young people of Clanton, were married at Fairview church in Montgomery County, Rev. E. A. Childs, pastor of the Clanton Methodist church, officiating.

Their first plans were made to be married in Clanton, but due to the fact that Rev. Childs was engaged in conducting a revival meeting at Fairview it was decided that the wedding party would motor down there for the ceremony.

The party, consisting of the bride and groom and a few close friends and relatives, left Clanton about three o'clock. They arrived at Fairview, located Rev. Childs, and came to the church at six o'clock.

There at the altar of the beautiful little church of Fairview, in the peace and quiet of late afternoon, the happy couple made their vows, and began the journey of life anew with the sincere good wishes of their friends.

Miss Busby is the daughter of Mr. Charley Busby of Clanton, who is employed by the L. & N. Railrod Co. here. She has been employed by V. J. Elmore's 5c, 10c and $1.00 Store of Clanton for the past few years. Earl is the son of Mr. M. A. Gore of Clanton, who is in the mercantile business. Earl holds a position with the Town of Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. Gore left immediately after the ceremony on their honeymoon for Birmingham and other points. They will return to Clanton after a few days, where they will make their future home.

HERBERT LOWERY SINGING

Mr. Herbert Lowery of Clanton is now engaged in singing for revivals over the county. His time is all taken up for the next several weeks, except for the week beginning Sunday, August 4th. If any church wishes to procure his services for next week, they should see him at once. He is conducting the singing at Friendship this week.

MRS. LAURA LAY DIED IN GADSDEN

Baptist Revival To Begin August 18

Rev. L. E. Barton of Andalusia To Preach; Herbert Lowery to Lead Singing

The revival meeting at Clanton Baptist church will begin Sunday, August 18th, according to action taken Sunday in fixing definite time for services to begin. The series of meetings will run about ten days.

The pastor, Rev. Ezell, has secured the services of Dr. L. E. Barton, of Andalusia, to help in the meeting. Dr. Barton is one of the outstanding evangelists of the South.

It is the hope of the Clanton Baptist Church to make this a genuine revival of religion. To this end the church invites the co-operation of all people of the town and surrounding communities.

Mr. Herbert Lowery, choir leader of the church, will have charge of the special program of music during the revival meeting.

FILTERING PLANT NOW OPERATING

Filtered Water Is Let Into the City Mains For First Time During Past Week

The new filter plant in connection with the Clanton water system has been put into operation during the past week. The different appearance of the water already proves that the filtering process adopted will get the answer to our water problem so far as purity is concerned.

The water now is absolutely clear as crystal, and is free from all sedimentation that has heretofore been in evidence. So far as we are able to learn, the citizens of the town are unanimous in their approval of the work of the filter plant.

We have heard some comment about a peculiar taste and smell that is found in the filtered water. The city officials offer what seems to be a reasonable explanation for that. They remind us that the filter plant consists of three large wooden tanks or cisterns built of new cypress lumber. The water passes through these tanks in the filtering process. Naturally new lumber gives a peculiar flavor to water which comes in contact with it. We think that explains why the filtered water has the strange taste at present.

Just as a new well curb soon ceases to affect the taste of water in a well, we think the tanks at the filter plant will soon give up all their cypress flavor, and we will have the beautiful, clear, sparkling pure water without any taste.

Paulk Returned From Field Work

Mr. O. C. Paulk, field agent of the Farm Bureau in Chilton County has recently returned from Jackson County, where he was engaged for a week by the Alabama Farm Bureau in a membership drive.

Upon returning to his work here, Mr. Paulk had lots of nice things to say about the people of North Alabama; but we were delighted to hear him close his remarks by asserting that he is convinced that Chilton is the best county in Alabama, with the best farmers, the best farms, the best Farm Bureau, the best County Agent, and the best of everything in the whole bloomin' state.

Chilton has always been a good county. The rest of the world has just begun to wake up to our progress and opportunities since the county agent and the Farm Bureau have begun to operate here.

DISARMAMENT A MATTER OF "IF"

In connection with disarmament, Lloyd George says the land forces of Europe must be reduced simultaneously with naval curtailment. This is a sound view for the Liberal leader to express. The United Kingdom is within a stone's throw of the Continent. Her only protection is the fleet which patrols the narrow English Channel. But it is improbable that France will agree to any limitation of armies, particularly, as recently at Geneva, she won recognition of the right to develop and maintain reserves. NATIONAL AFFAIRS

FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Next year will find Uncle Sam busy again taking the count of the inhabitants of the various units of government in the United States. Already the newspapers in the various cities and towns are beginning to speculate on what the figures are going to show for their particular communities. In some instances more or less hurried efforts are being made to annex new territory so that the community will show as big a gain in population as possible when the 1930 census returns are publish to the world.

All of which recalls the interesting fact that we still estimate the importance of a community by the number of its inhabitants. Undoubtedly population is to a large extent a proper guide. The more people the more business, and usually the more business the greater progress a community is making. But it might be well to call attention to the fact that the importance and influence of a city can not be measured or at least should not be measured entirely by the number of its inhabitants. The question of quality should be considered along with quantity. Would it not be a good idea to inquire, along with the number, as to the character of our citizenry?

The quality of population does not always grow with quantity. This fact is recognized in our restrictive immigration laws. If adding to our number would promote our general wealth, our culture and our progress there would be no excuse for immigration legislation. This should not be taken to mean of course that all aliens are undesirable. Thousands of them are among the best citizens we have and of course our growth in the past century has been due in part to the sturdy, industrious people who came here from Europe. But some time ago we arrived at the point where it was thought advisable, for the best interests of America, to restrict our immigration, and the results are proving that this policy is a wise one.

It may be stated also that something more is needed to make a "good town" than rapid growth of population, and while we are pausing to consider whether our community is progressive and a good place to live in, let us consider something more than the percentage of growth from 1920 to 1930. We may well ask whether our people enjoy good living conditions, whether our housing problem has been solved, whether we have the right kind of schools and whether the right subjects are taught in them; whether we have sufficient parks and playgrounds, and last, but not least whether our community, in its majority sentiment, stands for respect for the law and for the ideals of American liberty and progress.

We might inquire also into the question of whether or not our community has the right sort of local government. Is the money raised by public taxation being spent wisely for the benefit of the people of the community? After all, it must be admitted that healthy growth in population is highly desirable, and such growth will not come unless our community has a reasonable tax rate and a reasonably efficient local government. New industries do not seek the community which is tax-ridden and graft-ridden. The best advertisement that a city may have, in its effort to locate new industries is a reasonable tax rate, a clean government and a high civic standard.

Next year our rival cities will know again just where they stand. And at the same time let it not be forgotten that while growth in population is highly desirable it will be disappointing unless there does go along with it a genuine and increasing civic spirit making for better American citizenship.

A BRIGHTER PROSPECT

The farm bill has passed and is now the law of the land. The new Farm Board which is to handle the provisions of the new statute is now in process of formation. Judging from the splendid appointments to the Board which the President has already made there is every reason to believe that the new law will be wisely and properly administered and that it will give to the farmer whatever benefit it is possible to get from a mere act of Congress.

That the farmer will get some benefit is evidenced by the fact that already there has been a stiffening in grain prices due in part to the fact that the country is expecting something from the new farm legislation. The new law will have one beneficial effect aside from its legal provisions. That is its psychological effect.

For years we have been hearing that the farmer ought to be helped and that he was going from bad to worse. That he really did need assistance is a fact which all must admit, and it was generally conceded that he was entitled to all the aid it was possible for Congress to give him. But during all these years of agitation going back to the days following deflation in 1920, nothing tangible has been accomplished in the way of farm legislation. There was always a great difference of opinion as to what ought to be done, and it was not until this year that the legislative and executive departments of our government could agree on what was generally admitted to be a sound and constructive measure.

The result of this agreement was the passage of the farm relief bill. The country sat back thankful that this had been accomplished. The farmer had been given a relief bill and it was generally agreed to be the best that could be passed under all the circumstances. The disposition now is to await the effect of the farm legislation and to hope for the best. There are of course still a great many doubting Thomases but the great majority of the people, including our statesmen of all parties, hope that the bill will work and that the condition of the farmer will steadily get better. At least something constructive has been done. It is no longer a matter of talk but of work and the fact that something has been done will improve the situation psychologically. For the farming areas have been discouraged and convinced that nothing could or would be done to help them. Now that something has been done there is a stirring of hope once more and the clouds of mental depression are beginning to lift. This in itself will be a big help, for if the farmers become convinced again that they can be put on the high road to prosperity their entire viewpoint will change. For after all no business can succeed if the men who are in it not only are discouraged but are advertising and admitting the fact that business is no good and has little chance of getting better. Optimism will help in itself and this effect of the recent farm legislation must not be overlooked.

EDUCATION IN CHARACTER IS AMERICAN NECESSITY

Education in character is one of the things now most needed in the United States according to John J. Tigert, president of the University of Florida and former United States Commissioner of Education, writing in the current issue of the National Republic. In his comment on the subject, Dr. Tigert says:

"The need of the United States for character education is paramount. The schools can make no larger contribution to democracy than character. These statements are almost self-evident and axiomatic. The appalling increase in divorces, murders, crimes, felonies and vice of all kinds has stunned thoughtful people everywhere. Reliable statistics have demonstrated that the age level of crime has been rapidly sinking for years. The fact that an increasing proportion of crimes and misdemeanors are committed by boys and girls of school age is a challenge to every teacher in the land. By virtue of the disappearance of the old American home with its evenings of fireside dogma and parental control and the apparent indisposition of so many people to lean on the church for spiritual guidance, and because of the acknowledged place which the school is coming to occupy in our social order, there has come to those engaged in education an opportunity for unparalleled service.

"The multiplication of machinery and the advances of science dazzle us from day to day. The catalog of scientific achievements of yesterday is almost unending. No imagination can conceive what tomorrow will bring forth. It is, nevertheless, evident that man's capacity to apply the principles of science has outrun his ability to develop human character and the human relationships which mush inevitably control the adjustments of machinery if civilization is to advance rather than decline. Whatever miracles may be wrought by science in the annihilation of time, space and distance, it will never be able to produce a Messiah. The issue is clearly before us, the lines are drawn, the opportunity is ours, and the rsponsibility can not be evaded.

"In his little book on the 'Fundamentals of Prosperity,' Roger Babson draws a pathetic picture of the man of wealth depositing his stocks, bonds, securities and other worldly goods in a great steel vault protected by various mechanical devices but apparently oblivious of the fact that the poorly paid hump-backed clerk could thwart all this paraphernalia of protection with a duplicate key to the renter's box. In the last analysis his risk depends upon the character of the man who controls the machinery. In fact, he well points out that the stocks, bonds, securities, deeds and mortgages are all valueless minus the element of human integrity—the integrity of lawyers, clerks and stenographers who draw up the papers, the integrity of the courts and judges who enforce our claims, the integrity of the community which in the last analysis, determines whether or not the orders of the courts and officials will be executed and respected."

"Once I was worried—mealtime was getting on my nerves. I prepared many appetizing dishes, but John simply would not eat—just 'minced' at his food. Perhaps sometimes a little grouchy. I began to fear he was 'slipping.' What was I to do? Love, home, happiness, business success—all depended upon an improvement in his condition. The blood tonic idea suggested itself to me. My Druggist recommended S.S.S. John agreed to try it. Well, in just a few days I could see the difference. His improvement has been so rapid he is going to take several more bottles, and not only that, but he is now telling his friends to take S.S.S."

Loss of appetite only a symptom

It is a known fact that when one's system gets "run-down," they haven't the resistance to ward off diseases. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

S.S.S.

Rich, red blood builds sturdy health

When you get your blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish let-down feeling, loss of appetite, rheumatism, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again, sleep soundly; firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong. Your nerves become steady.

S.S.S. is daily helping people regain their strength and charm. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. It helps Nature build red-blood-cells. It gives to Nature what it needs in making you feel like yourself again.

Quality, better than ever; prices, lower than ever

A few years ago, Kelly-Springfields were the highest-priced tires on the market — and they were well worth the differenc in cost.

Today, Kllys are consistently giving two and three times the mileage they did seven or eight years ago, yet they now cost no more than any of the well known makes of tires.

The explanation is simple. Public demand fir Kellys led to a large production and lowered costs, thus making it possible for us to offer you far better tires than the old Kellys, at half the price.

If you have never used Kelly tires, it will pay you to get acquainted with them.

STATE

CAPITOL News

Figures showing the rapid rate at which the ranks of Confederate veterans are thinning were recently furnished on request by S. H. Blan, State Auditor, who sends out pension warrants quarterly to Confederate veterans and widows on the pension rolls. The figures show that during the past year, the Confederate pension roll in Alabama decreased by 903 pensioners. This figure, which includes veterans and their widows, shows a loss of more than two a day.

On July 1st, 1928, there were 7,002 pensioners on the roll, 1821 of whom were veterans and the remainder widows, 5181. On July 1, 1929, there were on the pension roll 6,099 pensioners, of whom 1407 were veterans and 4692 widows.

It will be seen that during the year from July 1, 1928 to July 1, 1929, there were 414 Confederate veterans who died, and the number of widows on the pension roll decreased by 489—a total decrease of 903.

On July 1, 1928, $541,890 was the amount sent out in Confederate pensions for that quarter, July, August and September, the yearly amount at that time running well over two million dollars paid in pensions. On July 1, 1929, the amount of $459,225 was paid out in pensions for the quarter. Pensions will now have a yearly average of under two million dollars.

Alabama is paying her Confederate pensioners more than any other Southern State, and this State has been highly praised throughout the country for her consideration of her veterans who fought so bravely in defense of the Southland.

Remarkable progress has been made in the past two years in the establishment of county child welfare units in Alabama, and today only seven of the 67 counties in the State have not organized for child welfare work. The seven counties which remain unorganized are Barbour, Blount, Clay, Geneva, Greene, Randolph and Russell.

Under direction from the State Child Welfare Board, the branch office of the children's aid division which has long been maintained at Birmingham will be moved to Montgomery. This change is made in the interest of economy and efficiency, and will involve the bringing to bringing to Montgomery of approximately 100 children who are wards of the State, and who are now in boarding homes at Birmingham. About seventy of these children have already been moved. When the change has been completed all the children maintained in boarding homes by the child welfare department will be at Montgomery, instead of being divided between this City and Birmingham. The child welfare board directed that the removal of the Birmingham branch office to Montgomery be effected by October 1st.

A commercial and economic survey to determine the potential available tonnage on the Coosa-Alabama rivers will be started at once by joint effort of the Mississippi Valley Association and a committee of Alabama representative Alabama business leaders. Opening of the Coosa-Alabama waterway from Rome, Ga., to Mobile is a project which is attracting keen interest in Alabama today, and in which Governor Graves is taking an active part. Some weeks ago a conference of leaders from all parts of the State was held here at the call of the Governor. The active aid of the Mississippi Valley Association, which is devoted to the promotion of inland navigation, was enlisted. At another conference recently held in the Governor's office, it was announced that Theodore Brent, famous inland waterways expert, has been employed by the Mississippi Valley Association to make the survey, to be assisted by an advisory committee composed of M. M. Caskie, Montgomery, Chairman, Thad Holt, Birmingham, Vice Chairman, Harry T. Hartwell, Mobile, E. P. Russell, Selma, James M. Graham, Rome, Ga., C. M. Jesperson, Anniston, W. H. Butler, Gadsden, Benjamin S. Baker and H. T. Moore, Atlanta. The survey will cover not only the cities actually on the river system, but also other cities near enough to profit by the projected development. Sufficient funds have been pledged to meet expenses of the survey, it is stated.

Sixes Now Lead In Auto Industry

Detroit, Aug. 1.—For the first time in the history of the automobile industry, six cylinder cars promise to lead the field in production this year, according to a survey by the Chevrolet Motor Company completed today. Up until this year four cylinder cars ranked first in annual production volume.

Comparative production figures for the first six months of this year are offered in support of the forecast. During this period there were produced approximately 1,900,000 sixes as compared with approximately 1,265,000 fours, an indication of what the total for the year is apt to be.

How the change comes about is illustrated in the survey. Chevrolet's manufacturing goal for the year is 1,350,000 cars. Chevrolet's change-over from a four to a six means a deduction of this enormous total from the four cylinder field and adds it to the six cylinder field.

How the automobile picture has changed almost overnight will be noted in an inspection of the 1928 showing. Last year when Chevrolet was producing a four cylinder car, four cylinder manufacturers built approximately 2,098,000 cars, with one large manufacturer of four cylinde cars on limited production due to model change, while six cylinder manufacturers were making 1,617,000 cars.

As it now stands the year 1929 should show approximately 3,000,000 six cylinder units as compared to only 2,250,000 four cylinder units.

Consequently this significant development, which will make the current year an epochal one in the annals of the automobile business, comes about chiefly as a result of the entrance of Chevrolet into the six cylinder field. In lay circles, this event is seen as a tribute to the automobile industry and the newest step which this gigantic business has taken in the direction of constantly offering its patrons more automobile per dollar.

Great volume production, coupled with expert direction in the engineering, manufacturing and selling branches of the business are given as reasons that we are making it possible for the automobile industry to lead all others in giving the public the utmost for its money.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

SUBJECT: "FOLLOWING JESUS."

Jesus Christ said unto Phillip, "Follow me." That expression of Jesus occurs several times in the Bible. But the first time Jesus made such a command was to Phillip. Phillip was of Bethesda, a town on the shores of the sea of Galilee. This was also the city of Andrew and Peter.

The more you study the character of Phillip the more you are convinced that he had Gentile blood in his veins. You remember that when the Greeks came to Jerusalem to see Jesus at the temple they were attracted to Phillip and walked up to him and boldly yet humbly expressed their desire in these words: "Sir, we would see Jesus." This must have been that they understood Phillip better than they understood the Jews.

Jesus walked up to Phillip at the very beginning of His earthly ministry and said, "Phillip, follow me." How different that is from the things which we hear and read many times. But, my friends, this Bible is the only book that you and I have a right to study, and it teaches us plainly that these words, "Follow me," were the first command which Jesus gave as He started out on His earthly ministry.

Often men say that they would unite with the church if they knew that they could live up to the rules and regulations of the church. Now the Bible does not say anything about if you can live up to the rules and regulations of the church. Remmber that Jesus said to Phillip and to us, "Follow me." Peter and Andrew it seems must have heard Christ give this command. And when Peter was writing the Epistle of Peter he said, "I want to tell you that Christ has left us an example, He suffered for us, leaving us an example, that we should follow His steps."

Christ was God and He was the Son of God, but I can not explain that. He was verily God and He was verily man. He does not expect that I should try to follow Him in opening blind eyes, raising the dead, calming storms when they hit the church. But He said, "I have left you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you." He also said, "My sheep hear my voice and follow me."

Looking at Phillip He said, "You were born here in Bethesda, and have lived here all your life. You have many friends here, but now you are to be a Christian, you are to be saved now and I ask you to follow me. He did not tell Phillip to follow the Sanhedrin, or the scribes and the Pharisees. He only said three words: "Phillp, follow me."

The Bible was not written for that time alone, but it was written for all up to the present time and through the ages to come. That command is as much for us as it was for Phillip and the other disciples of Christ in that day. The reason men break God's laws to-day is because they do not read and study the Bible. Many men, women and children do not go to church and never hear any of the teachings of God's word. They do not manifest a desire on their part to follow Jesus, neither do they express any love at all for Him.

Certainly you can not drive a man to do right. The Spirit of God must touch his heart and life and God must change the heart. Christ thru the Holy Spirit teaches us all things. The Holy Spirit dwelling in the heart of the believer guides him into all truth. The Spirit searcheth all things, even the deep things of God. God does so much want men to do right and accept Him that He assures us of His willingness to give us the Holy Spirit in these words: "If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children; how much more shall your Heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him."

I am now leaving Bethesda and coming to Capernaum. Christ rode on a boat there several times. As He walked on the shores of the Sea of Galilee at Capernaum He passed along where Matthew sat collecting taxes. Matthew was so lonely because he knew that he was disliked and hated of the populace. But as Jesus walked by of course Matthew was the very man He was seeking because he had sinned. The people called him the son of Levi, you old publican, you old scribe, Matthew, the old publican. But as Jesus walked by He treated him like he was a gentleman. He called to Matthew to follow Him, and the Gospel says that Matthew arose, and followed Jesus.

Matthew, I believe, wrote the book of Matthew in the Hebrew and the Greek; and he proved prophecy after thirty-seven predictions which is that Jesus was the Son of God, and His sinless, immaculate, incarnate, supernatural, miraculous birth of a virgin. Remember that Matthew followed, and did not put it off. Directly I am going to tell you about some people who did put it off.

After that Matthew began following Jesus he made a great feast, a supper and invited his close friends. Now the day of that feast could not have been the Jewish Sabbath because Matthew would not have suffered the people to stay away from church for a Sunday dinner. You know the Christians of Birmingham defeated by God's help the Sunday picture shows. But when we did the devil walked up to us and said, "Well you took the Sunday picture shows away from us, but you simply can not take the Sunday dinners away from us. I will have my Sunday dinners regardless."

Matthew was particular to have Jesus there. He went out on the streets and got all of his old friends. There was no noise made about it. There was no drinking going on. Neither was there any club business connected with it. No big airs, little "I's" and big "you's." But Matthew in all humility invited Jesus as the chief guest at the feast. It was there that the pharisees and sadducees criticised Jesus for eating with publicans and sinners. Jesus who was never silent to criticism said, "They that are whole need not a physician, but they that are sick."

You find nothing worthwhile at Bethesda today. A little farther down from the site of Bethesda we saw some fishermen's nets hanging up to dry. You remember that Jesus said of it, "Woe unto Bethesda and Chorazin, for if the mighty works which were done in thee had been done in Tyre and Sidon they would have repented in sack clothes and ashes."

It was there that Jesus taught the lesson of the ages saying to Andrew, James and John, "It is all right for you to make a living by fishing. It is honorable to work, but not to give all of your time to the work of making a living. I want to tell you what to do now. I want you to hang up your nets now after fishing all night and follow me." Now I want to ask you that if Christ did not mean that command why did He say it? He was not accustomed to saying things that way.

He says to America today just like He did to those humble fishermen of the country of Galilee, "Follow me, and I will make you to become fishers of men." He does not want us to let the world and the things of the world to creep into our lives and take up our time. Don't let the world get hold of you, and the things of the world crush your life, but follow Christ and He will place your feet on a higher plane. He will teach you how to become fishers of men. He will teach you how to lead others to a higher life.

As Jesus was traveling along that road from the Sea of Galilee to Bethesda perhaps a friend walked up to Him and said, "I have about decided to follow you, the Nazarene." Jesus we read turned and said as that burning, blazing Palestinian sun was going behind those Galilean hills, "Foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the son of man hath not where to lay His head." Now Christ meant by that that if we are to become Christians we must sit down and make the decision in such words as these: "If Christ wants me to sleep without a pillow I will do so. I will go anywhere He wants me to go."

While I was visiting in the Holy Land I saw Mount Olivet. The things which impressed me most was the great fact that Christ went out there and slept with the grass for His mattress, a stone for His pillow, and the canopy of heaven for a blanket. Jerusalem would not let Him sleep there. He was not permitted to spend even one night in Jerusalem. His feet were not welcome to walk on the ground in Jerusalem. She uplifted His sinless body on the cruel cross outside the city gates, outside the city walls.

How are we treating Him in America today? I am telling you the truth America is treating Christ badly. Many people are trying to get rid of Him, trying to crucify Him again. Some men were walking up from Nain, and when they saw Christ they said, "We want to follow you, we want to be your disciples because you are very popular now. The whole crowd is running after you." A poor boy in Capernaum said, "I would like to be on your side, but so many men say that I would break up the church."

Many people say, "I would like to be a follower of Jesus but I am not yet ready." You remember that when Christ was talking to the man who requested to tarry until he buried his father, He said, "Let the dead bury their dead." The father was not dead. The son only wanted to tarry, or in other words do the things which He wanted to before he was ready to follow Jesus. So many people today want to wait until they buy the house they want, and the nice automobile which their hearts are set on before they follow Jesus.

That was only an oriental phrase and meant that after he had done all the things he could do for his father and after his father had died and he had buried him then he would follow Jesus unto the resting place. Jesus himself at once knew that there was a lack of purpose in that man's heart. Some people say that they will give their lives to Jesus when all of the dance halls are closed and when people quit giving big Sunday dinners.

There is danger in delay. Then there is danger ahead of you. Remember that Jesus said, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, take up hish cross daily, and follow me." That phrase "If any man will come after me," means in the Greek language that if any man will follow me. Let him deny himself of so much rest, luxuries, a life of ease.

There was a broken hearted lonely girl alone in the city without friends to help her get a job. She walked the streets trying to get a job. She had no coal at home and no food to eat. Finally tired, weary and friendless by the world she sat down and wrote the song:

"Must Jesus bear the cross alone, and all the world go free?
No, there's a cross for everyone, and there's a cross for me."

General Garibaldi the great Italian liberator said to the Italians, "We are here, and all I ask you is that you follow me. I have nothing to offer you except two things and that is my heart's greatest efforts and the victory if you follow me." Jesus Christ says to us, "I have nothing to offer you if you will follow me except the victory over sin and the world." But remember that in following Christ there is the cross to take up. The way of the cross leads home. To a fathful servant of Jesus Christ who has just passed over to her reward I repeated this verse the day before she passed away, "Be thou faithful until death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.
However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.
Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.
Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

Will Southern Congressmen and Senators Slay Their Own Section?

— (Helm News Service) —

Washington, D. C., July 23.—Washington is now going through the usual political battle that is witnessed whenever a tariff measure is being considered by Congress. The present scene differs from previous ones only to the extent that southern agricultural and industrial interests object to being used as the football in this periodical battle.

The South stands in greater need of a protective tariff for its varied interests of agriculture, of minerals, and of manufactures, than any other part of the United States. Its people have not been able to accumulate the vast wealth of other sections and, therefore, need the benefit of a protective duty to a greater extent than the industries or the agriculture of other sections.

This fact was recognized at the tariff conference of the Southern Commissioners of Agriculture of twelve states and the committees appointed by them, a total of sixty-three delegates, which was held in this city June 17-19, when a tariff program for southern agriculture was outlined. The South, in thus authoritatively embracing a protective tariff policy, took a long step forward. It also took on new and tremendous responsibilities.

The greatest obstacle to southern progress in tariff legislation is that many Southern Congressmen and Senators vote against it. Witness their action on the measure when a vote was taken in the House. The Florida delegation of four voted solidly for it; six of the seven Louisiana Congressmen voted affirmatively; two out of eighteen Texas representatives supported the bill; all other Southern representatives voted against the bill.

The cotton farmer of the South presents the greatest tragedy. His status in the tariff measure now in the making, hurls a challenge to the statesmanship of the South and of the nation. During the 1922 tariff legislation, the Southern Tariff Association, in conjunction with commodity and national producing organizations, led the fight in the Senate for a duty on cotton—fibre and seed. The late Senator Gooding succeeded in putting a duty of seven cents per pound on long staple cotton over the opposition of Southern Democrats. This merely added an annual value of $28,000,000 to the crop. Only six Democratic Senators supported the amendment in 1922—Heflin of Alabama; Ransdell of Louisiana; Sheppard of Texas; Ashurst of Arizona; Harris of Georgia; and Hendricks of Wyoming; all others voted against it or remained silent.

Those same Senators who voted against the proposed amendment in 1922 are today attempting to lull their constituents into a sense of false security as they did in 1922 by assuring them that they will "take care" of their interests at the proper time. The greatest peril confronting the entire southern schedules in the measure now pending is that of a group of Southern Senators voting for protection on the products on the products of their state, against protection on products of other states, and against the bill as a whole. There is an unmistakable feeling of resentment on the part of protection Senators against such tactics, and impatience may result to the very great detriment of the South.

The same condition exists in the vegetable oil industry. It is estimated by those capable of judging that the placing of vegetable oils upon the dutiable list will add $8.00 per ton to the value of cotton seed, making a crop value of $46,000,000 additional per annum. What are southern Representatives going to do about this condition?

The tariff is not a political question. It is purely an economic one. Southern agriculture is languishing for lack of protective duties. Southern products in wide variety are being seriously injured by heavy importation of tomatoes, of citrus fruits, celery, onions, and many other farm products from Italy, Mexico, and other countries where the rate of wages is absurdly low.

Apparently many Southern Senators and members of the House are determined to betray their own section by fighting in every way possible against a protective tariff. The fight is not so much one of principle, but is based largely on opposition to a protective tariff because that has long been one of the cardinal principles of the Republican party. If these representatives were wise in their day and generation they would take the lead for a protective tariff away from the Republican party and demand and carry out with the aid of Republicans a tariff which would absolutely protect every interest in the South, and in doing so would protect other sections as well.

Congressman Hudspeth, one of the two Texas Representatives who supported the bill, in a speech before the House on May 27th, made these pertinent remarks: "You say the Republican party is the founder of the theory of a tariff upon the products of this country. I say the political history of this country does not bear you out in any such statement. As I have stated upon this floor, James Madison, that great Democrat and political philosopher, wrote the first tariff bill introduced the first day in the first Congress of this Nation.

"I grant you it is a bill written by Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee, but many of them live in farming sections. It is not a just and perfect bill by any means, but it carries fairer duties and more of them on the products of the farm and ranch than any bill presented by either party since the Civil War. And for that reason I am going to give it my vote on tomorrow.

"Again I say there are many features in this bill I do not like, but on the whole I believe it is better for the people I represent. n voting for this measure I have an abiding belief in my heart that I am not departing from the fundamental principles of the Democratic party."

The history of the Democratic party through the administrations of its founders, Madison, Jefferson, Jackson, Polk, and other leaders is one of orotection. Southern Democrats in recent years have not kept faith with party platforms containing protection planks.

Many Southern Democrats have expressed displeasure with the flexible tariff provisions of the pending bill. They dislike other administrative features of the bill. So do many Republicans, notably Representative Beck of Pennsylvania, one of the outstanding members of the lower House of Congress, but did they vote against the bill because of this?

What will Southern producers say to their representatives who give such reasons for voting against the bill, and depriving them of three cents per pound on tomatoes, three cents on beans, three cents a pound additional on wool and mohair, dollar a head additional on sheep and goats, two cents a pound on cabbage, four dollars a ton on alfalfa, many increases on other farm products, and the placing of such articles as hides, now on the free list, on the dutiable list. That's what a vote against the bill means.

This uestion has been asked repeatedly by those who are following the situation closely. How can Southern Congressmen and Senators face their constituents after doing all in their power to destroy the prosperity of the South by refusing even to join i nworking for a protective tariff when they know that a bill will be passed, but that the South will be made to suffer severely unless Southern Representatives stand by their own section?

FOURSQUARE REVIVAL IN PROGRESS IN CLANTON

Evangelist Locy's Illustrated Sermons Are Drawing Good Crowds

The Foursquare Revival, led by Evangelist Essie Binkley Locy, began last Thursday night. Good crowds have been attending every night, and have been growing nightly as reports of the illustrated messages spread. The sermon on "The Unveiled Bible" which was given last Sunday night has come in for the most comment, although Rev. Bessonnette's sermon on Monday night has received much favorable comment.

Aiding Evangelist Locy in the preaching is Rev. Harold D. Bessonnette, late of Macon, Ga., and five ladies from Macon, who were members of Rev. Bessonnette's church there, who are aiding along musical lines. They are all accomplished musicians.

The meeting is being held in a large warehouse on Third Avenue, South, and as there is plenty of room and the building well ventilated, it has proved to be a good place in which to hold a revival—no packing, standing, and the heat is not noticed.

Near the front of the building an improvised book and magazine stand has been arranged, where attendants furnish all the leaflets, etc., published by Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, of which this church is a unit. On sale, also is "In the Service of the King," Aimee Semple McPherson's life story.

Everybody is urged to attend these services, and hear and "see" the good messages being delivered nightly at 7:30. The revival will continue to August 11th.—Temple Church Trustees.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

NATURAL BROODING METHODS WHICH INSURE SUCCESS

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

A well known, high ranking church official of other days is credited with having said, "Give me the child until he is six years old, and I don't care who has him after that." In other words, this famous prelate believed that any influence exerted on a child during the tender formative years was much more important than anything which might come later. Much the same principle may be applied to chicken raising without straining the logic too greatly.

Natural broodnig with hens is the easiest and simplest way when comparatively few chicks are to be raised, as on many farms and with practically all of the so-called "back yard flocks." This method relieves you, to some extent, of the constant watchfulness necessary with artificially raised chicks. Then hen takes much of the burden off your shoulders by protecting, teaching and exercising the chicks.

If you select this plan, the time to start is when the first chick breaks out of the shell. Visit the nests frequently and remove broken shells so that they will not slip over the ends of eggs and smother unhatched chicks. Watch the hens carefully. Some hens have a tendency to desert the nest as soon as one chick has hatched. Either confine such a hen to the nest until the hatch is completed, or transfer her to a broody coop, putting the eggs and chicks under some other hen.

Watch also for nervous, restless hens that shift about a great deal. They often crush the newly hatched chicks. Remove chicks from such hens as fast as they hatch.

Once the hatch is completed, the next step is to transfer hen and chicks to appropriate brooding quarters. These, of course, will have to be prepared in advance. Such quarters usually consist of a good weather-tight coop that is free from draughts. One side of the coop is partly open as a rule, to provide sufficient ventilation and to let the chicks run in and out at will, when the weather will permit. On this side there should be a runway or small yard so the chicks can get out on the ground for the needed exercise.

Coops should be thoroughly cleaned, disinfected and aired for several days before chicks are placed in them. Under no circumstances feed the hen cracked grains. She should be fed whole corn as the chicks may eat small particles with serious or even fatal results. Carry the chicks in a box or basket well lined and covered, to avoid chilling them, and carry the hen under your arm. Place the hen in the coop and gently slip the chicks under her.

Even in the best weather it is best to confine the chicks to their quarters for the first two or three days. Otherwise they may roam too far away. They also need protection against hawks, rats, cats and other enemies.

Keep the hen confined to the brood coop preferably until the chicks are weaned and under no condition let her out under tow weeks. Even then, do not permit her to run at large. Keep her in the runway, allowing the chicks to range outside if you wish. She will keep them near at hand by constantly clucking and calling to them so they get plenty of exercise. If the hen is allowed free range she is likely to tire the chicks out. She may also lead them thru wet, cold grass, chilling them too much.

When you finally decide to give the brood their full freedom, release them rather late in the day the first time. Each succeeding day advance the time a little until they are out a full day.

Watch hens carefully from this time on. They do not know exactly how many chicks they have and may lose one or two. Also look after them in the same way when sudden showers come up. A hen will often leg it back to shelter leaving one or more hapless chicks at the mercy of the elements.

The hen may continue to mother the chicks anywhere from six to twelve weeks and even longer.

Chicks brooded by hens are much more likely to become infested with vermin. This can be avoided by dusting the hen at frequent intervals with a godo lice powder. This should be done the first time before the hen is set and then three or four days before the hatch is done. Do not use the strong lice powder on the hen while the chicks are quite young, as it may kill the chicks. Later, the regular lice powder may be used.

County Farm Agent's Notes

FARM PROFITS GAIN BY WINTER LEGUMES

Auburn, Ala., July 29.—As the cheapest and the best way to enrich land and make farming pay better, Alabama farmers are now being told by their county agents to prepare to plant a large acreage in winter legume seeds this fall.

With this in view, a State-wide campaign is now under way. Thru the press, in meetings, in conferences and personally county agents are talking with farmers about the advantages of winter legumes and telling them how to succeed with them.

J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist at Auburn, is recommending two winter legumes. They are hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas. His recommendations are based upon the Experiment Station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

For several years hairy vetch was a favorite but in recent years Austrian peas have become popular with those who have tried them. Farmers are advised to consult their county agents. Seed supply must be considered also.

Winter legumes are not only cheap but effective in enriching land. Frequently a crop of cotton, corn, or other crops followign a winter legume more than doubles the yield where no legume was planted. These little plants add both nitrogen and organic matter to the soil. A good crop of winter legumes addds all the nitrogen a succeeding crop of cotton needs. It does so at a cost much below that of nitrogen in commercial form.

Another advantage is that winter legumes interfere very little with other crops.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

Rayon, though the newest of the world's five basic textiles, cotton, linen, wool silk, and rayon, ranks third in the number of pounds produced and used annually.

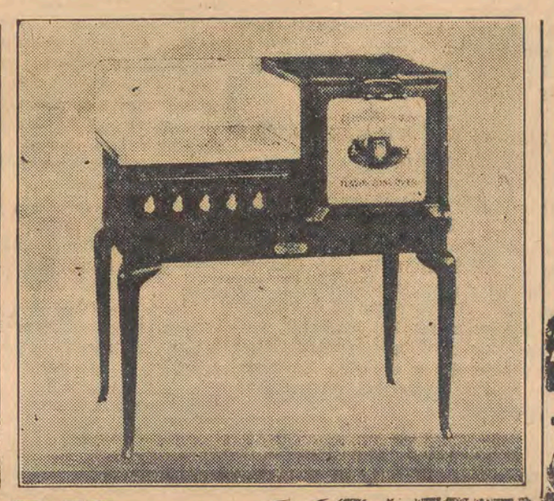
TREND IN NUMBER OF FRUIT TREES

Alabama lost 8 out of every 100 peach trees last year according to a recent farm survey of F. W. Gist, federal and state statistician of the state department of agriculture at Montgomery. This loss is attributed to insect pests of various kinds, to last year's low prices, and the consequent wholesale destruction of certain large commercial orchards by owners as a result. The peach tree is short lived at the best and where subject to pests in the soil, bark, or fruit, the yield may dwindle to an actual loss.

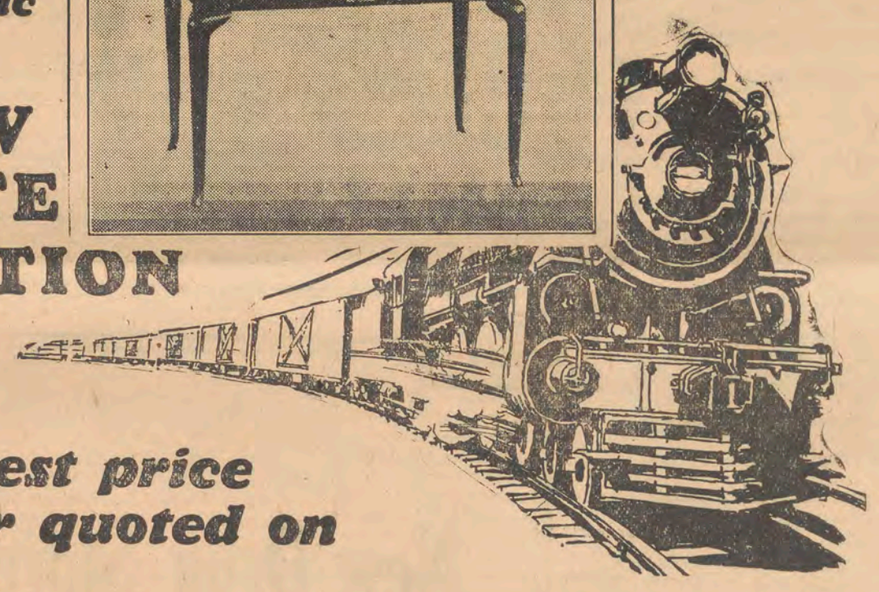
This year's production of tree fruits in Alabama is light. Peaches yielded only a half million bushels, compared with a million and a third bushels last year. The market has been better in consequence.

All over the United States tree crop fruits are rather light. In Alabama apples and pears will be low in yield. The commercial yield of apples is limited to the highland parts of North Alabama, especially in Madison, Clay and DeKalb Counties and in the northern third of the State.

The production of truck crops is on the whole excellent. There is no general tendency toward increase acreage of crops with the exception of cotton. The prices of the past few years have stimulated cotton production in Alabama. This increase in cotton has been at the expense of other crops for the most part and has resulted in short feed and food crops and a growing acreage of cotton.



During the past year, there was a decrease in the acreage of corn, hay, peanuts, potatoes, sorghum for sirup, cowpeas, and truck crops, with a slight increase in sugarcane, and sweet potatoes, with a fair increase in oats. Cotton increased 4 per cent in Alabama from 3,643,000 acres in 1928 to 3,789,000 this year.



The importance of King Cotton compared with all other crops may be judged by the fact that the acreage of corn, hay peanuts, oats, sweet potatoes, potatoes, sorghum for sirup, sugar cane, soybeans, cowpeas and other truck crops was 3,930,000 acres. In other words, cotton was but 59,000 acres less in acreage than all other farm crops combined.

The total acreage of farm crops, excluding pastures in 1929, was 7,715,000 acres. Less than one-fourth of the total land surface in Alabama is in tilled crops in 1929. The remainder may be considered to be for the most part forest land, with a considerable acreage of pastures.

WOOD RIVALS MARBLE

Montgomery, Ala., July 29.—Maple wood flooring is practically as enduring as marble under conditions of use, points out the Alabama Commsision of Forestry. The original inevstigations on this subject were made by the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research at Pittsburgh, Pa., and the results obtained have been found most interesting to the forest industries.

A machine was devised which brought to bear upon samples of different flooring materials a rubbing or scraping effect similar to that of human footsteps. After a test period of similar duration in each case, the samples were weighed to determine the percentage of loss from the wear. The samples of marble were found to have lost 23.18 per cent while those of maple wood lost 23.79 per cent, very closely paralleling the durability of the marble.

Concentrated loads were applied to the sample materials through furniture casters. Varying loads were applied according to the size and type of caster used, and the percentage of depth of the indentation noted. It was found that there was no difference between the marble and the maple in this respect.

THERE IS DEATH IN THE POT

We read in 2nd Kings 4:40 there was death in the pot and the man of God put meal in the pot and there was no harm in the pot. So we think of a pot that is the case of men being put to death and sometimes women going to the electric chair. I am thinking of Mrs. Ruth Snyder and she drank whiskey. Judd Gray drank and caused them to commit a crime that brought death to them. So I see death in the pot and many cases that proves that it is death in the pot. I know one man who had the pot in his kitchen and it set his house on fire and destroyed his home. I tell you there is death in the pot. The laws of this country are doing all they can to stop it but the man of God can cast meal in the pot and there is no harm in the pot. Let us see how this is done. Why let the man of God come into your life and there will be nothing in the pot that will harm. Jesus says, "Behold I stand and knock and if any man will open I will come in and sip with him and him with me and there will be no death in the pot." Today if you will hear His voice harden not your hearts.—H. F. McCary.

THORSBY SECTION

THE NEW BAPTIST CHURCH

The plans for the new Thorsby Baptist church have been adopted which call for a building 37 x 70 feet in area with wings on either side 9 x 30 feet. The entire building will have two floors, the first somewhat below the surface of the ground will be divided into vestibule, water closets, and one class room on either side of a short hall leading to either of two assembly rooms, each flanked by three class rooms located in either of the wings and so arranged that their fronts can be thrown open to the adjacent assembly room. Back of these rooms the balance of the floor space is taken up with a kitchen, furnace room, coal room and closets.

The second, or main floor contains the vestibule and pastor's study at the front. Next comes the auditorium with three flanking class rooms in the wings on either side. These six class rooms can be thrown open when desired to increase the size of the auditorium, which without them will seat about 200 people. At the back end of this floor will be the choir loft and the pulpit.

So far the only contract let is for the concrete work, including the excavating. All foundations, piers and columns are to be of concrete construction, all walls are made of concrete hollow tile. E. F. Mead and Son, of Thorsby, have been given the contract for this part of the construction. Bob Davenport and Clyde Mead have been appointed as a building committee.

The work of wrecking the old Baptist church began Monday morning with a force of men in charge of Bob Davenport. There is a pile of good material in that old building and all of it that is available will be used in the new church. From the start it is evident that there will be a good deal of volunteer work contributed by members of the church and congregation, but even so there will be need for every dollar that the whole community can put into it.

We have been shown a photograph of a finished church made on the plan that has been adopted for this one, and will say that as a public improvement for Thorsby it is worthy of all the help all the people can give to carry the work to completion.

Total of 125 Boys Enrolled For Three Days Outing At Gore's Pond

The annual camp of 4-H Club Boys of Chilton County went over according to schedule on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week. A total of 125 boys enrolled for the outing at Gore's Pond three miles northeast of Clanton.

County Agent C. E. Stapp, assisted by County Agent, T. P. Lee of Bibb County and County Agent H. M. Lewis of Elmore, had charge of activities for the boys. The program was well balanced with fun and frolic, interspersed with educational and instructive features. Every one of the boys had a good time.

There were a number of visitors to the camp every day. The members of Clanton Kiwanis Club were entertained by the boys Thursday night. During the week the boys heard addresses by Dr. V. J. Gragg, Mrs. J. Q. Wade, Renfroe Mullins, Mr. Hayden of the L. & N. Railroad, Dr. J. E. Edgar, J. N. Dennis, W. M. Wyatt.

Mrs. C. E. Stapp had an important part in making the camp a success. She was constantly in attendance to see that provisions were made for plenty to eat. And everyone who knows anything about a bunch of boys knows that the eating is essential to their happiness and peace of mind (and stomach).

Swimming was one of the main features of the camp. A nice lake on the camp grounds was always beckoning the boys to come in. Every time the signal was given by Mr. Stapp 125 boys were ready to plunge into the water.

Visitors to the camp were impressed with the fine discipline of the boys. They never failed to respond to the orders given by their managers. Even when they were told to come out of the swimming pool, there never was a murmur heard.

At the close of the camp the boys elected Clyde Popwell as the best camper. Other boys who received high votes for this honor were Jack Jones of Stanton and Horace Thornton of Coopers. Judson Easterling was elected camp fool and Curtis Easterling camp cow tail.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Mims, owners of the property where the camp was held, received a unanimous vote of thanks from the boys and the camp management for the fine spirit of co-operation which they showed. Prior to the camp Mr. Stapp secured samples of the water from the spring and swimming pool and sent it to the State Department for a test. The report came back showing the percentage of bacteria very low, and the water in fine shape.

SUCCESSFUL REVIVAL CLOSES AT FRIENDSHIP FRIDAY NIGHT

On last Friday night at Friendship came to a close one of the most successful protracted meetings ever held at this place. There were no additions to the church, but it is most sure that those already belonging as well as those of the outside world were greatly helped spiritually by the meeting.

Ten sermons were delivered by the visiting minister, Rev. J. S. Holland, formerly of Bessemer but now of East Tallassee. Rev. Holland came to Friendship a comparative stranger, but it did not take him long to get acquainted, and he did excellent preaching all through the meeting. He lost no time, but utilized every minute he was in the pulpit, and we believe we can say that he used it to the glory of God. If any went away from Rev. Holland's pleadings unsaved, the preacher will not be held accountable for it.

And too, we would be very ungrateful if we did not mention the untiring services of the singer, Mr. Herbert Lowery. It is far insufficient to merely say that Mr. Lowery filled the role of song leader to the satisfaction of those attending, for he did more than this. He lent the presence of his splendid spirit to the meeting and pulled all the time trying to make it a success. Mr. Lowery did his part and more.

As stated above, there were no additions to the church, but the time spent in the meeting is not lost. As of old, this meeting will prove to be "bread cast upon the waters to be gathered up after many days."

The people are grateful to the good brethren at Liberty Hill for the use of ten of their benches during the meeting. Also we express our thanks to Mr. E. L. McRae of North Clanton for furnishing his truck and hauling the benches.

FROG WITH SIX LEGS

Mr. Fonza Headley who lives down on Swift Creek, brought to The Union-Banner office Monday morning a bull frog that has six legs. The front legs are normal. There is one hind leg in the left side and three on the right side.

In the performance of all frog customs this one seems to be perfectly normal except the extra legs, all of which he used with equal facility. We will keep him until he dies and then send him to the museum at the University of Alabama.

BILLY RETHERFORD DIED FRIDAY NIGHT

Billy Retherford, age 10 years, son of Green D. Retherford, died last Friday night. He was buried by Martin Saturday afternoon in Clanton cemetery. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Ernest A. Childs and Rev. S. J. Ezell.

The little boy had been afflicted for about a year with tumor of the brain. He became blind last November and was carried to Atlanta for an operation. His sight was never restored and only temporary relief was gained in his suffering in spite of the faithful efforts of his family and physicians. His last struggle for life began at four o'clock in the afternoon and death relieved him of his suffering six hours later.

HELP KEEP DOWN MOSQUITOES

If proper precautions are taken in time much can be done to prevent the breeding of mosquitoes, and all citizens are asked to see that no buckets, cans or other vessels are thrown out and allowed to become full or partly full of water to provide breeding places. A good plan is to puncture the bottom of each can when throwing away. See that no pools of water are allowed to become stagnated, and if every one will cooperate this pest will not be so troublesome.—Eric Hart, Mayor.

HELL DISCOVERED 16 MILES FROM CLANTON

MT. PLEASANT SCHOOL BURNED

Belief Is That Building Was Set On Fire By One With A Grudge

The new schoolhouse in course of construction at Mt. Pleasant, three miles north-west of Clanton, was burned Monday night about twelve o'clock. The new building was begun about a month ago, and was to take the place of the one burned last winter. The contractor, Mr. Sewell, of Birmingham, was to have it ready by September the first.

People of Mt. Pleasant community believe the fire was set to the building by someone with a malicious intent. One man stated Tuesday that suspicion points strongly to a young man who is a brother of the boy who is in the reform school for setting fire to the old schoolhouse last winter. He is said to have made threats while he was down here from Birmingham last week that he would do some kind of damage before he went back.

We understand that the contractor had the building covered by insurance and that the money raised by the people of the community and the state and county funds had not been put into the building. But even if the financial loss were completely covered, there would yet be a great loss and inconvenience to the people of the community, as it is almost time for school to start and they have no building.

It is stated that the contractor will clear away the debris and resume his work on the erection of a building.

JESSE FULLER DIED

Jesse Fuller, well-known negro of Clanton, died last Saturday night. He had been in poor health for some time with disease of the heart.

Jesse had lived in Clanton for many years, and bore the reputation of being a good, peaceable, and honest negro. His dealings with the white folks were always square; and among his own race he stood for the things that are the best in character and conduct.

He came to Clanton about 25 years ago with Dr. E. A. Matthews from Marion, Ala., and served the family as long as they lived in Clanton. He was a trustworthy man, a loyal member of Union Baptist Church. His mother and sister from Birmingham attended the funeral.

PROTECT THE SQUIRRELS

Mr. J. R. Broadhead and Mr. M. L. White, and possibly some other citizens of Clanton have a few tame squirrels which they are trying to keep in the trees around their homes, and are complaining that some of the boys have maimed one of the squirrels, and are continually throwing or shooting at them.

If these squirrels are not molested we will soon have quite a number in Clanton, and I earnestly request all citizens not to bother them in any manner, and would also call attention to the fact that it is a violation of the state laws to kill squirrels in the closed season.—Eric Hart, Mayor.

OIL WELL BOOM STIRS JEMISON

Gasoline Being Drawn From Well With Bucket And Rope

Our neighbor town of Jemison may be right on the brink of a great oil boom. For all we know the town may soon see many of its citizens turned into millionaires overnight. And then on the other hand the fun may all be over in a few days and everything continue to move on in the same old way.

Mr. Sams, who runs a cafe by the side of the highway at Jemison, has a well on the back porch of his home from which he says he is drawing several gallons of gasoline every day. His story is about as follows:

"Some months ago I bought this property and moved here to live and run the cafe. When I came here the people told me I could not use the water from the well because it had oil in it. I was told that the oil had gotten into the well from a pump that had been used to pump the water. I did not think anything more about it, but went ahead getting water from the home of a neighbor across the street. I planned to have my well cleaned out so I could use the water.

"A few days ago two wells on the property of Mr. Sam Reynolds close to my place were found to be affected with oil. This caused a little curiosity in my mind and somehow I decided to inspect my own well more closely. I went and lowered a bucket with a rope and when I drew it up I had a bucket of oil.

"I drew out 21 gallons of the oil that day. Every day since that time I have taken a quantity of oil from my well. One man filled up his truck with it and made a trip to Birmingham."

Mr. Sams showed the writer a sample of the oil which he said came from the well. It is of a yellow color and smells like kerosene. It burns as readily as ordinary gasoline. The owner of the propetry has communicated with experts who will make a test of the oil and examine the well.

5 ESCAPED CONVICTS CAUGHT

Frank Allen, W. D. Cobb, L. A. Harper, W. A. Smith, and William Miller, escaped convicts from Speigner, were captured in Huntingdon, Tenn., Monday when the automobile in which they were traveling was wrecked. One of the men was perhaps fatally injured.

They escaped from Speigners last week when they overpowered J. P. Richardson, a guard, after they escaped from the prison cotton mill into a yard through an unlocked door. After severely mauling Richardson, they made their way without interference outside the yard and escaped in Richardson's automobile. The guard was discharged for "negligence."

Frank Boswell, deputy warden at Kilby Prison and C. C. O'Brien, convict transfer agent, left Montgomery Tuesday to bring the five escapes back to Alabama.

ALRED'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

Alred Drug Company will have a birthday party next Saturday at which time they invite all their friends in Chilton County to come to see them and have a good time. On this occasion next Saturday they will also celebrate the formal opening of their store under the new arrangement of fixtures and equipment recently completed.

Alred Drug Company, "The Home of Quality," has been in business in Clanton twenty years. The proprietors, Hance Alred and Herbert Neighbors, have labored hard and long to keep their business up to the most exacting demands of the public in service and quality of merchandise. Their full measure of success is the answer to the question of how well they have accomplished their task.

Recent improvements at the store make it one of the beauty spots of Chilton County. Every friend of this progressive and reliable firm (and they are legion) will be delighted to see the pleasing new appearance of the place.

From ten o'clock to three o'clock next Saturday, while the birthday party is in progress, every caller at the store will be given a free souvenir. Also there will be refreshments of ice cream and candy served to all friends and visitors.

"Twenty years is a long time," said Coos Neighbors, "but we have been here that long. We have enjoyed the business confidence of many folks in Clanton and Chilton County. We are thankful for the success we have made in our business; but the most valuable asset we have is the friends we have made. Without our friends we could not have done anything.

"Now we feel that we are just getting ready to really do business. We say to the people of Chilton County if you will continue to 'Let Us Be Your Druggist,' we feel that we can serve you better for the next twenty years than we have in the past."

Remember you have an invitation to the birthday party next Saturday. Come and bring the kids between ten and three o'clock and let them get acquainted with "The Home of Quality," and the splendid fellows who are responsible for this praiseworthy store.

NEW GIN IS NOW READY FOR RUN

Second Unit of Goodgames Has Undergone Complete Overhauling

A representative of The Union-Banner recently visited what used to be the old Wade gin in West End, but which is now in the possession of Burns and Bill Goodgame. On going through the outfit we were impressed with the fact that the machinery is new in every respect, and is the most modern that money can buy.

It consists of five Murray gins, which are known as the Murray High Speed Gins, equipped with the late air-blast appliance for the transfer of the fleecy staple. Another thing worthy of attention is the electrically driven cleaner, which is the latest thing in the gin line. This piece of machinery is said to considerably raise the grade of the cotton that passes through it. And too, this is a rather costly addition as the operation of this cleaner in electricity alone is about 20 cents for each bale of cotton; but it adds much more than that to the value of a bale of cotton.

The entire gin is electrically driven by means of a big 100 horse power motor. This motor is geared up directly with the five gins, all of which make a speed of 700 revolutions per minute. The fact that the drive is direct eliminates a great portion of the friction that the old belt driven machines necessarily incurred.

The Farmers Gin & Warehouse No. 2 will be in charge of W. H. Goodgame; the ginner is Mr. Walter Maddox. Of course, everyone who has ever had any ginning done in Chilton County knows Walter Maddox, as he is about the oldest head at this game in the county. He has ginned cotton all the way from the water-driven machine up to the electric motor. When it comes to ginning, Walter Maddox knows it.

The other unit belonging to the Goodgames at the old canning factory will be in charge of Burns Goodgame just as it was last year. With both these modern Murray gins in operation Burns and Bill Goodgame will be able to take care of their part of the cotton raised in Chilton County, and we feel safe in saying that their customers will be satisfied when they drive away from either of their gins after having brought a bale of cotton.

MADDOX NEW GIN IS READY

Joe Maddox, well-known and popular cotton gin operator in Clanton for the past quarter of a century, announces that his new gin is ready for business. The juice is ready to be turned on when the first bale rolls on the scales.

Mr. Maddox has built a new plant from the ground up, with new and improved machinery. This he will operate this fall in place of his old gins.

"We are determined that our customers shall have the best service possible," said Mr. Maddox, "and in order to guarantee this, we have built for them a new gin plant that can not be excelled anywhere."

The new gin is located between the old gin and the railroad just north of the Maddox Warehouse. Operation of the gins will be in charge of Billy Maddox again this year. He has been ginning for Joe Maddox for several years.

THE PERRY BODY SHOP IS NOW IN OPERATION

Mr. Perry Littlejohn has opened a new business in Clanton which will be operated under the name of The Perry Body Shop. It is located in the building back of the new Robinson Machine Shop near the Ford place.

At present the Perry Body Shop is at work on a contract with the county Board of Education for six school busses. These will be of standard uniform design which was perfected by Mr. Perry Littlejohn. Negotiations are under way with five other counties for similar bus bodies for school trucks.

The work of the Perry Body Shop will include all kinds of cabs, truck bodies and special designs for delivery units. Cut down bodies for all kinds of light cars or trucks will be a specialty.

Since opening the shop two weeks ago the proprietor has been greatly encouraged by the possibilities in this line of work here. He expects to enlarge his force and shop equipment to meet the demand for this class of work. Indications are that the next year will bring considerable growth to this new business.

KILLINGS AND ENFORCEMENT

So much critical publicity has been given by interests hostile to prohibition to the taking of life by enforcement agents that the treasury department has compiled a summary of the fatal shootings which have attended enforcement during the past ten years. The figures show that during this period 155 persons have been killed by federal prohibition agents in the United States. The records classify these shootings as follows:

Fifty-five were shooting at officers when the officers fired in self-defense.

Thirty-two pulled their guns to shoot but the officers were better shots.

Twelve made attempts upon lives of officers with other weapons than guns.

Ten others shot at officers.

One hundred and forty-nine out of 155 were known bootleggers or moonshiners.

Among six innocent parties killed one was a boy who was loitering around a still and not seen by officers until after the fight, then found wounded 200 yards away. Another suddenly stepped from behind a truck when officers were chasing a bootlegger's car. Another was not killed by officers but by the driver of a hired car in which officers were being driven to a still.

In 59 cases officers were indicted but acquitted on trial.

While the records are not at hand it is probable that the killing of officers by violators presents a picture black by contrast. There ought not to be killings growing out of law enforcement and there probably would not be, considering the government's instructions and the higher type of enforcement officers now in service, unless ivolators were the aggressors. —Montgomery Journal.

FIVE MONTHS OF HOOVER

President Hoover has been in office for less than five months. His record is one of quiet but extensive accomplishment. Whatever expectations may have been entertained of the administration of an executive of such large prior accomplishments, no reasonable person believed that his program for national advancement would produce over-night results. Years are not too long a time in which to work out comprehensive plans for permanent betterment. But in less than half a year enough has been done to prove that given reasonable time and proper support in Congress, President Hoover will fully fulfill the expectations of those who believed that his inauguration would usher in a new and brighter era in national government.

In less than five months a farm relief measure in conformity with the pledges of President Hoover has been enacted and put into operation under the direction of a board of experts of national reputation along agricultural and general economic lines. Properly enough the activities of this board are now centered upon a quick review of conditions preliminary to mapping a practical course of action. The proper approach is being made to the difficult question of prohibition and the broader question of general law enforcement and observance through a commission which because of its personnel commands general confidence. Curtailments have already been made in national expenditures, and a survey of this field is in progress which undoubtedly will result in reorganization of the executive departments along the line of greater efficiency and economy. Oil conservation, which so many politicians and industrialists have been talking about, but doing nothing about, is on the way toward realization, and oil scandals, the chief provender of political scandelmongers for a decade, has been made impossible by changes in landleasing regulations. A tariff measure which will give needed and just relief to American industries suffering from unfair foreign cheap-labor competition, and which will give to American farmers fair play in their own home market is nearing completion, and despite the outcry of those who may always be depended on to take the alien side of any domestic question, this law when passed, will erect between the foreign low standard and the American home standard of wages and living. Foreign relations have been distinctly improved, and there are signs abroad of a more reasonable and friendly attitude toward the United States both in France and England; undoubtedly the world-wide prestige of President Hoover prior to his election as President is a factor of importance in this improvement.

There is some sniping at the Hoover administration, as might have been expected. On the political and patronage side of the administration, there has been some disappointment and complaint. But the primary interest of the people is not in personal politics or in patronage. President Hoover will be judged by the effect of his administrative policies on national economic and social conditions. So far these have been such as to strengthen him with the people. Today American industry is running with record breaking swiftness and steadiness. Unemployment is diminishing. Wages measured in purchasing power of the dollar are higher than they have ever been before in the United States, and much higher than they have ever been in any other country. The shibboleths of demagogues are getting threadbare, and their output is attracting less than the usual amounts of respectful attention, though carried in great volume by the public press, a large section of which does not understand that this sort of thing does not command the old-time popularity.

Those who circulate among the people—and fortunately members of Congress have been so circulating during the past few weeks—know that President Hoover's strength with the great mass of every day people is even greater than at the time of his inauguration. The people intend to give President Hoover a fair trial in his effort to put good intentions and generous imagination into public administration, and it is the wise politician who does not busy himself trying to make political medicine against the national administration while the signs of the moon are contrariwise. The truth is that unjust attacks upon a President who has the confidence of the people only strengthen sentiment in his favor and disthat will create an issue.
credits those politicians who are not willing to bide their time in the hope that something may really happen

Detroit News: It has been a strange summer: A fellow was complaining the other morning that his raccoon coat irritated his sunburn.

STATE CAPITOL News

Contrary to popular belief the school superintendents of the State and the members of the State Department of Education are as active during the summer months when schools are actually in session.

These administrators are daily conferring with members of the staff of the State Department of Education relative to their plans and programs for another year. County Superintendents and boards of education as never before are seeking the assistance of departmental members in working out their plans. Many of these superintendents are new and are just now taking over the management of schools in their counties. They seem to be anxious to take advantage of this assistance before actively taking up their new duties.

The majority of these superintendents and boards of education have financial problems to solve. In most cases they are from counties which have been participating and will doubtless continue to participate in the distribution of the State Equalization Fund which the 1927 Legislature provided.

The distribution of this equalization fund of $900,000 each year is based upon a theoretical cost of a minimum program which is designed to provide a seven months term for the elementary schools and a nine months term for the high schools within each county. After the cost of the minimum program has been ascertained for a given county, a study is made to discover the amount of money which will be available to meet that program. If this amount is greater than the cost of the minimum program in the county, that county doesn't receive anything from the equalization fund; but when that amount is less than the cost of the minimum program, the county receives from the equalization fund an amount equivalent to the difference between the cost of the minimum program and the amount of funds available. If any district in an equalization county does not levy and collect a three mill district tax, the amount of money which could be received by such a levy is deducted from the amount which would otherwise be received from the equalization fund.

One avenue open to counties which are facing a retrenchment program is to remove the penalty which is now inflicted for failure to levy the full local tax which the constitution makes possible. The amount which this tax would return to a county if levied in untaxed districts is not only subtracted from the amount a county would otherwise get from the equalization fund but it is also considered as being available toward meeting the cost of the minimum program. Hence, a county is in reality penalized to the extent of twice the additional amount which could be raised by local taxation. In one county last year this penalty amounted to over $9,000 which means that that county would actually have had about $18,000 more money last year with which to provide a seven months term for elementary schools and a nine months term for high schools if every district in that county had levied and collected the three mill district tax.

In only 16 of the 39 counties which participated in the distribution of the equalization fund last year are all districts levying and collecting the three mill district tax. In the remaining 23 counties additional taxes amounting to 84,475 could have been levied. This, however, is a better showing than was made during the year 1927-28, for during that year this local tax was levied and collected in every district in only 10 of the 36 counties which participated in the distribution of the equalization fund that year. In the remaining 26 counties over $116,000 additional funds could have been raised by local taxation. One county, which in 1927-28 had a penalty of nearly $12,000, entirely removed that penalty for 1928-29 by levying and collecting the local three mill tax in those districts not previously levying it. This is a source of additional revenues which if made available would doubtless make a retrenchment program unnecessary in many counties now faced with this necessity. Below is given a list of the counties which participated in the distribution of the equalization fund last year. It shows for each county the amount which was withheld from the equalization fund apportionment for failure to levy and collect the above mentioned tax every district within the county.

The State of Alabama, through its Department of Game and Fisheries, will conduct its first Deep Sea Rodeo on August 26, 27 and 28, in the waters of Mobile Bay and the Gulf of Mexico off the coast of Fort Gaines. This Fort, which is the property of the City of Mobile, has been turned over to the State for these three days and will be Rodeo headquarters. From present indications, a very large crowd will attend this event.

The fishermen will assemble at Mobile on Sunday, August 25th, from which point they will be transported on the Bay Boat Josie to Fort Gaines. They will reach there by 11 a. m. and will spend the balance of the day in getting acquainted. The contest will open Monday.

Handsome prizes will be awarded for the first tarpon caught and for the largest (by weight) of each of the following fishes taken during the three days of sport: tarpon, cavalla, ling, redfish, king mackerel, bonita, blue fish, black fish, and speckled trout, all of which abound in the coastal waters of Alabama.

The Rodeo is being held to demonstrate to the people within and without the State the wonderful opportunities for fishing which exist within Alabama. Particularly all the leading sportsmen of the State will attend the event, and invitations have been extended to Messrs. Irvin Cobb, Will Rogers, Zane Grey, and other sportsmen nationally prominent.

The Rodeo offers the opportunity of a splendid vacation at moderate cost. Those interested in attending are requested to communicate with Commissioner I. T. Quinn, State Capitol, Montgomery, as early as possible, as accomodations as at present arranged are limited and if more fishermen are to attend sufficient time must be allowed to make proper provision.

How unthoughtful is he who permits the remains of a loving Mother, Father, Sister, Brother or a little Child to rest in an unmarked grave with nothing to distinguish that hallowed spot from the commonplace surface of the earth, indifferently trampled by man and beast. HERES REAL OPPORTUNITY FOR WOMEN OF CHILTON COUNTY

This question suggested itself today from an announcement in Chicago of a National Canning Contest to find the best jar of canned fruit, vegetables or meat in the country. Twelve hundred and fifty dollars ($1250) in cold cash awaits the woman or girl in the United States whose entry is selected as the best jar of canned food entered in the contest.

The contest, which is sponsored by the Sears - Roebuck Agricultural Foundaiton, seeks to acquaint more housewives with the economy and healthfulness of home canned foods. For years the U. S. Department of agriculture and home demonstration agents throughout the country have worked for increased production of native canned foods. It is to further this excellent idea and at the same time help absorb the threatened surplus of farm products in many sections, that this canning project was conceived.

Two hundred and twenty-two cash prizes, totalling $5,825, will be disbursed to the winners in the contest, which as 3 major division: fruit, vegetables and meat. The best entry in each division will be awarded $250 and one of these will also receive the thousand dollar sweepstakes prize, thus bringing the total cash prize for the best jar of canned food in the contest to $1,250. Second prize in each of the three divisions will be [illegible] $100 and fourth prize, $50. There will also be five prizes of $25 each, ten prizes of $10 each and fifty prizes of $5 each. In addition, a thousand dollars in cash will be awarded to the home demonstration agent whose county sends in the greatest number of entries, $500 to the agent whose county has the next largest number, and $100 to the agent whose county sends in the third largest number of entries. A number of lesser merchandis prizes are also offered.

Contest Closes October 1

According to the rules, the contest is open to every woman and girl in the United States. There are no restrictions as to the nature of the feed sent; any fruit, vegetable or meat, whether home grown or purchased, is acceptable. Contestants may enter one, two or all three divisions. Entries, regardless of when canned, must not be sent prior to August 15 nor later than October 1, which is the closing date of the contest. No entries will be returned, but instead these will be sent, with the name and address of the contestant, to an orphanage, hospital, infirmary or other charitable institution to be selected by the Foundation.

Specimens of canned fruits and vegetables in the contest will be judged on the basis of clearness, color, pack, neatness, flavor and texture. Meat specimens will be judged in their relation to pack neatness, texture and flavor. There will be three judges, to be selected by the Foundation from a list of outstanding authorities on home economics, domestic science, and canned food. Their decision will be made known just as soon as possible after October 1.

Gives Hints on Canning

"Any method of canning may be used for this contest," announces Anne Williams, director of the contest. 'The use of a steam pressure cooker, however, is highly recommended by canning experts and by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, especially in canning meats. Not only does this method of canning save time and fuel and assure absolutely sterility and preservation, but food canned under pressure retains all its natural flavor and texture, which are vital points in any canning contest."

That the judging may be thoroughly impartial and the display of canned samples absolutely uniform, contestants are required to submit their entries in standard glass jars of the quart size. All contestants will be furnished with one Ball mason jar and carton for sending in a canned article, but those making entries in more than one division are expected to supply their own jars and shipping cartons. The sample jar and prize entry labels for use in submitting entries may be secured without cost by communicating with the headquarters of the National Canning Contest, 925 S. Homan Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.

M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

SUBJECT: AND JESUS STOOD BEFORE THE GOVERNOR.

If you will read the 27th chapter of the Gospel according to Matthew when you get to the 11th verse you will find a sentence of six words: "And Jesus stood before the governor." In other words Jesus was on trial before a corrupt court, a civil court, a Roman court. Pilate was not only the governor but he was also the judge, the sheriff.

Cases like unto that of Christ were referred to Pilate for a final decision. The night before the morning that He stood before Pilate He stood before an ecclesiastical court. Now Christ was on trial, and His trial was illegal. His trial was uncalled for. His trial was unauthorized. He was guiltless. Pilate's own wife said to Pilate, "Have thou nothing to do with that just man." At the same time Jesus Christ was on trial before Pilate. Sometime in the future Pontius Pilate will be on trial before Jesus Christ.

Christ is on trial today before the world, with the world for His judge. We as Christians are the witnesses in the trial of Christ. Are we telling the truth in this great trial? Are we living the truth in it or are we living falsehoods in His case? We surely must be careful as to what kind of a witness bearer we are. We must testify only to the truth.

Christ is on trial as to who He was. Some men say that He was a mere man, born just like George Washington, John Calvin, John Knox, Woodrow Wilson, or some other man. Christ was on trial then as to who He was, and He is on trial now as to who He is. We ask ourselves this question: "What is the testimonies as to who He was, and who He is?"

One of the strongest testimonies is that of prophecy, the statements of God. In Gen. 3:15 we read that the seed of a woman shall bruise the serpent's head. The ordinary seed of a woman could not have done this. Then again in Gen. 12:3 God said to Abraham that in Christ all families of the earth would be blessed. Truly in Christ all families of the earth have been blessed even to them who believe on His name. The time is coming, my friends, when every knee shall bow at the mention of His name and every tongue shall confess His name as Christ, the Beloved Son of God the Father.

When the people in the time of Isaiah asked fo ra sign we read in the 7th chapter that Isaiah said, "This shall be a miracle unto you, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call His name Immanuel." Immanuel means "God with us." Then in the 9th chapter of Isiah we are taught that the promised Son to the world was One who would hold the government on His shoulders, and He would be called the Wonderful Counsellor, the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace.

In Micah 5:2 this prophecy was substantiated in these words: "But thou, Bethlehem, Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall He come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting." This was literally fulfilled in God's time according to His prophecy.

Christ's presence continues to be on trial. Even the angel substantiated this fact. In the book of Daniel the angel Gabriel spoke of the coming Messiah in words like these: "The ancient of days." In the Gospel according to John, 1st chapter and 1st verse we read these words: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God."

The angel Gabriel appeared to Mary in the hill country of Galilee and said unto her, "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God; His name shall be called Jesus for He shall save His people from their sins." The angel on the hill side of Bethlehem announcing the fact of His advent to the faithful shepherds said, "His name shall be called Christ the Lord."

Christ also proclaimed a testimony to His personal character by saying, "I and the Father are one, he that hath seen me hath seen the Father. Before Abraham was I was." He also spoke of the glory which He had with the Father before the foundation of the world. Then His miracles are testimonies as to who Christ was and is. He changed water into wine, calmed storms, cooled fevers, cleansed lepers, opened blind eyes, unstopped deaf ears, raised the dead even Himself. The angel Gabriel was Christ Himself. Then we must not forget that He rode back to His heavenly home in a chariot of a cloud.

The teachings of Christ are wonderful testimonies as to who Christ was. No other person ever spake and taught as did Christ. Certainly His teachings are superior and they are indestructible. His teachings alone reveal the way of salvation, and meet the needs of humanity. No other man's teachings can do it. No other teachings can give the peace, satisfaction, happiness, comfort in sorrow as the Bible does.

Christ is on trial as the way Christians live, the way they keep His teachings, His laws. At a meeting on a foreign shore where were assembled a great many heathens. Some of the Christians were testifying as to their salvation from sin. A Brahaman who was present got up and said, "Well, Sahib, I am saved." The missionary said, "I am very glad to hear that you are saved, I am very happy indeed." Then the missionary said, "Now we are going down in the slums of the city, among the outcast, the poor, and starving to see what we can do for these people. Many of them are blind, helpless and starving. We are going to share our lives with them. Will you join us in such a task?"

The man said, "I am saved, but I must admit that I am not saved that far." Some of our Christians are like that Brahman. They only go part of the way. They are particular not to make any sacrifice, deny themselves of staying away from the parks on Sunday when they should be at church. They will not deny themselves of missing a big dinner, a blind tiger, or a fishing trip on Sunday.

Don't forget that each one of us is a witness for Christ on this His great trial. Is your testimony true? Is my testimony true to Christ? Truly our testimonies are either for or against Christ. Are we dealing with Christ in a superficial way? Do men take knowledge of us that we have been with Jesus? If we give all our goods to take care of the poor, and yet live not a life of pure, clean testimony to Christ my Lord and my King it profiteth us nothing.

Sound Logic

A colored preacher had just concluded a sermon on "Salvation am Free." He announced that a collection would be taken up for the benefit of the parson and his family. A member in the audience objected to the paradoxical nature of the proceedings and received this bit of negro logic in response:

"S'pose yo' was thirsty an' come to a river. Yo' could kneel right down an' drink your fill, couldn't yo'? An' it wouldn't cost yo' nothing. But s'posin' yo' was to hab dat water piped to yo' house, yo'd have to pay, wouldn't yo'? De salvation am free, but it's de habin' it piped to yo' dat yo' got to pay for,."

Farmer: "No, I wouldn't think o' chargin' ye fer the cider. That'd be bootleggin'—an' praise the Lord, I ain't come to that yit. The peck of potatoes'll be five dollars."—Life.

"What did you do with the dollar?"

"Wired home for more."

$312,000 SAVED YEARLY TO DOMESTIC ELECTRIC CONSUMERS

Not only did this big rate reduction save more than $300,000 every year to household users of electric currents, but it opened the way to higher living standards in thousands of Alabama homes.

New low electric rates have made it possible for those of modest income to afford new electrical appliances which add immeasurably to home comfort, efficiency and economy.

Electrical refrigerators, ranges, water heaters will soon be just as much a part of modern Alabama Homes as the roof. If you are not familiar with the full advantages of the new low rates, ask the manager of our local store to explain them.

The time is near when "Doctor" Robinson will move into his new modern up-to-date building, in which he will operate his well equipped machine shop. This business is a real credit in keeping the wheels of Clanton turning. He has saved us many delays in our service by serving us in breakdowns.

Did you know we washed and ironed a little less than 500 shirts last week? The cost is small when you send us your whole wash.

We have a fine looking town here but let's clean up and paint up and make it still more attractive.

STYLE HINT

The stout ladies have changed a certain quotation. They say that "There is a destiny that ends our shapes."

An old lady was walking by the creek and came upon several boys bathing in their birthday suits. "Boys," she exclaimed, "isn't it against the law to go in bathing without a bathing suit on?" "Yessum," they replied, "but come on in; we won't tell on you."

He who steals my purse steals trash but he who filched the right of way at the highway intersection yesterday robbed me of something that enriched him only to the extent of a few seconds but left me madder than a wet hen.

The only advantage of being six years old is that when she jilts you, you can take it out by throwing a stone at her.

We would call your attention to the invitation you have to the big birthday party at Alred Drug Company next Saturday. This popular firm is celebrating its 20th birthday, and you are sure to have a nice time if you are present at this party.

JADIE MIMS IN JAIL FOR THREATS

Jadie Mims, age 15 years, was placed in jail Tuesday night after he had threatened to take the life of his step father, Allen Tracy. It is said that the boy secured a shot gun and said he was going to kill Tracy.

Young Mims has been out on parole from the reform school for some time.

The Child Welfare department of Chilton County states that authorities at the reform school say that if the boy came before the juvenile court again he would have to go to a school for feeble minded.

The Mims boy is a son of Leander Mims, who was drowned in Coosa River some years ago. After the death of Mims his mother married Allen Tracy.

AMBUSH SLAYER OF FLORALA MAN OBJECT OF HUNT

Baker Killed at Gate of Home By Unknown Late at Night

Florala, Ala., Aug. 6—Officers here Tuesday were trying to establish the identity of a man who, at 11:30 p. m. Saturday, stepped from ambush and fired two charges from a shotgun into the body of John Parker, 30, former Florala bakery shop proprietor, as he was opening the yard gate to his home in Oak Grove Bridge, about 15 miles from here. Parker was killed instantly. His brother was a witness to the slaying.

No Definite Clue

Admittedly without any definite clues to the ambush authorities were trying to establish connection between the fatal shooting and the burning of a negro shack about 3-4 of a mile from the Parker home on the night of July 28.

The slayer of Parker, after firing two charges of No. 1 buckshot into the baker's back, ran three miles thru the woods to another road on which his automobile had been parked, according to H. H. Dorsey, Florala chief of police, who tracked him during the early investigation. Dorsey said that after the man entered his machine, he drove through the woods to the site of the burned negro shack, got out and walked around, and then, entering his machine again drove back out of the woods. The tracks of his automobile were lost when he drove onto a highway about two miles from the Parker home.

Back From Trip

Parker's brother told police that John Parker alighted from his automobile and stepped into the light of the car as he opened the gate. When he had the gate partially open a man came onto the road from the opposite side and fired at him twice, the brother said.

Parker and his brother had just returned from a visit with their father in Florida. While authorities were at a loss to ascribe a motive for the slaying it was learned that Parker had had some trouble with some negroes living in the section, Chief Dorsey said.

In addition to other relatives the slain man is survived by his wife, a former Florala High School girl. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon.

STATEWIDE SURVEY OF RECEPTION OF WAPI

The days of horse and buggy speed are forever gone. Today the automobile is slow and the airplane is speeding up to hold its own. The radio is as fast as light, and radio messages can travel around the world in much less than one second.

The Department of Agriculture Studio at Montgomery is cooperating with the Extension Service at Auburn and trying to learn all facts regarding the receptien given the various programs, especially at noonday, from WAPI.

Each day a program is sent from Auburn Studio from 12 noon to 12:30 P. M., after which the Department follows from its studio until 1 P. M. Then the Birmingham Station from which the broadcasting is sent follows along with a fifteen minute program.

This statewide survey will test the distance, clearness, interference and general conditions of reception in every county in the State. The survey will enable the various studios and the station to give improved service at all times to Alabama citizens.

Mr. S. G. Persons representing the State Department of Agriculture and Auburn Extension Service, and Mr. J. C. Taylor of the RCA Corporation are making the survey and these gentlemen report a splendid enthusiasm on the part of radio fans in the 12 counties already visited in south Alabama.

Users of radio service are requested by Commissioner Seth P. Storrs of Montgomery to cooperate in every way with these gentlemen. It is only through the assistance given by users of radio sets that the facts regarding reception can be secured.

The survey will be continued thru the next month, until the entire state is covered. With the examination and findings of the radio experts concluded, certain recommendations may be made to give further increased assistance to the patrons of WAPI.

Mr. Storrs is anxious to increase the possible uses to which the radio may be put to assist farmers. He realizes that it is the last step in giving the farmer a daily market service, equal to that received by large city organizations. With the radio in every farm home, the farmer can secure his market prices on an equality with the city broker or cotton factor.

TEN ALABAMIANS MASTER FARMERS

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 5.—Ten more Alabama farmers have received "master farmer" awards. They are Allen Behel, Lauderdale County; John L. Chambers, Marshall County; Chas. C. Miller, Etowah County; C. P. Harwell, Tallapoosa County; Wyatt Key, Dale County; Seth P. Storrs, Elmore County; Will Howard Smith, Autauga County; J. L. Edwards, Dallas County; T. Cary Marriott, Monroe County; and E. R. Jamieson, Hale County.

The awards were made by The Progressive Farmer, Birmingham, in cooperation with the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Medals were presented to them at the master farmer banquet in Auburn, August 6, in connection with the farmer's week exercises.

This is the second group of Alabama farmers to receive this high award. The first ten were selected in 1927. They are: John R. Witt, J. J. Boyd, Emil Graf, J. W. Hathorn, D. W. Hurst, L. C. Young, Sr., J. B. H. Lumpkin, R. E. Lambert, W. H. King, B. H. Lightfoot.

The ten who were awarded this honor this year were selected from 40 nominees made last spring by county agents and organized farmers in 40 counties. Each was scored by W. C. Lassetter, editor of The Progressive Farmer. Gradually the elimination process was continued until 10 were selected.

In making the selection the major points taken into consideration were operation and organization of the farm, business methods and ability, appearance and upkeep of the farm and home, and home life and citizenship.

A "master farmer" is the highest honor yet awarded to farmers for outstanding achievement. Two years from now ten more Alabama farmers are to receive "master farmer" awards.

HOG RAISERS MAY GET PEAK PRICES

The spring pig crop is generally ready for market during October, November, and December. A study of receipts at principal markets shows relatively small receipts during August and September, with larger quantities sent to market in October, still larger in November, and a further increase in December—the peak movement being reached in January.

There is generally a decline in prices during the period from September to January when receipts are increasing. On an average the seasonal advances reach their peak in August or September when receipts are lightest. Last year the peak price was reached September 11.

It is possible for Alabama hog producers to take advantage of the seasonal trends. This is especially true for southeast Alabama where feed crops mature early; making it possible to have the hogs ready for market during the latter part of August and September.

It is almost a law of economics that when prices go up production rapidly increases. It follows that when prices go down production decreases, causing what is known as the "price cycle."

If producers react as they have in the past, we can expect to see a rapid expansion in production during the next twelve months. Consequently, price trend should start down the latter part of 1930 or during 1931.

Farmers with breeding stock and feed have an opportunity to raise hogs for market during the coming months and take advantage of the prospective high level. Chances are that by the time new producers can get in business on a large scale the price will be on a downward trend.

O'NEAL REPORTS ON CO-OP

As president of the Farm Bureau and its subsidiaries, Mr. O'Neal gave an historical sketch of cooperation among Alabama farmers since the organization of the Farm Bureau in 1922. Starting with a few county units the organization spread from county to county until it covered almost the entire state. At first, very little business was transacted but one project after another was added until the organization now assists in the marketing of all major crops and livestock; in buying fertilizer, seed, and insecticides; and in financing the production and sale of crops and livestock.

Marketing cotton was the first big project of the organization. This was done by organizing and operating the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association. Later a credit corporation was organized for financing. Along with this the mutual supply association for foreign supplies was organized. The annual business of the organization now extends well into the millions of dollars.

The Farm Bureau works in close cooperation with county and farm demonstration agents, with the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, and with other divisions of the State and Federal government. The Alabama plan of farm organization and cooperation has attracted favorable comment throughout the nation, Mr. O'Neal said.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

An experiment at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute showed that where Johnson grass was not cut it had nine times as many roots as where it was cut often.

"In case the cotton crop is well set before the boll weevil gets numerous enough to cause serious damage it will pay to give two to three applications of calcium arsenate if the weevils begin puncturing the young bolls."—J. M. Robinson, Auburn entomologist.

Many tired backs are the result of improperly placed kitchen equipment."—Nell Pickens, home management specialist, Auburn.

In buying new kitchen utensils remember that those free from seams, crevices, and rough edges are more easily cleaned.

Making growing pigs wait for the grain to ripen is a costly practice and a pig that has been stunted will never make up in appearance and quality, say livestock specialists.

Popularity.. begins with a Clear Skin

IT'S the person with a clear, smooth, lovely complexion that usually wins.

To be sure, not much is said openly about skin eruptions, but secretly they influence many important affairs. Personal likes and dislikes are quickly formed.

Everybody wants to be attractive. It is a just and natural ambition. A clear skin makes everyone more attractive.

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils, eczema and other skin eruptions as being an indication that the body's power of resistance is low—that there is a deficiency of red-blood-cells.

The sure way to remedy this condition is to restore the red-blood-cells to normal.

This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of those unsightly blemishes and painful skin annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

S.S.S. helps Nature restore the blood to its normal state. Healthy blood makes the body strong and resistant to disease.

Without plenty of rich, red blood there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or healthy, beautiful women.

If you are troubled with so-called skin disorders or if the count of your red-blood-cells is low, take a few bottles of S.S.S. Seek energy, vitality and a clear skin through the remedy, which is made from fresh vegetable drugs, and has stood the test of over 100 years.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Letter From Missionary in China

Dear Editor:

Here comes a letter from this land of intrigue, graft, warfare, famine, suffering, chaos,—to tell you and the readers of your excellent paper about China's new woman who has a share in the "goings-on."

If a woman in China, twenty years ago, had been given a Rip Van Winkle sleep, she would be more surprised than he was, should she awake today. Then women had to stay indoors and work something like domestic animals. Or, if of a better family, be cooped up at home and stay there. She was allowed to be seen only by her husband or brothers.

Now what a change! The modern Chinese young women skip around the streets with a spring, grace and freedom that's quite refreshing when one remembers the women formerly hobbling along on bound feet supported by amahs. Now girls bob, shingle or permanent wave their hair. That's a sign of freedom! They ride bicycles, play tennis, basket ball and engage in other athletics. Formerly the parents arranged their marriage. Now one often sees the young ladies walking very affectionately arm in arm with their "best boys" and the young people often do the arranging. The dress used to be the most modest of any nationality. Now women are often seen with short sleeves and very low-necked frocks even at midday. Sometimes they're seen with the most up-to-date up-beyond-the-knee short frocks and flimsy silk hose and very high-heeled shoes. Indeed, Chinese girls are quite amusing flappers sometimes — shocking sometimes—so much so that the officials have felt it necessary to issue proclamations commanding them to dress modestly. The girls have even learned to flirt in the most up-to-date way. That's freedom! They dance in the latest styles. They ride horses, astride, with boots and riding breeches. "That's English, you know."

Once the ideal for girls was that they be able to do beautiful needle work at home. Now they are doing other things. They are clerks in stores. Some are typists and stenographers. Some are bankers. They play the organ or piano or other musical instruments. Some are becoming movie artists or actresses. Some are lawyers and judges and doctors, are teachers and kindergarteners. They even become soldiers and sometimes they become Generals' secretaries! Women also become street corner politicians and scream the Revolutionary platitudes such as, "Down with imperialism," "Give the people freedom," to beat the most zealous men Revolutionaries. Rarely do you see meetings for propaganda or riots without seeing girls or women taking active part in them, urging on the riots. I am glad to say that some few of them are taking part in the Red Cross work in relieving the suffering of those wounded in battle. Women, too, occupy places of influence in the government in Nanking. Once women's faces lacked all hope and ambition, and there are still great hosts of women who are the same drudges at home or—worse—in great factories. But among the younger generation they have ambition—ambition that carries them to extremes.

I'm glad to say that there are many modest, motherly women who have gone through our mission schools who are making nice, clean, beautiful, good useful members of society, children of whom they and missions can be proud and thankful. One can not expect great things from a nation in which the people have been brought up for ages in filth, physical and moral; but a new generation is coming on, born anew in the church of Christ and in these clean Christian homes. We are expecting much for China from such.

Things are out of joint in China; but we hope and pray that the common sense of better Chinese and the deeply planted power of the Gospel will gradually overcome the criminal influences and that China will find peace, prosperity, and a place among the great nations of the world.

Yours in Christ's glad service.—(Rev.) H. G. C. Hallock.

MR. PATTERSON IN HARD LUCK

Mr. Frank Patterson of Verbena Route 1 struck hard luck last Friday when he lost his pocketbook, which contained $77 in currency and about $2,000 in checks. The money was lost between his home and New Home Church.

Somebody surely has found this pocketbook, and the checks in it prove who is the owner. No doubt Mr. Patterson would be glad to have the checks returned even if the finder is not disposed to give up the cash. An honest person would return the whole to the owner and get the reward which is offered.

DANIEL AMONG THE LIONS

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 6:1-28.

GOLDEN TEXT—The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Daniel Is True to God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Daniel is True to God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Meaning of True Courage.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Courage of Faith.

Sterling worth brought him to the front and kept him there. The new king was keen to discern his worth and to give it recognition.

II. An Occasion Sought Against Daniel (vv. 4-9).

1. The reason for (v. 4). No doubt that which prompted this effort was envy and jealousy.

2. Failure of (v. 4).

Daniel's official record was blameless. They could not even find an error. Envy is still in the world. Those who excel in any line are sure to suffer in some way for their excellencies. The successful business man in relation to his competitors, the ranking pupil in school, the child of superior merit in the home, will be envied by the others. In politics many times those who honestly strive to do their duty are persecuted. Even in the church we find ministers are sometimes envious of their superiors.

3. The wicked plot (vv. 5-9).

They trumped up a charge on the ground of his foreign religion. They were not careful about their method, so their end was attained. In spite of Daniel's loyalty, the decree was signed by the king which would put him into the den of lions.

III. Daniel's Noble Confession (vv. 10-13).

Though Daniel knew that the wicked decree was signed, he knelt before God as usual. Note the silence of heroism. Weak men bluster; strong men have little to say.

1. He continued his usual habit (v. 10).

He knew that the civil law had absolutely nothing to do with his religion. God's law is first. Laws forbidding reading the Bible, praying, or meeting to worship God, have no authority over men.

2. Daniel reported to the king (vv. 11-13).

These wicked men watched to find out whether Daniel would pray before his God, and when they found that he continued his worship, they went to the king and reported that Daniel disregarded his decree.

IV. The Foolish Decree Executed (vv. 14-17).

1. The king displeased with himself (v. 14).

He labored till the going down of the sun to deliver Daniel, conscious that he had been entrapped.

2. The king helpless (v. 15).

The proud ruler found that he was a slave. To enact laws which change not is the height of folly.

3. Daniel cast into the den of lions (v. 16).

The king's parting word to Daniel was a poor, feeble excuse for his guilty conscience.

4. The double seal (v. 17).

V. Daniel Delivered (vv. 18-23).

1. Note the contrast between the night in the lion's den and the one in the palace. In the palace there was no sleep, no mirth. Daniel's quiet is as a picture of the safety and peace which are the portion of those who trust God and do His will.

2. The king's question in the morning (v. 20).

3. Daniel's answer (v. 22).

God's angel has done many wonderful works. The early Christians despised bonds, stripes and death.

4. Daniel delivered (v. 23).

No manner of hurt was found because he believed in his God.

VI. The Doom of His Accusers (v. 24).

They were cast into the den of lions and "or ever they came at the bottom of the den" their bones were broken in pieces. Daniel's enemies go into the same trap which they prepared for him.

VII. Darius' Decree (vv. 25-27).

Men were to tremble and fear before Daniel's God. As to whether Darius had a change of heart we do not know.

VIII. Daniel's Prosperity (v. 28).

Daniel goes higher into the kingdom and continues in his place of honor even though dynasties change.

STATE PRISONS BOAST JUMP OF 1,155 INMATES

There are now 1,155 more people doing time in Alabama state prisons and prison camps than there were a year ago.

Records of the State Convict Department yesterday showed that the number of prisoners in Alabama penal institutions and at state road camps totalled 4,206, compared with 3,051 on the same date last year.

The increase in the prison population during the last 12 months consists for the most part of persons found guilty of stealing automobile, or violating the prohibition laws, it is stated—a majority of these people being under 30 years of age.

A marked increase is noted in the number of women prisoners. Twenty-four white women and 141 negro women are serving penitentiary sentences in Alabama at present.

The total of white women convicts, 24, is the largest in the state's history, it was learned.—Montgomery Advertiser.

But the friend was not satisfied.

STATE NEWS PARAGRAPHED

A Resume of the More Important Events of Interest Condensed To An Epitomized Form

Charlie McLeod, 75, was found dead on a roadside near Brookwood.

This statewide survey will test the distance, clearness, interference and general conditions of reception in every county in the State. The survey will enable the various studios and the station to give improved service at all times to Alabama citizens.

Mr. S. G. Persons representing the State Department of Agriculture and Auburn Extension Service, and Mr. J. C. Taylor of the RCA Corporation are making the survey and these gentlemen report a splendid enthusiasm on the part of radio fans in the 12 counties already visited in south Alabama.

Users of radio service are requested by Commissioner Seth P. Storrs of Montgomery to cooperate in every way with these gentlemen. It is only through the assistance given by users of radio sets that the facts regarding reception can be secured.

The survey will be continued thru the next month, until the entire state is covered. With the examination and findings of the radio ex-

Chambers, Marshall County; C. P. Miller, Etowah County; C. P. Harwell, Tallapoosa County; Wyatt Key, Dale County; Seth P. Storrs, Elmore County; Will Howard Smith, Autauga County; J. L. Edwards, Dallas County; T. Cary Marriott, Monroe County; and E. R. Jamieson, Hale County.

The awards were made by The Progressive Farmer, Birmingham, in cooperation with the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Medals were presented to them at the master farmer banquet in Auburn, August 6, in connection with the farmer's week exercises.

This is the second group of Alabama farmers to receive this high award. The first ten were selected in 1927. They are: John R. Witt, J. J. Boyd, Emil Graf, J. W. Hathorn, D. W. Hurst, L. C. Young, Sr., J. B. H. Lumpkin, R. E. Lambert, W. H. King, B. H. Lightfoot.

The ten who were awarded this honor this year were selected from 40 nominees made last spring by movement being reached ...

There is generally a decline in prices during the period from September to January when receipts are increasing. On an average the seasonal advances reach their peak in August or September when receipts are lightest. Last year the peak price was reached September 11.

It is possible for Alabama hog producers to take advantage of the seasonal trends. This is especially true for southeast Alabama where feed crops mature early; making it possible to have the hogs ready for market during the latter part of August and September.

It is almost a law of economics that when prices go up production rapidly increases. It follows that when prices go down production decreases, causing what is known as the "price cycle."

If producers react as they have in the past, we can expect to see a rapid expansion in production during the next twelve months. Consequently, price trend should start down the latter part of 1930 or during 1931.

Farmers with breeding stock and feed have an opportunity to raise hogs for market during the coming months and take advantage of the prospective high level. Chances are that by the time new producers can get in business on a large scale the price will be on a downward trend.

O'NEAL REPORTS ON CO-OP

As president of the Farm Bureau and its subsidiaries, Mr. O'Neal gave an historical sketch of cooperation among Alabama farmers since the organization of the Farm Bureau in 1922. Starting with a few county units the organization spread from county to county until it covered almost the entire state. At first, very little business was transacted but one project after another was added until the organization now assists in the marketing of all major crops and livestock; in buying fertilizer, seed, and insecticides; and in financing the production and sale of crops and livestock.

Marketing cotton was the first big project of the organization. This was done by organizing and operating the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association. Later a credit corporation was organized for financing. Along with this the mutual supply association for foreign supplies was organized. The annual business of the organization now extends well into the millions of dollars.

The Farm Bureau works in close cooperation with county and farm demonstration agents, with the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, and with other divisions of the State and Federal government. The Alabama plan of farm organization and cooperation has attracted favorable comment throughout the nation, Mr. O'Neal said.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

BAN THE "GET THE AXE" CURE

The wife of a friend of mine tells with great relish of waking up not long ago and finding him in the throes of a violent nightmare. He was struggling desperately against some imaginary assailant and shouting at the top of his voice, "No-no-no! Don't! I tell you it's toothache, darn you—nothing but toothache!" Being finally roused up and pressed for an explanation, he admitted rather sheepishly that he had dreamed a huge rooster had him penned up and was preparing to cut his throat with his sharp spurs because he looked so droopy and had a huge swelling on his jaw. Not wishing to lose this advantage, friend wife at once reopened an argument that had been waging for months between them—"Serve you right if it really happened," she snapped. "Any man who is too lazy to save birds that could be saved with just a little trouble ought to have to take his own medicine."

Sometimes I feel much the same way about it, for chickens are much more than a mere hobby with me. But aside from all such sentimental considerations as might influence the enthusiast, there are some good and sound reasons why it is unwise to resort to the axe every time a chicken begins to show signs of some more or less serious affliction. For one thing, the first examination doesn't always tell the whole story. Not every sniffle spells roup nor is every droopy, dispirited fowl infested with worms to an incurable degree.

All sick fowls, not matter what their ailment, should be removed at once from the flock and either killed or doctored. Chickens can be cured as well as livestock, or people, when sick, and I believe in individual treatment in most cases. I have been doctoring poultry diseases on my experimental farm for more than 20 years and have had excellent results except in the incurable ailments, such as T. B., cholera, bacillary white diarrhoea and other diseases known to be incurable.

A well protected coop, box or pen, apart from the flock is very necessary in which to place the sick fowls. Sick chickens placed in such quarters can be watched. If they develop unmistakable signs of diseases known to be incurable, kill them.

My many experiments during the past several years have proven to me that Permanganate of Potash, the medicine that turns water a reddish purple color, is of little or no value in preventing or curing diseases of poultry, when used in the drinking water in the regular way. But, I find Epsom salts very beneficial in preventing and curing many diseases of poultry. Each sick fowl should be given one teaspoonful of Epsom salts, or for flock treatment, one pound mixed with a small tempting wet mash feed for each 100 hens.

Sanitation and disinfecting are two of the great secrts of successful poultry raising. Poultry houses and brooder rooms should be thoroughly cleaned often, and sprayed freely with a good dip and disinfectant. Properly built chicken houses with high open fronts that face the south, that are kept clean and free from insects by spraying with a good dip and disinfectant will do more to keep fowls healthy than anything.

In many cases a cure is possible with simple home remedies as easily administered as the flannel rag soaked with camphorated oil in baby's chest when he has a cold. Furthermore, any druggist or feed merchant carries reliable preparations for the treatment of practically every poultry disease that is amenable to medication. Such medicines are always accompanied by simple, complete instructions, not only for the dosing of the fathered patients but for the general care needed to make treatment successful. Why then let them die or deliberately kill them off when they can be easily cured.

Poultry raising is a business that is or should be run for profit. It is for the poultry raiser to determine, therefore, whether or not any individual cure will justify the labor and expense necessary to effect a cure. It is unquestionably true, however, that many fowls are needlessly sacrificed when a little extra trouble would be repaid many times over. Don't forget that every fowl in your flock represents an investment of both time and money. You throw that away in addition to sacrificing possible future profits every time a bird is subjected to the "get the axe" cure if less drastic methods would have saved it.

CHEVROLET ANNOUNCES TWO NEW MODELS

Rounding out its line of six cylinder valve-in-head cars, the Chevrolet Motor Company today announces two new closed models—the Imperial sedan and the Sport Coupe. Officials point out that despite the scores of improvements incorporated in the new models prices have been kept within the low Chevrolet price range, the Imperial Sedan listing at $695, and the Sport Coupt $645, both f.o.b., factory, Flint, Mich.

The new Imperial Sedan is introduced because of a widespread demand for a style car in the low-price field. On this model the famous Fisher Body designers have lavished their skill with very noticeable success. It has smart concave front pillars with a rakishly molded visor and in the back the rear quarters are stylishly fitted with Landau bows. The interior is smartly upholstered in deep tufted plush, and the car is equipped with an adjustable driver's seat, and other items commonly found in smart cars of this type such as completely equipped instrument panel, smoking set, etc. It is finished in lustrous black with molding in Saginaw green and striping in tusk ivory. Exterior bright work, such as radiator, head lamps, and landau bows are chromium plated.

The new sport coupe is also offered in response to a demand for a style car for two passengers, and includes a comfortable rumble seat in the rear and a rear window that is easily raised and lowered by means of a convenient Ternstedt regulator.

Introduction of these two new models comes simultaneously with the announcement that more than 950,000 of the new sixes have already been delivered into the hands of owners and that Chevrolet factories are operating on the biggest summer production level in the history of the company.

Production of the new models has been underway for several weeks. Meanwhile thousands of the new cars have been shipped to dealers. Officials predict that the entire nation-wide dealer organization will be sampled with the new cars in two weeks or less. In many of the larger centers, the new cars are already on display.

As a result of the introduction of these two new models, the Chevrolet passenger car line embraces seven cars, five closed and two open models.

Our hearts are filled with loving appreciation for the many kind friends who have ministered unto us in our recent great sorrow. Only God's wonderful storehouse of goodness is sufficient to repay you, and it is our prayer that He may open wide the doors to all.—G. D. Retherford and Family.

WHY ARE SANDWICHES

Sandwiches are named for the Earl of Sandwich, of the 18th century. He was such an inveterate gambler that he could not take time for meals but instead had his servants bring him slices of meat between two slices of bread.—Farm & Fireside.

Jess Fuller, colored, died at his home in Clanton Saturday night; he was buried in the Clanton cemetery Monday afternoon.

Our good old friend, J. P. Rushing of East View was in to see The Banner last Friday. We are always glad to have this good old Republican call around to see us. He always has a good word to speak to his friends.

WHEN THE PEOPLE ARE SATISFIED

The decline of progressivism in the United States is one of the most interesting aspects of recent American politics.

It is not yet 20 years since the great Bull Moose movement, when the whole nation was stirred by a new hope, and Roosevelt assaulted the "old guard" up and down the land, and Wilson went to the White House prepared to do battle with forces of special privilege.

"The interests" was an expression to rouse the blood in those days, and "malefactors of great wealth" had not been forgotten; and when Wilson, taking office, thundered against the "invisible government" and the "insidious lobby" the country applauded.

All that was less than 20 years ago. Yet today progressivism seems to be relaxing. Nobody is bothering much about it. Another Roosevelt is assailing the "new feudalism" of entrenched wealth, but political dopesters are shaking their heads and remarking that that kind of battle cry is out-moded now. In 1912 such a thing as the power trust's propaganda campaign, recently revealed by the federal trade commission, would have set the nation aflame; now we shrug our shoulders about it with indifference.

After all, it isn't so puzzling, though. The flame of democracy usually burns in reverse ratio to a people's material well being. When times are hard men resent the power and wealth of their commercial rulers; when times are good, they do not care much.

On the whole, we have been enjoying good times. American prosperity is still rather spotty but it is far better than it ever was before. Ordinary folk have been able to get luxuries and advantages such as none but the rich could enjoy in former times. The man who has a good job, money in the bank, a home of his own and a new automobile is not going to worry much about the profits his employers are making, or about the enormous power that is passing into their hands.

This may be very regrettable, but there is no help for it, the way human nature is made. No financial or industrial autocracy is going to worry us much until it begins to hit our pocketbooks.

Thus we are conservatives. The campaigns of Roosevelt and Wilson would not appeal to us just now. We have forgotten progressivism for prosperity.

But we are not necessarily that way for good. Fundamentally, we are the same people we were in 1913. Prosperity may have bred indifference; but let prosperity once really slip a little and the old progressivism would return stronger than ever.

Our present conservatism is only a passing phase. It will last as long as prosperity lasts, and no longer. If bad times come, the country will reveal an unsuspected capacity for aggressive, even radical, progressivism once more. And that is a point the men at the top would do well to remember.—Dubuque Telegraph Herald.

The Lutheran Ladies Aid will meet next week, Thursday, with Mrs. Hilda Grenn.

SHELBY TRIO SENT TO PEN

Sent To Atlanta After Conviction in Birmingham

Three persons convicted in the recent Shelby County liquor conspiracy trials, tried in United States district court in Birmingham several months ago, were en route to Atlanta to begin terms in the federal penitentiary Tuesday.

James Long, former chief of police at Calera, and Frank Farrell and Will Dickerson, residents of Shelby County, were the defendants. Long is to serve a two-year term, while 18 months each was given Farrell and Dickerson.

Commitment papers for Curtis J. Falkner, former sheriff of the county, were issued Tuesday. They were dated August 5, at which time his sentence began. Altho he is now in the county jail, Falkner will be removed to the federal prison at Chillicothe, Ohio, after the next session of district court.

MRS. ROBINSON DIED SATURDAY

Victim of Cramp While In Swimming With Party Of Friends

Mrs. Nan Robinson, age 38, wife of Walter Robinson of Lock 12, died last Saturday afternoon. Her death occurred at a swimming pool on Yellow Leaf creek, where she had gone with a party of friends. She was standing in shallow water when seized by cramp, but was removed from the water before she fell.

Mrs. Robinson with her two children were visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Stephen Hilyer, at Collins Chapel. After noon last Saturday Mr. Hilyer carried a party on his truck to Yellow Leaf Creek for a swim. Mrs. Robinson with several others entered the water and they swam across the stream a few times. As a group of the swimmers, including Mrs. Robinson, her sister, Mrs. Hilyer, and her daughter, Elwyn Robinson, stood in shallow water near the bank to rest a few moments, it was noticed that Mrs. Robinson was affected by a strangeness that alarmed her companions. She began to lean forward when her sister and daughter took hold of her and kept her from falling face forward into the water. Mr. Hilyer, who was on the bank nearby leaped into the water and carried the rigid body of Mrs. Robinson to land.

Thinking she might have in some way become strangled, Mr. Hilyer set to work at once to remove any water from her lungs by use of artificial respiration, but he never was able to bring back her breathing. A doctor was summoned to the scene as quickly as possible, but all efforts to rescusitate the woman were futile. The final theory was pronounced that her death was caused not by drowning, but by a violent attack of cramp.

The body was removed to the home of Jim Dobbs, whose wife is a sister of the deceased, where preparation was made for burial. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at Mineral Springs church, conducted by Rev. J. W. Jones of Thorsby. Mell Martin, undertaker of Clanton, had charge of burial in Robinson cemetery near the church.

Mrs. Robinson is survived by her husband, Walter Robinson, of Lock 12, and two daughters, Elwyn, age 17, and Bernice, age 10. She was the daughter of Mr. Matt Davis.

Stapp Announces Field Meetings

Meetings will be held on Monday, August 19th, at Mr. J. B. Parrish's farm and at the farm of Mr. L. B. Popwell. These farms are close together on the old Clanton-Thorsby highway, about one and one-half miles south of Thorsby. On these farms are fertilizer demonstrations. There is one corn demonstration and one cotton demonstration. The farmers will be asked to guess the yields per acre on the different plots, and the one who guesses closest to the yield which will be determined by the final report on each crop, will be given five dollars in gold. Mr. Stapp announces that possibly other points of interest will be visited after they have finished with the guessing contest.

Negro Orphanage Is In Need Of Funds

The Marbury Lumber Co., has donated land to erect the first and only orphans home in the State for negroes. The movement is on, the State of Alabama is being asked to contribute to this cause. With a record of 936 negro orphans in the State, they haven't 6 inches of shelter for them. This should appeal to every Christian hearted citizen of the State. This will help every part of the State. It will also eliminate the prison record among negro youths. This can be done by every citizen of the State doing his bit. The movement is being fostered by the Acme Child Welfare Association of Alabama, 360 1-2 S. Jackson Street, Montgomery, Ala. Make all checks payable to the Association, and do your bit today. The secretary will acknowledge the same.

BOYS AND GIRLS AT STATE FAIR

Program of Special Exhibits Will Be Provided For At Montgomery

"Boys and girls of the county, the State Fair will give you an opportunity to compare your work with that of your neighbor and to receive your reward for superior attainment. Be on your mettle!" declares Simon Roswald, manager of the State Fair of Alabama, who has reserved a prominent place for the boys and girls of the county on the Fair program, which begins October 21.

An entirely new exhibit this year will be that of the Boys' and Girls' Calf Club. Over a hundred boys are expected to come from various parts of the state, each with his prize calf. These boys will be comfortably housed on the Fair grounds.

The boys' and girls' livestock judging contest will be particularly interesting and offers worthwhile prizes.

And all boys and girls are urged to submit 4-H Club exhibits. Entrants in this group will be limited to boys and girls who enrolled with county agents for club work before May 1. All crops, poultry, or other products in competition must have been produced by member entering it as part of his or her bona fide club project.

The Women's Department will be different, too this year. In fact, it will not be known as the Woman's Department but as the Department of Arts and Education and will be under the management of Mrs. C. R. Bricken assisted by an advisory committee and department superintendents.

Those desiring a catalog may secure it by writing Simon Roswald, secretary-manager, State Fair of Alabama, Montgomery, Ala.

There will be five divisions featured in the department: Fine arts, household arts and crafts, flowers, antiques, and specialties.

There will be unusually fine art exhibits for the 1929 Fair. The very best work of Southern artists will be assembled and shown by the Southern States Art League of New Orleans, La.

Two collections have been secured from the American Federation of Arts at Washington, D. C. One will be made up of landscapes by Francis Gos, noted Swiss artist; the other will include exquisite reproductions of pictures that are well known and well loved.

Women will be enthusiastic over the culinary and textile groups, that allow a wide number of exhibits.

Under the head of arts, crafts, and industries will appear exhibits of sculpture and modeling, natural history, basketry, leather, wood carving, designing, bags, feather fans, hand made flowers, and pottery.

All entries in the antique group must be a hundred years old or more. A wide variety of articles will be accepted including: books, magazines, newspapers, daguerrotypes, pewter ware, brass, copper, musical instruments, dolls, lace, jewelry, coins, flags, mirrors, furniture, etc.

It will be so arranged that fresh flowers will be on display each day of the Fair, special days being devoted to exhibits of special kinds of flowers.

To create interest in the conservation of bird life, prizes will be awarded for the best examples of bird houses. Girls and boys are especially urged to enter this contest.

Arthur Grant Gwathney, age 12 years, was sent by the child welfare department Monday to make his home with his half-brother, Jack Gwathney, at Paint Rock in Madison County. A card received by Mrs. Stapp Tuesday told of his safe arrival at destination.

THREE MILL TAX ELECTION SEP. 17

People of Chilton County Will Vote On Important School Matter

The people of Chilton County will vote on September 17th to determine whether or not the three mill tax for school purposes shall be levied for another ten years. The call for this election was made by the Commissioners Court in session the first of this week, in response to a petition from over 200 qualified voters asking for the election to be held on the 17th day of September.

The present three mill tax which has been in force for the past ten years will expire on September 30th. If the schools of the county are to continue to draw the public funds under this tax levy the proposition must be voted favorably again before September 30th.

F. M. Connell Writes About Vacation Trip

Editor Union-Banner:

I am asking for a small space to submit a few brief sketches of my trip to the Ozark Mountains.

I found the crops good in Mississippi, especially in the Mississippi Valley. After crosing the river into Arkansas there was several miles of corn, cotton and some stock farms. Next I came to wheat and then rice, which was their money crop.

On approaching the mountains I found stock and fruit. I have made four stops up to date. One caused from very heavy wind and rain. All roads out here have to be built in valleys on rivers or creeks and after heavy rains you have to wait for the water to run down before you can travel.

I am now stopping about 75 miles northeast of Ozark, which is noted for its springs and apples.

It has been dry here for five or six weeks, but rain started here on Friday last. All fruit trees are full, apples, peaches, pears and grapes.

Melons are just coming in. What I see are small. I find a lot of black walnut being put on the market. Cedar is on all hills. I find the people very nice and ready to grant favors. I have been carried out in all directions to other towns to look them over.

My wife is very much carried away with the scenery. I am planning to leave here on the 13th for points northeast. Best wishes to you and the citizens of Chilton County.—Respectfully, F. M. Connell, the Arkansas Traveler.

Road Meeting Held, Courthouse Monday

The public road meeting held by the Commissioners Court at the courthouse Monday brought out representatives from every beat in the county. Every expression made was favorable to the present condition of the roads of the county and commendable of the system of road work that is being followed by the Commissioners Court.

If there is any dissatisfaction with the road business of the county it failed to show up at this meeting, which fact ought to be gratifying to the members of the Commissioners Court who have charge of the road business.

Robinson's Store Is Being Remodeled

New Fixtures Being Installed By Popular Business House of Clanton

Workmen are busy this week transforming the Robinson Department Store into a more beautiful and convenient arrangement according to new plans which have been carefully designed by an expert and adopted by the proprietor, Mrs. W. C. Robinson.

All of the interior fixtures of the store are being worked over and many new display counters are being added. A new coat of paint will bring the whole interior into one harmonious color scheme of perfect delight.

Mrs. Robinson announces also that she has added to her sales force Mrs. Frank Harwell, from Tuscallosa. Mrs. Harwell is experienced in the ladies ready-to-wear business and comes here with flattering recommendations.

It is also announced that on September the first the Robinson Department Store will commence doing business on a strictly cash basis only. All charge accounts will be closed and the books put away for good. By eliminating the cost of keeping books, and by a new group buying connection, Mrs. Robinson says she will be able to sell merchandise at cheaper prices than heretofore, an advantage that is certain to meet the hearty approval of her large number of customers.

Robinson Bargain Store No. 2, will open for business at Marbury about September the first. Workmen are now busy getting the building ready for occupancy. The location of this new business is next to the bank building in Marbury. Mrs. E. L. Fike, who lives at Marbury, will be in charge of the store.

Mrs. Robinson lived in Marbury several years, where she made lots of friends. Her popularity with the people there insures a hearty reception for her new store in that town and community.

Accident Happened While Parents Were Gone To Funeral of Mrs. Robinson

A very sad occurence happened last Sunday afternoon near Collins Chapel schoolhouse when little Imogene, the 22 months old baby girl of Mr. and Mrs. J. Elijah Mims, was drowned in an old ditch not far from the home. The tragedy happened during the heavy rainstorm which came about 5:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The reports have it that Mr. and Mrs. Mims had left their children with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Littleton, while they were gone to the funeral of Mrs. Walter Robinson. As the cloud was fast coming up and it began to rain Mr. and Mrs. Littleton noticed that little Imogene had gotten out of the house. They thought that she must surely be in the yard as Mr. Littleton had had her in his lap only a few minutes before. But upon searching all about the child could not be located. Someone went down to the ditch where a trail crossed it leading through the field to Mr. Mim's home, but could see the child no where, and returned. Further search about the house was of no avail. The party of searchers, taking what they considered the last resort, went to the ditch and looked down below where the trail crossed. About a quarter of a mile below, the little child's body was found lifeless. It had floated under a bridge over the ditch and had lodged up where the ditch widened out and emptied into a place of low bottom land. It was first found by Mr. Mat Benson. The little body had scratches and light bruises on it where it had been dragged through briars, weeds and bushes by the rushing waters caused from the downpour of rain.

The little body was laid to rest by Undetaker Martin at Collins Chapel cemetery Monday afternoon; Rev. J. W. Jones conducted the funeral.

Their many friends and patrons are glad of the success they have made, and wish them continued success.

Prof. Collins Will Attend Convention

It will be good news to the singers and lovers of music of Chilton County to learn that Prof. H. C. Collins will be among those to attend the Chilton County Singing Convention to be held at Maplesville Sunday, September 1st. Mr. Collins now lives at Cairo, Ga., but formerly lived in this county. His old home was in Coosa County.

The following letter has been received from Mr. Collins:

"Cairo, Ga., August 10, 1929, Mr. T. E. Wyatt, Clanton, Ala., Dear Sir: If nothing prevents I will attend your convention in Maplesville on the first Sunday in September. Cordially yours.—H. C. Collins."

This man has hosts of friends in Chilton County who will be glad of the opportunity to meet him again and hear him sing. He is among the foremost singers and composers of sacred music in the South, and as those who are acquainted with him know, he does enjoy singing.

Mr. H. W. Lowery, president of this convention, says that he is sparing no effort in making this the best singing held in Chilton County in several years. All the singers of the county are asked to join with Mr. Lowery in this undertaking and help him make his promise good. FLAG AT ITS BEST

We like the flag best when it is flying from the homes of a community. LARGE EARS OF CORN

The Union-Banner has on display three ears of corn brought to us last Saturday. The largest one measures in circumference 11 inches and is 9 1-2 inches long. By computation we find that this ear contains 1180 grains. This ear was brought in by Mr. W. W. Jones who lives near Tug Willis on Lock 12 road. Mr. Jones also brought us a sunflower head which measures 14 inches in diameter. We have been trying to find somebody who could figure out how many seed this sunflower had in it, but so far we have not ben able to find anybody who will tackle this problem.

Also Mr. Cleve Wyatt brought in two ears of corn of the white dent variety (this was also the variety of Mr. Jones's corn) which was smaller around but was longer than Mr. Jones's ear. Mr. Wyatt's ear contained 1170 grains.

A Coal Train 6,000 Miles Long

. . . . . about one-fourth the distance around the world.

Hard even to imagine such a thing. Yet, if all the 40,000,000 tons---796,000 carloads---of coal shipped over the L. & N. lines in 1928 could have been carried on one train, this train, with engines necessary to pull it, would have had to be fully 6,000 miles long.

Practically all of this vast coal tonnage originated in mines located on the L. & N. lines in Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Alabama, and Illinois.

To handle this immense coal traffic, it was necessary for the L. & N. to invest millions of dollars and employ thousands of forces. The economic value of this L. & N. service is demonstrated by the fact that, while this road's mileage is only about 2% of that of all United States railroads, this coal tonnage equals about 7% of the total tonnage produced in the whole country.

This handling of coal represents a most important activity, because it adds materially to the prosperity of the communities in which the coal is produced, as well as to the comfort and convenience of the sections in which the coal is consumed.

And coal is only one of the many important commodities which the L. & N. handles in providing adequate and dependable freight (as well as passenger) service to its patrons.

Gone are the discomforts of travel! The crack trains of the L. & N. R. R. offer the most modern appointments appealing to the discriminating traveler. Some of them - - - radio, shower bath, valet, ladies' maid, conveniences of the club, and (we say it with pride) meals that can't be beat. And in regard to that vacation this summer, let an L. & N. Passenger Representative plan all the details, and you'll be surprised at the low round-trip fares.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

FRANK P. LITSCHERT

There is no doubt that one of the topics now foremost in the interest of the American people is that of further naval limitation. This question has even crowded the tariff problem out of the limelight for the time being at least. It was brought to the forefront, of course, by the action of Ramsay MacDonald, premier of Great Britain suspending work on certain British cruisers, followed by the action of President Hoover in announcing a delay on the start of three American cruisers, the keels of which would have been laid down some time during the coming fall.

As a result of this action there has been a great deal of comment and many predictions of what is going to happen. The more enthusiastic pacifists seem to feel that the naval question is practically settled while some Americans more pessimistically inclined have expressed the fear that we are about to be swallowed by the British lion. Neither of these premises is true, as a calm review of the facts will indicate to anyone who cares to take the time to examine them. We are not approaching the time when the navies of the earth will be no more; neither are we getting ready to surrender the control of the seas, so far as our interests are concerned, to the British Empire.

Against this latter danger it must be remembered that the United States government has time and again announced to the world that we would only agree to reduce or limit naval construction on a bisis of parity with Great Britain. The British government, under Ramsay MacDonald has accepted this limitation basis. In his note President Hoover made the following statements which it is well to keep in mind when the matter of "bowing to British supremacy" is mentioned.

"Generally speaking, the British cruiser strength considerably exceeds American strength at the present time and the actual condition of these three (American) cruisers would not be likely in themselves to produce inequality in the final result. We do not wish, however, to have any misunderstanding of our actions and therefore we shall not lay these keels until there has been an opportunity for full consideration of their effect upon the final agreement for parity which we expect to reach, although our hopes of relief from construction lie more largely in the latter years of the program under the law of 1928."

In other words, the administration recognizes the fact that Great Britain has a superiority in cruisers and the present delay in the laying of the keels of three cruisers is only an expression of good intentions, not the display of a disposition on our part to accept cruiser inferiority to the British Empire.

The American people are in favor of the limitation of naval armament if this can be brought about in such a way as to give the United States naval parity with the most powerful foreign navy on earth. We feel that because of our size, our prosperity and our foreign trade we are entitled to such parity. We are further entitled to it by the fact that we have a rapidly growing navy and can easily, if we see fit, make it the most powerful navy on earth. Now if Uncle Sam had the imperialist designs that foreign newspapers and diplomats like to credit him with, he would not be out in the forefront asking for naval limitation. He would be busy making his navy the biggest and best on earth, and with his superior wealth and resources he could easily do this. So much for the question of American imperialism.

The American people feel that great progress has been made during the past few weeks toward solving the problem of naval limitation, but they will realize also that there is still a long distance to go. Ramsay MacDonald still has to cope with the British admiralty and British tradition. When he has done this and won for his government the actual right to scrap British cruisers down to the American cruiser strength we will feel that the end of naval competition is really at hand. In the meantime we can hope for the best and rest assured that the administration at Washington is not going to deliver us into the paws of the British lion or the hands of the pacifist group who would sacrifice everything to have their visionary schemes put into actual operation.

JUDGE REYNOLDS CONSIDERED FOR UNITED STATES SENATE

Judge L. H. Reynolds of Chilton County is being considered as a possible candidate for the United States Senate next year. It is interesting to note the view of Democrats of the State upon Judge Reynolds' chances should he be nominated by the Republicans and enter this race.

Leon W. Friedman, a staff writer in the Birmingham News of last Sunday, expresses a view of the matter that is regarded as typical of the way the situation will be regarded by many Democrats. He says:

"The candidate nominated in the Democratic primaries next August for United States Senator will be opposed by a Republican candidate, Judge L. H. Reynolds, probate judge of Chilton County, and one of the best known Republicans in Alabama, now being pointed to as a probable nominee of the party with the elephant as emblem.

"An independent Democratic candidate, if there should be one in the race now being developed by activities of John H. Bankhead, Birmingham and Jasper attorney, and the senatorial incumbent, will be disappointed in expectations that Republicans of the State would assist, either with the purpose of defeating the regular Democratic candidate or receiving compensation for the work done in the last national election, political observers say.

"The entry of a Republican candidate into the campaign for the United States Senatorship, according to some political students, would bring about serious complication of the political situation in Alabama."

In the absence of any statement from Judge Reynolds or any of the leaders of the Republican party organization in the State, the above statement stands alone as a voluntary expression of political guesses in the Democratic party. But it is significant.

Obviously the big question among the "regular" or Smith Democrats in Alabama right now is what will happen with the anti-Smith Democrats and the Republicans of the State. There is much worry about this question.

So far as the possible candidacy of Judge Reynolds is concerned, it is certain he would carry a large following of supporters throughout the State. He opposed Oscar W. Underwood for the Senate in 1920 and polled the greatest number of votes ever received by a Republican in Alabama. His vote was exceeded only by that accorded Mr. Hoover last year. Judge Reynolds would receive next year more votes than he received in 1920.

Indeed it is an interesting pastime for political thinkers to guess at what would happen next year if John Bankhead should be the "regular" Democratic candidate for the Senate Tom Heflin the independent or anti-Smith candidate, and Judge Reynolds the Republican candidate. Such an arrangement would make for such a race as has never been seen before in Alabama, and our prediction is that Judge Reynolds would occupy a very favorable place in the contest.

Great Britain decides that Leon Trotzky would be an unwelcome guest and Leon is now getting to the point where he knows how it feels to be all dressed up and no place to go.

THE ORPHAN CHILD

"No home, no home," said a little girl at the rich man's hall;
As she trembling stood on the marble steps, and leaned against the polished wall.
Her clothes were thin and her feet were bare, and the snow had covered her head,
"Oh, give me a home," she feebly cried, "a home and a piece of bread."
"My father, alas! I never knew," and the tears did fall so bright;
"My mother sleeps in a new made grave, while the orphan begs tonight."
The night was dark and the snow still fell and the rich man closed his door.
His proud lips crashed as he scornfully said, "No home, no bread for the poor."
The rich man sleeps on his velvet couch, and dreams of his silver and gold,
While the orphan lies on a bed of snow and cries, "I'm cold, I'm cold."
"I must freeze," she said as she sank on the steps, and strove to cover her feet.
With her old tattered clothes all covered with snow, yes covered with snow and sleet.
Another hour and a midnight storm rolled on like a funeral knell,
And the earth seemed wrapped in a winding sheet and the drops of snow still fell.
The morning dawned and the little girl still lay at the rich man's door.
But her soul had fled to a home above where there's room and bread for the poor.

STATE CAPITOL News

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Public interest in the question of whether it is better to build roads through bond issues or on the "pay-as-you-go" basis was stimulated by recent utterances on the subject from two prominent Alabamians. Lieutenant Governor W. C. Davis in a recent public statement expressed the belief that highway construction as well as other state activities can be carried forward adequately without further bond issues or additional taxation. On the other side of the question, Judge Woolsey Finnell, State Highway Director, has gone on record as favoring a $50,000,000 road bond issue.

The question of bond issues or "pay-as-you-go" for road building was an issue in the gubernatorial campaign of 1926, though in a rather one-sided manner, three of the four candidates for governor advocating some sort of a bond issue. Since then, however, a growing sentiment is reported in favor of building roads without more bond issues, it being claimed that revenue already available is sufficient to carry on an extensive highway program on the pay-as-you-go basis. Another road bond issue will require an amendment to the constitution, and voters in recent elections have shown a tendency to slaughter constitutional amendments, having defeated a $20,000,000 school bond issue amendment and a number of others of various nature. Up to the present time the issuance of $50,000,000 worth of road bonds has been authorized in this state, in two separate issues of $25,000,000 each. The second issue is now nearly exhausted. However, the bond issue system still has many advocates, and the question promises to be an issue of importance in the 1930 gubernatorial race.

In his recent interview, Lieutenant-Governor Davis said:

"There should be no abatement or lagging of interest in highways, education or public health. I am impressed, however, that the Legislature, can without increasing the burdens of taxation, or the state bonded debt, provide adequate revenue to maintain and carry forward every necessary department of the state government. However, even if it should be found that further road bonds are necessary, a return to the convict lease system should not be considered. A large number of convicts are now so classified and used as to be a valuable asset in road construction."

Much interest was aroused at the State Capitol over the action of the Jefferson County Grand Jury in voting articles of impeachment against Judge C. E. Thomas, State Superintendent of Banks, in connection with the recent closing of several banks in the Birmingham district. Wilful neglect of duty, incompetency, malfeasance and misfeasance in office, are among the charges brought against Judge Thomas. It is expected that the charges will be heard by the Supreme court at its next regular term, in October. In a statement Judge Thomas declared that he is following the Grand Jury action, ready at any time to defend his record as State Superintendent of Banks.

Governor Graves has appointed Captain Ira B. Thompson, prominent attorney and World War veteran of Luverne, as Chairman of the State Athletic Commission, succeeding Judge Horace Wilkinson of Birmingham, resigned. Captain Thompson at the time of his appointment was associate member of the commission, and the position which he had occupied as associate commissioner was filled by appointment of Arthur Greenwood of Birmingham. Greenwood is also a World War veteran, and is a past commander of the Birmingham Post of the American Legion.

On Friday, August 16th, the Department of Game and Fisheries, of which I. T. Quinn is Commissioner, will dedicate what is probably the finest and most modern fish hatchery in the entire South. Many prominent persons throughout the State, including Governor Graves and Congressman Lamar Jeffers, will attend the ceremonies, at the conclusion of which the Inter Club Council of Anniston will entertain visitors at a complimentary fish fry. Plans are being made to have motion pictures of the hatchery and the ceremonies, taken from an airplane. The public is cordially invited.

The hatchery, which is known as State Fish Hatchery No. 1, is located near Eastaboga, about 11 miles west of Anniston on the Anniston-Birmingham highway. It was partially constructed by the State in 1923, with the help of sportsmen's organizations of Calhoun, Talladega and Etowah Counties and by the Chambers of Commerce of Anniston and Talladega, and has produced about 100,000 fingerlings annually since.

Recently, however, the hatchery as originally planned, has been completed. Six new ponds have been added to the five formerly in operation, and these first five have been greatly improved. Five of the eleven ponds of the plant as it now stands are one hundred feet wide by six hundred feet long, while the other ponds vary in size. An improved flume has been laid to supply these ponds with spring water, and an independent canal makes possible the lowering of any pond without affecting the other ponds.

The completion of the hatchery makes it one of the finest in the entire South. It will have an annual output of approximately half a million fish a year.

Plans for the dedication have been made by the Department of Game and Fisheries in conjunction with civic leaders of Anniston, headed by Mr. Charlie Varn, Secretary of the United Chambers of Commerce of that City.

The program will begin promptly at 5 o'clock and will include an inspecition of the new plant, and addresses by Governor Bibb Graves and Congressman Lamar Jeffers, as well as many other interesting features. Col. Harry M. Ayres, Editor of the Anniston Star, will preside. The Anniston Inter Club Council which is tendering the fish fry, is composed of the Civitan Club, Exchange Club, Kiwanis Club, Rotary Club and the Chambers of Commerce of Anniston.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

THE GREAT MOLTING MYSTERY

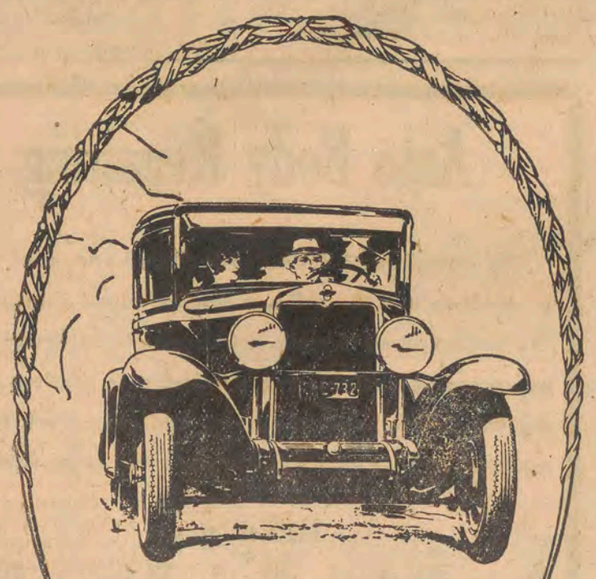
A rather amusing story has gained considerable circulation among poultry fanciers. Young Mrs. Newlywed stopped the local veterinary on the street and demanded that he come over immediately to inspect her flock of blooded leghorns. A lot of them, she said, had suddenly become afflicted with a strange, apparently contagious malady.

When asked for a description of this peculiar disease, she explained that, one after another, they had ceased laying and then begun to lose their feathers in a most alarming fashion. Starting with the neck feathers, they had successively lost in turn the body feathers, then the tail feathers and, finally, most of the wing feathers until they were practically nude and truly pitiable objects. The young woman was naturally quite relieved when the old doctor informed her that was just natural for her hens to shed their feathers at a certain time of the year as it was for certain kinds of trees to shed their leaves. They were simply molting and would recover shortly without any great effort on her part.

I shall make no effort to vouch for the truth of this story. I do not hesitate to say, however, that I have often been amazed at the comparative lack of knowledge even among a great many experienced poultry raisers on the subject of molt. For example, there is considerable difference of opinion even among experts as to whether the molt affects and controls the egg production, or whether egg production controls the molt. Some contend that a hen stops laying because she is getting ready to molt and others maintain with equal spirit that the hen won't molt until after she is through with the business of egg production, for the time being at least. I, myself, am strongly inclined to the latter theory and I am supported in my belief by a great many qualified observers who also have given the matter considerable scientific study.

The exact sequence is of no particular moment to practical poultry raisers, however. The fact remains that molting does not start until after egg production has ceased, only in exceptional cases, regardless of which governs the other. Just why hens are committed to this peculiar habit of shedding their feathers once a year is another matter which has been the subject of a great many profound treatises by learned scientific men. The average poultry raiser is, however, mainly concerned with the fact that this peculiar phenomenom may serve as a very valuable guide in the culling out of poor layers from the rest of the flock.

Most authorities now agree that the hens which start molting earliest and keep it up longest are the poorest layers. Good layers seldom start molting until later in the fall and are completely finished in from six to eight weeks. Less productive hens, on the contrary, may start as early as June, July or August and fiddle around for four or five months before they have regained something like what President Harding would have called, "A state of normalcy."



While nearly all feathers are molted at one time or another, the most reliable guide is the manner in which wing feathers are molted. High producing, late molting hens molt faster than one feather at a time, or else they molt only a part of their feathers, carrying others over to another year. Poor layers, on the other hand, may molt but one wing feather at a time so that the process may require as long as 24 weeks. Most poor layers take very nearly this long to complete the molting of their wing feathers, so it can be seen that this is a very accurate index of productiveness.

Although the alleged dismay of young Mrs. Newlywed as related at the beginning of this article is doubtless more or less of an exaggeration, there is no escaping the fact that a hen during the molting time is really very much out of condition and should receive extra food and attention. The care and feeding of hens at this time might be the subject of a separate article in itself. I shall, therefore, let it suffice to say that molting hens should have plenty of good shade, nourishing food and maple protection from bad weather. A good mineral tonic should also be given them so their appetites will be whetted for an abundance of food. Then they will take the necessary nutriment to offset the strain on their system, grow feathers again and get back to laying.

Feed a variety of good, sound grains, such as oats, wheat, corn and bran. But do not feed too much corn, as that is too heating. Feed also some sunflower seed and linseed meal. Also a little more of meat, green cut bone or meat scraps than is usually fed and give plenty of milk, if possible. Feed an abundance of greens. Have pure, fresh water available at all times. All this will help bring the hen back into laying condition rapidly.

ALL-DAY SINGING

There will be an all-day singing at Jackson Chapel next Sunday, August the 18th, in the Sacred Harp books. Everybody come and bring a well-filled basket, and help us to enjoy the day. We are expecting several visitors from other counties, so come and be with us.—Secretary.

SHADY GROVE

Our revival services closed at this place last Thursday night. We had a good meeting. Bro. Bell did some fine preaching, and our pastor, Bro. Lynch, made some very intersting talks, which we enjoyed. We were also glad to have another of our pastors with us, Bro. C. D. Messer. We want to thank all other people of other churches for their help and cooperation. May God bless them. Our church has been revived and I hope it will last three hundred and sixty-five days, and not stand still, but grow all the time, and then we will be nearer ready next summer for a greater revival. We don't need God for a few days or a few weeks and then forget Him until the rivival, but we need Him every day in our daily walk. We need Him at home; we need Him at our work, as well as at church, so let us strive to do more for His cause and Kingdom than we have ever done in the past. May Bro. Bell's last days be his best and happiest, is our prayer, and may his work prosper as long as he lives. He has made lots of friends in this and other communities. The sum made up for the helper was $28.

Mrs. R. C. McDavid of Bainbridge, Ga., has been visiting Mrs. J. C. Page for the past few days.

CHEVROLET TRUCK PLAYS PART IN DRAMATIC RECORD OF THE ST. LOUIS ROBIN IN AVIATION

The St. Louis Robin has already made aviation history, but were it not for the humble part played in its dramatic exploit by a specially equipped six cylinder truck, it is possible that the story might have ben different.

A special brand of gasoline was being used in the Robin, and on Sunday, July 21, the flyer's second Sunday aloft, the supply was nearly diminished.

The nearest point where an additional supply could be obtained was Tulsa, Oklahoma, but the train which started forth immediately from that point with a new supply was unfortunately blocked off by a wreck ahead.

News of the mishap was sent on to St. Louis and the reply came back, "Send it by truck."

So a huge tank containing 800 gallons, was placed on the sturdy Chevrolet and the drivers were ordered to "give it the gun."

Now, speeding a truck is all right under most conditions, but never so if it is a transport for gasoline. At a speed barely within the bounds of safety, however, the truck started on its 450 mile trip late Sunday afternoon over a road that was mostly gravel.

Shortly after noon the next day the trip was completed without mishap. Amid cheers the Chevrolet pulled up alongside the refueling plane, and thus was obviated the necessity of switching brands of fuel—a step that was feared both by the pilots and the designer of the Robin's engine.

An interesting point in the part played by the Chevrolet was that it had been run only 15 miles before it undertook its emergency mission. Nevertheless, according to the drivers, not once did the motor heat up, nor have there been any consequent engine difficulties.

Foursquare Revival Closed Sunday Night

The Foursquare revival which has been running in the warehouse here at Clanton, under the direction of Essie Binkley Locy, Foursquare evangelist, of Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, came to a close last Sunday night, August 11. Evangelist Locy was well pleased with the results of the meeting, there being 15 or 20 additions to the local Foursquare church.

On Sunday afternoon the baptismal service was held at Mims' Pond, two miles east of Clanton, when eight were baptized, and when Rev. H. D. Bessonnette explained the Foursquare Church's creed relative to baptism. A large crowd was present at this service.

After the Sunday night service, Mrs. Locy set the local church in order as a chartered Foursquare church, under and according to the rules, regulations and creed of the foundation church at Los Angeles. Officers were elected at this meeting also. Hereafter, the Sunday school literature to be used will be that put out by Angelus Temple.

During the meeting, Mrs. Locy laid plans for a 27-piece band, and these plans are expected to be perfected within the next few weeks. At this time, authorities are endeavoring to secure a capable teacher for members of the band.

After the Sunday night service, Mrs. Locy and party left for Waukegan, Ill. She thanked the people for their good attendance and attention; Mr. Will Johnson for his good work in seeing that good order was maintained around the building; Mr. Goodgame for his generosity in furnishing the warehouse for the meeting, announcing that he had offered it to her for next year's meeting; and thanked the church for the many favors shown her and her party while here. She expects to return next summer for another revival, if possible. After a few weeks in the north she expects to return to Los Angeles and San Fernando, Calif., where she has a church, and stated that she hopes to be able to make her home in the South after this year. She plans to begin a work in Birmingham, making her home there, and working the smaller churches from this central point.

Rev. H. D. Bessonnette and wife, who helped Mrs. Locy in the revival, left Tuesday afternoon for Dayton, O., where they have been called to the care of a church. However, they expect to return to Clanton some time before 1930 to take charge of the local church. Both Rev. Bessonnette and his wife are live wires, and made a number of friends during their brief stay here.

Services will be held every Sunday at the church—Sunday school beginning at 10 A. M. Prayer meetings may be held each Wednesday night, and Crusader (young people's) meetings will be held each Friday night at 8 o'clock sharp.

Everyone, young and old, is invited to come and take part in the services.—Temple Church Trustees.

It was a pleasure for them to be able to make their visitors happy.

Thousands of souvenirs were given away and loads of ice cream and candy were served free. It was a big day for the kids especially.

SAVED YEARLY TO DOMESTIC ELECTRIC CONSUMERS

Not only did this big rate reduction save more than $300,000 every year to household users of electric currents, but it opened the way to higher living standards in thousands of Alabama homes.

New low electric rates have made it possible for those of modest income to afford new electrical appliances which add immeasurably to home comfort, efficiency and economy.

Electrical refrigerators, ranges, water heaters will soon be just as much a part of modern Alabama Homes as the roof.

If you are not familiar with the full advantages of the new low rates, ask the manager of our local store to explain them.

We are rejoiced to say we had a good meeting this week. We added to our church 12, 8 of whom were baptized, Misses Gladys and Louise Dobbs, Misses Lurla and Lola Vinzant, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Gilmore, Lovie Hilyer and Martha Jane Robinson. By letter we had Mr. and Mrs. Pryer Robinson, Mrs. Posey Robinson, Mrs. Willis Clackler, all of whom we heartily welcome.

We want to thank Mr. O. B. Robinson and class for their help during these few days. We also thank the preachers, especially Bro. Homer Carroll, who came as a helper for Bro. Trice. We feel like he did his best and everybody enjoyed the grand messages he brought before them. We enjoyed them being in our home, and ask them to come back again. Now we pray God's blessing upon them both as they may go from church to church preaching and pleading with lost souls.—Mr. and Mrs. Grady Martin.

PLEASANT HILL

The singing school at this place is progressing nicely. We have on roll about thirty students and hope to have more. Mr. Boswell from Coopers is teaching the school, and we have had a good teacher. He is a faithful worker. On account of a misunderstanding about the school we thought we were going to have to close it. Although we didn't and feel thankful for it. Let us all cooperate with the teacher and make the school a success. I feel assured it will because I feel that we have as good a teacher as could be.—Signed A Pupil..

REFUGE

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space for a few words from this place. Our Sunday school is moving along fine. We have a wonderful study for this quarter. Especially the lesson for last Sunday was encouraging. Just think for a moment: A man of God as Daniel was being cast into the Lion's Den for praying, but jealousy was the cause of it all. Daniel prayed three times a day. How often do you pray. I would to God that every one who reads this would ask him-or herself that question. Also I would like to say a few words about Bro. Bryan's Weekly Messages. As I haven't noticed a single article concerning them. I first want to say that they have been a wonderful help to me. I especially want to call your attention to one of his messages of a few weeks ago on "Criticism." You that read the message remember that he said he had received personal letters criticising him for the way he was fighting sin. One of the greatest reasons why some of us don't receive criticisms is that we don't fight sin quite strong enough. The writer was accused once of making long prayers to be heard of man. May God bless that person.

Our revival will begin at this place next Sunday, August 18th. Bro. G. G. Williams will preach. So, let us as one of old hath said, "Lay aside every weight that doth sa easily beset us," and come and hear Bro. Williams. Next Saturday is also our regular meeting day and we hope to see a large crowd out. Our singing society will also meet Sunday afternoon.

SAMARIA

Our Sunday school was much better last Sunday. We were glad to see some of our absentees back with with us.

On last Friday Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Wood and family, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Wood and family, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Wililams, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wood at Lock 12, for a family reunion. All the children and grandchildren were present. We hope to have the pleasure of all being able to meet together again.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Williams returned home Tuesday morning after two weeks vacation here with friends and relatives.

Mr. J. F. Armstrong carried his Sunday school class to Troy Sunday to visit the Orphan's Home.

Next Sunday is our regular preaching day and we hope to have a large crowd present.

OUR INVESTORS

We have heard more than ever before, during the past few years of the stock exchanges of the country, and of the buying and selling of securities there. The reason is, of stocks is no longer regarded as the exclusive privilege of the rich. Americans all over the country are buying securities. This is one of the results of the extended period of prosperity through which we are passing. Because they have saved money the people are able to buy securities. This accounts for the widespread interest in the big stock exchanges of American cities.

It is of course true that too many people have invested their hard earned money in stocks which have little to recommend them in the way of cash value. So long as there are people willing to listen to the silvery tongue and honeyed words of the unscrupulous stock salesman this will always be true.

But it is also true that the vast majority of the people have been buying sound securities from reputable dealers, and have been paying for them. One recent estimate was to the effect that the individual shareholders in the industries of the United States have now reached the great total of 15,000,000. Twenty years ago it was estimated that the total number of those owning such stock was around 500,000. Nothing more eloquently portrays our growth in industry and our increase in prosperity than the figures showing the increase in the number of our investment minded people during the past two decades.

We can well afford to stop and wonder at this great change in our economic system. With investors to the number of about half of the families of the country owning industrial securities and so interested in the further economic growth of the United tSates, we can see why the United States is not only the most prosperous but the most sane, and conservative country in the world. Never before in the history of any country has so much of the economic power been in the hands of so great a proportion of the population. The New York Post well stated recentely that this growth of the investment idea in the United States "is unquestionably the most startling and significant economic phenomenon apparent in the modern world. Its social and political implications can not be measured. They can not even be imagined at present."

It can be stated, however, that the trend is in the right direction. As our people in every walk of life, our clerks and workers in other lines, accumulate good business and public securities along with the banker, the merchant and the professional man, we are assuredly passing prosperity around and making it less likely that the gang of radicals, always busy at work in the nation, will finally succeed in its effort to overthrow constitutional government. For the political red flourishes better in an atmosphere of misery and suffering.

The wise man of course will purchase any securities which he may accumulate, through some reputable banker or broker. He will not accept the unsupported word of the glib stock salesman who promise great dividends sometime in the golden future but hsa at present little to back up his little game. Let us be investment minded and whether we buy securities or real estate let us see that we get something that is worth the money.

FORD BREAKS RECORDS IN JULY

World production of Ford automobiles and trucks for July was the largest for that month in the history of the Ford Motor Company, according to announcement by the company. All records for retail deliveries to customers also were broken.

The company also announced that requirements for cars during August is placed at considerably more than 200,000 and that every effort will be made to meet this demand.

Production of Ford cars and trucks in the United States during July totalled 180,804 and for the rest of the world, 15,701, making a grand total of 196,505. Retail deliveries to customers in the United States alone totalled 170,676 for the month. This was more than a third of the total car and truck business of the United States.

While the production curve of the Ford plant at River Rouge has been maintained at fairly steady volume the year round, July always has been the low point in the curve. In the striking increase in volume over the same months in previous years and 150,000 unfilled orders on the books of Ford dealer organizations, Ford officials foresee one of the busiest autumns in the history of the company.

The plant is now turning out cars as fast as the summer schedule permits. The company now employs 104,000 workers at the Rouge plant where most of the manufacturing has been concentrated since the removal of equipment from the Highland Park plant.

The popularity of the new Model A has extended to the remotest parts of the world and the capacity of all foreign assembly plants is being taxed to the limit, company officials said.

Mr. Frank McCary of Friendship reports having killed a huge chicken snake the other day that was six and a half feet long. The reptile had a rabbit by the foot and had wrapped itself around the rabbit and squeezed it to death. Mr. McCary said that he could not find anything to kill the snake with so he just got him by the tail and warped him over the ground and killed him.

ALABAMA FARMERS FACE PROSPERITY

Alabama farmers bid fair to enjoy a bigger dollar next fall, according to the August crop report released by F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician, at the department of agriculture in Montgomery, who in brief made public the following favorable report:

Cotton has a condition of 71 per cent compared with 59 per cent one year ago. A yield of 170 pounds per acre is forecast, compared with 150 one year ago and the indicated yield is today 1,317,000 bales compared with 1,096,000 last year. This indicated yield is in all respects higher than the 5 year average and with a continuation of good conditions a fine crop is now in prospect. Weather and boll weevil may change this favorable outlook, but present indications for all crops are good.

Corn promises a yield of 41 million bushels compared with 30 million last year, which should be enough for Alabama's farm needs. Sorghum and sugarcane are making a better showing than last year, and sweet potatoes also have a decided increase in yield.

Peanuts are only slightly better than last year, while hay occupies exactly the same position. No forecast of yield of hay has been made as much legume hay is being produced. Pastures are not quite so favorable as last year, but are looking quite good.

Fruits and nuts are way below last year's prospects, including apples, peaches, pears, grapes and pecans. Pecans have a condition of 44 per cent compared with 70 last year.

This report while highly favorable compared with last year, must not be taken to mean that production as indicated is assured. If present favorable indications continue, Alabama will have to buy outside the state, much of feed and foods, although corn is thought to be about enough for home use.

TENT CATERPILLARS ARE NUMERORUS, DAMAGE TREES

Montgomery, Ala., August 12.—The tent caterpillar is increasing in Alabama, says the State Commission of Forestry. This insect is a leaf eater and preys chiefly on the foliage of various hardwood trees. Its haunts can be readily located by the spider web like shelters which it spins embracing several large leaves and twigs, the whole roughly resembling a tent outline, whence the insect derives its name.

The eggs of the tent caterpillar are laid in a mass on the twigs in early midsummer, but do not hatch until the following spring, when the little caterpillars emerge with the first foliage. The family instinct is very strong and the young insects from the same egg mass cooperate in spinning the tent which is usually formed in a crotch of the stem or branches of the tree and is gradually enlarged by new layers of silk. When full grown the caterpillars are about two inches long. They moult several times before finally inclosing themselves in cocoons in which the insect is transformed into a moth.

The tent caterpillar in Alabama at present is feeding chiefly on the persimmon tree, with walnut and cherry following closely in the insect's preference. They are also found on hickory, sweet gum, oaks and a few other trees. They damage the tree through depriving it of its leaves without which a plant will either die or make very slow growth. The caterpillars may be quickly destroyed by spraying the foliage with Paris green or arsenate of lead just after the leaves come out in the spring. Where there are but a few nests the insects may be destroyed in them by spraying the web on a cloudy day with kerosene.

ALABAMA FARMERS STUDY AT AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 13.—The annual farmers' week at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, August 5-10, set a high record in attendance and in interest. The progrom was especially good, all subjects and demonstrations being along practical lines. Almost every county in the State was represented. President Bradford Knapp was delighted with attendance and interest.

The week began with the annual convention of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation. The annual report by President Edward A. O'Neal showed that the organization has been successful to the extent of transacting business amo unting to $70,000,000 during its first eight years. President O'Neal and the other officers were reelected for another year.

Although many subjects were discussed, several were emphasized by speakers during farmers' week. Farmers who attended were impressed with the emphasis placed on more and better livestock, organization and cooperation among farmers, use of more and better fertilizer, and better homes with better and more comfortable equipment therein.

A large number of women were present. General sessions were held for men and women and departmental meetings for different groups as well as sessions for the women while the men were in their meetings studying agricultural problems.

The week gave to the farm people of Alabama an opportunity to come to Auburn to get practical information from the experiment station. The program was based upon results of experiments conducted by the experiment station. County farm and home demonstration agents were in Auburn during the week.

A DRESS FOR THIRTY CENTS

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 13.—Wearing a dainty cotton dress; for which her cash outlay was thirty cents, Mrs. Wilbur Hull of Limestone County thrilled the farmers' week audience here Thursday, August 8, with the opportunities for using more cotton. It was a cotton dress demonstration given in connection with the cotton week feature of the program for farm people.

Mrs. Hull explained that she made the dress from cotton sacks. It was an ensemble suit, the main color being white with a bit of green.

A clothing demonstration conducted by Miss Dorothy Dean, extension clothing specialist, revealed the advantages of cotton for clothes for women and children. In towns and cities as well as on farms women are wearing cotton. It is cool, comfortable, and attractive.

Miss Dean said that lisle hose are being worn and that they are stylish. She explained that they will last three or four times as long as silk lisle.

Throughout the week cotton goods were featured for clothing for both men and women. While Mrs. Hull was displaying her dress and explaining how it was made, numerous garments made of cotton were on display. Each was beautiful and attractive in color and design.

The demonstration was a boost for cotton which is Alabama's cash crop.

In eight years the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, which held its annual convention at Auburn during farmers' week, August 5-10, has done $70,000,000 worth of business. This makes it one of the State's largest business organizations.

THE RETURN FROM CAPTIVITY

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 29:10-14; Ezra 1:1-6; Ps. 126:1-6.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Happy Home Coming.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Second Chance.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Historic Significance of the Return.

I. The Return Predicted (Jer. 29:10-14).

False prophets were flourishing in Babylon telling the people that they would speedily be restored to their own land. To counteract this the Lord moved Jeremiah to send a letter to the captives in Babylon (vv. 8, 9). In this letter he advised them to settle down and quietly pursue their regular callings of life, and not to be led astray by the false prophets (vv. 6, 7).

1. The length of the captivity (v. 10).

Their coming back was to be "after seventy years." From Daniel 9:2 it is clear that seventy years means a definite time. It dates from the time when the first company, among which Daniel was found, was taken captive.

2. Recovered by God (vv.10-14).

God's purpose in the Captivity was to cure them of their idolatrous practices. He assured them that when His purpose was accomplished He would visit them and convince them of His good purpose toward them.

II. The Predicted Captivity Fulfilled (Ezra 1:1-6).

1. The Proclamation of Cyrus (vv. 1-4).

(1) This was not by accident, but that the word of the Lord might be fulfilled (v. 1). What God has promised He will do.

(2) By divine initiation (v. 1).

"The Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus." How this was done we do not know. Possibly Daniel brought to his attention the prophecy of Isaiah and Jeremiah (Isa. 44:28; Jer. 25:12).

(3) The content of the king's proclamation (vv. 2-4).

(a) "The Lord God of heaven hath charged me to build Him a house in Jerusalem" (v. 2). This makes clear that he had some impression of God's hand upon him.

(b) Appeal to Jewish patriotism (v. 3). He invokes upon such as possess the national religious feeling, the blessing of God, and commands them to go and build the house of the Lord God.

(c) To lend assistance (v. 4).

Many of the Jews were established in business and therefore were not free to go. Many, no doubt, had lost their national spirit and were not anxious to go. All such were to lend friendly assistance with silver gold and beasts.

2. The response to Cyrus' proclamation (vv. 5, 6).

The chief of the fathers of Judah and Benjamin and the priests and Levites presented themselves as willing to go. The company which returned was largely made up of representatives of Judah and Benjamin.

3. The royal favor (vv. 7-11).

Cyrus returned 5,400 vessels of the house of the Lord which Nebuchadnezzar had brought forth out of Jerusalem and put into the house of his gods. This was a great encouragement to every loyal Jew whose heart had been grieved over the profanation of these sacred vessels.

III. The Gladness and Rejoicing of the Returning Exiles (Ps. 126:1-6).

1. The procalamation of Cyrus as a dream (v. 1).

They recognized that their going back was through the favor of the Lord.

2. Their laughter and singing (vv. 2, 3).

They not only recognized the favor of the Lord upon them, but testified thereof in the hearing of the heathen round about them.

3. Their prayer for prosperity in the land (v. 4).

They were not only going back with the consciousness of the good hand of the Lord upon them, but were trusting Him for the fruitfulness of the land.

4. Sowing in tears (vv. 5, 6).

The seeds which they were to sow on the land were so precious that they seemed to have hesitated as to sowing, and yet they recognized that joy would follow their sorrow when they should bring in the sheaves of the harvest.

Gaining Fragrance

LETTERS FROM OLD FOLKS IN THE OPPORTUNITY SCHOOLS

We are requested to publish the following letters written by some of the old folks of the county who have learned to read and write by attending the opportunity schools:

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 1, 1929.

Mr. H. A. Harris:

Just a line in praise of the opportunity schools. I attended school last year and find it a great help to me. I am going again this year. I could not write my name or read writing at all when I entered school. Now I am able to write letters. I am very proud of this. Anyone who has to depend on someone else to do their writing is greatly hendicapped. Let me urge those who did not have a chance to attend school in early life to take advantage of this opportunity. You will never regret it. It is a great pleasure to be able to read and write letters. Don't think you are too old to learn, because I am learning and I am 60 years old. —Mrs. Mary Gentry.

Jemison, Ala., August 6.

Dear Mr. Harris:

I am 75 years old and going to opportunity school and like it fine. I can read much better and am learning to write. I will not miss a day if I can help it. Thanking you for the school, I am Yours truly.—Sally Maddox.

Lawley, Ala., August 6.

Dear Mr. Harris:

I go to school at Shoults. I like to go to school. Miss Johnson is our teacher. I want to thank you for the school. It is doing me much good. I want one here next year.—Yours truly, T. W. Wallace.

Lawley, Ala., August 2.

Dear Mr. Harris:

I am glad to tell you how proud we are of our opportunity school. It is so fine I can not express how good I feel over it. I don't know what you could have done to help us any more than to give us this school. Some of us who could not make a letter are now writing letters the third week of school. I am proud we have three more weeks of school so we may learn more about reading and writing. I shall attend the next three weeks if nothing happens. I also hope to be in this school next year, and will be if God gives me health. Sincerely yours.—W. H. Smith.

Mrs. Horsley White has returned from Lagrange, Ga., where her two children underwent a tonsil operation last week.

Miss Frances Thornton of Samson is the guest of Miss Alma Robinson this week.

YOUTH--AND THE NEW LEADERSHIP

By CRAIG B. HAZLEWOOD
President American Bankers Association

LEADERSHIP is a picturesque word. With it, one pictures Hannibal fighting his way through the passes of the Alps—Napoleon in his campaigns—or Washington holding together his half-frozen army by the sheer magnetism of his character at Valley Forge. But I visualize something that holds a more astounding spectacle in many respects than any of these.

Craig B. Hazlewood

It is the onrush of our business life. Our economic progress plunges ahead at a rate unheard of in the history of the nations of the world and every industrial and financial leader is daily brought face to face with new and perplexing problems requiring the highest courage and intelligence for their solution.

Ninety billions a year, they tell us, this country is now producing in new wealth. The rate of increase is even more staggering than the amount. It is difficult to say where it may lead us in even ten or fifteen years.

We are moving exceptionally fast. Our economic and industrial structure is placing before us problems of greater and greater magnitude. Few men can see far ahead. Few are in complete control, for this is a changing world, as even the most inexperienced business man will readily testify. Our methods of adjusting ourselves rapidly to economic changes and of cooperating are far from perfect.

What an opportunity the leadership of five, ten or fifteen years from now presents! What an adventure it will be! What responsibilities it will lay upon the broadest shoulders that may be found! This is the challenge to leadership as I see it. In the hands of the young men must rest the responsibility for this leadership.

Boys Who Reached the Pinnacles

Business is full of the romance of youngsters whose chief characteristic was working hard and keeping at it. There was a green farmer boy who decided he would rather stand behind a counter than follow a plow. He seemed so obviously lacking in sales ability that for a time no merchant would hire him. He failed in his first position, and in his second his salary was reduced. He even agreed that he was a misfit—but he stuck. Out of his first five stores, I believe, three failed. But he persisted and worked hard. And that boy, Frank W. Woolworth, became the greatest retail merchant in the world with a store in every city of eight thousand or more population in this country.

There was another lad who clerked in a grocery store sixteen hours a day and studied mathematics in his odd moments. He became interested in the doings of the steel plant whose employees traded at this store. He began to study steel and sought a position in the plant. He carried a surveyor's chain and drove stakes. At night he studied mathematics and engineering. He did not despair. He could not be diverted. He kept the pressure on for seven years. And that boy, Charles Schwab, mastered the iron industry and became one of the country's great industrial leaders.

There was a lad who sold papers on a train. When he grew up, several million men and a score of billions of dollars of capital were given profitable employment through his inventions. Even in middle life, Thomas Edison continued to work twenty hours a day, if necessary to achieve his purpose.

Leadership is not play. Leadership offers countless positions of varying opportunity, of which the highest pinnacles will mean almost unbearable responsibility in the new era. There will be men with the fire and iron to qualify even for these places. Such men must have had the very finest preparation and the most grueling tests. Their reward will be the attainment of these highest pinnacles of achievement, and the rendering of an immeasurable service to their times.

MAIL BOX THEFTS AID CHECK FORGERS

American Bankers Association in Nationwide Warning Exposes Methods and Gives Rules to Combat Them.

NEW YORK.—Active operations in many cities of mail box thieves, who open bank communications to customers, containing details of their accounts and cancelled checks showing their banking signatures, and use this material in perpetrating check forgeries, have led the American Bankers Association to issue a nation-wide warning to its members with instructions for combating this form of crime. The warning as sent out by James E. Baum in charge of the association's Protective Department says:

MILLION SIX CYLINDER CHEVROLETS NOW ON THE ROAD

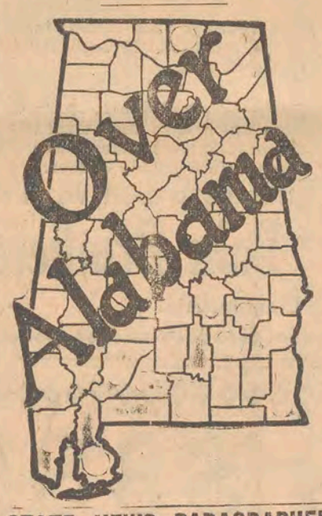
Detroit, Aug. 12.—One mililon six cylinder Chevrolets have been placed on the road since the first of the year.

This sensational announcement, indicating as it does the great popular appeal of the new six cylinder car, was made at the central offices of the company here today as assembly plants in various parts of the country were operating on the biggest summer production schedule in the history of Chevrolet.

Never in the history of the industry has any other manufacturer equalled the achievement of placing a million six cylinder cars on the road in less than eight months. In fact, according to observers, this is more than three times as many six cylinder cars as were ever produced by a manufacturer during a like period.

The record-making model, probably the most famous of all Chevrolet record cars, rolled off the assembly line at the huge Flint, Mich., plant on August 5. It happened to be a sedan—the new Imperial sedan, introduced a few weeks ago. The glistening record-breaker was welcomed at the end of the assembly line by W. S. Knudsen, president, and other high Chevrolet officials.

Without any ceremony the car left the plant for Detroit where it will be presented as one of the interesting exhibits that are to be a part of the mammoth Chevrolet sales convention in Detroit, August 14-15-16. The entire Chevrolet sales supervisory force of nearly 2,000 men will be on hand for the biggest convention of its kind ever held by the company.



The rapidity with which Chevrolet marched on to the record of a million sixes in less than eight months will be noted from the following tabulation of the dates when the various epoch marking sixes were on the road:

First Six	Jan. 1
250,000th Six	March 6
500,000th Six	April 24
750,000th Six	June 12
1,000,000th Six	August5

Nearly every state in the Union had a share in the building of the million sixes. Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Michigan furnished the steel; the South and the West supplied the wood; the South and the Northeast provided the cotton and wool; the rubber came from Ohio, Illinois and California; the glass from Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois and the Duco and enamel from New Jersey and Michigan. More than 85,000 car loads of material were used to produce the million sixes.

As officials point out, the achievement is even greater than during the same period of 1927 or 1928, during which years the Chevrolet Motor Company was the world's largest builder of automobiles. Furthermore, the change made by Chevrolet January 1, from four-cylinder production to six-cylinder production has upset all previous precedents in the low priced field by causing the production of six-cylinder cars to exceed the production of four-cylinder cars for the first time in automotive history.

It is also significant to note, from automobile registration, that since January 1, 1927, the Chevrolet Motor Company has built and produced to date more automobiles than any other manufacturer in the world. Also, Chevrolet sales for the first time in the history of the company were greater in July than they were in June, which still further emphasizes the constantly increasing popularity of the new six-cylinder car.

SARAH LOUISE SMITH

In loving memory of little Sarah Louise Smith who left this world in cold arms of death August the 6th, 1929. She was the second oldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Smith, being 10 years, 7 months and 25 days old. She was taken with appendicitis, carried to the Baptist Hospital at Birmingham for an operation. She seemed to be doing very well when monster death came and took her away so suddenly.

She leaves a heart broken father and mother, two sister and a host of relatives to mourn her loss. All was done that loving hands could do, but none could stay the hands of death. The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away where no farewell tears will be shed. It was such a shock to us all, the end came so quickly.

She was loved by all her neighbors and friends. We all loved her, but God loved her best. She loved her parents and was obedient to them, never complaining at the duties of life which are required of a child. She enjoyed helping father and mother, seemingly, never tiring.

We know her class mates will miss her in school. Dear children, remember the life that Louise lived. She made a good pattern to live by.

We feel that we can truly say that everyone who knew her loved her. She was one who lived without enemies. She always let her light shine. We know it was so hard for father and mother to look on poor Louise, cold in death, but when God calls we must go. So let us look to him who is able to soothe our sorrows and heartaches. May God, who is too wise to make any mistakes, too great to be unkind, grant us the spirit or reconciliation and submission and enable us to say: "Thy will be done." Let us honor our blessed Saviour to the best of our ability, knowing our time is short and we all go to the grave. It is God's will that we must die to make us fit for that home on high, and when His purpose all complete, then God, our Saviour, we shall meet. There with Jesus forever to dwell, while devils and demons remain in hell.

Her body was put away in New Salem cemetery. Services were conducted by Rev. S. J. Ezell of Clanton. Martin in charge of the burial. —Respectfully, Riley Scott.

WHEN CHILDREN Need a Laxative

"We have used Thedford's Black-Draught in our family for nineteen years. I have found it of great help in raising my family.

"I have given it to all six of my children. Whenever they complain of upset stomach, or begin to look pale and sickly, I make a tea of Black-Draught and begin giving it to them. In a day or two they are all right.

"I give it to them for constipation, and my husband and I both take it. I always give it for colds in winter, for I believe a way to prevent them is to keep the system clean." —Mrs. Doshie Terry, 1205 Fourth Avenue, Decatur, Ala.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

SUBJECT: THE SERVICE WHICH WE RENDER HUMANITY MUST BE IN CHRIST'S NAME.

There isn't any real service rendered to humanity unless it is given in the name of Jesus Christ. There is no real service to humanity unless it is done in the exalted name, the loving name, the honored name, the glorified name of Christ. True service to humanity must be rendered in this name of Christ which comes to us bathed in the tears of saints and garlanded with prophetic flowers, and heralded by angels.

Suppose we just study together two calls which comes to every Christian. One is the call from darkness into light, out of the world in the church. The second one is the call God gives to each of us in our life's work. In other words it is God's plan for our lives. It is just as high and holy a calling for a man to be a worker out there on the street as anything else. The call of the decorator who placed these folwers in the church, the shop worker, the singers in the choir, the rearing of children, teaching Sunday school classes, going as missionaries, doctors, nurses, typists, stenographers or whatever work you may be engaged in, remember that it is a call from God.

When Saul was on the way to Damascus to persecute the Christians the Lord appeared to him and said, "I knew you when you were persecuting the Christians in Jerusalem. I knew you when you were in your mother's womb. I knew you by my grace." He called Paul out of sin into salvation there near the Damascus gate. Then in the house of Annanias He came to him and said, "You are a chosen vessel unto me to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings and the children of Israel."

When Andrew and Peter were called out of darkness into light, out of the world into the church, they were likewise called of God. God comes to us and says, "You are a chosen vessel to bear my name to all mankind. I am going to set you apart for a definite work." That is the holy idea of your work. It makes no difference what my work is I must do it in the name of Jesus Christ. You too must do the same thing.

To the nurses of our homeland and foreign lands I wish to say your work in the name of Christ and for His sake is most commendable. Recently I gave away sixty-six letters from missionary nurses in foreign lands. They are the most thrilling letters from the great world field. These devoted, conscientious, consecrated nurses are moving the world, under the leadership of Christian doctors, to Christ. Why? Because these young people have been called of God, and are investing their lives in that great field.

You no doubt have read about Breathret County, Kentucky. It was the most dangerous county in which a true worshipper of God could enter. I have been there and preached and I know it was a hard territory. But this county is called today by some devoted Christian nurses as the "Flower of the East and West." Today it is rejoicing and blossoming as the rose. Two young women who were nurses went there and began a hospital in that needy district. They are today in London still serving humanity in the name of Christ. Dr. Guerrant served this hospital for a long time, but has passed over to rest under the shade.

Women from all parts of America have gone there and tipped quietly into those neglected homes, those dark places of hell and introduced Christ to the people. I once saw a young man who had happened to the misfortune of a broken arm. It had not been set, but he was taken to that hospital for treatment. He told me that they certainly rendered unselfish service to him in the name of Christ. That is just like many of us have done in Birmingham, and other parts of our state.

Your call is just as high as God has given to anyone else. It is a trust to you and you are responsible as to how you render service with it. When Jesus was in the upper room in Jerusalem He said something on that Friday evening before His crucifixion which He had never said before. He said, "Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name. Ask and your joy may be full." That is that even Mary of Magdala, Mary, Martha, Joanna, Chusa, Abraham, and the apostles had never asked before in the name of Jesus Christ. They prayed of course before this time as they were taught to pray. But Jesus had never before taken them that far up the ladder. Then and there we were taught to pray in the name of Christ.

In the inspired letter of the Ephesians we read that God our Father has given us all things, and we are to thank Him in the name of Jesus Christ. There is no confession and forgiveness of sin only in the name of Jesus Christ and for the sake of Jesus Christ. We must give thanks in the name of Jesus Christ. Certainly there is a verse in Ephesians, and almost the same thing in Collossians, which applies to each and every one of us. It is just this: "Whatsoever ye do in word or in deed do all in the name of Jesus Christ."

In the letter to the Philippian Christians and to us we read that God has given Him a name above every other name, at the mention of which every knee shall bow. Then again we read of his name in this manner, "Neither is there salvation in any other name, for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved."

Whatsoever ye do in word or in deed do it i the name of Jesus Christ. If you give a cup of cold water give it in the name of Jesus Christ. Think of the man who was going down to Jericho from Jerusalem. It is certainly down to Jericho from Jerusalem. One goes down grade all the way. I know because I traveled it myself. This man fell among theives and was robbed of all he had. Here comes somebody who does nothing in the name of Jesus Christ. He sees the poor suffering man on the side of the road and just barely looks upon him, and says, "I am going down to Jericho to spend my vacation and I cannot be troubled to help that sick man. I might get robbed myself in the effort to help him anyway." Here comes Levite. When he sees the man he says, "Poor man, but I am going down to Jericho and haven't time to be bothered with him." Then he rode by as fast as he could. But here comes a man in the name of Jesus. O, my friends, if you will only come in the name of Jesus, give in the name of Jesus, work in the name of Jesus you shall be rewarded as He promised. But here comes the Good Samaritan and helps humanity in the name of Jesus. He bathed the suffering man's wounds, poured in oil and bound them up. Then he lifted him upon his donkey and carried him to an inn. Just so it is told by Doctor Luke, the great physician of the New Testament.

There is not a parable in the New Testament that is not based on a fact. A friend asked me how I knew it. I at once told him that I knew it because I saw scenes in the Holy Land which I easily associated with Christ's parables. I saw stony, rocky ground, thorny ground from which the parable of the sower was taken. In like manner I could associate each of Christ's parables with some scene there. No doubt this good Samaritan was led to Christ by the woman who was given the water of life at the well by Christ, and was doing whatsoever he did in the name of Jesus Christ, the only Saviour from sin.

We have consecrated nurses who are rendering service in the name of Jesus. I visit the sick in the hospitals during the week, but not so much on Sunday. I do not say for one not to visit the sick at all on Sunday. But I do say that much of the running around to see sick people on Sunday is just an excuse to stay away from God's house and your Christian duty. Of course if there is some friend dying there on Sunday it is all right for you to go if you feel a duty to do so.

Many times when I enter the hospital halls sometimes at the midnight hour all is quiet and you find a suffering patient being administered to by a loving nurse under the direction of a doctor. The nurse watches every move to give the needed and longed-for attention of physical help. She brings in the medicine at the right hour under the doctor's orders, and bathers the feverish brow with cold water. She gives you a glass of cold water when your tongue is dry and parched with fever.

In the name of Jesus Christ what a blessing is the trained nurse. In the 3rd chapter of the Acts of the Apostles we read that those two saved Jews did not turn away the poor lame man who was placed for alms at the beautiful gate of the temple. But in the name of Jesus they healed him. Peter answered the curious throng of people by saying, "In His name, through faith in His name is this man made strong." Remember too, that Peter said to the crippled man who no doubt looked up at them expecting to receive worldly goods, "Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have, give I unto thee. In the name of Jesus of Nazareth rise up and walk."

When the men brought their paralyzed friend and let him through the roof of the house where Jesus was they let him down at the feet of Jesus for a blessing. There are no high roofs in the Holy Land. It is erroneous to think of that being a high roof. I never saw a roof over eight feet high. Christ did not have to say "in the name of Christ" and He said, "Take up thy quilt and walk." Then He said to the accusing enemies. "That ye may know that the Son of man hath power to forgive sins. I say unto the sick "Arise and walk."

I want you to think of the opportunities Christ has given to faithful nureses. He has given you the opportunity to care for the sick and dying. He has given you the opportunity to place cold cloths on feverish brows. Let us all try to render service to humanity in the name of Christ. I met a man this afternoon who always attends services here. He had been to the hospital and well cared for by loving hands. With tears of gratitude he praised the nurses who had waited on him a poor, humble, and almost friendless man.

Yet day by day we fail to realize the untiring labors and efforts of the good women of our land and country. I feel sure that we don't realize the many steps which they take for us, our comfort, and our well-being. It is sad, but true that many women, half of them are dying with broken hearts. Many a heart of a good woman and girl has died broken because of criticism, and many times for want of kind words of appreciation.

You sent me to Mobile for treatment in the hospital. Since that time I always think when I see the patient nurse waiting on the sick that they are surely working in the name of Jesus Christ. I could not sleep at night at all. The nurse was ever ready to come to my assistance. She would often come tipping in my room and offer me ice water. She would then take a towel and wet it in cool water and rub my face and head.

One of my nurses there had given up her husband and two children. she told me that when I first entered the hospital she felt the responsibility of nursing me back to health in the name of Jesus. She also said, "O, how I do wish I could have had somebody to do things for my husband and children." I myself felt like God had sent them as angels of light to give me the needed help. I did not want anything but cold water and it was certainly given me in the name of Jesus Christ.

I would see them coming every afternoon bringing me flowers which someone had sent me. A man named Marshal who used to drive the ambulance sent me flowers many times, and the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Church Street sent me flowers along with many others. When you are sick away from home in the hospital and the nurse brings you cold water, comes in occasionally and makes up the mattress and pillow, and then brings you flowers with kind words all the time you will think as I think that it is in the name of Jesus Christ.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.

M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

No one can afford pimples

A clear smooth, lovely skin speaks of rich, red blood within.

HAPPY is the woman who has a clear, smooth, flawless skin! Both men and women admire such captivating loveliness.

First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered. You, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Strong, healthy blood nourishes the body and fights against infection and disease.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

S.S.S.

Many thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking S.S.S. It is Nature's own blood tonic for raising the body's power of resistance to disease, improving the appetite, building firm flesh, and clearing the skin. S.S.S. promotes constructive metabolism (healthy body building). It increases the number of red-blood-cells.

When you take S.S.S. to get rid of pimples, boils, eczema and such skin troubles, you are building up the system to ward off the graver diseases of which these blemishes are Nature's warning.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Our farm readers are directed to the advertisement in this issue of the paper telling about the new electric ginnery at Maplesville. The proprietors say they are equipped to serve the public in a way unsurpassed by any ginnery in the county. Machinery is all new and up-to-date, and nothing could be added to make a cleaner sample. The name of the new gin is the Farmers Gin and Warehouse Company, incorporated.

BANKERS DEVELOP NOVEL INSTITUTE

The Georgia Bankers Association in cooperation with the State College of Agriculture has sponsored a series of farmers' institutes in various parts of the State of an entirely new character. The principle feature is a large and comprehensive exhibit transported in four large trucks and set up at each stop. When set up it fills a space 40 by 60 feet and consists of panels, charts, and models on practically every phase of agriculture, including agronomy, horticulture, agricultural engineering, poultry, animal husbandry, soils and fertilizers, home economics and marketing. A large electrified farm model, showing the uses of electricity on the farm, model farm buildings and the ideal layout and landscaping of the farmstead, is one of the most elaborate and attractive exhibits.

Local bankers in each locality visited gave the money to cover expenses for the transportation and installation of the exhibit in their territory and assisted in the preliminary advertising and publicity. The College of Agriculture assembled the exhibit and conducted the tour through its various extension specialists.

TWO VETERANS IN HOSPITAL

A. J. Ware, 87 year old Confederate veteran, of Sweetwater, and Judge W. C. Judge Christian left the Vaughan Memorial Hospital late in the afternoon and returned to his home, but Mr. Ware remained a patient there. They vividly recalled the days spent in the hospital when it served as a Confederate hospital, and contrasted it in that day with the up-to-date modern hospital it is now.—Selma Times Journal.

MANY ARRESTED THE PAST WEEK

Sheriff Collins And Deputies Have Been Busy Looking After Violators

Sheriff Collins and his force of deputies have been busy for the past week running down law violators of various kinds. Close to a dozen arrests have been made.

On Tuesday of last week Sheriff Collins and Deputy Murrah arrested Jim, Joe and Hayes Owens, brothers near Kincheon, charged with burglary and grand larceny. They are alleged to have stolen a middling and a half of meat from R. L. Williams several days previous to their arrest. They remained in jail until Friday of last week, when they were released on bond of $500 each.

Last Thursday Will Bohannon and his wife, negroes of Frog Level, were arrested by Gillespie and Foshee and the Sheriff's force. A small quantity of whiskey was found in their home. Bessie Bohannon was released on bond, but Will Bohannon is still in jail.

Sheriff Collins, Deputy Billie Foshee and Deputy Murrah arrested Armon Mims and Frenzie Miner near Mim's home in Pinedale community last Friday. They had about 2 gallons of home brew buried in the woods a hundred yards from Mim's home. They both made bond.

Henry McCray was caught one day last week with a small quantity of liquor in his home in Frog Level. He was placed in jail and later released on bond.

Sheriff Collins and Deputy Murrah went to Decatur Saturday and brought back Frank Cheneyfeldt, who was wanted here for failing to support his wife and children. He is a son-in-law of Rolifee Littleton. Cheneyfeldt was placed in jail in Clanton where he still remains.

Jim Davis, negro of Montgomery, was placed in jail here Friday morning, he being the driver of the car which is alleged to have caused the death of Wm. L. Wiggins in the northern part of this county early Friday morning. He is still being held here in jail.

Mrs. J. C. Jones, saleslady for Smith's, returned home last Thursday afternoon, after having spent a week with her uncle, Rev. Joe Thomas, in Chattanooga, Tenn. Mrs. Jones was mighty favorably impressed with Chattanooga as well as the reception given her by her relatives and their neighbors there. The Union-Banner wishes to acknowledge with thanks an order from Rev. Thomas for a year's subscription to The Union-Banner.

BAPTIZED 71 AT FALAKTO SUNDAY

Candidates From Chestnut Creek, Samaria and Maple Springs Are Combined

One of the biggest baptizings ever held in Chilton County was performed by Rev. A. L. Nichols just below the bridge at Falakto last Sunday afternoon. There were 71 candidates administered the ordinance by Rev. Nichols, all from Chestnut Creek, Samaria and Maple Springs, where the above minister had conducted revivals. The largest number was from Chestnut Creek, where we understand 47 were added to the church for baptism. The candidates ranged in age all the way from 9 years to 67, there being a good representation of all ages of both men and women.

There were about a thousand people gathered around to witness the scene, but over half of them were disappointed, in that they were not able to get in sight of the performance. There were still others who came to witness it but who were mistaken about the hour and got there too late. There was a photographer present who took a picture of all the candidates for the purpose of printing a reproduction of the scene in the Alabama Baptist.

ANDALUSIA MAN KILLED IN WRECK

Two Parked Cars Hit By Auto Driven By Montgomery Negro Man

William L. Wiggins, of Andalusia, was instantly killed, and Edgar L. Wilkins, of Fort Gaines, Ga., suffered a broken leg, when their automobiles, parked on the Birmingham highway five miles south of Calera, were struck by a machine driven by Jim Davis, Montgomery negro, about two o'clock last Friday morning.

Wiggin's wife, who was unhurt, told officers that her husband stopped their machine to repair a puncture. Wilkins stopped his machine behind the Wiggins car in order that he could have the benefit of the lights while working on the tire.

The speeding machine occupied by the negroes, she said, hit the Wilkins car and caused it to run over Wiggins and Wilkins, who were between the two cars. Wiggins was killed instantly and Wilkins' leg was broken.

Sheriff Collins was called and when he reached the scene two of the negroes had fled. One of the negro men and a negro woman were still there. They told the officers that the car was driven by one of the negroes who fled.

The two negro men who left the scene of the wreck were caught by a garage man at Verbena and brought to Clanton. They had caught a truck and were making their way back to Montgomery. It developed that the negro man, Jim Davis, who remained at the wreck, was the driver of the car which caused the damage. He is still in jail at Clanton.

Undertaker Mell Martin was called and his ambulance brought Mr. Wilkins to Central Alabama Hospital. The body of the dead man was prepared for burial by Martin and carried to Montgomery where it was shipped to Andalusia.

Wiggins and his wife were traveling north, where the man was going to take up a job of work.

J. Osmond Middleton Goes To Birmingham

Assistant United States District Attorney In Office of Grady Reynolds Is Transferred To Birmingham, Where He Will Serve As Assistant To United States District Attorney, Thos. J. Kennamer

J. O. Middleton assistant United States District Attorney of Montgomery, has been appointed assistant district attorney for the Northern District of Alabama with headquarters in Birmingham it was announced last night by C. B. Kennamer, district attorney from Birmingham.

Mr. Middleton will succeed Joseph Franklin who has been appointed to the legal branch of the income tax division of the bureau of internal revenue at Washington, Mr. Kennamer announced. Mr. Franklin is expected to leave for Washington within the next week and Mr. Middleton will assume his new duties immediately thereafter.

Mr. Middleton last night said that he would go to Birmingham today to confer with Mr. Kennamer and that he would offer his resignation from the Montgomery post following the transfer of Mr. Franklin.

No successor had been named for Mr. Middleton's office last night. Grady Reynolds, district attorney of Montgomery, said that pending the resignation of Mr. Middleton he had not considered the appointment of a successor. He praised the work of Attorney Middleton and declared that Montgomery's loss would be Birmingham's gain.

Since coming to Montgomery on Jan. 1, 1925, Mr. Middleton has made hundreds of new friends in his native county, in addition to an enviable record. As the assistant federal district attorney he was charged with the duty of drawing indictments and not one indictment has been found defective by the court. He has aided Attorney Reynolds in prosecuting hundreds of criminal cases and the records show that in approximately 97 per cent of the cases convictions were obtained.

Mr. Middleton was born in the Southern part of Montgomery County, and is a direct descendant of a family that played a prominent part in colonial history in South Carolina, Georgia and Virginia. He was educated in the schools of Clanton, Ala., and graduated from the University of Alabama with the degree of L. L. B. He then began the practice of law in Clanton and later served four years as assistant district attorney in Mobile under Alexander D. Pitts of Selma. Mr. Middleton later was defeated for the office of federal district attorney in Mobile by Aubrey Boyles.

He then returned to Clanton, where he became a member of the firm, Middleton and Reynolds, his partner being Grady Reynolds, who is now federal district attorney in Montgomery.

Mr. Middleton has for a long time been prominent in politics. He was a member of the legislature from Chilton County in 1907-1911. In 1904-5 he was mayor of Clanton and 1905-6 was solicitor for Chilton County. He is a former member of the official board of the Clanton Methodist Church and now holds his membership in Court Street Methodist Church. He is a Mason and a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. He is also a member of the Alabama Bar Association and the American Bar Association.

Mr. Middleton's father was the late William A. Middleton who was a gallant Confederate officer and served in Hilliard's Legion and Grace's Brigade. He enlisted in Montgomery at the outbreak of the war and served for the entire four years with the exception of the time he was recovering from wounds received in the battle of Chicamauga.

Mr. Kennamer last night declared he was delighted that Mr. Middleton would join him in Birmingham and that from his record he had proven himself to be a competent assistant.

Attorney Grady Reynolds declared that he regretted to lose Mr. Middleton.

"I consider Mr. Middleton an able assistant and while we give him up reluctantly, we are nevertheless glad of his promotion." — Montgomery Advertiser.

Advertising matter has been distributed announcing a great Ku Klux Klan celebration to be held in Clanton next Saturday night at the High School grounds. The program at the grounds will begin at eight o'clock. This will be preceded by a great robed parade through the business section of town.

Arrangements have been made to have one of the best brass bands in the state to furnish music. The advertisement says that the band will play in the business section of town during the parade. Accomodations will be provided on the school grounds for 10,000 people and 2,000 cars.

The principal speaker of the occasion will be Imperial Wizard Hiram Wesley Evans. Dr. Earl Hotalen, imperial Klan lecturer, is also advertised to appear as a speaker. His subjects as stated are "Klancraft versus Roman Priestcraft and Nigger DePriestcraft." which will be "an eloquent, logical appeal for Americanism and white supremacy."

HIGH SCHOOL TO OPEN ON SEPT. 2

Best Prepared Faculty In the History Of The Chilton County High School

We all realize our minds and time have been occupied with the general routine of things concerning our private and personal affairs during the summer months, and now that the beginning of another school year is rapidly approaching, let's look at it in the true sense of a whole-hearted purposeful activity that concerns each and every one for the good of our community and Chilton County.

The crux of any situation or any movement is organiation and cooperation. A school is not unlike any other business in this respect. And now as we reflect over this let's remember that the most important thing is not necessarily a great outlay of buildings, equipment, books, etc., however important all this may be, but the most important factor of a school is the pupil. May I emphasize that every boy and girl has a right to succeed, and it's our duty and business to see that he does succeed in a good and wholesome environment.

We are glad to state this is the first year in the history of Chilton County High School that every member of the faculty has taught from two to seventeen years, and holds a degree from a fully accredited four-year college. Few high schools in this state have attained as high a literary standard as ours. Our County Superintendent and Board of Education are to be congratulated for the educational standards they are setting up for our county as a whole. We should be proud of our school and for what it represents. But nothing counts like success. When Mark Twain saw the Atlantic Ocean for the first time, he said: "Gentlemen, she's a success." Let's all pull together and make our school a success in every respect, and the world will make a beaten path to our door.

All text books change this year. New editions will be found at Upchurch Drug Store. Please do not buy books until you are properly classified. Your presence will be appreciated at our opening and at all other times you care to visit us.

THORSBY BAPTIST SERVICES

There will be services Sunday at 11:00 a. m., and at 7:30 p. m., preaching by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Jones. Morning subject: "Our Heavenly Record." At the evening service the minister will announce as his text the first he preached from when he first began as a boy less than nineteen years of age.

There will be special music both morning and evening. Mr. Akin Collins will direct the singing.

D. F. GREEN GETS STATE BANK JOB

Will Have Charge Pending Proceedings Against The Supt. of Banks

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 17.—D. F. Green, of Montgomery, was appointed assistant state bank superintendent in charge of the state bank superintendent's office here today.

Green will have charge of the office pending the outcome of the impeachment proceedings started against Judge C. E. Thomas, state bank chief, by a Jefferson county grand jury several weeks ago.

Judge Thomas has been granted a leave of absence by Gov. Bibb Graves pending the outcome of his impeachment trial, which will be heard by the state supreme court in October.

Green was selected by Judge Thomas and the appointment approved by Gov. Graves. There were many applicants.

Green was one of several men recommended by a committe of bankers for the post as temporary head of the state banking department.

He has previously served as state bank superintendent, having held that office during the Kilby and Henderson administrations.

Green is now holding the office of secretary-treasurer of the Baptist mission board here.

Judge Thomas was also indicted on a charge of conspiracy by the Jefferson county grand jury. His trial on that charge will come after the completion of the impeachment case.

CHEVROLET HOST TO SALESMEN

Having achieved another epochal milestone—the sale in less than eight months time of one million six cylinder automobiles—Chevrolet Motor Company last week played the part of gracious host to its entire sales supervisory force during a five day convention at Detroit.

All the regional and zone sales managers and their staffs, and the representatives in full force were in the Motor Capitol from Monday to Friday. Business was combined with entertainment in a program that kept the visitors occupied until they left for their respective posts.

Never before in the company's history were so many of its sales chiefs gathered together in the same place at the same time. The Chevrolet sales supervisory force is the largest in the industry, and when the last special train pulled into Detroit the total number of visitors was close to 2,000.

Because of the size of the delegation the committee in charge divided the men into two groups, the sales managers' group and the representatives' group. Included in the former classification were the nine regional sales managers; zone sales managers from each of the 52 zones; zone sales promotion managers; city sales managers; accounting managers; field assistant accounting managers; parts and service managers; used car managers; fleet managers and truck managers.

The representatives, whose function it is to contact Chevrolet's 11,000 dealers, were thus kept together through most of the convention in a single body.

The big day of the convention came on Wednesday when both groups were consolidated for an all day business program, presided over by H. J. Klingler, vice president and general sales manager.

Full cognizance was taken, and ample praise passed out to the visitors on their splendid work during the past two years and a half since the last National Convention, during which time Chevrolet has outsold every other manufacturer in the world.

W. S. Knudsen, Chevrolet's president, presided Wednesday evening at a banquet, which incidentally brought to Detroit the greatest assemblage of radio talent ever summoned there for an evening. When the millionth six cylinder Chevrolet was unveiled, enthusiam broke forth so spontaneously that five minutes elapsed before the program could continue.

Other highlights of the convention were the separate trips of the two groups to the Flint assembly plant, which is one of Chevrolet's sixteen American plants, and to the General Motors Proving Ground. A lake ride on Friday concluded the gathering.

Clanton - - Alabama

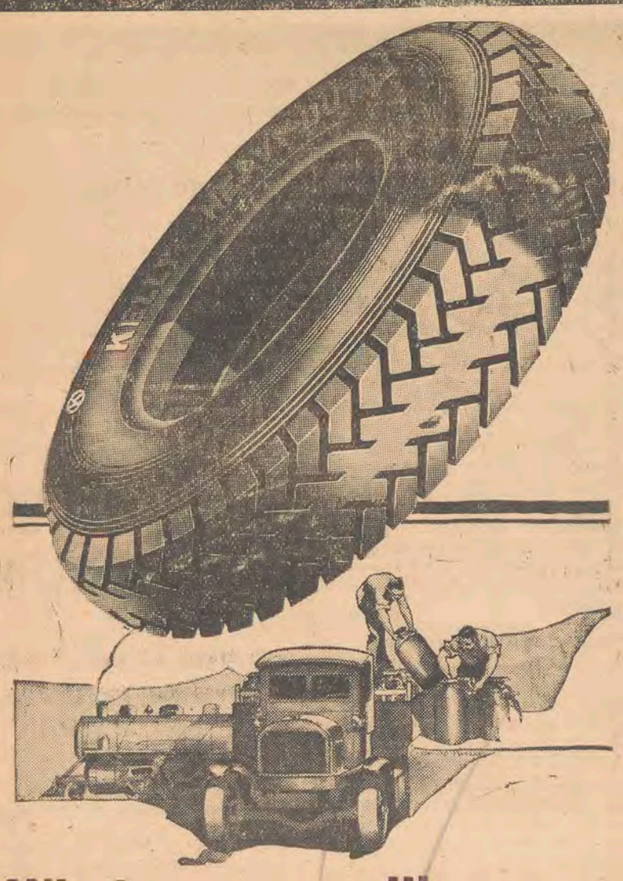
STATE CAPITOL News

Alabama's state convict department is today handling around 2,000 more prisoners than were in its charge at the beginning of the present administration. Figures from the office of Hamp Draper, Associate Member of the State Board of Administration, show a total convict population of approximately 4,700, against 2,780 when the present regime took over the reins a little over two an done half years ago. The present figure includes some 500 county convicts, who have been taken over by the state since the beginning of the present administration, but even with these deducted, there are around 4,200 state convicts, as compared with 2,780 in January, 1927, or a 50 per cent increase.

A general tightening up of law enforcement, a great decrease in number of paroles, and an increase in certain forms of law violation, together with more drastic penalties provided by the last legislature for a certain class of prohibition law violation are factors in the huge increase in total number of inmates of state penal institutions. Sheriffs and jury commissions over the state as a whole are functioning more effectively than ever, it is stated. The "five gallon law" enacted by the 1927 legislature is cited by prison officials as one of the items which go to boost the convict total. Under an act of the last legislature, the transportation of five gallons or more of intoxicating beverages was made a felony, punishable by a prison sentence of from one to five years. This new statute is sending to the pen an increasing number of rum-runners, who prior to its enactment could have been convicted only of a misdemeanor. An increase in number of automobile thefts and convictions therefor is also reported. While the number of incoming prisoners is on the increase, the annual "outgo" via the parole route is far less, so that conditions at both ends of the line tend to swell the total prison population.

In addition to the increase in total number of prisoners and the taking over of county convicts by the State, the Graves administration has also faced and solved the problem presented by removal of some 1,400 convicts from under lease in coal mines and lumber camps. Farming activities of the convict department have been greatly expanded, employment of convicts in prison mills has been increased, and the placing of convicts on road construction has resulted in employment of 1,400 prisoners in road work, with seventeen road camps in various parts of the State. Mr. Draper stated that the convict department is planning to establish four additional road camps, to work 400 men, in the next few months. The manner in which the convict department has met the greatly increased burdens placed upon it is regarded as one of the most creditable features of the work of the present administration.

The Convict Department has this year a total of 4,000 acres in cotton on its various prison farms, from which a yield of around 2,250 bales is expected. There are also 2,730 acres in corn, 125 acres in sugar cane and sorghum, 155 acres in sweet potatoes, and 325 acres in vegetables. The growing of peas for hay with which to feed stock employed on road work and prison farms is of increasing importance, as evidenced by the fact that the State this year has 650 acres devoted to the production of peavine hay. At the new prison farm at Atmore 220 acres have been devoted to strawberries, from which a yield of some 75 carloads is looked for next year. The Atmore farm was established by the present administration, and its importance as an outlet for convict labor is shown by the fact that of the total cotton acreage of 4,000 acres, 1,400 are at Atmore, which also has 500 acres planted to corn, 60 acres to sweet potatoes, 40 acres to sugarcane and 200 acres in various truck crops.



The entry of more than three score prominent fishermen from all parts of the State, and entries from six other states, mark the progress of the week for Alabama's First Deep Sea and Surf Fishing Rodeo, which is being conducted by Commissioner I. T. Quinn, August 26, 27, and 28th. Among the Alabama entrants are several state officials, including Governor Bibb Graves, Col. Woolsey Finnell, State Highway Director, Lawrence Lee, Legal Advisor to the Governor, Charles A. Moffett, President of the Board of Administration, and A. E. Gamble, Circuit Judge at Greenville.

The States from which applicants have been received are New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana. Washington, D. C. is represented also. A large party from New York and Chicago, including officials and directors of the Aviation Corporation, a two hundred million dollar organization, expect to fly to Mobile, bringing with them a plane with pontoons, which will be used for landing in the water at the Island.

Every section of Alabama is now represented among the entrants, and each day the Rodeo list becomes more cosmopolitan. Every effort is being made to make this the most enjoyable event of its kind ever held, while at the same time, expenses are being kept at a minimum. There will be no charge to contestants for sleeping accomodations, and meals will be served at 75c each. A sufficient number of power boats has been provided to care for the large crowd expected, the hire of these boats varying from three to five dollars a day for each person. With the low rates which are being offered by the railroads, the entire expense will be decidedly moderate.

The ladies have not been neglected in making the Rodeo plans, and a residence at headquarters, equipped with all modern conveniences, has been set aside for those of the fair sex who will participate. Mrs. Carson Adams of Birmingham, who has made a number of record catches both in the United States and Canada, claims the honor of being the first lady to enter the contest, her application, and that of her husband being received together. A splendid prize is being offered to the lady catching the largest fish during the Rodeo.

It is very necessary that persons who expect to attend the Rodeo who have not yet made application, do so at once, as meals, sleeping accomodations and boats are being provided only for those who register. Application, accompanied by the three dollar entrance fee, should be sent immediately to Commissioner I. T. Quinn, Montgomery.

What we are selling is MILEAGE

It is easy to claim big mileage for any tire. To get it out of a tire is a different matter.

The Kelly Heavy-Duty pneumatic is one tire you can be sure will give mileage. We honestly believe there is not another tire of its type being built today that will stand up alongside it. We have watched enough heavy duy tires in service to know what the various makes will do, and we back Kellys to beat any of them.

We could give you a long story about tire design, number of plies of cord, etc., but we don't believe you care about reading it. What you are buying, and what we are selling is MILEAGE.

That's why we sell Kelly-Springfields.

REBUILDING THE TEMPLE

LESSON TEXT—Ezra 3:10-13; 6:14-16; Psalms 84:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—I was glad when they said unto me, let us go unto the house of the Lord.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Rebuilding God's House.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Rebuilding God's House.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Building God's House.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Builders of God's House.

After becoming settled in the towns surrounding Jerusalem, the people were called together for the purpose of establishing the worship of the Lord God. The leaders in this movement were Jeshua and the priests and Zerrubabel, the governor. In view of the fact that the clearing away of the debris of the old city and temple and the erection of the new temple would take a long time, an altar was erected where sacrifice might be offered at once unto God. Upon this newly erected altar were offered the regular sacrifices commanded by Moses, including those of the Feast of Tabernacles (Ezra 3:1-7).

I. The Foundation of the Temple Laid (3:8-13).

This was an auspicious occasion and was celebrated with most impressive ceremonies.

1. The priests' apparel (v. 10). These garments symbolized their consecration to the Lord's service.

2. The priests with trumpets (v. 10). The trumpets were used in calling together the people.

3. The Levites with cymbals (v. 10). This was according to the arrangement made by David (1 Chron. 15:16-21).

4. They sang together by course (v. 11). This means that they sang to one another responsively. The one company sang, "The Lord is good," the other responded, "For His mercy endureth forever."

5. Mingled weeping and sighing (vv. 12, 13). Some of the older men who had seen the magnificent temple of Solomon, which had been destroyed, wept much when they saw how far short the present foundation came of the former temple. Others were glad of the favor of God which had brought them back, and that a beginning was made in the new house of worship.

II. The Building of the Temple Hindered (ch. 4).

The leading adversaries were the Samaritans, a mongrel people—the offspring of the poor Jews who were left in Palestine and the foreign people who were sent into Palestine after the Jews were taken captive. The three perils which delayed the building of the temple for about fourteen years revealed the persistent methods which the enemy uses to hinder the program of God's people in every age.

1. An unintelligent pessimism (3:12).

Under the circumstances, a glorious beginning had been made. Many today, because things are not quite what they should be, do not go forward with a constructive program, but even hinder those who have the hopeful outlook. In spite of all the evil forces at work to thwart the purpose of God, the Christian church should push forward its program of evangelization.

2. Wordly compromise (4:2, 3)

"Let us build with you, for we seek your God." This is Satan's most common and effective method. God's children should not seek the world's patronage in building churches and carrying on His work. The leaders should declare with Zerubbabel, "Ye have nothing to do with us to build an house unto our God."

3. Opposition by word (4:4-24).

When refused a part in the work intimidation and political scheming were used by the enemies to defeat the building plan of God's people.

III. The Temple Finished (5:1-6).

Through the ministry of the prophets Haggai and Zechariah, people were encouraged to resume enthusiastically the work of building the temple. When the temple was finished, it was dedicated to God.

IV. The Blessedness of Dwelling in God's House (Ps. 84:1-4).

1. The longing of the soul for God's house (vv. 1, 2).

It is refreshing when people long to meet God in His house.

2. The sparrow and swallow find protection in the sacred precincts of God's house (v. 3).

3. Dwelling in God's house (v. 4).

Those who have a heart for God find their chief delight in dwelling in His house.

What Will the Master Say?

Will it matter at last whether you have been rich or just lived from hand to mouth? What will the Master say? Ah! that is the question.—Dr. J. B. Shaw.

MRS. NAN ROBINSON

She was the wife of W. W. Robinson of Lock 12, being 38 years of age. She was taken with cramp in what is known as Walt Jones Swimming pool on Yellow Leaf Creek. All was done in relatives' and friends' power to save her, but God saw fit to take her to that sweet beyond, where there shall be no sorrow or pain.

She leaves a heart-broken husband, two children, Bernice and Elwyn, four sisters, Mrs. Jim Dobbs, Mrs. Stephen Hilyer, Mrs. Arnold Davis and Mrs. Jim Vardin, and a host of relatives to mourn her loss. The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away where no farewell tears will be shed. It was such a shock to us all. The end came so quickly. She was loved by all her neighbors and friends. We all loved her, O, so much. But God loved her best. She loved her family, did everything in her power for her children's pleasure, never complaining of her duties in life which were required of her. She enjoyed helping relatives and friends, seemingly never tiring. We know how much her presence is missed at home. Dear Bernice and Elwyn, remember the life of your dear mother. She made a good pattern for us all to follow. We feel that we can truly say that everyone who knew her loved her. She was one who lived without enemies. She always let her light shine.

I know we all loved her, and it was so hard to look on dear Aunt Nan cold in death. But when God calls we must go. Let's look to Him who can soothe our sorrows and our heartaches. May God who is too wise to make any mistakes, to great to be unkind, grant us the spirit to say, "Thy will be done." Let us honor our blessed savior as Aunt Nan before us did, knowing our time is short and at some time we must all go to some lonesome grave yard. It is God's will that we must die to make us fit for that home on high. And when His purpose, all complete,

Then God, our Saviour, we shall meet.
There with Jesus forever to dwell,
While demons and devils remain in hell.
She is gone, but will never be forgotten.
Her memory lingers still, a vacant place is in our hearts
That can never be filled.

—By one who loved her dearly, her neice.—Mrs. Annie Pachal.

Mr. J. W. Cagle of Mitchell Dam underwent an operation for hemorrhoids at St. Vincent's Hospital in Birmingham last Thursday. The operation was performed by Dr. Benedict, chief surgeon of the Alabama Power Company. Mr. Cagle was released from the hospital and returned home Tuesday of this week.

WEAK SPELLS

"I WAS SO weak," says Mrs. Josephine Cockcroft, of Baldock, S. C., "that I was not able to do anything.

"At certain times, I suffered dreadfully with pains in my back and sides. My head would hurt—felt like it would split open. Spells of weakness would last for weeks.

"I read of Cardui. I sent for a bottle and began taking it. My case was stubborn, and at times I almost lost hope, but I could see a little improvement. At last I began to feel much better. Then I improved rapidly. For the last year I have been in better health than I ever have been before.

"I give the credit to Cardui, for after I had given it a thorough trial, I got well."

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

SUBJECT: MORE EFFICIENCY IN MY SERVICE TO GOD AND MY FELLOW MAN.

There has never been any service rendered for humanity, to help another along life's way, unless it was done in the name of Jesus Christ, unless it was done to add honor, glory and praise, a crown upon the head of Jesus Christ who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister unto many, giving His life as a ransom for all who believe on His name. It was rendered in the name of this Christ who gave Himself for our sins. Gal. 1:4; Titus 2:14; I Tim. 2:6. From east to west, from south to north this service in the name of Jesus Christ must be precept upon precept; line upon line whether great or small. In other words it is a drawing out of the soul, to satisfy the afflicted soul, in the name of Jesus Christ to help someone along life's weary way.

We read a sentence like this, or maybe we sing a sentence like this: "I want to give more efficient service to Christ and my fellow man." As a pastor, a preacher of the Gospel of Jesus Christ I want to give more faithful service. I want to give to you just like it has been given to me. I want to give more efficient service to Christ and the church. I want to do it, and I must do it, but I can only do it in the name of Jesus Christ.

I must try to do my work more cheerfully, more loyal, more liberally, more to His glory, majesty, power and dominion. That applies to every condition of life. The reason we are inefficient and delinquent is because we have not seen the right motive, we have not the right viewpoint. We think on a low plane. Often we express our desire to God, but we do not stay in His presence long enough to receive His blessing. We wander off in the spirit of the world instead of waiting to be guided and led by Christ's never failing hand. We fail to understand that God has just as important service for us as He has for anybody else. In other words we do not listen to God's call to us. He is calling to us day by day.

The man who is called to dig stumps has just as high calling as the president of the United States. It is his duty to dignify and honor labor and approve of his calling before God and his fellow man as a high calling of God. Your work, whatever it is, is a high calling of God and you must work upon it that way. Your life is not changed, and your desires are inactive to God until you begin to give your work consideration as service to Jesus Christ rendered in His name. A man renders clean, positive, honest service to his neighbor only in the name of Jesus Christ.

The man who goes forth by God's help and helps to build up a church for Sunday School, preaching services, and prayer meeting is doing so because he wants to serve Christ. You are reading this message because you want to serve Jesus Christ. I am writing it to you because I want to serve Him. I want to preach the Word as I hear it from God's mouth. The love of God constraineth me to do so.

The first thing under this service is the fact that I must have faith in Christ, not simply an intellectual faith but head and heart faith in Jesus Christ. Faith without service is dead. This faith is a service. It is a faith whereby we receive and rest in Christ for slavation. I must receive Him in faith, rest in Him, rest in Him, go to sleep in Him. I must be ingrafted in Christ. I must have a faith in Christ which secures me in Him. "Faithful is that faithful does." I must put on the whole armor of faith which combats for the right.

Faith in Christ is a trust in Christ, belief in Christ, confidence in Christ. It is clinging to Christ. It is laying hold of all Christ did from the time He was born of a virgin until He ascended to God's right hand from the hillside of Mount Olivet. It is a strength to my faith in Christ to arise early in the mornings and preach to you. It certainly affords me the opportunity to grow in faith in Jesus Christ. I am glad to arise and feel and know that Christ will help me give you His Word.

If you have faith in your mother you will die for her. You will love her so much that you will be willing to work your fingers off for her. In like manner if you have faith in Christ you will love Him so much that you will do anything for Him. I have this one thought uppermost in Mmy nmi af now is the time for allg my mind that I can not separate or divorce faith in Christ from love to Christ. If you can, I will be glad for you to stay behind and see me in the study because I would like so much to meet you.

Then faith in Christ is love. I have faith in Christ to believe that He will sedn you to hear me preach to you. The fruit of this faith in love, joy, peace, longsuffering, patience, meekness. Now watch love. We love Him because He first loved us. His love for men constrains me to preach His Word as it is given to me. Today I must ell you that I would rather die before I would preach anything else. The love of Christ will make me sit up all night to do that which pleases Him.

I ask you young men and women just what service are you rendering to Jesus Christ? As you go about your daily task you can render service to Him. But your heart must be clean, and your motive and purpose in life must be true to Christ. By studying God's word we find that it is true that we are weak, and it is a wonderful thing to be weak. When we are weak then we are stronger. We are also told that if we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves and the truth is not in us, but if we confess our sins He is faithful and just to forgive our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

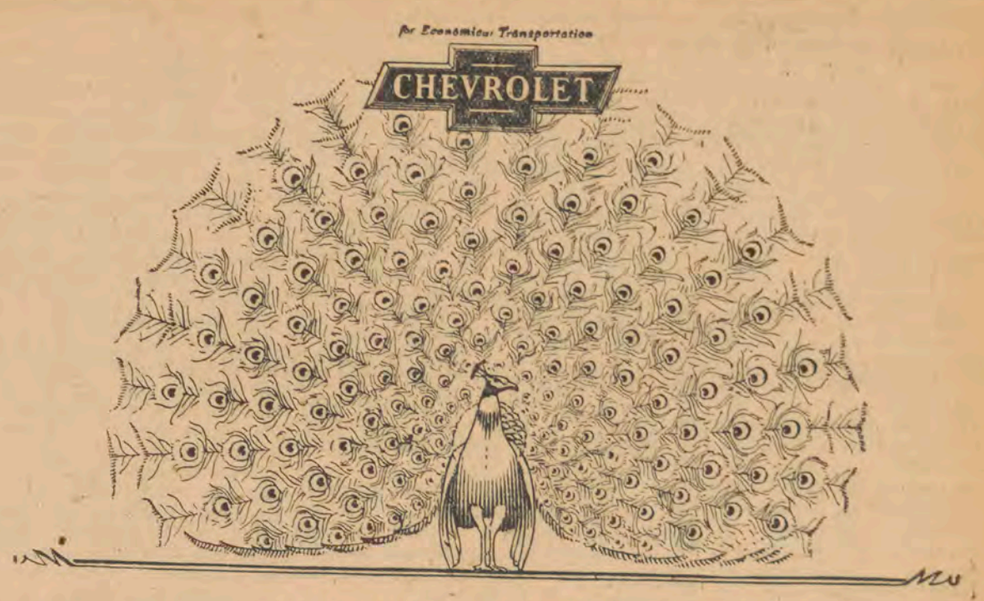
If we walk in the light, as the Bible teaches us, as He is the light we have fellowship one with the other; and the blood of Christ, the blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from all sins. I fear that many people in this century are trying to find a Christ without any blood attached to it. But my dear friends, this blood is the only way you can find Christ. Many people have found Him through His redeeming blood which was spilled on Calvary. They have lived and died for this blood.

We find Him through His soul-cleansing blood. Dr. Cooke, a faithful servant of Jesus Christ surely found Him through His cleansing blood. He died in Philadelphia singing this song:

"I am sweeping through the gates,
Robed in whiteness,
Clad in brightness;
I am now a child of God,
For I have been washed in Jesus's blood.
I am watching and I am longing for the gates.
Soon on wings of love I'll fly,
To my home beyond the sky to my welcome.
I am sweeping, I am sweeping thru the gates."

In all sincerity I say as someone else has said that love is the greatest thing in the world. It is the basis on which our service is rendered to Jesus Christ. It makes me lay down my life for Jesus. When you love your loved ones, and your friends you want to do for them. You want to please them. Humanly speaking that is all right, but I wish to impress upon your mind that you do not render true service to them unless it is in the name of Jesus.

I went to fourteen funerals in twelve days, but I never thought about it being too great a task because I was doing it to please Jesus Christ and in His name. It is due to my faith in Christ, my love for Christ, my obedience to Christ that I try in my humble way to render a pure, clean-hearted service to Him. I met a man this morning who said that he had been tramping. Of course he was not neat and tidy. I asked him if he did not want some money to get his breakfast. He thanked me and said kindly that he did not want the money because he had eaten breakfast and had secured employment Now that man's heart was clean. He was serving Christ in an humble way, and was therefore serving humanity honestly.



Did you ever think so much about God cleansing our hearts? In the 53rd Psalm David prayed this prayer: "Create within me a clean heart. O God, and renew a right spirit within me." He meant to say that he did not have the right spirit within him, and that his heart was unclean and he wished to be the possessor of a clean hear, and a right spirit. He knew that no one else culd, but Christ could do this for him.

Another one of David's prayers was this: "Clenase thou me from secret faults." He felt the need of this cleansing, and he expressed his desire to God in these words. Now there are some people who do not have any faults. They just spend their time finding your faults and my faults. They even take an X-Ray and pick out our faults. But David says, "Cleanse thou me from secret faults." The Hebrew word for clean is "white". Then he wished his faults to be made white, pure.

Perhaps you are saying, "How am I to live this life of service?" There is notihng exciting or terrifying about it. If your heart has been changed, and if it has not I beg you to have it changed, you will then be robed in whiteness and clad in brightness. You dear friends working in the laundries and dry cleaning shops don't forget that you have as great an opportunity to serve Jesus Christ and thereby render service to your fellowman as anybody in the world. O God, help us to be more faithful.

Mr. Harris states that there are some pupils who enrolled in the schools and attended only one day. He says eliminate those of a single day's attendance and each school can figure its own percentage of attendance. The first column of figures gives total enrollment and the second column gives average attendance for last week.

This week will complete the term of the schools. The session will close on next Friday, when every student of these schools is asked to assemble at the County High School Building in Clanton at ten o'clock a. m. From the High School the body will march to the county courthouse where they will listen to an address by Senator Charles West, of Jefferson County, who is now connected with the State Department of Education.

At this time certificates will be given to those students who have completed their course of work. Every student of the opportunity schools and every friend of the movement is urged to attend this rally next Friday.

DISCREDITING THE TARIFF

The tariff question is essentially a labor question. Were wages and living standards the same at home and abroad, there would be small justification for a tariff except for revenue purposes. It is clear to everybody that we can not maintain a high standard of wages and living in America and expose the product of these standards to the free competition of the product of lower standards without sacrificing these wages and living standards or shutting up shop industrially.

The American people are committed to the protective policy. There has been a great growth of sentiment in favor of the protective policy during the past few years. Organized labor under Samuel Gompers was for years opposed to a protective tariff. A few years ago, in the light of conditions, there was a reversal of this plocity. Today the American Federation of Labor stands for a protective policy. It could not consistently do otherwise in the light of its opposition to unrestricted immigration. To limit immigration because of the lowering effect of that immigration on American living standards and at the same time admit without tariff the product of that cheap labor on its own ground, would be inconsistent.

The imposition of a tariff approximating the difference in labor costs at home and abroad is not special privilege. It is only fair play to the American producer. It is not a tax upon the consumer. As Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, pointed out in his testimony before the Senate Finance Committee, the importer of foreign commodities does not give the American consumer the benefit of the saving. Imported articles are sold at just enough below the American price to take the market. By the time they reach the ultimate consumer the saving is gone.

Powerful financial and industrial interests now oppose a protective tariff. With the importing interests, they are the backbone of the opposition to protection which is now carrying on propaganda throughout the country against increases in the tariff which will more nearly measure the difference in labor costs at home and abroad. Immense investments have been made in the cheap labor markets of foreign lands by American industrialists. They would prefer to manufacture abroad, where labor is cheap, and sell here, where purchasing power is great. The final result of such a policy would of course be to kill the goose that laid the golden egg. But many financiers and industrialists think only of immediate profit—not of the national welfare—not of the long future of their own business, even.

Members of the United State Senate opposed to the protective policy and hiding that opposition behind a pretense of being against only certain schedules they pronounce "outrageously high," are quoting the protests of cetrain foreign nations against our tariff. We do not enact tariff laws in this country in the interests of foreign nations. A study of the facts will show that these countries legislate and administer in their own interests, not ours, and that some of the loudest objectors have resorted to unreasonable methods to curb American sales in their markets.

The theory that a prosperous United States is inconsistent with prosperity abroad is without justification. History proves that as we promote our own prosperity through increased production here of articles we can both make and consume, our increased wealth reflects itself in increased imports, in increased American expenditures for travel, in increased American investments in foreign countries. Our imports under the existing tariff law stand at high water mark for peacetime. Yet it was predicted when the present tariff law was passed that it would destroy our foreign trade by building a Chinese wall around America, as the result of which we would buy little and therefore could sell little. But we are selling abroad more than ever in any peace period. Yet in the face of these facts anti-protection theorists continue to parrot phrases to the effect that what has happened and is happening, can't happen.

The outcry that the farmer will be harmed by increases in the tariff on products now suffering from such unequal competition that unemployment is resulting, is fallacious in the extreme. The farmer is helped, not hurt, when his home market is increased by lengthening the payrolls of American factories. The well paid American worker is the American farmer's best customer, and the theory that by closing factories here and opening them abroad, by throwing workmen out of jobs here that workers in Asia or Europe may be employed, the American farmer will be helped, is a grotesque travesty on logic.

The important thing is to get the new tariff law on the statute books. Within a year all the dire predictions of its devasting price raising effect will be discredited, as such predictions, made in advance of the passing of protective tariff bills, always have been. Moreover the wheels will be set turning in many factories now idle, and pay envelopes will go to many thousands of men now unemployed. Comparison of the present situation with that of former years when political disturbence has been caused by the enactment of tariff laws, are without force, because conditions, both economic and in public sentiment, have intervened. The quicker the tariff law is passed the better. Those who are opposing its passage are opposing the progress and prosperity of the American people. Within a few months of the enactment of the law, the prophets of calamity who are now howling against it will be discredited by events, and American prosperity will rise to new levels.

But, in any case see me, and let me explain to you the method the Farm Bureau Cotton Association has in handling your cotton this fall.

MEETING AT FRIENDSHIP

At the close of the revival last month at Friendship Rev. Holland urged that everyone come up and bid the pastor good bye, because, Rev. Holland said, several members of the church will not see him any more until the revival meeting in 1930.

There was more truth than poetry in this statement of Rev. Holland, and such should not be the case. There are not many members at Friendship, and when about 75 per cent of them go somewhere else on preaching day, as they most always do, the congregation is disgustingly small.

Next Sunday is preaching day, and Rev. Foshee will be there unless something is badly out of place. So, let all the members of the church put forth a special effort to be present and lend the pastor your help. Bro. Foshee is a good man and a good preacher, but he can't do you much good if you do not go to his services.

FERTILIZE AND PLOW STRAWBERRIES IN FALL

Mr. J. M. Smith, manager of Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers Association, makes some suggestions that he thinks very valuable to growers of strawberries at this time.

He reminds berry growers of the necessity of fertilizing berry plants in the fall and suggests the use of 500 to 1,000 pounds of 8-4-4 after the first rain of the fall season.

Special attention is directed by Mr. Smith to the value of deep plowing in berry fields in the fall. The middles should be subsoiled, he says, in order to guarantee plenty of moisture for plants next spring.

Memebres of the Thorsby association have found, according to Mr. Smith, that the best crop insurance for strawberries is deep plowing of the middles in the fall. Proof of the advantage of following these suggestions has been furnished by experiences of many berry growers of the county in the past.

SOME FINE SORGHUM CANE

Mr. Lorenza Sanders of Clanton Route 1 near Lomax has left with Mr. Stapp and The Union-Banner several fine stalks of sorghum cane. The stalks left with Mr. Stapp are 12 feet and 11 inches tall and those left with The Union-Banner are 12 feet and 7 inches in height; they are the honey drip variety. The stalks are as large at the bottom as average sugar cane.

Mr. Sanders is making up this millet into syrup, and from one half acre he hauled twenty-seven one-horse loads. He has another half acre which is a little later.

Seed from this sorghum will be saved by Mr. Sanders and placed on the market to anyone who wishes to raise some another year.

REV. M. J. PARRISH HAS FAMILY REUNION AT HOME

On last Sunday, August the 18, a family reunion was held at the home of Rev. M. J. Parrish in Beat 16, Providence community. In the morning session the crowd gathered out in the yard under the shade of the old oak trees and enjoyed conversations with each other. Everyone was especially glad to know that Jim Parrish was able to be there after being run down by a train two years ago while employed by the Woodward Iron Company, Birmingham, Ala., and losing both his left arm and leg and was confined to the hospital for over a year.

The reunion was of much interest, as practically all the relatives were present.

After the crowd arrived a number of the ladies proceeded to prepare the table with a bountiful amount of food that had been prepared for the occasion. Rev. M. J. Parrish blessed the table with its food.

PROMINENT VISITORS HERE WEDNESDAY FROM TEXAS

Rev. Garie M. Smith of Seminary Hill, Texas, with his wafe and daughter, Doris, and Mrs. Edward Lard of Fort Worth, Texas, cousins of J. Mell Martin, were visitors to Mr. Martin and family here Wednesday night. Mr. Martin had not seen these relatives in forty years.

These people have been in Alabama for the past several days visiting old friends and relatives in different parts of the State. They came here from Coosa County where they had spent a while with Rev. D. S. Martin and other relatives about their old home.

These talented people rendered special music at the Baptist church Wednesday night. Their numbers were received with much delight by those in attendance at the church.

They started on their return trip to their home Thursday morning.

Jasper Dennis has his plant ready for business, having gone over the whole outfit this summer with all necessary repairs and adjustments.

Shaw Brothers at Jemison and Hugh and Dudley Thompson at Thorsby are ready to take care of the business of farmers in the northern part of the county.

The new gin at Maplesville is advertising the fact that they have a new plant in readiness for the cotton that is grown in the western part of the county.

THE BAPTIST REVIVAL

The revival meeting at the Clanton Baptist church is in progress this week. Dr. L. E. Barton of Andalusia is the visiting evangelist. His deep and powerful gospel messages are stirring the hearts of his hearers, and already many have come into the membership of the church.

Attendance at the services is good. Every night the large auditorium of the church is filled to its capacity. While not so large, the attendance at the day services is very satisfactory.

Under leadership of Mr. Herbert Lowery, the singing is especially fine. The junior choir sings every night preceding the preaching services. The little folks are receiving many compliments for their interest in the services.

The meeting is advertised to continue throughout this week and until August 28th. Everybody is invited to come to the meeting and take part in the worship.

WHEN YOU HEAR THE BELL RING AT FOX'S AUCTION CO.

Last Saturday the store of W. W. Fox was swamped with visitors who came to see what was meant by the ringing of the old cow bell. They found the trip through this big store to be a very great surpsise.

There are many folks who do not realize just what kind of a store Fox has got. He has added so many new things you will not recognize the place.

Mr. Fox will ring the old cow bell again next Saturday. When you hear it, mke a bee line for his place, because something is fixing to happen that will interest you.

JACK MIMS WATERMELONS

Jack Mims, letter carrier on Route 5, continues to grow fine watermelons, for which he has a reputation of long standing.

About 30 years ago Mr. Mims began to grow what was then known as the Ashley melon. He carefully improved his product from year to year until now the name of Ashley has disappeared and everybody in this part of the country has come to know the large round melons as the Jack Mims watermelon.

According to his custom of many years, he has presented The Union-Banner one of the finest specimens from his patch.

The Union-Banner is $1.50 a year.

DANGER ON OUR HIGHWAYS

Sane, careful and thinking people are much concerned about the ever present and increasing dangers which are met in traveling the highways of the State. Being on the Birmingham-Montgomery highway, which is the busiest thoroughfare of the State, we are in position to see the dangers of highway travel at the highest peak.

It is a fact that conditions on this highway are such as to make most folks fearful of traveling thereon. And this fear is not imaginary. It is real. It is a natural effect coming from a definite cause.

So many travelers driving automobiles are careless and take chances that the sane man is made to feel unsafe on the highway.

Almost every wreck that happens is directly caused by carelessness on the part of someone who takes a chance on getting by with something that a thinking person would not risk.

There is no getting around the fact that something must be done about the matter. Our highway is costing too much in lives of people who travel on it.

REV. A. L. NICHOLS

We would not attempt to heap praises upon any man for what God does through that man who happens to be a chosen servant from the Most High; but we believe it is not amiss to tell such men something about how their services are appreciated by his fellow men.

Rev. A. L. Nichols has been preaching, both as a pastor and as an evangelist, in Chilton County for the past ten years. We believe that Coopers was the first place to get hold of him, and they have been sticking closer to him than a brother ever since; but Rev. Nichols also preaches at other places and he always meets with the same success and his messages are always accepted with the same interest and enthusiasm. Just last Sunday this man of God baptised 71 people who had joined three churches during services in which he preached. This within itself is something to be proud of, but Rev. Nichols has been doing this same thing in Chilton County every summer since he has been coming here. Among this number were men and women of all ages. It must have afforded loving relatives and friends great joy to see their loved ones ripened with age and experience surrender their lives to God and enlist themselves with the great bands who are trying to keep the banner of Emanuel up high above the dust and filth of worldliness.

The winning of souls is a wonderful thing, and we should not withhold a helping hand and words of cheer and encouragement from those good men like Rev. Nichols who are pouring out their lives for the sake of lost souls here in this world. Let us all help them all we can.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

FRANK P. LITSCHERT

A few months ago there were rumors making the rounds in certain quarters that America's period of prosperity was over. Business was on the down grade it was whispered, the stock market was in the doldrums, and it wouldn't be long until millions of workmen would be walking the streets again. Evidently something has changed the trend of thought. The rumors have vanished. We hear them no more no more. Everybody is looking to the future with increasing confidence. Labor is employed, business is good and prosperity, it seems, has decided to remain with us indefinitely. Of course the situation was never as serious as the pessimists would have had us believe.

All latest reports are to the effect that the total business for the year 1929 in the United States will be greater than in the year 1928. And in 1928 it will be remembered we recovered nicely from a slight recession that was noted during the closing months of 1927. Not only is business good and labor gainfully employed, so that our great home market is maintained, but our exports are growing too. There is every indication that Europe, too, is on the upgrade, and that our markets across the seas will continue to grow better as the months pass. The Young plan seems to have brought about a settlement of the debt question as nearly equitable as possible, and the very fact that a settlement has been made will tend to help Europe and along with Europe, America.

During the past few years it has been the great agricultural element in the United States which has suffered most from depression. But there are indications that here, too, there is general improvement. Congress during the recent special session gave us some constructive legislation. Crop prospects are fairly good, grain and livestock prices are satisfactory, and will be made better with the passage of the Hawley tariff bill. In commenting on the present agricultural outlook, Mr. A. B. Genung, agricultural economist, writes in the Farm Journal:

"Bit by bit, agriculture is getting away for a generation of prosperity. The establishment of the federal Farm Board with its cooperative marketing assistance, and the assurance of increased protection of the domestic market by the government's tariff policy, are important considerations, but only two of the factors which should start a bull market in farm lands and activities in the near future. Other influences at work to improve the farmer's status, which are often overlooked by those who have become accustomed to agricultural pessimism, include the recent drift of surplus farm population to the cities, plus the growth of city population by immigration, which assures an increase in profits per worker for those who remain on the farm."

So there is reason to believe that agriculture has gone through the worst of its depression and is now on the up-grade. This will help the entire country, of course, and will continue to accelerate our progress along the high road of constructive prosperity. The United States has been more than fortunate during the past decade in that we were able to recover from the effects of the war more rapidly than any other nation. This was partly due, of course, to the sound and constructive policies which have been in force at Washington in the meantime, and which will continue to be in force indefinitely. While other nations were quarreling over post-war politics and post-war economics, the United States wisely set out to put its house in order and did so. We passed up all participation in the quarrels of Europe and by legislation and administration sought to build the prosperity and well being of our own people. That we have succeeded is evidenced by the statistics. So to say that we have been lucky tells only half the story. We have been sound and sensible in the selection and carrying out of our national and international policies.

WHAT IS "NAVAL PARITY?"

The American people have no reason to be alarmed over President Hoover's order to suspend the laying down of the keels of three 10,000-ton cruisers if the governments of the United States and Great Britain are going to follow the spirit of recent declarations of policy by high representatives of both.

It is to be remembered that Prime Minister MacDonald said in behalf of his government that "we have determined that we shall not allow technical points to override great public issues." Ambassador Gibson, speaking at Geneva some weeks ago, stated President Hoover's faith that "what is really wanted is a commonsense agreement, based on the idea that we are going to be friends and settle our problems by peaceful means."

The real end of all the present controversy is to halt naval competition between the United States and Great Britain. The latter is committed to the admission that there should be naval equality between the two countries. Naval equality can be based either on a limited scale or a big-navy scale.

It becomes necessary then for the two countries to come to an agreement on what constitutes naval parity, and then abide by it. That this is a big problem was demonstrated at the Geneva conference on reduction of naval armaments, when the representatives of the United States and Great Britain found it impossible to agree on some very pertinent technicalities. The trouble centered around Great Britain being able to use light cruisers because it has so many naval bases scattered around the world, while larger cruisers are needed by the United States with its few naval bases so distant from one another.

Congress, when it authorized the construction of fifteen new cruisers, decided that these vessels were required to give this country approximate naval parity with Great Britain. The people of the country approved the authorization because they believed the construction program would establish parity.

If Congress was right, then a reduction of America's program will mean that Great Britain will have to do some scrapping of ships already built in order to bring about parity. If Congress had reason to be agitated about disparity between the two navies last winter, that disparity will continue if we do no new building and if England does not put some of her tonnage out of commission.

There is reason to doubt that England will agree to do any scrapping of ships. But that need not worry Americans if, after conferences are instituted, agreement on the question of what constitutes real parity is reached and it is then admitted that the United States needs the fifteen authorized new cruisers to gain that parity. Construction work can then proceed, with the President's approval and with England looking on complacently.

The trouble with the whole situation is that the present relative strength of the two navies is a matter of dispute. There is not great disparity in any class of fighting ships, however, except as to cruisers. Great Britain has sixty-four of these with a gross tonnage of 397,140. The United States is credited with forty, but the Navy Department recognizes only eighteen of these as modern. The others are considered obsolete and, in fact, three of them are out of commission. They are the Albany, Salem and New Orleans. Many experts agree that against Great Britain's sixty-four modern cruisers with a tonnage of 397,140, we can match only eighteen modern cruisers with a total tonnage of 155,000.—Dubuque Times-Journal.

THE OLDEST AND THE YOUNGEST EDITOR

The oldest and the youngest editors in Alabama were recipients of special courtesies at the meeting of the first Alabama Press Institute at Auburn last week. General James B. Stanley of the Greenville Advocate is the oldest, and Billy Smith of the Chilton County News is the youngest.

They were picked out by the photographers and pictured standing side by side. This picture was published on the front page of the Birmingham News Sunday.

In honor of his 65 years of activity as a newspaper publisher and public benefactor, General Stanley was presented a grogeous silver loving cup by Mayor Claude Hamilton, of Greenville, on behalf of the Lions Club of Greenville. The presentation was made at the banquet of newspaper editors Friday night in Smith Hall at Auburn. Mr. Hamilton's speech of presentation was a masterpiece of oratory and withal a most fitting tribute to the life of General Stanley.

Also at the banquet Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, conferred upon General Stanley the college honorary degree of master journalist.

The newspaper fraternity of Alabama holds General Stanley in the highest degree of honor, love and respect. His life and career has been such as to merit this love. We know that in the course of human events, General Stanley must soon pass from among us. But his fellow editors hope, even against hope, that his days may be lengthened and that the evening shadows of his life may be the sweetest and most peaceful of his distinguished career.

HAVE YOU AN UNMARKED GRAVE?

How unthoughtful is he who permits the remains of a loving Mother, Father, Sister, Brother or a little Child to rest in an unmarked grave with nothing to distinguish that hallowed spot from the commonplace surface of the earth, indifferently trampled by man and beast. Great comfort will be gained by consecrating the spot where sleeps the departed with a beautiful and lasting monument.

S.S.S. builds sturdy health

DO you not marvel when thinking of the inward physical workings of your child—bone, flesh, muscle and brain growing each day—building onward toward manhood or womanhood?

Of course it is the blood stream which carries the millions of tiny red-cells to all parts of the body. And it is the healthy, rich, red-blood-cells that does this building, warding off disease and making for strong and healthy bodies.

When a child's appetite wanes or he loses weight, the complexion becomes sallow or pimples and boils appear—then you instantly know that the inward mechanism is not working properly—that a good blood tonic is required.

In such cases S.S.S. is the proper tonic. It is made from fresh vegetable drugs—therefore will not harm the most delicate system. It improves the appetite and restores the red-blood-cells to normal; lost weight is regained; skin eruptions clear up and color returns to the cheeks.

Give your child the right chance to develop. You will not regret it in later years.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping children and their elders regain strength and vitality.

The seasoning and aging process, used in the manufacture of S.S.S., makes it pleasant to the taste.

All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Extra Session Idea Is Now Abandoned

Gov. Graves Defers Call Until Next Year

Committee Is Heard; Need For Good Roads Pointed Out by Culverhouse

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 17.—Gov. Bibb Graves will not call a special session of the state legislature for the purpose of submitting a new road bond issue to the people.

At a meeting Friday with a committee from the Alabama League of Municipalities and Association of County Commissioners who petitioned him to call an extra session of the legislature, Gov. Graves said that he did not prefer to call an extra session until the latter part of 1930, and then only at the request of his successor.

The resolution requesting the call of a special session was called by Harry Culverhouse, president of the Association of County Commissioners.

Culverhouse pointed out the need for a good highway system in the state. He said that the present road building program was about to end because there was no money available.

He said that the $25,000,000 voted by the last legislature had been spent and that road building would have to stop until a new legislature met unless a special session was called.

Following the presentation of the resolution Gov. Graves said that he would make a definite statement later.

FROM S. N. WALDROP

Editor Union-Banner:

We are back from the oil fields of Texas. We had an enjoyable trip, and saw many pretty scenes. We saw good crops on our way until we got half way in Louisiana and on out into Texas was very dry; not a half a crop. The towns were nicely fixed up. We rode down to Carow Lake to an oil field near Jacksonville, Texas, which we have longed to see. We found the oil fields just like our process shows up here. We have drawn many maps of how the oil lay in the earth here. Geologists have acknowledged it was right, but to prove it up thoroughly was to go to the oil fields and see if I was right, so my map that I had drawn off here proved that I was right when I compared it with the veins out there. Now we know we are right in our process. Some make light of the simple way I have worked up, but that is all right, we are able to bear it believing we are right. So if we can prove up one well on some good vein that will prove to the people what attraction will do and is going to do. I could not find any school that was teaching attraction so had to study it out by myself.

Now as I have studied it out we hope some big-hearted people will help us to prove that attraction is a grand thing. It's the only eye to look in the earth and behold the hidden treasures, and show us where they are at. The book of nature will not make the mistakes that have been made in drilling wells for oil and other things. So, Columbus believed he was right, so we do to attraction. We think we will be able to analye all minute minerals and minute bloods and show the pure. There is more to say yet, but probably this is more than people will believe. So, now, editor, if this letter will not be an injury to your good paper, let it go in.—Yours truly, S. N. Waldrop, Jemison, Ala.

JESSE BAKER REPORTS TRIP TO TEXAS

Mr. Dave Easterling and his family and Mr. Jesse Baker have just returned from a two weeks trip to Texas. Mr. Baker gives us the following interesting report of their trip:

"We left here Friday morning, August 2. The first lap of our journey carried us to New Orleans, a distance of 420 miles, where we spent Friday night. Saturday night found us in Beaumont, Texas, and Sunday night we spent in Corpus Christi, Texas.

"At two p. m. Monday we arrived at the home of Andrew Easterling in the Rio Grande Valley, having covered a total distance of 1350 miles.

"All the roads we traveled were either paved or graveled except a few detours where we had to go 'round construction projects. We noticed that all the roads we saw being built are paved. On an average I would say that Alabama roads are better than the roads in any other states we visited.

"We spent a week with the family of Andrew Easterling, during which time we made a number of short trips to various points of interest. Especially did we enjoy our visit over into old Mexico.

"On our return trip we came by Austin, Waco, Dallas, Shreveport and Monroe. In southern Louisiana we enjoyed seeing the vast acreage of sugar cane and rice fields. Our observation of crops was that the condition is about on an average, except in Southern Louisiana where cotton appears extra good.

"We arrived home Thursday morning, August 15, having had a most pleasant trip all the way. Our conclusion after summing up the whole story is that Alabama and Chilton County is the best place after all."

Editor Union-Banner:

If you have a little space left in your paper for next week, will you please say a few words about our journey toward China. There are many friends back there to whom we would like to write, but a few words in The Union-Banner will do just as well as many letters

After leaving Clanton our first stop of any importance was Fort Worth, Texas, where we spent four days with my brother, Horace, who is pastor there. Then on Wednesday morning we started on westward making about 250 miles per day across the country. One day we ate breakfast in Texas, dinner in Juarez, Old Mexico, and spent the night in New Mexico. This was of much interest to the children. We are now stopped in this place for Sunday for a day of rest and worship.

There have been many things of interest along the way. One thing that has been interesting to us, and perhaps to some of you is the crops along the way. Through Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana the crops seemed to be good. I did not examine carefully for boll weevil, but there seemed to be plenty of bolls on the stalks. Through about eight hundred miles in Texas the crops were very poor. It has been too dry for the crops. There were large fields of corn that had dried up without ever making an ear. Fields were dry enough to burn. In fact we saw a great many pastures burning off where they had caught fire from some cause or other. Great fields of cotton from three to eight inches high. Looked like it would take forty acres to make a bale.

Extreme West Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona are supposed to be dry, but to our surprise there has been lots of rain for some days. About 125 miles out of El Paso there was one of those flat creeks coming down from the mountains that blocked our way. It was near a little burgh and we stopped for the night. James remarked, "Water bound on a desert." Wherever they have irrigation in New Mexico and Arizona the crops are fine, but comparatively very small areas of the states are in cultivation. Have not yet seen any place I would rather live than back home. Alabama is a mighty fine state to live in and Old Chilton is one of the finest of the counties in the state.

Will you please change my paper from Birmingham to Box 1581, Shanghai, China.

Any friends wishing to write us before we sail may write to us at Vancouver, Canada, c/o Canadian Pacific R. R.—J. Toy Williams.

TWO-ARMED FARMING URGED AT AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., Aug.—Inefficient use of labor, depletion of soil fertility, and lack of a steady income are some of the disastrous results of the neglect of livestock by southern farmers, according to Dr. Clarence Poe, editor of The Progressive Farmer, who pictured southern agriculture as being one-armed—that is, too strong on crops and too weak on livestock—in an address before nearly 1,000 farmers gathered at Auburn for farmers' week, August 5 to 10.

The speaker cited figures to show that most of the income of southern farmers is from crops and that livestock is being neglected. He pointed out that in 1880 Alabama ranked eighteenth among the states in cattle production, and twenty-sixth in 1920. In swine production Alabama dropped from fourteenth to fifteenth place between 1880 and 1920; in sheep from twenty-eighth to thirty-eighth; and in poultry from twenty-fifth to twenty-fourth.

By adding more livestock to farms land will be improved, waste or unused land will be put into service, a steady income will avoid time or credit prices, and the general economic structure of southern agriculture will be improved, the speaker said.

Continuing he declared "Profitable agriculture has two arms—plant production and animal production. In most of the South we have a one-armed system — plant production alone. We not only use a one-armed system but we use the less profitable arm, for crop prices have not kept up with the cost of living while livestock prices have outrun the cost of living. Not until the South uses both arms of a farming system—plant production and animal production—not until then will we prosper as we ought to prosper."

EXPERIMENT SHOWS FACTS ABOUT VETCH

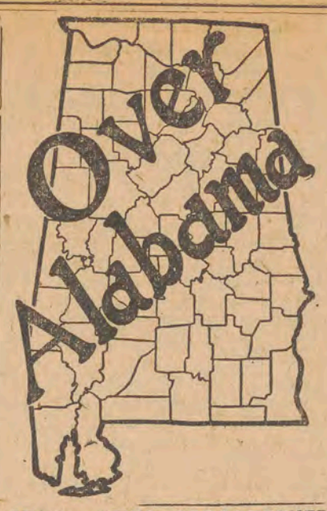
Auburn, Ala., Aug. 20.—A good crop of vetch turned under will add as much nitrogen to an acre of land as 325 pounds of nitrate of soda will add. The nitrogen from the vetch will increase the yield of cotton and corn as much as the nitrogen from the commercial fertilizer.

These are facts which have been established by experiments on plots of the Experiment Station at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. These same facts are being pointed out to Alabama farmers by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist at Auburn, county agents, and others who are conducting a campaign to get more farmers of the State to plant hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas this fall.

In quoting results of the experiment at Auburn, R. Y. Bailey, assistant agronomist of the experiment station, said: "One plot of cotton which received 600 pounds of superphosphate, 325 pounds of nitrate of soda, and 100 pounds muriate of potash under the cotton in the spring produced an average of 1,285 pounds seed cotton per acre over a four-year period. On a plot next to this vetch was planted in the fall, and fertilized with 400 pounds superphosphate and 100 pounds of muriate of potash. When cotton was planted in the spring 200 pounds superphosphate was applied. This plot, the one which received vetch instead of nitrate of soda, produced an average of 1,293.2 pounds of seed cotton per acre over a four-year period. Two plots next to the above two which received no fertilizer averaged 325.2 and 408.5 pounds of seed cotton per acre over the four-year period."

A similar test was conducted with corn. The vetch plot produced an average of 31.8 bushels of corn per acre and the nitrate of soda plot produced an average of 35.1 bushels per acre over the four-year period. Mr. Bailey pointed out that the low yield on the vetch plot, was no doubt, due to the fact that the vetch was winter-killed in 1928.

The Auburn agronomists believe that Alabmaa farmers could double the state yield of corn in one year by the proper use of winter legumes. They are recommending hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas.



Vetch seed and inoculation to plant an acre will cost about $3.50; 325 pounds nitrate of soda about $8.50.

AT AUBURN LAST WEEK

The editor of The Union-Banner had the pleasure of attending the first Alabama Press Institute held at Auburn last week. This is a new thing among Alabama newspaper men. We hope to have it every year from now on, because it is worth having.

The manner in which Auburn entertained the editors was a pure delight to every scribe who was present. P. O. Davis was the chief mogul in making arrangements and he proved that he knows how it is done.

Dr. and Mrs. Knapp gave the editors a lawn party and watermelon feast Thursday night. They are lovely entertainers.

General J. B. Stanley, the oldest editor in Alabama, was present, and was accorded his rightful place of first honors at every function during the meeting. General Stanley has been editor of the Greenville Advocate for 65 years.

Editors like chickens as much as do the preachers; but we don't say so much about it. A visit to the poultry farm was enjoyed very much. Auburn has the biggest poultry farm in the United States.

The editors had the pleasure Friday afternoon of witnessing the laying of the corner stone of the Ross Memorial Hall, which will be the base of Auburn's great chemical laboratory. The ceremony was conducted by the Grand Officers of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Alabama. It was a most touching and impressive performance.

Billy Smith of the Chilton County News is the youngest editor in Alabama. He was there and received proper recognition from his fellow craftsmen. A picture was made of Billy, the youngest, and General Stanley, the oldest editor. This picture was publsihed in The Birmingham News last Sunday.

The editors were furnished sleeping quarters in Smith Hall dormitory. Some of them didn't need a place to sleep because they stayed up all night.

The banquet given by Auburn officials Friday night was a most gigantic affair. The attendance was large, made up by a mixture of editors, college professors, trade representatives, a few politicians, and a liberal scattering of the fair sex. Frank Julian was toastmaster. Some suggested he ought to be called roastmaster.

From the way Hunter Golson was roasted, we think the latter designation is more nearly correct.

Auburn made a warm place in the heart of every editor who was at the meeting. It was a valuable affair for the editors and we predict it will ultimately prove as valuable for Auburn.

The Yellow Dog Society is an auxiliary to Alabama Press Association. Many new members were given the degree of this order on Thursday night. The confab was held in the room of John L. Davis. P. O. Davis administered the ordeal, assisted by Howard C. Smith, Bob Steele and Neal Cady. The guy from North Carolina with the pajamas, was the first recruit.

Some of our readers will not understand about the Yellow Dog Society. Others will. We can assure everyone it is all right and a good thing. In proof of this we will go so far as to divulge the fact that one of our exalted members is J. L. Kimbro, editor of the Opp Weekly News, a hardshell Baptist preacher, and chamion pea-eater of this planet.

Winston Mims of Birmingham was fishing at Lock 18 this week.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. MATTIE CASSEL

On Wednesday morning, August 14th, God called away from us our loving mother. She had been in bad health for a number of years, and had been confined to her bed about five months. All was done for her that loving hands could do, but the "Lord giveth and the Lord taketh." Through her severe suffering she still kept smiling. She said her hope was in the Lord. He had a mansion prepared for her, and He had promised to come for her and He was coming. She loved her Bible and read it, even after she was confined to her bed, until her eyesight failed so much she could not read any more. She was always glad to have her friends call and did her best never to complain to anyone.

She was sixty-nine years and five months old. She left to mourn her loss three children, Mrs. E. D. Baker, B. A. Cassel, and M. M. Cassel. She also leaves four brothers and six grandchildren.

We cannot see her smiling now,
Her loving face is gone,
Bue she is dwelling with the Lord
Forever safe at home.

We cannot hear her voice no more,
In prayer or song as old,
For now our dear old Mother
Is sleeping in her grave so cold.

Her empty chair is sitting there,
Her corner looks so lonely.
The silver hair, and face so fair,
Oh, how we miss our Mother!

Sleep on and rest, dear mother,
Although now our hearts are sad,
When we meet you on that golden shore
Loving Mother, we'll be glad.

Cleve Littlefield, Rube Jones and son, Howard Jones, and Marvin Giles all returned Monday from a trip to Mobile. On their return they report that they saw three foxes in the road between the home of Uncle Akin Mims and the highway at Salcoe. They say that foxes are thicker down there than rabbits are in Chilton County. Now, get your Walker hounds in trim and go to Mobile.

Prof. L. C. Warr returned Monday from New York where he has been attending summer school of Columbia University. He will be busy the next few days making arrangements for the opening of Chilton County High School on Monday, September 2.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.
M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

Yesterday's Ginning Methods Are Not Enough Today

the farmer now demands that his cotton be ginned to protect his profit

Ginning methods of even five years ago do not meet today's needs any more than the farm implements of fifty years ago would.

To get the highest price for his cotton, the farmer knows that it must be cleaned and ginned to increase spinnability of every bale. High spinnability reduces spinning loss, for which the mill man willingly pays a premium.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

WHY NOT SOCIAL UPLIFT FOR CHICKENS?

I once heard a certain social uplift society described as an organization in which a lot of old hens got together and laid plans for uplifting everybody but the ones that needed it most—themselves. However that may be, I happen to know that there is many an organization of hens in this country today that could stand a lot of intelligent uplifting. I am referring to hens in the literal sense, however, having in mind the scores of mongrel poultry flocks to be found everywhere. Many of these flocks can be improved in but one way. They should be sold to the butcher and replaced with good standard fowls. Many such flocks could be greatly improved with careful handling, however.

Many owners of mongrel flocks are dissatisfied. They realize they could do better with purer strains, but can not dispose of their present flocks to good advantage, nor can they afford to make any considerable investment for new stock. For such owners, the process of mating known as "grading up" offers a way out. Grading up is accomplished by selecting the best mongrel hens of one breed out of your flock and mating them with standard bred males of the same breed.

The resulting chicks will be known as grades. The first generation will contain 50 per cent mongrel blood and 50 per cent pure blood. Then, through the use of pure-bred males with females of increasing purity, fowls of the fifth generation will be approximately 97 per cent pure blood and 3 per cent grade blood. While I say that this method of improving an inferior flock is practical, I never advise it unless the program is going to be carried through all the way.

I can imagine no greater pleasure, however, than that enjoyed by the man or woman who perseveres and sees effort crowned with success. It is not an easy one for several reasons. Eternal vigilance is necessary. Chicks must be watched closely and those that do not conform to desired standards must be eliminated. Males with grade blood should be marketed. Above all things, matings should be carefully controlled and results closely checked to make sure that the trend is always in the right direction.

This system is not for the one who wants to see results quickly. The better plan is to leave to professionals such intricate problems as are involved in scientific mating and breeding. Few amateur poultry raisers have the time or inclination to devote to the study and care demanded by the grading up process. For all except the experimenter, the ideal plan is to dispose of the mongrel flock to your butcher and invest in thoroughbred chicks from some reliable hatchery.

Obviously, this means starting all over again, but you get results in far less time than by any grading up process and results are infinitely more satisfactory. You can choose the breed or variety that suits your fancy and be reasonably sure of getting what you want without waiting for several generations to mature. If you want to maintain a reasonably high standard in your flock, you must carefully select the ancestors of future generations. A good motto is to "Buy the best and breed them better." Or, you can buy standard bred baby chicks each year and do away with breeding as a great many are now doing. You must follow approved methods of housing, feeding, mating, breeding and genreal care.

Much more could be said on the subject of improving flocks but space is lacking in an article of this nature. I shall, therefore, add just one more thought. Unless you desire to constantly better the flock you have, better sell it and turn to some other breed. In poultry raising, as in everything else, we either go forward or slip backward. There is no standing still. To slip back means wasted time and money. To go forward means not only money gained but someting infinitely finer than that—the joy of having made something in the world a little better than you found it. If, therefore we cannot all start out with thoroughbred flocks, let us start a little "uplift movement" in our poultry yards as well as in our slums.

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Gerald and family, accompanied by their friend, Miss Rohrig, of Huntsville and Dr. O. C. Mastin, have gone to Florida to visit the parents of Dr. Mastin at Bell View. They will be gone two or three weeks.

AFTER AUTOS

New York—Failing to get a reply from Henry Ford to a letter appealing for advice on how to keep the streets of Queensborough clear of abandoned autos, officials there have formed a special police guard whose duties will be to patrol the principal highways and force disgusted owners to suffer some more.

Mrs. Alice Burnett, wife of W. D. Burnett, and Mrs. Belle Edwards and daughter, Lucile, of New Cedron, left Sunday, August 11th, for San Antonio, Texas, where they will pay an extended visit to Mrs. Burnett's daughters, Mrs. Lena Beaner and Mrs. Ernestine Turner.

Will D. Burnett of New Cedron community was in Clanton last Friday. He says that his cotton crop is going to fall down to a mighty low figure this year.

CLANTON Reedie Taylor, Mgr. JEMISON

IN MEMOY OF REV. CONNELL

Maplesville, Ala., Aug. 13, 1929.

Whereas, the Supreme Master did on August 2, 1929 call from the walks of men, Brother W. H. Connell of Stanton, Ala., and bade him lay aside his "working tools" in this field of labor, to enter that Temple not builded by the hands of men and surpassing in grandeur that of Solomon:

We, as Masons, humbly bow our heads in submission to the decree of Diety, realizing:

1st. That we feel the loss of one whose spotless character made lasting impressions on his associates. Stanton, his home, will mourn the absence of a congenial neighbor, a worker for his Master.

2nd. We feel that our loss is heaven's gain.

Now, therefore, be it resolved, that the record of his Masonic and Christian life be entered in the records of Maplesville Lodge No. 706, and that a copy hereof be sent the family of the deceased Brother, and a copy be spread upon the minutes of Maplesville Lodge No. 706.—W. E. Northrup, J. B. Hardy, W. T. White, Comittee.

CANE CREEK

The revival has just closed at this place and was a success in every way. Three additions were made to the church, and we feel that it was by the untiring efforts of our pastor that led them to believe in Christ. Bro. Trice was called to serve this church during the next associational year, but he will probably not render his decision before the next precahing day here.

Next Sunday is the regular singing evening and we invite all who will to come and take a part in the service. All singers are requested to bring along their books.

Don't forget the date, August 25, and be there on time.—Secretary.

VOLUNTEERS OF AMERICA

Capt. McDonald of the Volunteers of America, was in our city Monday in the interest of the Volunteer Home for the aged in Montgomery. There is scarcely a community in Alabama, said the Captain, that is not represented in our ministry. We want to thank our friends for their cooperation in this ministry of love.

WALLACE C. EDLER VISITOR TO CLANTON TUESDAY

Mr. Wallace C. Edler of Thorsby was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday. Mr. Edler is above eighty years of age, and of course is not as active as he used to be. But after all he gets about exceptionally well for a man of his years.

Mr. Edler reminded us that we published an item some weeks ago in the 25-years ago department which was a lie. He contends with emphasis that Felix Dudley did not slap his face, as was stated in the item which we copied from "The Banner" of 25 years ago.

Those were the days of hot politics and many of our old timers will recall the political (and sometimes personal) scraps between Mr. Edler, Mr. Dudley, Mr. Crichton, and others of that time.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Z. Dennis of Birmingham spent last week end with Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Dennis in Jemison.

PEOPLE GOING THRU CLANTON

Mr. Turner, who has come to Clanton from Tuscaloosa, to go into the farm implement business, made a significant statement Tuesday. He said:

"My experience has caused me to think about the way so many people are going through Clanton every day on the highway and never realizing what kind of a town and county this is. In this same manner I passed through here many, many time, and never stopped long enough to look around and see just what is here. In fact, when my business associates suggested our coming to Clanton to go into business, I protested against it, because I had never realized the possibilities. I am glad I came and stayed long enough to see what is here. I like the town and county fine. I believe there are many folks who pass through here in a hurry who would find it interesting and profitable to stop for a while and look around."

In this statement Mr. Turner expresses what has been the basis of some consideration by our citizens in the past: How to get the people who pass along the highway to really get the right impression of our town. It is a question that ought to engage the attention of our people in a serious way.

L. & N. WILL BUILD NEW DEPOT

After having served the public for more than 42 years the old train shed at the L. & N. station in Birmingham is to be razed and replaced by a modern structure costing half a million dollars.

The new shed was made necessary by the grade elimination program which Birmingham now has under way.

The old shed will be replaced by modern elevated platforms and umbrella sheds 12 feet above the present street level. The old depot house will be refinished and made to conform with the new arrangement. The job will be completed by January 1, 1930.

FIRST BALE RECEIVED HERE LAST SATURDAY

The first bale of cotton of this season was brought to Clanton last Saturday, August 17, by Mr. R. H. Hines of Bethsalem Community. The bale was ginned by Mullins and Popwell, and weighed 450 pounds. It was sold to Mullins & Moore for ..... a pound.

The first bale was brought in last year on August 28, one by Mr. Arant from W. Z. Hodges farm and one by Mr. Blackmon from Bud Alred's farm.

NEW LAUNDRY IS PUTTING IN NEW MACHINERY

The Clanton Service Laundry is busy installing new machinery at their plant west of the railroad. Mr. Felix Rhodes, proprietor of the business, states that he expects to be ready to take care of his business in his own plant here at home in the next few days.

The new plant will include all kinds of modern laundry and cleaning devices, with special apparatus for dry cleaning delicate fabrics.

W. B. HOLT NEW SUPT. OF COTTON MILL

Mr. W. B. Holt, of Winder, Ga., has succeeded Mr. A. R. Meeks as superintendent of Alabama Mills in Clanton. He has already arrived here and taken active charge of business affairs at the mill.

Mr. Meeks states that he has given up his duties at the mill in order to take a long rest. He does not know when he will take up work again.

Since coming to Clanton Mr. Meeks has made many friends, all of whom will regret that he is to leave here.

FRED HOWARD GOING TO BIG FISHING CONTEST

Chilton County will have a representative in the big fish rodeo on the Gulf of Mexico this month in the person of Fred Howard of Thorsby. Mr. Howard is one of our master sportsmen who has had years of experience in big game fishing in all parts of the world. For several years he has been making trips to the Gulf and is familiar with all the tricks of the sport in our gulfshore waters.

"I wouldn't miss this event for a bag of peanuts," said Mr. Howard Saturday in discussing his plans for the trip. "The deep sea rodeo will take place on August 26, 27 and 28. I am going down there a few days in advance in order to get the lay of the land (or water I should say) before the real contest starts. I am going to do my best to win a trophy in that contest. I may not catch the biggest fish, and then I may. You never can tell. At least I am going to catch some fish, and I will prove it to my friends in Chilton County when I come back."

Here's hoping that Mr. Howard has the best of luck and catches the biggest fish in the Gulf of Mexico. We are for you Fred, and don't forget to spit on your hook.

OPPORTUNITY SCHOOL RALLY

The opportunity schools of Chilton County will close on Friday of this week with a big rally in Clanton. All who have attended these schools are expected to gather at the County High School at ten o'clock. From there they will march to the courthouse where they will listen to an address by Mr. Charley West of the state department of education.

This will be a grand occasion for the old folks and it is hoped that everyone in the county who has attended an opportunity school this year will be present.

JOHNSON FAMILY HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mr. Lummie Johnson, farmer, who lives about four miles east of Clanton, and his family, were hurt in an auto accident at Lomax on Tuesday morning.

The Johnson family, accompanied by Mrs. Jim Connell, Mrs. Johnson's mother, were crossing the paved highway at Lomax in a Ford car. Their car was hit by a large Graham-Paige sedan from the District of Columbia. The crash was a severe one, resulting in the injury of every occupant of the Johnson car. Mrs. Johnson was the worst hurt. The Ford car was compeltely wrecked and the Graham-Paige was turned over, but none of its occupants were hurt.

The Johnson family and Mrs. Connell were brought to Central Alabama Hospital for treatment.

"COUNTRY FOLKS" AT HIGH SCHOOL SEPTEMBER 3RD

What promises to be a very interesting play will be given by the Hi-League of Clanton Methodist Church on September 3rd. The name of the play is "Country Folks" which is a comedy drama in three acts. It will be recalled that this same group of young people put on a play at the High School "Hunting a Husband" not many months ago, and those who saw it know that these youngsters have a decided flair for the stage and know how to give good entertainment. "Country Folks" promises to be even better.

CONTRACT LET FOR MT. PLEASANT SCHOOL

The County Board of Education has let the contract for erection of the Mt. Pleasant school building to Mr. Ed T. Emerson of Birmingham. The agreement is to have the new building completed and ready for use by October the first.

The new building will be at the same place occupied by the one that was burned a few weeks ago.

The work will begin as soon as the contractor furnishes the proper bond to the County Board.

The County Board and the people of Mt. Pleasant did not lose anything by the recent burning of the building under construction.

SAMARIA

Last Sunday was our regular preaching Sunday, and we were sure gald to have such a nice crowd out for both preaching and Sunday School. We had our baptizing Sunday afternoon at Falakto with Chestnut Creek and Maple Spring. There were 71 candidates from all the churches.

Our B. Y. P. U. met Sunday night at the regular hour, 7 o'clock. A fine and interesting program was rendered by Group II, Mrs. Boockholdt in charge. The subject was, "Loyalty to the Bible, the World's Wonder Book." The program was interesting from the beginning to the end because of the fact that every one seemed to put his very soul into the program, and if we expect to get anything out of it we have first of all got to put something into it.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Plier attended Sunday School and church here Sunday.

Mr. Julius Foshee of Fort Deposit spent Sunday afternoon with his parents. He is connected with the American Telephone Company. He left Sunday night for a new station in Florida.

We were glad to have with us last Sunday night Mrs. Nichols and children of Bessemer. They came down and attended the baptizing Sunday afternoon.

Miss Lena Vinson is visiting relatives and friends in Birmingham.

On last Friday afternoon Miss Georgia Wood entertained a number of her friends at a birthday party. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers. Games and stunts were played until a late hour. The guests were then invited into the dining room which was beautifully decorated with red and white paper and flowers. The table was centered with a large birthday cake bearing a candle for each year. The guests were served with cream and cake to carry out the color motif of the decorations.

ROBBERS BREAK IN STORE HERE

The little store of Mr. Glenn Sessions across the railroad from the cotton mill was broken into last Sunday night. Thugs went in under the house, cut a hole in the floor and carried the goods out and loaded them into a car. The tires showed that the car was very likely an old Ford cut-down with old style high pressure tires.

About fifty or sixty dollars worth of cigars, cigarettes, snuff and tobacco, and lard were taken.

Young Woman Died From Blood Poison

Blood poisoning caused from a small pimple on the face resulted in the death of Mrs. Sallie B. Terrell at the Central Alabama Hospital last Saturday night. Reports say that Mrs. Terrell mashed a small pimple on her face Sunday, August 18th. Dr. Eiland attended her and brought her to the hospital, but the poisoning could not be checked.

She was the wife of J. W. Terrell of Verbena Route 1 and was 20 years old. She is survived by her husband and two small children, one 3 years old and one 6 months old.

The body was shipped to Bolling Green, Florida, by Martin for burial, the former home of the young lady.

SCHOOL RALLY LAST FRIDAY

About 400 Opportunity School Students Had Big Time On Last Day Of School

The greatest day of the whole six weeks of opportunity schools was last Friday when about 400 of the people who had been attending the schools came to Clanton for a grand rally together. They assembled at the Chilton County High School in the morning from where they formed a line of march to the courthouse. When they got to the courthouse they found barrels of ice cold lemonade waiting to quench their thirst.

The whole body was seated in the courtroom, each school being grouped together. Each school was called on for a report, and interesting responses were made by different individuals who had attended the schools.

There was a note of keen personal interest in the talks that were made by these folks, as they related their progress in the simple matters of learning for the first time to read, write and spell. One old lady stated that she was now able to write a letter to her brother for the first time in life.

A keen battle of wits developed when every school represented insisted that its teacher was the best in the county.

The principal address of the occasion was made by Senator Chas. West, formerly of Jefferson County, now connected with the State Department of Education.

After the meeting at the courthouse the crowd returned to the High School grounds where an old fashioned dinner on the ground was greatly enjoyed.

Certificates were issued to those who have attended the opportunity schools this year. Mr. Harris will furnish us a list of all who received certificates, which will be published in the paper perhaps next week.

Can We Afford To Be Without The Three-Mill School Tax?

If Chilton County did not have the three-mill school tax, here is what we would be up against with our schools:

1. The public schools of the county would be able to operate only a little more than two months each year with the available public school funds.

2. There could not be a single high school operated in the county. There would be no Chilton County High School. Instead of the high schools at Jemison, Verbena, Maplesville, Stanton, and Isabella, these places would have only the grammar school grades running for a little over two months each year with public school funds. If they had any more it would have to be paid for out of the pockets of the patrons.

3. There could be no vocational high schools conducted in the county. The vocational high schools at Jemison and Isabella would be reduced to only the grammar school grades running a little more than two months each year on public funds. If they had any more it would have to be paid for out of the pockets of the patrons.

4. No district in the county could vote a district three-mill tax or any kind of a tax for school purposes. A district tax can be voted only when the county levies a county-wide three mill school tax.

These are startling statements, but they are vouched for by the Superintndent of Education of Chilton County.

We pass them on to our readers, and suggest that it is very important that they be given serious consideration by every voter and citizen as you think about how you shall vote in the election on September 17th. Let these facts look you squarely in the face as you read from the pen of Ignorance Drops and Ignoramus.

CLARENCE HAYES KILLED HIMSELF

Tragedy Enacted At Home West of Jemison Early Wednesday Morning

Clarence Hayes, age 44, well-known farmer of the Free Springs community west of Jemison, shot himself Wednesday morning about seven o'clock. Death was instant as the load of shot from a 20-guage shotgun plowed its way through his neck.

Coroner J. Mell Martin was at once called to the scene. When he arrived the dead body of Mr. Hayes was still in the room where he died, and had not been disturbed by anyone. Mrs. Hayes related the story of the occurrence.

She said her husband was tender of an air mail beacon light which is located near their home. He had turned off the light about daybreak and came home. She was up when he arrived, and he told her that if she was going to put up some tomatoes, she had better do it that day. Whereupon she went to the garden and began to gather the tomatoes. The little boy had not gotten out of bed, but the little girl was up eating breakfast.

The report of a shotgun brought screams from the children, and when the wife reached the house she found her husband crumpled in death on the floor.

The theory expressed by Mr. Martin after looking into the situation is that the man secured the shot gun, placed the stock against a post, the muzzle to his throat, and used a small stick to press the trigger.

Mr. Hayes is survived by his wife and a son 8 years old and a daughter 6 years old; his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Hayes, two brothers and five sisters.

The funeral and burial will be at 10 o'clock Thursday at Shady Grove near Randolph.

OPERATED ON FOR APPENDICITIS MONDAY AT NOON

Cary Robinson of Beat 16 was operated on at the Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton Monday about noon for appendicitis. He was taken severely sick Sunday afternoon while traveling in his car near Wetumpka. He came to Clanton and was given some medicine by Dr. N. S. Johnson, but his condition continued to grow worse until Monday morning the doctor said that an operation was all that would afford him any relief. Dr. Gragg operated on him just shortly after noon Monday. Late reports say that he is recovering from the operation nicely.

SINGERS TO MEET AT MAPLESVILLE

Plans Completed For Session Of The Chilton County Singing Convention

Mr. Herbert W. Lowery, president of the Chilton County (Modern) Singing Convention, says that preparations are about completed for the fall session of the convention which meets at Maplesville next Sunday. An invitation has been extended a number of prominent singers over the State and some have promised to attend. Others have not been heard from, but it is certain that there will be some singers present who are thoroughly capable of entertaining all who may choose to attend. Prof. H. C. Collins of Cairo, Ga., has agreed to come; among others who have been extended a special invitation are Prof. B. B. Beall, J. R. Baxter, Jr., Baxter Smalley and his quartet, P. B. Shaw and associates in Shelby County, Jno. M. Dye, J. A. Lesley, and the Minzo C. Jones Trio of Ensley.

The singing will be opened promptly at 10 o'clock in the high school building. There will be singing until noon, when everyone will be at leisure for an hour. At one o'clock the house will be called to order and officers for the next year elected. Mr. Lowery says that the officers to be elected are: president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and an executive committee. The election of officers will require only a short time, after which singing will be resumed and will continue until the crowd gets tired.

The Clanton Quartet will be present and prepared to render as many numbers as are asked of them.

No personal invitation has been extended the singers of Chilton County, because this is not necessary. The convention belongs to the singers of the county, and of course they will all be there to lend their help and support. So, everybody who likes good singing come to Maplesville next Sunday, September 1st, and let's have the best singing that has ever been held in Chilton County.—H. W. Lowery, President.

MAY GO TO SHANGHAI, CHINA

A recent communication from Miss Mary Farley at Nashville, Tenn., says that the General Conference of Seventh Day Adventists at Washington, D. C., is urging her to accept a call in the Far Eastern Division of the Conference at Shanghai, China. The work which Miss Farley will do if she accepts, will be stenographic work. If her physical examination proves all right, she will leave by way of California about the first of October.

Will Rebuild Negro School In Clanton

E. W. Burt, principal of the Clanton Grammar School for colored children, reports that his people are making splendid progress toward the goal of a new schoolhouse in the place of the one that was burned some months ago.

Together with the insurance money on the old building and funds that have been raised by the colored people, the principal of the school says there is now $2,300 in sight to apply on the erection of the new building.

He stated further that the colored folks have selected a committee who will call upon the white people of Clanton during the next week and give them an opportunity to help.

"We want to build a schoolhouse that will be ample for the needs of our colored children," said the principal, "and at the same time we want it to be a building that will be a credit to our town and community. We colored folks are proud of our opportunities and the opportunities of our children in Clanton, and we thank our white friends for helping us in the fine way they have done in the past. If you can help us to provide the money now for an adequate school building, we shall continue to thank you more and more."

It is expected that work on the erection of the new building will start in the next few days.

MANY HERE FOR KU KLUX PARADE

About 2,000 Visitors In Clanton In Spite of Rain and The Bad Weather

The Ku Klux Klan celebration in Clanton last Saturday night brought a great many visitors to the city. In spite of the terrific downpour of rain which came in the afternoon and continued right up to night, the folks came in great numbers. Doubtless the rain kept many away.

Notwithstanding the muddy roads and streets, the Klan parade was pulled off according to program. The white-robed figures plodded through the mud and slush and appeared to enjoy it much.

A crowd which filled the county High School auditorium to capacity gathered to hear the speaking. Dr. Earle Hotaleen, official Klan lecturer, entertained them with a speech which was received with enthusiasm. Imperial Wizard, Hiram W. Evans, who was advertised to speak did not come.

It is said that a great many Klansmen from all over middle Alabama were here.

MAN SEVERELY BURNED AT SUBSTATION IN CLANTON

A young man by the name of Maxwell, an employee of the Dixie Construction Company, was severely burned on the right hand and the entire right side of his body last Sunday at the sub-station of the Alabama Power Company in Clanton. The hand with which he took hold of the hot wire was badly cooked, and the current followed down that side and pretty badly burned that side and foot. He held a pair of pliers in his left hand and the print of them was burned in that hand.

The young man was sent to the Central Alabama Hospital where treatment is being given him and he is said to be getting along nicely.

BOY SAVES LIFE FROM SNAKE BITE

First Aid Treatment Given According To Boy Scout Teaching

Life saving methods learned while a Boy Scout in Birmingham enabled J. C. Connell, 14, of near Clanton, to give first aid treatment which is declared to have saved the life of a companion, Wallace Renfroe, 9, who was bitten by a rattlesnake while both boys were playing in the woods.

The accident took place several days ago. After the snake had sunk its fangs in the hand of the Renfroe boy, the lad started running toward home. Young Connell, however, realizing that the exercise might prove fatal to his companion, stopped him and against his will applied a tourniquet with a handkerchief, cut the wound and sucked the poison from it. He then led the other boy home where he gave a stimulant and put turpentine on the wound. After telling the boy's mother how to loosen the tourniquet every five or 10 minutes, young Connell then ran about a mile to the nearest neighbor for help. A car was obtained there and a doctor called from Clanton, 14 miles away.

The Renfroe boy is now recovering, but the physician, Dr. Arthur Johnson, of Clanton, declares there is no doubt but that the first aid treatment saved him.

J. C. is the son of Mrs. R. C. Connell, who recently moved to this section from Birmingham after the death of her husband.

Clanton persons hearing of the quick action of the Connell boy have recommended him for a Carnegie life saving medal.

JEMISON FRUIT GROWERS TO COMPLETE ORGANIZATION

All people contemplating joining the Jemison Fruit Growers Association and all interested in the organization will meet at the Jemison High School building next Saturday, August 31st at two o'clock. So, try and arrange to attend.—C. R. Foss.

JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 2

The Jemison High School will open for the fall term September 2, at 9:30 a. m. with the largest registration in the history of the school expected. The opening program will be of vital interest to both students and parents. Some few outstanding officials will have a place on the program.

Several new names will appear in the faculty. These are: Miss Leacy Newell, Coy; Miss Rebecca Echols, Tuscaloosa; Miss Edna McInnish, Prattville; Miss Iola Gerald, Thorsby; Miss McMae McNeill, Jemison. Each of these come well recommended, and with the greater portion of last year's faculty retained, a banner school year is expected.—Respectfully, J. A. Peterson.

Two Million Mark Reached By Ford

Late in October, 1927, Henry Ford numbered the first engine built for a Model A car. At that time the details concerning the new car had not yet been announced and actual displays to the public were not made until about six weeks later. In the newspapers and trade journals there was much speculation about the new car and its motor. Today, less than two years after the event described above, the company is starting toward the third million mark in production of this same engine and same car.

Production of the Model A reached its second million July 24 when Model A engine No. 2,000,000 came off the assembly line in the Motors Building at Rouge plant. Less than six months was required to complete the second million after No. 1,000,000 came off the line February 4 of this year. The first million took slightly less than fifteen months to attain, after production of the Model A was started.

The second millionth Model T was completed June 14, 1917, eighteen months and a few days after the first on December 10, 1915. The first million Model T's took more than seven years to build.

MR. MIDDLETON'S PROMOTION

The promotion of J. O. Middleton, assistant United States district attorney in Montgomery, to the Northern district of Alabama with headquarters in Birmingham is a distinct loss to the middle district where his fidelity and capability as a prosecuting attorney have won him a warm place in the hearts of those who favor proper respect for law.

Few men in the state have had wider public experience and opportunity for utilizing that experience in upholding law than has Mr. Middleton. He served as mayor of Clanton in 1904 and 1905 and then became solicitor of Chilton County. Elected to the 1907 legislature he was even in those early days an earnest advocate of prohibition and later stumped the state for the constitutional prohibition amendment. Later he served four years as assistant United States district attorney in Mobile and was brought to Montgomery in the same capacity in 1925.

His successful court record here is no doubt largely responsible for his being called to the larger field in Birmingham and while congratulations will go to him on the larger opportunity offered there will be very general regret that he is to remove from Montgomery. — Montgomery Journal.

THE ENSEMBLE IDEA

SMALL OR LARGE FARMS

Six million small manufacturing plants competing against each other would probably solve some of their problems by merging.

The six million farms of the country can not do that, say Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, in a speech before the American Institute of Cooperation.

One reason why they can not is because this country wishes to preserve its individual farms.

"The one-family farm is a valuable social unit. Its independence must be maintained," says Hyde. This is true, of course.

But here is something else interesting. Purely from a financial viewpoint alone, the United States Chamber of Commerce has been making a survey to see if large-scale farming is more successful than small-scale.

The large scale farm can make its labor specialize more, can buy and sell in large quantities to financial advantage, and if the weather would just cooperate, it could make more efficient use of machinery.

But the large-scale farm can not meet the small-scale farm in what may be called the human elements.

Its labor has no personal interest. There is no heart in the work.

When everything is weighed and analyzed, it is found that the small-scale farm makes just as much money as the large-scale, proportionately.

Hence there would seem to be no adequate reason for looking forward to a time when we would do our farming wholesale.

Farming calls for different organization methods than does industry. The only type of merging being advanced by the leaders today narrows down to membership in cooperatives. —Pittsburgh Press.

SUCH A COOLING NOISE

When there isn't a breeze stirring, all the windows in the house are up, and the evening is so sultry that one feels like a fish out of water, what can be sweeter than to hear someone somewhere in the neighborhood running the scale on a cornet?—Baxter Springs, Kanasas, Citizen.

You, too, may have a clear skin

Skin troubles—pimples, boils, eczema, and sallow complexion—are usually but symptoms of a deeper, a more dangerous trouble—a lack of the normal count of red-cells in the blood.

THOUSANDS of people have weak, impure blood—to this may be attributed pimples, boils, eczema, "run-down" systems, rheumatism and even more serious ailments.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

When you get the number of your red-blood-cells back to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, those pains usually called rheumatism, boils, pimples and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again and sleep soundly; firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong. Your nerves become steady. You are resistant to disease.

Throughout more than a hundred years S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions of people who have taken advantage of its wonderful medicinal properties. It is Nature's own blood tonic for improving the appetite, clearing the body of so-called skin troubles, and building strength and resistance to disease.

S.S.S.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

S.S.S. increases the count of red-cells in the blood. Weak, impure blood is injurious to the system, lowering resistance to disease. Rich, red blood builds and sustains the body. S.S.S. helps Nature build rich, red blood. Good blood improves the processes by which the body is nourished, promotes constructive metabolism (healthy body building) and works against infection and disease. Take S.S.S. daily at mealtime. To get full benefit you must take it regularly and over a sufficient period of time. At all Drug Stores. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Ever since the question of a revision of the tariff came up we have been treated to a regular barrage of criticism from free trade newspapers, importers and internationalists statesmen to the effect that any increase in our tariff would result in severe reprisals from Europe and the rest of the world. Any raising of rates to protect the American worker and American farmer, they have declared would create so much resentment in Europe that we would be treated to a first class trade war which would ruin our foreign commerce and cripple our prosperity.

True it is that this barrage has not been so fierce during the past few weeks as it was early in the anti-tariff campaign. Either the free traders have stopped to cool off their guns or they have gradually learned that these European threats are pure buncombe, created only by those who desire larger importations from across the seas. Our foreign trade is increasing steadily and constantly and there is no evidence that there will be a recession in the near future.

But in view of all these charges by American free traders and internationalists, it is interesting occasionally to note what the other fellow has to say about us. La Patrie, published in Montreal, recently had this to say of the United States and its tariff policy:

"No one will pretend that the economic policy in force in the United States is not a fundamental cause of the great prosperity enjoyed by our neighbors. The government of the United States first of all protects by a high tariff the domestic market for American producers, and then proceeds to encourage the export trade. Our country would gain by following this example. As Mr. Bennett stated at Revelstoke, in British Columbia, a similar policy, by favoring a vigorous expansion of employment would prevent emigration taking an immense toll each year of our population."

Here is something well said and to the point. It is true that our prosperity is due to our economic policies which are built on the cornerstone of protection to American industry. It is also to be noted that while we are prosperous and busy the countries which for one reason or another still cling to the low wage scale and cheapest methods of production are not so busy and prosperous. There must be some reason for this, and there is. It is to be found in our economic policy, which calls for protection, high wages, mass production and the creation thereby of a great home market in which it is possible for all the people who work to enjoy modern comforts and a standard of living which was undreamed of a few years ago.

Nothing is more significant than the fact that while Canada, already sparsely populated in many section, is losing by emigration, the United States is compelled to erect barriers to prevent half of Europe from coming to the United States. Perhaps Europe hates us because of our protective tariff, but we doubt it. However, even if the governments over there do not agree with our economic policies the common people must like them. Otherwise our immigration laws would be unnecessary and European quotas would not be filled so many months in advance.

The sooner the nations of the Old World realize that there is something desirable other than the cheapest sort of production, and seek to raise their own living standards to ours rather than to pull ours downward, the sooner we can lower our tariff schedules with impunity.

The Federal Reserve Board has tried to put a curb on speculation in the stock market but it could do more good if it could find a way to put a curb on political speculation at Washington.

It is said that the larder of the Graf Zeppelin was loaded with sirloin steak and Virginia ham before it left Lakehurst. We can't see why it was in such a hurry to get back home.

A matrimonial expert says that a girl's chances to marry fade after she reaches the age of twenty-five. But very few of 'em ever get that old any more.

The old fashioned politician who prided himself on the fact that he was a Republican or a Democrat, has been succeeded by the fellow who tries to make the people think he is bigger than his party, proving at least that he has no sense of proportion.

The modern girl can drive a motor car seventy miles an hour and swim the English Channel, but she still screams when she sees a mouse crossing the parlor floor.

The Democrats claim they will sweep Virginia this fall but the significant thing is that they have been put to the necessity of making claims.

IS THERE ANY MEANING IN THESE POLITICAL INCIDENTS?

W. L. Lee, Houston County Attorney, who is reported to have supported Hoover in the last election, has been elected chairman of the Houston County Democratic Executive Committee. Lee is said to have received every vote cast by members of the committee.

So far every Al Smith Democrat who has been mentioned as a candidate for Governor of Alabama has backed plum out of the suggestion.

Then what ground is there for the question: What will the Smith Democrats in Alabama do with the bolters?

UNCLE SAM TO JOHN BULL

As we understand it, Uncle Sam, through President Hoover, is saying to John Bull, in the person of Prime Minister MacDonald, in effect:

"1. We Americans believe you Britishers agree that naval parity between the two countries is reasonable. God forbid we should ever think of war between the two English-speaking nations. But unhappily there may be wars in the future and we regard our foreign trade as so important to us that it is only fair that we should be consulted as to the rules under which neutrals may carry on their trade in the event of war. Human nature being what it is, we feel that the decision should not be left exclusively to John Bull as it would be if he were master of the seas.

"2. There is no question, of course, that at present you have outbuilt us on cruisers. You have fourteen of about 10,000 tons and forty smaller ones, and you are building seven more of 10,000 tons or slightly less. We have ten of 7,500 tons and are building eight of 10,000 tons, while we have fifteen additional 10,000 ton cruisers authorized. But we do not greatly stress these precise figures, for we hope to find some rough and ready measure of approximate equality that we can agree to, without carrying out both our present naval programs.

"In order that the forthcoming conference shall be held in the proper atmosphere, you have ordered work suspended on two cruisers, and we have held up three. Not but that we may have to go ahead and build these three and more eventually. But we want to show the sincerity of our desrie to keep naval building at a minimum by stopping additional construction until perhaps the conference rules that we should go ahead in order to establish the parity we both agree to. We do not want to be engaged in new building, not matter how justified we may think it is, while the conference is pending or in progress, because we believe a cessation of building will help the conference to carry out its pacific purposes.

"We hope, John, you understand us and that you can keep the die-hard sea dogs of the admiralty from barking too loudly when the conference is in session. For we believe that the great mass of the people of both our countries are anxious to do something substantial for international good will and for the limiting of armaments."—Kansas City Times.

Farmers are busy this week picking cotton.

Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Smith and Mr. Ocie Hutson attended the revival at Mt. Springs Saturday.

Rev. A. C. Nelson and family returned home Saturday afternoon from Mt. Springs where he has been conducting a revival. He reports a good meeting, thirteen baptized and four by letter added to the church, during the revival. There was much interest taken in the services. They came from Clanton, Lomax, Walnut Creek, Refuge, Elmore County and other places to attend these services. Our pastor left again Saturday afternoon for Eclectic to fill his regular appointment at Union church. On his return Saturday afternoon he reported two added to the Eclectic church during the services.

Rev. J. E. Each of Thorsby passed through Coopers Sunday en route to Mt. Creek Union Church.

There is much sickness in our community. Mrs. A. Cox, Mr. Roling Bryant, Miss Ludelia Bryant and Miss Ethel Griffin are all in the hospital this week. They have all been operated on for appendicitis. We hope them a speedy recovery.

Mr. T. M. Smith of Wadley, Ala., visited his brother, Mr. I. L. Smith, Saturday.

Our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. N. O. Griffith, requests all in the community to meet him at the church next Sunday at 9:30 a. m. for Sunday school.

Mr. Walter Giles and Mr. Guy Williamson of Mt. Springs accompanied by Miss Lorena Primm of Thorsby motored to East View Sunday afternoon.

Mr. J. A. Dobbs was in Clanton on business Saturday.

The Union-Banner is $1.50 a year.

Several herds of the best trained elephants in captivity will make their appearances with John Robinson's Circus, when this pioneer show comes to this community for afternoon and night performances within the next few days. Bert Noyes, master elephant trainer, has spent many months working on the "bulls" and claims to have routines that vary from those offered in the past.

John Robinson's herds will be worked in the ring by the Misses Stella Cronin, Madge Fuller and Alice Anderson, three girls that are acknowledged as the best feminine trainers in the business. These young ladies will put the ponderous pachyderms through the newest dances, including the Black Bottom as well as the latest Spanish steps.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 4TH.

FROM OLD IGNORAMUS

Dear Editor:

I noticed in The Union-Banner that there will be a special election held in Chilton County on the 17th day of September, 1929, for the purpose of determining whether or not a special tax shall be levied and collected annually at the rate of thirty cents on each one hundred dollars worth of taxable property, and continuing for a period of ten years.

I also noticed in The Birmingham Post of August the 16th that Gov. Graves in an address delivered at the organization meeting of a state association of county educational boards recalling his campaign pledge to hitch the big mules to the wagon. Gov. Graves told the school officials that the large interests are now pulling a large part of the states financial load. If you do not unhitch the big mules, he said, you can have sufficient revenue for public education, public health and other state activities.

If Gov. Graves statement is true why should we littles mules hitch ourselves to the tax wagon and heap taxes on ourselves when it is not necessary. Don't you think we old farmers are over burdened with taxes and revenue? What is our school officials salary compared with the old farmers. Can the old farmer meet his obligations and continue to vote burdens on himself? I say he can not. Many of them are now in a condition where they can not meet their present obligations. God bless the old farmer. His road is a hard one. He has to splunge out in the big dews, get wet as a drowned rat and then as the sun comes up and sends his hot rays down upon him he continues dripping wet with sweat. But God said cursed is the ground for thy sake, in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life. Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee, and thou shalt eat the herb of the field in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread. So we see we are getting just what God said we would get.

No wonder so many people are leaving the farms and seeking other vocations of life. Such as teachers, officials, bosses, and rulers. Dear old farmer you had better look out for your welfare as does others who live out of the big dews and hot sun and wear their clean and dry garments and draw a good salary.—Old Ignoramus.

An international convention of women representing 24 countries met in Berlin, Germany, in August to oppose all protective legislation for women. Laws limiting them to an eight-hour day, and forbidding their employment at night, the delegates averred, have for their real purpose the giving of an advantage over them to men.

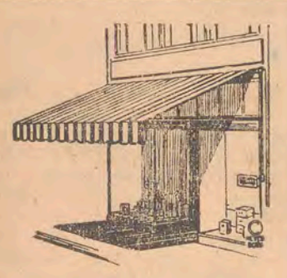
LETTERS FROM STUDENTS OF OPPORTUNITY SCHOOLS

Below we publish a few more of the letters which have been written by people who attended the opportunity schools of Chilton County this year. There are yet more of these letters, and they will be published as fast as we can give space to them.

Dear Mr. Harris:—I will write you a few lines about our school. We have had a good school. I have been coming about all the time. I have learned mighty well. I hope we can have another school here next summer. We have a mighty good teacher and I think all have done well for the time we went to school.—J. F. Gilliland, Clanton, Ala.

Dear Mr. Harris:—In my letters from time to time I trust that you have seen that my writing has improved. I write you each day so that I may not get out of practice. We are going to keep up the good work.—R. B. Gilliland.

Dear Mr. Harris:—I am attending one of the opportunity schools for the first time this summer. I could not write my name when I started. Now I am able to write letters and read writing. Have also learned to spell, too. I am real proud I have learned to do these things for myself. Life will be much more pleasant to me, because I can read and learn things that I never would have known if I had not gone to this school. Those who have not taken advantage of these schools this summer surely have missed a golden opportunity. I am grateful to all who helped in making the schools possible, and hope we shall have them every summer.—Mrs. Mary Ann Dennis.



Dear Mr. Harris:—I am learning to read and write. The opportunity school has been very helpful to me. I wish to thank you.—Your friend, Jasper Edwards.

Dear Mr. Harris:—I am having a good time going to the adult school at Shoults this summer. The ones who are not coming do not know what they are missing. First, we learn something new. Next we have a good time. If you don't believe we play, then just come and see. Then you would not say "Old Folks School." I want it called opportunity school, for the opportunity is great. We want to plan another school for next summer, and maybe the ones who haven't attended this one will come. Miss Johnson is our teacher.—Yours truly, S. C. Sewell.

HOW TO SELECT STALK FOR NATIONAL COTTON SHOW

ABILITY, or at least indications of ability, to produce large amounts of a quality product, is the basis of award at all agricultural fairs. This is true whether the entries are dairy cows, swine, chickens or field crops.

Heavy production of quality cotton should be the ambition of all cotton growers. The One-Stalk Cotton Show to be held under the auspices of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, and The National Fertilizer Association, in connection with the Mid-South Fair at Memphis, the Southeastern Fair at Atlanta, and the State Fair of Texas at Dallas, was inaugurated to stimulate interest in economic production of better cotton. Prizes totalling several thousand dollars are being offered.

In judging the single stalks at the show, a score-card which has been prepared by some of the leading cotton authorities in the South will be used. This score-card has been carefully prepared in order to give proper weight to the various plant characters. Actual judging will be done by competent authorities from each section.

According to the score-card, a perfect plant would secure 100 points total score. Since productivity of the cotton stalk is probably of greatest single importance, production, as measured by the amount of seed cotton on the plant, is given a possible 35 points. Thus heavily fruited stalks would secure a high rating under production.

A possible 25 points has been allotted to lint. Percentage of lint in seed cotton, length, character and uniformity, strength and color, are all factors that will be considered in studying the lint. The plant, as a whole, has been given a possible 20 points. Symmetry of form, amount of wood in proportion to fruit, character of branches, and maturity, are considered in studying the plant unit.

Character of bolls has been allotted a possible 12 points. Size of bolls will be considered and well opened bolls are desirable, although a certain amount of storm resistance is also to be desired.

Seed has been allotted a possible 5 points. Plump, heavy seed, uniform in size and color, are desired.

Freedom from disease has been given a possible 3 points, making a total of 100 points.

Any farmer, whether landlord or tenant, white or colored, or any one member of his family, will be allowed to enter a single stalk for competition. Only one stalk may be shown from each farm unit.

The stalks exhibited must be grown in 1929.

Stalks must come from a field where at least one acre of cotton was grown in 1929. However, any spacing, fertilization, protection or cultural practice may be used.

Stalks shown must contain the cotton that grew on the stalk. Picking and refilling will not be permitted.

Branches must not be cut from stalks exhibited. All leaves must be removed.

Exhibitors need not necessarily accompany exhibits, but may ship same, charges prepaid, to the National One-Stalk Cotton Show, in care of the fair in their districts. Entrants living in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida should enroll by sending their names and address to The National Cotton Show, Atlanta, Ga.; those in Oklahoma and Texas to The National Cotton Show, Dallas, Texas; and those in Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri and Kentucky to The National Cotton Show, Memphis, Tenn.

The premiums for the best single cotton stalks include $1,000 as total prize, including sectional award, for the best stalk of cotton in the South. Premiums at the three sectional fairs at Atlanta, Memphis and Dallas follow: first $500 at each fair, second $300 each, third $200 each, fourth $100 each, fifth $50 each, sixth to tenth inclusive $25 each, eleventh to twentieth $10 each.

AUBURN TO OPEN SEPT. 9TH

Auburn, Ala., August 26.—Registration of students for the 1929-30 session of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, will begin on September 9 which will mark the beginning of the session. For two days, September 9 and 10, registration will continue and entrance examinations will be given. From September 9 to 12 there will be special instruction and registration for freshmen.

These announcements are made by President Bradford Knapp and recorded in the catalogue of the institution, copies of which have been mailed throughout Alabama and many other states. Class work for upper-classmen will begin on September 11 while September 13 and 14 are named as days for the assignment of freshman work. Special Sunday convocation will be held September 15 and regular class work for freshmen will begin Monday following.

During the summer months preparations have been made at Auburn for the reception of students who will attend the regular session of college. On returning old students will observe many changes. Throughout the institution thre is evidence of expansion to meet the increasing demands for educational opportunities such as are offered by Auburn.

The catalogue contains a full outline and statement about all subjects as well as a historical sketch of the institution, this being a new feature. President Knapp has announced that new courses are being offered in every division of the institution. The new course in textile engineering is expected to attract a large number of students. A music department has been added. The course in applied art will be strengthened and numerous other additions made. Indications point to a big enrollment and to a splendid year at Auburn.

Meantime, practically all those who graduated this year have gone into attractive positions and are now on the road to positions of responsibility and leadership in education, in industry, in agriculture, and in the professions.

ALABAMA RANKS AT TOP IN RESOURCES

Auburn, Ala., August 26.—James L. Davidson, secretary of the Alabama Institute of Mining, Birmingham, told members of the American Poultry Science Association at a meeting here that Alabama is outstanding in natural resources, in climate, in education, and in opportunities. He declared that the State is first in stability and dependability of workmen, in suitability of soil for diversified farming, ability to produce all kinds of building material and supplies, in deposits for making iron and steel, and in production of brown ore.

Continuing he said, "We are second in the production of graphite, third in the production of iron bearing ore, third in the production of coke, third in the production of yellow pine, and fourth in the production of pig iron and by-products. We are sixth in the production of steel, and seventh in the production of both coal and lime.

"Alabama also has stupendous deposits of white and colored marble, of excellent quality; kaolin for pottery, and material for refractory products; asbestos and mica for insulation, sand for glass making, metallurgical and building operations; as well as beautifully tinted sandstones for artistic architecture; beauxite for chemical processes and the manufacture of aluminums; barite for filler material and X-ray laboratories; and mineral waters to preserve the health and heal the sick.

"Alabama has coal resources of 69,000,000,000 tons which is estimated to be enough to last—at the present rate of consumption—ten centuries, or probably until the millennium."

He told them that Alabama spends a greater portion of her revenue for educational purposes than any other state and that Alabama has the lowest tax rate of any state.

To prevent spread of the Mediterranean fruit fly, the Secretary of the Navy has prohibited all navy vessels likely to touch the United States ports of the southeastern states and the West Coast from taking on Florida fruits or vegetables that are subject to the pest.

Corruption in the federal prohibition service, declares Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman, has been reduced by at least 90 per cent in the last two years, which is attributed to placing of dry officials and agents under Civil Service and increased salaries.

FARMERS URGED TO ACT COOPERATIVELY

To aid cotton farmers of Alabama in receiving maximum service from the farm relief bill and Federal Farm Board in marketing their 1929 cotton crop the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, cotton association and county farm bureaus of the state are making plans to take a prominent part in the nation-wide farm bureau membership campaign which will be conducted during September.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation made this announcement recently when he returned to Montgomery from Chicago, where he conferred with the officials of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and Washington where he conferred with members of the Federal Farm Board regarding the campaign. He said many Alabama counties already have made public their plans to conduct membership campaigns during the month. Others are getting an early start and will conduct their campaign during the latter part of August.

"Organized farmers of the state and the South are striving for better merchandising in selling products of the farm. One of these products is cotton," Mr. O'Neal said. "We know from experience that a 16,000,000 bale cotton crop actually brings about $400,000,000 les than 14,000,000 bales; and again 13,000,000 bales yield $300,000,000 more than the larger crop of 14,000,000 bales." He thinks that something should be done to correct this, as there has not been a surplus of cotton over a period of five years within the last 30 years.

Mr. O'Neal points out that assembling, financing, warehousing, storing, insuring and finally merchandising of cotton can not be done satisfactorily by individuals but must be done cooperatively if the above conditions are ever remedied.

Members as Foundation

"Membership is the foundation upon which our ogranization is built and there is no substitute for membership in a farm organization if it is to live and grow and have power to accomplish the tasks it undertakes," Mr. O'Neal said. "It is for this reason and for the fact that the aid which cotton growers will receive from the Federal Farm Board must come through organization that officials of the Alabama Farm Bureau are anxious that Alabama play a leading part in the membership campaign which will be conducted thruout the nation during September."

Speaking direct to the farmers of Alabama, Mr. O'Neal in a letter quoted Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, when he said:

"Within the last few months foundations have been laid for a national agricultural policy bringing farming into the American protective scheme. Adoption of this policy has removed the last obstacle from the path of organized progress.

"During the last ten years vast changes have been wrought within agriculture; production, financing, distribution, all have been altered and improved.

"Agriculture, through organized effort, can add from four to five billion dollars to its annual income. Translated in terms of individual farm families, this means $750 a year for every family now living on a farm in the United States.

"This increase can be added now if the program of organized agriculture is made effective. To make this program effective, farm people must be further organized. Satisfactory progress is dependent on a majority of farm people thinking and acting in unison."

How to Raise Poultry

LET'S TALK TURKEY

Nobody knows who started that figure of speech, "talking turkey," to indicate getting down to essentials, or "down to brass tacks" as many people say. Whoever started it, it is certainl an appropriate phrase to use in discussing the exceptionally profitable but relatively neglected industry of turkey raising. Here is a business in which the demand has always exceeded the supply and yet, ever since 1890 the supply has been steadily dwindling. Prices have not dwindled, however. On the contrary, they have consistently increased from year to year.

What a wonderful opening for wide-awake farmers to step in and make some real money! Yet, with but few exceptions, they turn deaf ears to the loud knocks of opportunity. Why?

Unquestionably the one great drawback has been the old belief that turkeys could not be raised unless given the run of unlimited range. They have always been considered wild things that would not live in confinement. So, as changing conditions in various localities made greater restriction of range necessary the raising of turkeys was automatically curtailed or abandoned. Not until very recently did it ever occur to anyone to question the old theory that turkeys needed all outdoors for their feeding and exercising grounds. Now we know that the old policy of unrestricted range has been one of the most serious factors in the hight death rate among young turkeys.

This method caused chickens nad turkeys to be brought together on the same grounds. In this way the deadly blackhead disease was transmitted to the young poults through the cecum worm (pin worm) of the chickens, now recognized as a host for blackhead germs. Blackhead is truly the turkey raiser's most dreaded enemy, for unless precautions are taken to keep the disease from getting started among the growing poults, a heavy loss is sure to be had. It is easy to see, therefore why the plan recently adopted by raising turkeys in confinement has proved so highly successful. It is quite definitely established now that turkeys can be raised in much the same manner as chickens and with far better results than were obtained by the old-fashioned methods once held all but sacred.

Another old-time theory that has lately been pretty thoroughly exploded is the belief that only natural hatching and brooding methods were practicable in turkey raising. It has been clearly established that poults hatched in incubators and reared in brooders are much less likely to succumb to the scourge of blackhead and other diseases which prey on their kind, than those hatched and brooded under hens. The reason for this is that naturally hatched poults acquire the germs of blackhead from older fowls just as they do from chickens where permitted to run with them. Confine them so they can not get out to run with chickens or with old turkeys, or to run on ground where chickens have been for at least one year.

Three other essential planks in the turkey raiser's platform must be: sound feed, clean water and clean ranges. For those who still adhere to the old ideas about turkeys, this must sound like rank heresy. Yet the truth of such simple doctrines is vouched for by the foremost authorities on turkey raising in the country.

If you can raise chickens successfully, you can raise turkeys with equal success, only don't mix them. The methods of incubation, brooding and feeding will with but slight adaptation enable you to gain equally as good results with turkeys, and with a greater reward for your efforts. The profits so fondly imagined by those who would like to try turkey raising are there for you if you follow right methods. National custom calls for thre great festivals every year when nothing but turkey will really suffice as the principal item on the menu and it would not be impossible to educate the public into a still wider use of this delicious meat if it were always possible to supply the present demand.

All readers of this article are welcome to any further help I can give them. I shall be glad to hear from those who are truly interested and who really want to "TALK TURKEY" to a purpose. Address any inquiries or comments to me in care of the editor of The Union-Banner.

An Explanation of How the Three-Mill Tax Affects the Schools of the County

From conversations with various voters of the county it appears that many of the people of this county do not realize the full importance of the election that has been called for Sepember 17 to vote on the question of whether or not a tax of three mills shall be voted on the property of this county for school purposes. A tax of this amount was voted in 1919 and has been collected every year since then, but since it runs for a period of only ten years it will expire this year and will not be collectable after this tax year, unless a majority vote in favor of the proposed tax on September 17.

The voters should know, and if they do not know, they should inform themselves at first hand, just what advantage the tax has given during the past ten years.

Prior to the voting of any 3-mill county tax the school term, payable in public money, was less than four months. (In some communities a longer term was obtained by local public subscription.) Since that time the term has been increased to an average above 7 months and the salaries of teahcers have been increased to an amount that allow for the employment of a better trained and more efficient teaching force. New buildings have been erected in all portions of the county, partly by local subscription, partly by state aid, and partly by liberal appropriations by the County Board of Education from the three-mill tax and the district three-mill tax. Without these taxes the county could not have made any appropriations, less state aid could have been obtained, and many of the modern buildings would have been smaller or not built at all. The increase in the length of term, the increase in teachers salaries, and the provision of fairly adequate school buildings have made possible the greatest advancement in the school system: the employment of a more efficient and highly trained teaching force, so that now teachers with less than normal graduation are the exception.

There is no use to argue on where most of the money comes from, or who pays the great bulk. In any community of the county you will find that nearly every one of the people who pay the highest tax is in favor of the proposed tax, which will not raise the amount heretofore paid one cent, but merely retain the tax that has been in force since 1919. It is better for each individual to consider just what kind of school he wishes in his community, and to consider the question only from the point of the advancement and opportunity of the school children of the county, and if that individual wishes to do the best thing for the children of the county he will vote "yes" on September 17. Certainly if the voter is not a tax payer on assessed personal or real propedty, he should allow the person who does pay taxes and who favors the school taxes to tax himself for the advancement of the schools. And certainly if he pays taxes, be it a small or a large amount, the privileges that are obtained from a longer school term and better teachers and buildings that these taxes insure, should be carefully weighed against the small or large amount of taxes proposed to be continued during the next ten years and which are payed by the individuals, business firms, and corporations.

There is in this county now a three mill county tax (Which is proposed to be continued) and which expires on this the tenth year. Under the school laws of the State of Alabama it is provided that after such a tax has been voted in any county, then the separate school districts of the county may vote a three mill district tax, and such a tax has been in force in nearly every district in this county. There is not any county in the state but which has the three mill county tax; there are very few districts in any county but have the district tax. Any doubting Thomas who questions the effect of such taxes in improving educational conditions should visit a district that has not the tax, and then visit one that has, and the difference will appear even to the person most unacquainted with school systems.

From the above it is shown that no district can levy a district tax until the county tax has been levied. If this election fails to show a majority in favor of the tax, then district A, in which is located Clanton and much of the taxable wealth of the county, and several of the larger schools, cannot under the law vote a three-mill district tax. (District A includes Jackson's Chapel, Cross Roads, Pinedale, Cane Creek, Union Point, Collin's Chapel, Mineral Springs, Mullins, Flint Hill, Lock Twelve, Clanton, Thorsby, Jemison, Chilton County High School.) District B in the same event could not vote a three-mill district tax, if this three-mill county tax election fails to show a majority in favor of the tax. (District B includes Thomas Junior High School. Shiloh, Enterprise, Verbena, Morganville, Cooper, Mitchell Dam, Corinth, Mt. Pisgah, Concord, Providence, Pleasant Grove, the same is true for the other districts.

On page two of the annual report of the County superintendent of Education for 1928 (Available at the office of the Superintendent) is given a financial report of the sources of money for education in this county. Unelss this three-mill county school tax is continued and the districts are permmitted to continue the three-mill district tax, the following amounts will be cut off from the school revenues:

County tax	$43,316.81
District taxes	42,860.12
Bonus	3,000.00
Revolving fund	1,269.23
Vocational aid	6,466.49
County High School	4,500.00
Slater fund	450.00
Attendance fund	7,956.46
Rural High School fund	5,536,34
Total	115,355.45

There will be left for the operation of the schools revenue from sources as follows:

Poll taxes	$9,298.50
State Apportionment	37,233.45
Library fund	160.00
Balance General fund	3,208.71
Total	49,900.66

It must be observed that 1928 was the heaviest poll tax year in the history of the county. The average over a four year period is less than $3,000.00 which reduces the 49,900.66 to at least 43,900 for the average yeat.

Other items appearing on this page, such as General Educational Board, Land redemption, Commissioners Court appropriation, transfers, erection and equipment funds, matriculation fees, gifts, refunds, warrants, make up the other part of the $196,238.47 shown in the report, but are special funds specifcially designated for certain purposes and are not to be counted in the funds for teachers salaries.

Of the funds that will be lost if this election is not carried, the bonus, revolving fund, attendance fund, and rural high school fund, are lost because the law of the state provides that they are to be given by the state to counties only after the three mill county tax has been levied and after the district tax for three mills has been levied. (If a district tax is not levied in some districts, that portion of the attendance fund and of the rural high school fund is deducted from the state's help to the county.

With the above vast reduction in revenue in case this election is lost to the schools, Chilton County can have no public high schools, and only a two months public elementary term.

SCRUB BULL IS HALED TO COURT

Placed on Trial for Hindering Development and Prosperity of Dairy Industry.

Indicted for robbery, larceny, and a few other such charges, Scrub Bull went on trial for his life at Laurel, Mississippi, recently. It seems that for some time people had suspicions that Mr. Bull was hindering the right and lawful development of the dairy industry, thereby "maliciously and wilfully lowering production and decreasing profits in the dairy business," says the Bulletin of the American Bankers Association Agricultural Commission in commenting on the case.

This, it says, was the first trial of its kind ever held in that section and was attended by several hundred people. The jury, representing every vocation within the boundaries of the Laurel trade territory, rendered a unanimous verdict of "guilty." The death sentence was pronounced, "but during the night, before the sentence could be carried out, friends of the convict secretly spirited him away and he has not been seen since."

The arraignment came during the Milk Products Show sponsored by the banks of Laurel. People attending the show had the opportunity of also attending the bull's "trial" and went away firmly convinced of the seriousness of lax and out-of-date methods in the pursuit of dairying. The purposes of both the Milk Products Show and the trial were threefold, namely: to develop public sentiment for more and better Jerseys; to foster a more cooperative spirit for dairying and livestock growing, and to promote tick eradication.

The banks of Laurel entered into a cooperative arrangement in their efforts for fostering agricultural development and successful farming in the community, offering $2,165 as premiums to the outstanding farm workers throughout the territory during 1929. An instructive booklet has been issued, showing the agricultural activity of the banks, together with announcements of contests for farmers, exhibits in the bank lobbies and prizes offered.

As An Agriculturalist Sees Farm Board's Job

The new Agricultural Marketing Act approaches farm relief from a materially different point of view from that of former bills before Congress in recent years, says Dean H. L. Russell of Wisconsin University College of Agriculture in the American Bankers Association Journal.

"It contains a new idea, fraught with the greatest possibilities—the organization of a Federal Farm Board," he says. "It has been possible for farm cooperatives to borrow from Federal-aided institutions before, and at a materially lower rate than city business men had to pay for working capital, but this is the first set-up made by the government in which a commission has been carefully chosen to give undivided attention to an effort to solve the problems of a farm group.

"It is hard to conceive of a higher degree of responsibility than must be assumed by this commission. No board ever created by congressional action has been clothed with as wide plenary powers. It is authorized not only to advise but to execute, to plan and put its plans into effective action, to buy and hold, to dump, to dip into the Federal treasury to accomplish its ends with what would be almost unlimited resources to any private commercial concern. The board's only job is to succeed, and no governmental agency even during the war time emergency had a wider latitude.

"Many will think the farm relief program will be universally applicable to the individual land owner or operator. Such procedure is far from the case. Aid is to be extended through cooperative organizations by making it possible for such groups to obtain cash advances to hold crops so as to permit of more orderly marketing.

"While the primary relation is with cooperatives, the individual or unorganized farmer will also profit by the activities of his organized fellows. If a stabilized program of merchandising is able to eliminate the surpluses that exert such depressing influence on prices the general price relation should be improved. If this occurs the individual farmer should also benefit.

"It is here the government is proposing a novel attempt in economics. Through stabilization corporations for each commodity it is proposed to make possible the handling of the surplus so as to lessen its disturbing influence on prices. With non-perishable products such a program is, of course, conceivably possible, but one wonders what would happen if a stabilization corporation had to handle a perishable crop in great quantities.

"Is it going to be possible for a stabilization corporation to stabilize? It would be one thing if it had merely to stabilize the American situation, but often that situation is complicated with world conditions. Perhaps the very fact that such a stabilization corporation is in position to function may have a steadying effect on the market.

"Markets respond to psychological stimuli as do individuals. The very fact that the government has now definitely stepped into the breach with all of its resources available to make the new plan work will exert undoubtedly a strong stabilizing effect.

"It would be presumptuous to forecast what the ultimate effect of the new act will be. It can, however, be definitely stated that in the present plan much of the philosophy that had been so drastically criticized as economically unsound has been eliminated. The existing plan is worth trying. It will undoubtedly cost the Federal treasury no inconsiderable amounts of money, but if it produces the hoped-for result it will have been well worth while."

BANKING FINDS THE WAY TO SAFER ERA

By FRANK W. SIMMONDS, American Bankers Association

In considering the banking situation throughout the country, the fact should be kept in mind that while one bank in ten failed during the past eight years, it is far more important that nine banks out of ten, operating in the same general field, serving the same communities and meeting almost identically the same problems, weathered the economic storm of readjustment successfully. This achievement cannot be ascribed to any element of luck, but rather to consistent adherence to sound banking principles and profitable practices. Through worthy and efficient management they met the issues and problems confronting them, squarely and successfully.

Banking is regarded as the keystone of our entire business structure, hence bank failures are rightly regarded as intolerable public calamities that must absolutely be prevented. The three major objectives of all inter-bank organizations, whether local, county, district, state or national, are to make banking safer for all concerned and, through increased efficiency in bank management and supervision, to lessen or eliminate all forms of losses so that greater rewards may accrue to banking and better service to the public. There is definite evidence throughout the country of a strong and growing spirit of cooperation among bankers and banking organizations, which is resulting more and more in strengthening the work of all.

Clearinghouse associations among banks in city, county or district groups undoubtedly constitute the chief line of defense against bad banking practices. They have demonstrated that they are the principal factor in bringing about reformation in banking regulations, improvements in banking methods and the observance of sound banking principles. For many years the primary purpose of a clearinghouse association was the clearance of checks, but today it is the clearance of banking ideas and the solution of banking problems. Clearinghouses supply the local machinery essential for setting up and putting in practice necessary standards and uniformities. There are now 435 clearinghouse associations in cities, towns, counties and groups of counties in the United States.

Men today are more intelligently group-minded than ever before. Banking is combining the best elements of competition with sound group action. By virtue of this combination, individual thought has much wider possibilities of expression. In general, group action has not stifled but has stimulated individual thinking and initiative. Better inter-bank organization and relationships afforded by clearing houses would have undoubtedly saved many institutions that have suffered failure in the past. The clearinghouse activities of the American Bankers Association are conducted for the purpose of encouraging ever widening cooperation along fundamental principles and practices among banks through clearinghouse associations. Bankers in every city, county or district can, through the agency of a clearinghouse, promote better, safer and more profitable banking and also serve their communities better.

There never was a time when successful bankers were so alert to the value of team work for putting the entire banking structure in prime condition. Sound bank management is the order of the day. Constructive cooperation is more than a sentiment, it is an economic necessity, a matter of enlightened self-interest, and successful bankers more and more are utilizing the agency of constructive group action in developing and establishing necessary standards and uniformities in banking practices. Each year banking is becoming more of a science and attaining higher professional standards.

Prof. H. A. Harris, who had charge of the organiation and conduct of the Opportunity Schools, makes the following statement for publication relative to the schools this week:

"The Opportunity Schools of Chilton County are now finished for this year, and we are glad to say that they were an outstanding success in every way. We feel that a great many of the people of the county have been benefitted by the schools.

"We desire to express our thanks to every person who in any way helped to make the schools possible, and then especially are we thankful to the many people who co-operated to make them a success.

"Especially do we feel that we should thank the County Board of Education for the interest they showed in the schools. Without the appropriations that were made by the board we would not have been able to have the schools. We believe that the money thus appropriated has produced more good to our people than the same amount could have done in any other way.

"During the progress of the schools Dr. Gragg, Dr. Marcus, Mr. Percy Pitts, Mr. H. G. Boyd, Mr. J. Z. Mims, Mr. C. R. Foss rendered special assistance by visiting the schools and speaking on various subjects. For their kindness and help we are duly thankful.

"Next week we will have the summary report of the entire session of each school completed, and we will publish same in the county papers in order that the public may know of what has been accomplished.

"In conclusion I wish to say that we hope that our county will have a chance at more Opportunity Schools again next year."—H. A. Harris.

COMMISSIONERS WENT TO MONTGOMERY WEDNESDAY

Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds, and members of the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, went down to the State Capitol Wednesday to confer with State Officials on the matter of complying with the new law relative to administration of the almshouse business of the County.

There has developed some difference of opinion as to how the new regulations will apply. When the matter has been finally decided, it may result in a very radical change in the manner and methods of handling paupers.

The Clean-Up

VOL. I. THURSDAY, AUGUST 29, 1929 NO. 8

Why does a Chicken cross the road? In these days of Automobiles it does not.

School days have arrived again, and mothers all over Chilton County are faced with the problem of getting the school clothes all ready for the boys and girls. Let us suggest that you give us a chance to help you by cleaning any old clothes that were left over from last season. You'll be surprised at how new they will look, and it's much more economical.

She: When a man who bores me terribly asks me where I live, I always tell him I live in the suburbs.
He: How clever; and where do you live?
She: In the Suburbs.

The greatest men are the greatest servants; and the most successful business places give the best service. That's why we make Service one of the foremost principles in our business. We invite you to give our service a trial.

You may feel safe about your clothes when you send them to us. It is our business to know all kinds of fabrics and the treatment which they will have to have to be properly cleaned. Then, too, we always have a wide range of cleaning compounds and equipment so that we can handle any fabric without danger of injury.

In Persia the Father sells his daughter in marriage. He usually gets about 100 sheep. Here in America all he gets is your goat.

Young Man: It's funny, but I really throw myself full into anything that I undertake.
Pretty Girl: (sweetly) How splendid. Why don't you dig a well?

Another way to open a bottle of milk without squirting the contents all over you is to drop it on the floor. We've just tried it and it works.

It won't be long now before summer will soon be over and we will be looking for some of that hot weather we've been kicking about.

How about some of those heavy winter garments that you will be looking for some of these mornings before long. Let us get them ready for you. The cost will be little compared with the improvement in the looks.

Will You Believe Your Own Eyes?

When my competitors start to knocking me, I know that I am making progress. That is what has begun to happen. I have heard one of my competitors in the last week who said that my stuff is second hand and not up to standard. That shows that he is ignorant of the facts, or wilfully misrepresenting me and my goods.

I say that my goods are new and up-to-date, standard high quality merchandise in every respect. Now, I ask that you who read this come and let me show you what I have in my store. Then I will be willing for you to judge for yourself whether you shall believe what I say and what you see with your own eyes—or what you hear my competitors say in knocking me.

Remember, Sam Jones said, it is the hit dog that hollers. I say come to Fox's and get your goods at the right price. My expenses are low and everybody knows that I am satisfied with small profits. I have anything you need on the farm or in the home.

I am handling the Apex Radio, the latest up-to-date machine on the market. This machine will give you more service for the dollar invested than any radio made. Come and hear it in our store.

CANE CREEK

Last Sunday afternoon was our regular singing evening. The crowd was small, but the singing was good just the same. The house was called to order by the chairman, Mr. E. C. Traywick, after singing one song prayer was offered by Mr. J. N. Miner. A committe was oppointed composed of Royal Coggins, Floyd Little and J. T. Weldon, who arranged the program for the afternoon. Those who sung three songs each were Mr. E. C. Traywick, O. R. Robinson, Rev. Malcolm Lockhart, Lillie Mae Weldon, Floyd Little, Delene Lambert, Vergie Giles, Royal Coggins, Annie Cleckley and Roy Jackson. Organists were Mrs. Annie Robinson, Mrs. Lelia Gentry, Miss Vergie Giles and Lillie Mae Weldon. We had singers from Refuge and Mt. Springs who helped us sing. We were glad to have them with us and invite them back every fourth Sunday afternoon, as it is our regular singing evening.

There will be Sunday School here next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock and preaching at 11 o'clock by Rev. Malcolm Lockhart. He is a home boy who we are proud to have with us and invite all who can to come and hear him for I am sure he will tell us something good.

Next Sunday afternoon there will be a singing at Mt. Springs. Let's all go over there and help them, and by helping one another we can make our singings much better.

Remember the second Sunday and Saturday before is our regular days for preaching.

Visitors are always welcome to our services.—Secretary.

CHESTNUT CREEK

I want to urge every member of Chestnut Creek Church to be sure and be present at Conference Saturday, August 31, for the purpose of electing a pastor for another year, as we all know it is for every member to vote and not just the deacons, or the Sunday school, but everybody has a right to vote. So be here. Our church is improving nicely. The Sunday school is increasing. Seems as if someone has made a start, but we haven't reached the standard yet. Last Sunday we had 162 present, but we want more to come and help us build it up. If you don't believe that some of our members have begun working you just come down and we can show you what the ladies have done. They have almost seated the church with new benches, and are going to finish right away. If the men had the working spirit the ladies have our church would soon be completed. So men, you better get your building committee to work before these ladies get their hammer and nails and jump in ahead of you.

Hope every member will be in conference next Saturday, August 31.—Church Clerk.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Robinson of Birmingham spent a few days in Clanton last week visiting Mr. and Mrs. John M. Robinson.

Lesson for September 1

THE RETURN OF THE SECOND GROUP OF EXILES TO JERUSALEM

GOLDEN TEXT—The hand of our God is upon all them for good that seek Him.

LESSON TEXT—Ezra 7:1-8:36.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Care on a Journey.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Care on a Journey.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Prayer Helps.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Prayer and Providence.

I. The Leader—Ezra (7:1-10).

1. Who he was (vv. 1-6).

(1) A priest (vv. 1-5). He was from the line which was to stand between God and the people, a descendant of Seraiah, the chief priest who had a lineage back to Aaron. The leader of the first company was Zerubbabel, a sort of military governor. The great need now was for a religious leader, for the people had gone far from God.

(2) A ready scribe (v. 6).

He was a teacher of the law of God. A scribe's training began at thirteen years, but he did not enter upon his official duties till thirty years of age, giving him seventeen years of training.

2. His high ambition (vv. 7-10).

(1) He set his heart to seek the law of the Lord (v. 10). He definitely set out with the purpose to know God's word. No one who purposes in his heart to seek the law of the Lord can fail.

(2) He set his heart to obey the Lord (v. 10).

He was not only concerned with knowing God's word, but obeying it. God's word cannot be known in its fullness by the intellect; it must be experienced.

(3) He set his heart to teach in Israel God's statutes and judgments (v. 10). He not only had a love for God's word, but a desire to implant it in the hearts of others.

II. Ezra's Commission (7:11-26).

Artaxerxes, the king, gave him a copy of the decree, authorizing him to lead a company back to Jerusalem. This decree empowered him:

1. To collect funds (vv. 15-16).
2. To levy tribute (vv. 21, 22).
3. To appoint magistrates and judges (v. 25).
4. To execute penalties (v. 26).

For this great favor Ezra lifted his heart to God in thanksgiving (vv. 27, 28).

III. The Company Which Returned (8:1-20).

The company was comparatively small—only seventeen hundred and fifty-four males, but including women, children and servants there were perhaps six or seven thousand people.

IV. Ezra's Prayer and Fasting (8:21-23).

The first thing that Ezra did was to seek God's guidance. All Christians, as well as leaders of the people, should seek divine guidance and help in every new undertaking. No success can be realized without His help and blessing. The reason Ezra sought the Lord's help was that as far as possible he desired his mission to be free from human dependence. He did not minimize the dangers attending his journey, but since he had assured the king that the hand of the Lord would be upon all for good who sought Him, he was now ashamed to ask the king for a military escort to protect them from the marauding Arabs. His desire was to prove to the king the reality of God's helps for God's honor among the heathen was at stake. This was a real test of faith, but God was faithful.

V. The Successful Journey (8:24-32).

God heard their prayer. The treasure entrusted to them was great. Perhaps the entire value of money and sacred utensils was about five million dollars. For a small caravan carrying such an amount of money to go through a country infested by robber bands was most perilous, but Ezra knew that God was able and would protect them. Observe:

1. Care and honesty (vv. 24-30).

The money was weighed unto them at the start and was to be weighed when turned over to the authorities at Jerusalem. The incentive to honesty and strict accounting of the trust was that they were holy men and were entrusted with that which was holy because it belonged to God. Most exacting care should be exercised in handling the Lord's money.

2. Their safe arrival (vv. 31, 32).

Some four and one-half months were required to make the journey. God brought them safely to their destination, thus proving that He is faithful to those who put their trust in Him.

God's Answer Not Always Yes

A little girl had been invited to a picnic party. Being a devout little girl, she prayed for fine weather and a happy time. But on the morning of the day the skies were gray and rain fell heavily. Instead of roaming in the fields she stood looking out on a drenched landscape. "You prayed for fine weather, dearie," said her mother, "and God hasn't answered your prayer, has He?" "Oh, yes. He has, mother," came the apt reply, "and He has said 'No.'"

STATE

CAPITOL News

Continued growth in membership of the American Legion in Alabama was shown in figures submitted to the annual state convention of the veterans' organization, held at Mobile, August 19-20-21. It was shown that paid-up membership had increased from 7,004 at the Huntsville convention in 1928 to 7,813 at Mobile, a gain of over ten per cent, with 78 posts functioning today.

Need of better hospital facilities for disabled veterans was stressed at the convention, which also went on record as favoring elimination of the clause in the Veterans Bureau bill requiring applicants for government compensation to establish service connection with their disability claim, per diem payments to veterans in hospitals, removal of time restrictions on applications for compensation, an dlegislation to allow admission of veterans of the Spanish American War to the Soldiers Home at Mountain Creek. The convention also made provision for deducting from annual dues received by the State organization of the American Legion, the sum of ten cents per member, to establish a fund for relief of indigent members and their families.

George Grant of Troy was elected State Commander for the ensuing year, succeeding A. C. Herzberg of Gadsden. Grant is the first State commander to be elected from the Wiregrass section of the State, and had previously served as vice-Commander for the fourth district, a position which he held during the last year, and as commander of the Troy post. He was chosen on the first ballot, winning out over two other candidates, Rufus Bethea of Birmingham and L. S. Montford of Newbern. Other officers elected included four vice-commanders, George Cleere of Russellville, Ed Wren of Talladega, P. S. Jackson of Peterman, and Richard T. Rives of Montgomery; a state chaplain, Rev. Minot Medemer of Dothan, and a sergeant-at-arms, Carle McBride of Tuscaloosa; and ten members of the State executive committee, J. C. Stuart of Jackson, M. H. Hagood, Brewton, Oscar Lewis, Dothan, Catesby Jones, Selma, Aaron Bear, Alexander City, J. S. Hough, Livingston, R. H. Williams, Guntersville, W. E. Willis, Athens, Amos Culp, Birmingham, and Malcolm E. Nettles, Jasper.

The convention was entertained in a most hospitable manner by citizens of Mobile, and was attended by a number of prominent legionaires, among whom was Governor Bibb Graves, one of the principal speakers. Montgomery was chosen for the 1930 convention.

D. G. Green, a former State Superintendent of Banks, has been appointed office assistant in the Banking Department and has charge of the affairs of the department pending disposition of impeachment charges brought against Judge C. E. Thomas, the Supernitendent of Banks. Charges against Judge Thomas were voted recently by a Jefferson County grand jury in connection with the closing of several banks in that county, and he was granted leave of absence from his duties pending the disposition of the case, which will be heard by the Supreme Court in October. Mr. Green served as superintendent of banks during parts of the administration of Henderson and Kilby, resigning to become secretary-treasurer of the State Baptist Mission Board, a position which he has now resigned to resume his connection with the Banking Department.

Voters of Montgomery County in an election August 19th defeated the proposal to levy in this County the tax of one-mill for school purposes authorized by the constitution. The proposed taxation received the votes of a majority of those who went to the polls, but fell a little short of the three-fifths vote which the law requires to levy this particular tax. The vote cast was extremely light, being less than one-fifth of the normal vote polled in the County.

Lester Boyer, negro, convicted of one of the most atrocious crimes in the annals of this State, was electrocuted at Kilby Prison shortly after midnight on the morning of Friday, August 23. Boyer was convicted of the murder of Jack Hines of Eufaula. Before going to the chair, he admitted the murder but denied having attacked a young woman in Hine's company at the time he met his death. The negro's statement on this latter point, however, was contradicted by a compelte confession which he had previously made. Boyer's case aroused intense public interest, and a strong detachment of the National Guard was sent to Eufaula at the time of his trial which occurred some thirty days prior to the execution of the sentence. The trial was conducted in an orderly manner, and was one of the speediest on record in this State.

1,871 ATTENDED UNIVERSITY SUMMER SCHOOL THIS YEAR

Figures just released show that 1,871 different individuals attended the summer session at the University of Alabama this year. This is an increase of 156 over the enrollment last summer, it was stated.

Of the total enrollment, 881 were men and 990 were women. Of this number, 397 were doing graduate work. High school teachers had a representation of 381, elementary school teachers showed 330, principals, supervisors, and superintendents totaled 258, and 17 were college and normal school professors.

COTTON REPORT AIDS GROWERS

Replying to a criticism of Government Crop Reporting expressed in an editorial in a Montgomery paper, F. W. Gist, federal and state agricultural statistician of the Department of Agriculture at Montgomery, shows that instead of aiding cotton gambling to the disadvantage of the cotton grower, cotton crop reports have been favorable to the farmer.

Out of 15 forecasts and 5 estimates of production made during the last 5 years, all of the forecasts and 4 of the estimates have been under the final ginning returns. In other words, 19 out of the 20 reports have been favorable to the farmer.

The records also show that the price of cotton has fluctuated less on crop reporting days than on many other days during the cotton season.

It is also pointed out that gambling thrives on uncertainty, and that if the supply of, and demand for, cotton were known in advance, nobody would be silly enough to bet on the price.

It is also pointed out that Government Reports are necessary for the protection of cotton growers, in view of the fact that many private estimators of cotton are maintained by cotton traders and their reports are used by the trade and not given to the growers; whereas, Government reports are released to all persons simultaneously and enjoy a degree of accuracy not obtained by private agencies.

Mr. Gist states that the reports for Alabama are based on: First: actual measurement of acreage along 3,000 miles of road throughout the State.

Second: Direct statements of 22,000 actual farmers.

Third: The opinion of 2,000 regular crop reporters, 1,200 ginners, and several hundred other persons in close contact with cotton growing.

These reports have shown an average accuracy for the past 5 years as follows:

September	91.6%
October	91.7%
November	96.9%
December	99.2%

The Crop Reporting Service is maintained in Alabama by the United States Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries,—each furnishing its quota of trained workers, and sharing in the expense of the system.

LOCUST FOR FENCE POSTS

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 27.—A large supply of young black locust trees will be available for Alabama farmers from the State Forest Nursery this fall, according to a statement issued by the Commission of Forestry. The black locust, as it is commonly known, is also sometimes designated as yellow locust, white locust, Acacia and merely locust. It is a very valuable tree for farm purposes, especially for posts, on account of its durability in contact with the soil.

The wood is heavy, hard and strong, with a yellowish-brown to cherry red or reddish brown color. In addition to its use for posts, the black locust is used extensively for poles, railroad crossties, fuel and telephone insulator pins. The tree grows vigorously on most fertile soils especially in rich bottom lands and along mountain streams. However, it will also grow well on comparatively rocky and sterile slopes. The young trees should be planted from six feet to eight feet apart.

To avoid the danger of attack by insects such as the locust borer and the locust leaf miner it usually is desirable in large plantations to plant the young trees in mixture with other species. This is accomplished by planting every second or third row with locust and the intervening rows with some other species which can be used to good advantage. If the object of the planting is to grow fence posts, red cedar and catalpa make a very good mixture. Plantations of an acre or less may be made of pure locust.

WINTER LEGUME FACTS

Hairy vetch ranks at the top of the list as a soil-building winter legume for Alabama. It will grow in every county of the State and on practically every soil type.

Austrian winter peas is a new winter legume for Alabama. In south Alabama it is repidly becoming more popular than hairy vetch.

Drill not less than 20 pounds of hairy vetch per acre. Austrian winter peas should be drilled at the rate of not less than 30 pounds per acre.

For best results hairy vetch or Austrian winter peas should have a liberal application of phosphate at planting time. Apply superphosphate at the rate of 400 pounds per acre or the equivalent in basic slag.

Vetch or Austrian winter peas should be planted the last half of September or the first half of October.

In planting vetch or Austrian winter peas both methods of inoculation should be used; that is, the commercial culture and the inoculated soil. Main dependence should be placed on soil inoculation.

"Alabama could double her yield of corn in one year by proper use of winter legumes."—J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist at Auburn.

Circular 115, "Growing Hairy Vetch and Austrian Winter Peas for Soil Improvement," has just been published and may be obtained from your county agent or Extension Service, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn. It gives specific directions for planting winter legumes.

WORM MAY DAMAGE ALABAMA'S COTTON

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 27.—The Alabama cotton crop is again threatened by the well known cotton leaf worm which has done considerable damage to the fleecy staple of the State in former years, according to Winford A. Ruffin, extension entomologist at Auburn.

The Auburn entomologist has received an official report from B. R. Coad, in charge of cotton insect investigations at the government laboratory at Tallulah, La., stating that one of the most serious outbreaks of the leaf worm in history has spread from Brownsville, Texas, northward to northeast Oklahoma and Arkansas, and eastward to the Mississippi Delta.

Following the outbreak in Texas, Mr. Ruffin fears an outbreak in north Alabama. If it occurs in August considerable damage may be done. Several years ago this insect destroyed much of the top crop in that section of the State.

"There is a chance," said Mr. Ruffin, "that north Alabama has had already a light infestation of the first generation of the leaf worm, which could have gone unnoticed. If such has happened worms may appear in large numbers soon because the second generation usually apears about three weeks after the first. One female of the generation may lay 500 eggs for the second generation which always appears in much larger numbers, and may play havoc with the crop unless control measures are applied."

Mr. Ruffin is urging farmers and county agents to look for this insect and report any infestation. Should such occur he recommends dusting with calcium arsenate at the rate of 6 to 8 pounds per acre. Where calcium arsenate is not available arsenate of lead or Paris green may be used.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.

M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

Yesterday's Ginning Methods Are Not Enough Today

the farmer now demands that his cotton be ginned to protect his profit

Ginning methods of even five years ago do not meet today's needs any more than the farm implements of fifty years ago would.

To get the highest price for his cotton, the farmer knows that it must be cleaned and ginned to increase spinnability of every bale. High spinnability reduces spinning loss, for which the mill man willingly pays a premium.

THE BANK'S PART IN THE FARM PROBLEM

By H. LANE YOUNG
Member American Bankers Association Agricultural Commission

ONE of the most discussed and least understood questions regarding the farmer's problems is the part the bank has played, or is to play, in financing the farmer. The basis of co-operation between the two, however, is a very simple one.

H. Lane Young

Both sides are subject to criticism for the condition that exists today. The major share of the blame rests on those banks that have failed through disregarding fundamental principles in loaning other people's money, that have encouraged the farmer to expect bank loans without first putting his business on the earning basis which would justify a bank to lend him money.

One of the underlying reasons for the failure of so many country banks has been the existence of too many banks. With the limited business of the commmunity divided among too many banks it was impossible for them to make enough money to justify the employment of officers with the proper ability to manage the bank successfully. Then the scramble for business was so hard that good judgment and foresight wore forgotten in granting loans, with the resultant failure of the weaker institutions.

In the future, banks are not going to loan the money of their depositors without the kind of security that can be immediately realized upon in case the loan is not paid, or unless the applicant presents a sound and successful record of business operation—whether that business be manufacturing, merchandising, or farming.

Farming-Banking Interdependent

This is a perfectly obvious attitude, because country banking cannot be successfully and profitably carried on unless farming is successfully and profitably operated—the two businesses are dependent upon each other. There is no longer any question that the time has arrived for these interdependent businesses to reach a common ground of understanding of the requirements that both must meet for their mutual welfare.

There is no doubt but what the future prosperity of the farmer and the basis of cooperation between banker and farmer is the intelligent diversification of crops. It is necessary, however, to have the right conception of diversification.

The mistake that many farmers have made in attempting to diversify has been to invest too much money, time and land in a new and untried crop—sometimes a hazardous crop, or one for which no immediate market has been developed, resulting in a loss of the initial effort and discouragement of future efforts on a more conservative basis.

Disregarding the primary and essential principle of farming—namely, increasing earnings by decreasing the cost of production through the practice of building up soil by crop rotation and intensive cultivation, is responsible for a large share of the farmers' trouble today.

Radio Is Bringing New Talent to Stage

College Men Deserting the Professions to Enter Radio

New York City.—Biographers of future dramatic stars will have to work hard to make their stories as melodramatic as former biographies. There will be fewer headliners who got their start as starving children singing in the honky-tonks or dancing in their bare feet on a Broadway corner.

"The radio is bringing an entirely new type of young man into the dramatic world," says Seger Ellis, radio star, and the son of a Houston, Texas, banker. "The boy who was the star in his college glee club, but who continued to sing only as an amateur after he got out of college because his family objected to the free and easy dramatic world, the uncertainty of the theatrical profession and the lack of normal home life, can now sing over the radio, be as prosperous as any actor, yet establish a home and live up to the best family traditions.

"The fact that a singer who makes good over the radio, doesn't have to travel to carry on his chosen profession and can earn a steady income, will steadily attract a finer type of young man into the dramatic world, and in addition, will give the public a better type of music. The well-trained musician or singer can give his audience music of a calibre that the untrained singer never tried to do. Slowly the public is hearing the better things and understanding them. 'Song of the Bayou,' a five thousand dollar prize song by Rube Bloom, is a remarkable example of this type. It is a classic of the Bayou and as pure a folk song as any ever heard."

PAINFUL INDIGESTION

"I SUFFERED from indigestion — everything I ate gave me heartburn," says Mrs. Mattie Mullins, of Pound, Va.

"For months, I did not see a well day. I worried along, but never felt well.

"I got a package of Thedford's Black-Draught at the store and began taking it—a dose every night before going to bed. I had been having an awful pain. After I had taken Black-Draught, this pain entirely stopped. I began to gain in weight, and rested well at night. In a few months I was feeling fine. My health was better than it had been in years.

"I keep Black-Draught in our home, and we all take it for constipation and upset stomach."

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

SUBJECT: "CHRIST'S TREATMENT OF PEOPLE."

A certain man once said to me, "Well, brother Bryan, you spend your time in visiting the sick in the hospitals, visiting the sick and shut ins at home, the needy and forsaken, the sorrowing and burdened. You are always trying to help somebody out of trouble whatever it is. It seems that you make a specialty of ministering to the needy."

You know, dear friends, that one expression, "a specialty in ministering to the needy," gave me a thought for one of the best subjects from which to preach I believe I ever had in relationship of our dealing with humanity. The subject is this: "How did Jesus treat people when He was on earth?" What was Jesus's specialty in His treatment to people when He was on earth publicly three years? Now just how did Jesus treat people? How would He treat the church if He were in Birmingham today, or Tuscaloosa, or Atlanta, Denver or somewhere else? How did He treat this kind of a person, or that kind of a person? If He met a dog how did He treat it? How did He treat everybody?

How did Christ treat the devil on Mount Quarantinia? There the devil tempted Him by saying, "If thou be the Christ command these stones to be made bread." Now watch how Christ treated the devil there. He said, "It is written that men shall not live by bread alone, but by every word which proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord. Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God. Thou shalt worship Him and Him only." Christ used the Scriptures, God, the Father's Word to meet the temptations of the devil.

Then we can but say that the Bible was the standard by which Christ met the issues of life. If you will read Matthew, Mark, Luke and John you will find there the standard by which we are to meet the issues of life. One can not read these Gospels and fail to see the standard for your life and for my life, the standard for humanity in all walks of life. Now, gentlemen, the standard of my life is not the church. However, don't misunderstand me because I can not divorce the church from Christ. It is Christ's bride, the holiest thing in the world. But the standard of my life is not what men say about me, not what men write in the papers.

The standard of my life is trying in an humble way to serve Christ acceptably in treating you or trying to treat you as Christ would treat you or as He treated people in His earthly ministry. In the Gospel of Mark you can see the kind of people Christ came to minister unto. He went into the leper colonies and cleansed lepers. If you would go to the East today and see the condition of the people, dirty, filthy, with measles, yellow fever, leprosy you could realize the kind of people Christ came unto in their great need.

When Jesus leaves Mount Quarintinia He goes on down the road which led by the river Jordan. Directly as He walked along by a big field bewailing cries of "Unclean, unclean" rang sharp, shrieking tones from outcast lepers who had been disinherited from contact with their fellow man. It was the law of the country that the leper must be outcast from friends, loved ones, or anybody. It was also the law that they cry out loudly, "Unclean" to passers by. If the leper tried to go anywhere even to see his family he was arrested. So this leper was out there in that field of barley or oats, and when he heard Christ coming he cried in answer to the law "Unclean, unclean."

To this poor leper Christ was the most attractive person on the earth. He ran forward and fell on his knees at the Master's feet. O, if I could have the power to tell you about this blessed Christ and make Him the most attractive person on the earth to you. O, if we could see men daily running to Christ and falling on their knees. This is certainly the best place in the world for any of us to be. "At the feet of Jesus" a good place for every man, woman, child on the face of the earth.

This man, even tho a leper, knew that he could talk to Jesus, looked up in His face and said, "O Lord, if thou wilt thou canst make me clean." Now I want to ask you this question: "How did Christ treat that poor leper?" He said, "I will, be thou clean." That is the way Christ would treat men, women and children like that today. He reached out His hand and touched the leper. He did not do as the world would do about such people. The world withdraws from such afflicted people, fearing to touch them, abhorring to touch them. But Christ reached out His loving hand and touched the leper and cleansed him.

That healing touch was from the hand that made this world, painted and garnished the heavens, painted the beautiful flowers, made the trees in all their grandeur and beauty. That touch was of the hand that created man and bestows His blessings upon men. O, He "reached out His hand and touched the leper." He was not afraid to touch him. That is the manner in which Christ treated outcast people. He did not do as the world, give the poor man a kick, a curse and a dam. That is like some people do now.

But did you ever think that even the devil would pull off his hat and say that kindness and tender, loving compassion was the way the Gallilean, the lowly Nazarene treated people, and the way He would treat people today if He were here in person. Now, we come to the Sea of Gallilee which was called the Sea of Chinnerith, the Sea of Tiberias, so called from the town of Tiberias, a dirty, filthy, buggy town, the head of Judaism in Palestine. It was also called the Sea of Capernaum after a town of that name on its shores. There is nothing of this town today except ruins.

It was in a field near this town that Christ preached all day to the multitude. This field is known as the plain of Genneseret as was also the sea at that time called the Lake of Genneseret. The people were no doubt tired and hungry because they had taken no physical nourishment since early morning. I imagine a man coming up to Christ and saying, "I think these people should be sent home, or to a nearby town or village to get something to eat. There is certainly nothing around here for them to eat."

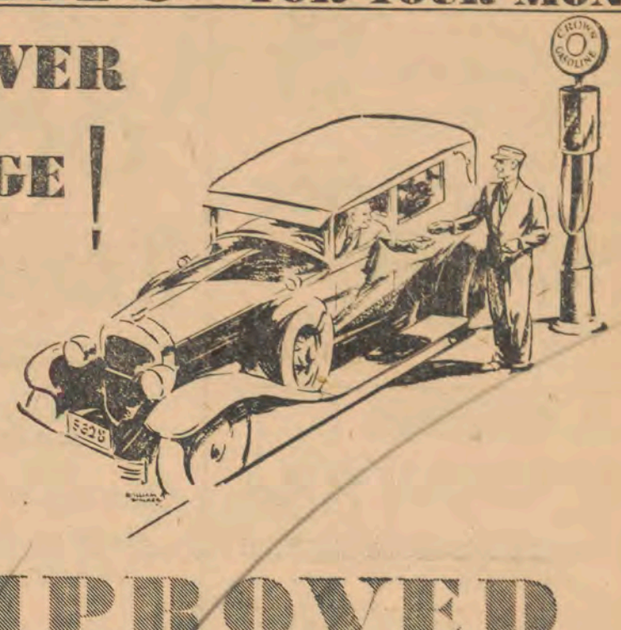
Now right here I wish to tell you that Jesus Christ was not committed to any one class of people. He is not committed to the ways of this church. He is not committed to the people on the southside of Birmingham, to the people on the northside of Birmingham, to the people of China, to the people in Africa, to the people in Mexico. He is the Saviour of all who believe on His name and trust Him for salvation.

Now again to the plain of Genneseret to see how Christ treated the hungry multitude. Pretty soon another man steps up and says, "Certainly there is nothing here to eat except one lad has five small loaves of bread and two small fishes, and what is that in such a crowd as this? That is just a lunch which his mother prepared for him before he left home early this morning." Now, watch Jesus Christ as He had the people sit down in groups or companies and feed them by blessing and breaking the five small loaves and two small fishes into enough to feed five thousand people. You will find this miracle recorded in Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.

My friends, there Jesus brake the bread and gave to the people yet He did not charge anything for it. That is the way Jesus Christ would treat the hungry people. Have you ever been hungry? When we are hungry we can rest assured that Jesus Christ will give us bread. He it is who gives the Bread of Life to the starving soul. The multitude were eager and anxious to be with Christ and hear His wonderful Words of Life. How blessed it would be today if people were hungering to hear Christ's Words as those people were. He gave them their spiritual needs and also provided for their physical needs. He would do the same for us today. We must just trust and obey Him for it.

In the synagogue at Capernaum Christ looking down the aisle toward the people pointed to the pot of manna resting on its stand and said, "Your father did eat manna in the desert and also birds from heaven." There is His great discourse on the Bread of Life He tells them that God provided them quail in the morning and beaten biscuit at night. But my dear friends, I want the Bread of Life. I am hungry for it, and I not too good or too wise to ask God to give it to me. Some people are too wise to go to God's house to hear His word preached, too wise to learn at Sunday School and prayer meeting.

When I was in that Capernaum synagogue I looked out over the Sea of Gallilee and thought of these words: "I came to Jesus and I drank of that life-giving stream. My thirst was quenched, my soul revived, and now I live in Him." I also thought of this verse: "Break thou the Bread of Life dear Lord to me, as Thou didst break in Gallilee beside the sea."



It is Jesus who is the Bread of Life. You know He also said, "I am the way, I am the truth, I am the Light of the World. I am He that was, and is, and is to come. I am the resurrection and the life." Now there is another incident which plainly reveals to us how Christ treated poor women, men and children. Mothers came to Him with their little children to be blessed. Some of those old disciples demanded parental solicitude on the part of the women with little children. Jesus in great tenderness encouraged them in such words as these: "Suffer the little children to come unto me, for of such is the Kingdom of heaven."

Now that is a great thing. If we would work for Jesus we must bring the little children to Him, regardless of criticisms and sneers. Again we find Christ in the house of Simon the Pharisee in response to an invitation from Simon to dine at his house. Here comes a nameless woman, not Mary of Magdala as some people have written. This poor woman had a torn shawl and also a torn soul. She is refused admittance by Simon, "Go back to your old haunts. I have the Master for dinner, and you are not welcome to enter under my roof." In great sorrow she turns and walks slowly away. But she is seeking Jesus and must receive His blessing. She again creeps back to the door and seeks for an entrance. This time perhaps Simon was overseeing some work, or coaching the servants on airs as some people do today, or imploring them to help him in the criticism of Chirst's manner when they would go in to the table.

Christ no has been given the right-of-way to receive the poor woman into the house of Simon the Pharisee. She is admitted with her old torn shawl and sin-sick soul. She falls at the feet of Christ and bathes His feet with her penitent tears, and wipes them with the hairs of her head, her chiefest ornament and crowning glory. Jesus's heart must have felt daggers of pain when He no doubt heard the poor woman say to the bigoted pharisee, "Mr. Simon, I have nothing in the world except these torn clothes, and a soul to be saved. I will not bother anything you possess. Only let me in to see Jesus. I want so much to see Him, and implore His blessing." Christ said to this humble woman, "Step out of thy sins into salvation, out of hell into heaven, off the road to hell, the world and upon the road to heaven, Eternal Glory."

FISHING RODEO WAS BIG SUCCESS

Fred Howard of Thorsby and Glenn Boyd of Clanton Represented Chilton County

MOBILE, Sept. 2.—Fifty Alabama counties were represented among the 260 registrants for the deep sea rodeo, August 26-28, and several hundred of the fish caught were landed by men and women from the interior of the State who had never before fished in salt water. They fished for the game, edible kind and left the tarpon to increase and grow until the rodeo next year. The tarpon is not a food fish, anyhow.

All of the tarpon honors went to Chcago and Montgomery. The capital prize, given by the Mobile Register and News-Item, was won by Donald M. Nelson who had never before fished in the sea, though an expert in catching the big fish in the great lakes. A. F. Dittmar, with the State department of education, caught a tarpon weighing 68 pounds, in the record time of ten minutes. It was his first tarpon.

Governor Bibb Graves, who is becoming an expert Gulf fisherman under instruction of Dr. Sibley Holmes, of Foley, caught several fish during the rodeo, but no tarpon came his way. Lawrence Lee, his legal advisor, specalized on mackerel and caught many.

One of the most successful parties of Alabama men fishing together were composed of Dr. F. C. Weaver and Charles S. Martin, of Anniston; Charles Pinnell, Talladega, and H. C. Broom, of Montgomery They caught 17 cavalla the first day, many mackerel Tuesday and various kinds, including the prize winning ling on Wednesday, bringing Captain Clyde Bryant and his schooner yacht Jeane Bryant, second money under award mady by Governor Graves and Col. E. L. Higdon for boats making the best record.

The veteran guide Marshell Bosarge, of Coden, with his boat, the Catherine Ma, piloted the man who caught two tarpon and captured the first Graves-Higdon prize money for boats.

Women took an active part in the rodeo and are included in all future plans for the annual event. Mrs. Charley McCall, wife of the attorney general of Alabama, landed a large cavalla, though the prize for women went to Mrs. S. C. Freerdric, of Mobile, who caught a larger one.

Plans and preparations are already being made for the deep sea rodeo of next year. A permanent coast organization will be formed, under the official leadership of Commissioner I. T. Quinn and the department of game and fisheries, to look after all of the details.

The first rodeo was an unqualified success and those in charge have found by this experience how they can make it still more attractive and enjoyable. Mobile sportsmen will give hearty support to any plans that may be adopted for future fishing contests, on fresh or salt waters of the state.

Fred Howard Returns From Gulf

Mr. Fred Howard of Thorsby returned last week from the fishing rodeo on the Gulf of Mexica. He reports that the fun was plentiful, and many fish were caught.

Fred caught a large cavalla, which came very near taking a prize. He also landed a ling, which is considered among the rarest of fish in Gulf waters.

His friends in Clanton were demanding proof of his luck but he was armed with a telegram from the Sheriff at Mobile saying that his barrel of fish spoiled before they could be put in transit.

Burton Mullins Going To Anniston

Mr. Burton Mullins will go to Anniston this week, where he will set up headquarters for his work with the International Harvester Company. He will travel the teritory of East Alabama.

For the past two weeks Mr. Mullins has been in Clanton giving his assistance to the opening of the new C. E. Hornsby place here. Mr. Hornsby and his associates are putting in a full line of International Harvester farm implements, trucks, etc., in the W. I. Mullins warehouse building back of Mullins & Moore's Store.

Clanton Man In Wreck Sunday

Antone Schoenwetter, of Clanton, received a broken leg late Sunday afternoon in an automobile accident about 20 miles north of Montgomery on the Birmingham Highway, according to reports. Schoenwetter was taken from the scene of the accident by motorists and carried several miles toward Montgomery where he was removed to Diffly's ambulance.

Schoenwetter is in St. Margaret's Hospital, St. Joseph's Ward, where he is being treated for a severely broken up right leg. His leg was broken in four place, and the splintered bones were punched out thru the skin in several places.

The accident happened about five o'clock Sunday afternoon on the highway near Liberty church. Schoenwetter was driving toward Clanton on his motorcycle when it collided with a new Chevrolet truck. The motorcycle was almost completely torn up, and a spring and front fender of the truck were twisted out of shape.

Grammar School Opened Monday

Prof. Grady Williams reports that the Clanton Grammar School opened Monday morning according to schedule, with all teachers at their post of duty. Enrollment of students the first day was about 200. This number will be steadily increased during the next few days.

The appearance of four cases of infantile paralysis in the city this week has perhaps caused many parents to keep their children out of school for fear that there will be other outbreaks.

Tickets for incidental fees this year can be secured at Alred Drug Company, the same as in the past. The fees are $3.50 for the entire school year.

Clanton Quartet At Billingsley

The Clanton Quartet will render a musical concert at the public school building at Billingsley on Friday night, September 13, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

The program will consist of a varied selection of sacred, spiritual, and popular songs.

The singers will appear under auspices of the Billingsley parent-teacher association. Everybody is invited to attend.

Visit To Farm Of Mr. J. W. Hamilton

Showing Comparison Of Vetch With Use of Nitrate On Growing Crops

County Agent C. E. Stapp carried a party of visitors to the farm of Mr. J. W. Hamilton west of Clanton last Friday afternoon to show them the result which Mr. Hamilton is getting from his vetch lands in comparison with the use of nitrate for fertilizer.

Mr. Hamilton carried the party over his fields and pointed out the sections where he is growing corn on land that has been planted to vetch one and two years and then showed them a field of the same kind of corn where no vetch has been planted, and which was fertilized with nitrate of soda.

The result can be seen easily. The land where vetch has been planted is making a much better crop of corn than the land where commercial fertilizer was used and no vetch.

One of the facts about Mr. Hamilton's farm impressed us much. He is what you might term a small farmer. He has no tractors or big disc plows with which to work his land. Yet he handles a heavy growth of vetch with his two mule plows to turn it under in the spring. The average farmer should see what Mr. Hamilton is accomplishing. He is proving that the small farmer can better afford to use vetch on his land than to buy commercial fertilizer.

Those who were in the party visiting Mr. Hamilton's farm were C. E. Stapp, Earle Thomas, J. P. Montgomery, J. N. Dennis, J. C. Page, H. G. Boyd, Billy Smith, H. M. Harton, W. M. Wyatt.

Returning from Mr. Hamilton's the party stopped a while at the farm of Mr. W. L. Popwell, where the same comparison with vetch and nitrate was seen in the fields.

WHAT WILL BE THE RESULT IF THE THREE-MILL TAX FAILS TO CARRY?

Some Important Facts and Figures From Dr. R. E. Tidwell, State Superintendent of Education

County Superintendent of Education, Buford Lawrence, wrote a letter to State Superintendent of Education, Dr. R. E. Tidwell, on August 28th, asking him to give a statement of the amount of school money Chilton County will have provided the proposed three-mill tax fails to get the approval of the voters on September 17th.

In reply to this inquiry, Dr. Tidwell has written to Mr. Lawrence a full explanation of what the Chilton County situation will be if the people fail to re-vote the three mill tax.

For the information of the people, we publish below the letter of Dr. Tidwell in full. We urge the voters to study it carefully, as it gives an accurate account of the public school funds that would be possible for Chilton County in case we do not continue to levy the three mill tax as we have done for the past ten years.

While you consider this question we urge you to remember that the proposed tax upon which we will vote September 17 is not a new tax, but a continuation of the same tax the county has been levying for public school purposes for the past ten years.

Superintendent Tidwell's Letter

Dear Mr. Lawrence:

I am answering your letter of the 28th instant with reference to the situation in which your county will find itself in the event the county-wide three mill tax fails to have the endorsement of the people at the election which is to be held there on September 17.

In the first place you, of course, will not have available the county-wide three mill tax which will amount to approximately $45,000. Then, you will of course, not be able to levy any of the district taxes which, if levied will amount to practically the same amount, making a total possible loss of approximately $90,000. You would also lose the Bonus Fund of $3,000 which is payable on the condition of the levy of the three mill tax.

The limits placed on your county school funds as a result of the failure to levy the taxes as above noted will so handicap the operation of your schools as to make it necessary to put every penny that you have in the elementary schools required by law to be operated for the training of children in the compulsory age. You will, therefore, in all probability lose the following funds if the taxes referred to are not levied: Revolving Fund of $1,000.00 for supervision, State and Federal Vocational Fund of approximately $7,500.00, Special Appropriation from General Education Board, $200.00, Library Fund $373.00, Slater Fund $450.00, Attendance Fund $8,000.00 (approximately), County High School Fund $4,500.00, Rural High School Fund $5.500.00.

In other words, I might say in summing up, that the only absolute assurance you would have from State appropriations would be that coming from the general State appropriations which would be slightly less than $40,000. Of course, you would have the poll tax which is a variable amount, $3,000 to $4,000. You might have the Rural School House Building Fund which amounts to around $5,000.00 a year.

It might be said further that should this calamity, for it would be nothing less than a calamity, come upon the children of the county, I feel sure that the State funds would be supplemented as they were years ago, but this would undoubtedly give educational opportunities to the few who have the money to send their children away to school. The county high school and other accredited high schools could be operated and the State appropriations secured only by heavy private supplements, which would permit only the few children who were able to pay the supplement to go to school, and would deprive the vast majority of the county of a free public school education.

It will be of interest to you to know that the three mill tax once voted has never been repudiated by the citizenship of any county in the State. The people of Alabama are determined to have school facilities for their children and I have confidence in the good judgment and fine sense of patriotic duty which will control in the voting on September 17.—Sincerely yours, R. E. Tidwall, Superintendent.

Can We Afford To Be Without The Three-Mill School Tax?

If Chilton County did not have the three-mill school tax, here is what we would be up against with our schools:

1. The public schools of the county would be able to operate only a little more than two months each year with the available public school funds.

2. There could not be a single high school operated in the county. There would be no Chilton County High School. Instead of the high schools at Jemison, Verbena, Maplesville, Stanton, and Isabella, these places would have only the grammar school grades running for a little over two months each year with public school funds. If they had any more it would have to be paid for out of the pockets of the patrons.

3. There could be no vocational high schools conducted in the county. The vocational high schools at Jemison and Isabella would be reduced to only the grammar school grades running a little more than two months each year on public funds. If they had any more it would have to be paid for out of the pockets of the patrons.

4. No district in the county could vote a district three-mill tax or any kind of a tax for school purposes. A district tax can be voted only when the county levies a county-wide three mill school tax.

These are startling statements, but they are vouched for by the Superintndent of Education of Chilton County.

We pass them on to our readers, and suggest that it is very important that they be given serious consideration by every voter and citizen as you think about how you shall vote in the election on September 17th. Let these facts look you squarely in the face as you read from the pen of Ignorance Drops and Ignoramus.

Health Board Rules On Children Disease

A group of local doctors composing the County Board of Health met at noon Wednesday to consider precautionary measures in handling the sporadic outbreak of infantile paralysis in Clanton and other parts of Chilton County. It was found that about half a dozen cases have developed during the past week.

Dr. Gill of the State Board of Health was present and outlined the state's recommendations in handling such matters. The plan of the state board of health was adopted by the local board of health and will be enforced as follows:

All cases of children affected with the disease will be isolated. All other children of a household where the disease has appeared will be quarantined. The schools will not be affected, as the measures of isolation and quarantine are considered sufficient to safeguard against the further spread of the disease.

The matter will be in the hands of Dr. T. J. Marcus, county quarantine officer, for enforcement, according to recommendations of the state and county boards of health. Prompt compliance with suggested regulations is considered sufficient to control the spread of the disease, and there appears no great cause for alarm among people at this time. Dr. Marcus will gladly recommend in all cases where he receives inquiry for suggestions.

HIGH SCHOOL OPENED UNDER PROMISING OUTLOOK

The Chilton County High School opened its session Monday morning with most promising prospects for the session this year.

Some splendid talks were made by a number of our townsmen. Judge Reynolds talked on the opportunity of the high school boy and girl. Town clerk, J. H. Plier, representing the Town of Clanton in the absence of Mayor Eric Hart, spoke interestingly of making use of every available opportunity. Attorneys Lawrence F. Gerald and J. B. Atkinson made inspiring talks on the importance of a high school education to all.

A vocal solo was rendered by Mrs. M. F. Washington, teacher of music in the high school.

A total of 219 pupils were present on opening day. This is 37 more than last year.

County Agent C. E. Stapp made a most impressive talk on general school work.

Quite a large number of parents and visitors were present.

Cary Robinson Died Here On Last Friday

Prominent Citizen of Beat 16 Fails To Recover After Operation for Appendicitis

George Cary Robinson, age 39 years, died last Friday, August 30, about one o'clock, P. M., at the Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton. He had undergone an operation for appendicitis on Monday before.

Mr. Robinson was taken seriously sick on Sunday, August 25th, while on a trip with a party of friends to Wetumpka and Montgomery. He returned home and went to the hospital Monday for an operation. After the operation his condition continued uncertain until further complications caused his death Friday.

He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Riley Robinson of Providence Beat 16, both of whom survive him. He leaves a wife, Mrs. Maggie (Parrish) Robinson, and one son, Calvin Robinson, age about 17.

Undertaker J. Mell Martin took charge of the body at the hospital and prepared it for burial. The remains were carried to his home Friday afternoon where the body lay until Saturday at noon when the funeral was held at Providence Church. Services were conducted by Rev. Buford Lawrence and Rev. E. A. Norris.

Mr. Robinson was one of the most useful and energetic men in his community. His life was spent largely in the service of his friends and neighbors. He will be missed as much as any man in the community.

He was a member of Providence Baptist Church, where he professed his allegiance to Christ when a youth. For the past fifteen years he has been a faithful teacher in the Providence Baptist Sunday School.

The great gathering of friends at his funeral is the best expression of the love which he held in the hearts of those people who knew him.

ANNUAL SINGING ON LAST SUNDAY

County Convention In Session At Maplesville; Officers Elected for Next Year

It is customary for people to say that certain things are the best or worst they have ever seen, when probably their sense of comparison may not be functioning properly; or probably they may speak that way merely from force of habit. But surely neither of these are the case when we make the report that the county singing convention at Maplesville last Sunday was extremely good. Several prominent singers were there and they expressed themselves as being mighty well pleased with the progress of the day's service, and that the singing and spirit was as good as they had ever seen in a county singing convention.

The session was called to order by the president, Mr. Herbert Lowery, in the Baptist church at ten o'clock with a song, and opened with prayer. No committee was appointed for the forenoon, but the following directors were called upon by the president: I. D. Huett, L. T. Grant, Gresham Lowery, Jno. M. Dye, H. C. Collins, the latter two directors being given unlimited time. And there was a quartet present which had no particular name, so Mr. Lowery gave it a name and called it the No-Name Quartet. It was composed of Messrs. Akins Collins, Acie Collins, Willie Riggins and another young man, the latter three being from Birmingham. These gentlemen sung several selections in between the different directors during the morning session.

The last thing before noon was the election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, H. W. Lowery; Vice President, L. T. Grant; Secretary-Treasurer, T. E. Wyatt; Executive Committee, J. W. Lowery, Jasper Robinson, A. H. Glasscock and Emmett Billingsley. These officers will serve for the ensuing year.

The afternoon session was called to order at the high school auditorium, which was much larger and could better accomodate the huge crowd that had gathered for the convention. It was estimated that there were near 2,000 people in the house and on the grounds for the afternoon session.

An arrangement committee was appointed for the afternoon, consisting of Jasper Robinson, A. H. Glasscock and L. T. Grant. The following were placed on the program as directors: Olin Williams, P. B. Shaw of Shelby and Jefferson Counties, E. L. Glasscock, Lee J. Grant, H. G. Carter of Prattville, Jno. M. Dye of Birmingham, H. C. Collins of Cairo, Ga., Dr. J. B. Williams of Columbiana, Mr. Sam Stone of Shelby County, Clarence Hull of Coosa County, A. H. Glasscock and Akins Collins of Thorsby. Several quartets were rendered during the afternoon by the No-Name Quartet and the Clanton Quartet. A special feature of the afternoon was three solos rendered by Mr. Hugh Hollon of Montgomery, Mr. Ralph Grant of Coopers and Mr. Willie Riggins of Birmingham. These numbers as well as those put on by the two quartets were greatly enjoyed by all.

A fine singing spirit prevailed all during the day; the session opened with it and held on to it all during the day. Everybody enjoyed the day and went away well pleased with the results. In behalf of the Chilton County Singing Convention Mr. Lowery, the president, wishes to publicly express his thanks to the people of Maplesville who so nobly helped in making the day a success; especially does he wish to mention Mrs. Shanks and Mr. Wallace for their untiring and unstinted help.

The officers of the convention wish to state that a place of meeting for the spring session of the convention has not been chosen yet, and any church or community with a sufficient auditorium who wishes to have the convention may see some one of the officers as early as possible and secure the convention which will be held some time next spring or early summer.

The secretary, T. E. Wyatt, wishes to express his regrets at not being able to attend the convention and keep an accurate minute of the proceedings; so if those who attended find something in this report that is not exactly correct, just lay it to the fact that the reporter was not present and just had to get his information about the convention by talking with the president and some others present.

An interesting contribution to the lore of advertising results comes from a business statistician, Roger W. Babson. According to his statement in Cleveland he broadcast an advertisment at a cost of $3,000 and received sixteen inquiries and two orders as a result. Two days later for $3,000 he printed the advertisement in five newspapers in as many cities and received 4,000 inquiries. He figured that the radio advertisement cost $166.66 for each reply; the newspaper advertisment 75 cents a reply.

Testimony like this may lead to challenges and tests. No concern disseminating advertising by radio is likely to contend that it produces such results as are obtainable from the use of the best newspapers, yet to find that newspaper has the better of radio advertising in the ratio of 222 to 1, as Mr. Babson's experiment indicated, is perhaps more than the radio folk will concede without further evidence.

It is plain, of course, that in advertising the printed word has a huge advantage over the spoken. The well-written and neatly typed exposition of some desirable thing is laid before the eye of the prospective customer. If he is interested he has time to study, to ponder and to decide. He need not make notes—as he must in the case of advertisements addressing only the ear—of names, addresses and prices. Also, the type is free from the sometimes distracting mannerisms of the broadcaster.

It has been the experience of The Sun and of other dailies of high class that their advertising lineage, far from being decreased by radio advertising, has grown steadily since the radio period started. Mr. Babson's experiment offers the obvious explanation. No advertiser getting good results from newspaper advertising deserts it for a medium that produces less business, whether he finds the ratio 222 to 1, or 22 to 1, or even 2 to 1, in favor of the columns of the newspaper.—New York Sun.

GET THIS STRAIGHT ABOUT THE THREE MILL TAX

For the benefit of those who express themselves against the three mill tax to be voted upon the 17th of this month, we insist that they get it straight in their minds that the proposed tax is not an additional tax above that which we now have. It is a proposition to re-vote the same three mill tax we now have, and which expires the 30th of this month.

One man writing to the paper says you can take the money that is spent for school trucks and put it with what we already have for school purposes and have eight months free schools.

That might be true. We will not argue the point of school trucks. But if the three mill tax fails we will not have that which we already have. We will not have the money that is going for trucks and we will not have that which is now going to pay for the schools. Instead of having the truck money to add to what we already have, we would have nothing to add to nothing to run our schools and the result would be that our schools would amount to nothing.

The only way we can have schools without the three mill tax is for the people to go down in their pockets and pay the bill, if the schools are to run more than about two months.

The Union-Banner is willing for the people of Chilton County to have just such schools as they want. If the people want to cut out the three mill tax and do away with the schools that is all right with us.

But we expect to do our duty by warning you in advance of the serious situation such a step would bring us into.

If the voters of this county want to close their eyes to the welfare of themselves and their children, and follow the unsound advice of some who are whooping up the opposition to our schools, we can stand it if they can.

But it is a question of schools or no schools. It is not a question of politics, religion, personalities, or anything else.

There are lots of things about the administration of our school business that we do not think is right. But we do not profess to be foolish enough to want to scrap the entire school system because there are a few things wrong with it.

It is a foregone conclusion that if the public money of this county would run only two months, that is all the schools we would have. The supplement system has never made good schools. It was tried for years and found absolutely wanting.

There is but one way to have public schools and that is to pay for them by taxation. That fact has been proven, and it is no use to argue about it at this late day.

We will have the three mill tax re-voted on September the 17th and continue our schools, or else we will have it defeated and discontinue our schools. What do you want to do folks?

It is time for you to wake up and begin to decide what you want to do. If you want to sit still and let Ignorance Drops and Ignoramus run away with the wagon, it is all right with us. But remember we are giving you fair warning.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Written for The Union-Banner by
FRANK P. LITSCHERT

WMc now is the tiem for all good m

The general outcry against the protective tariff which we have all heard during the past few months would be more convincing to the thinking American were it not for the fact that he knows the history of previous tariff legislation. Every time the tariff comes up for revision and the matter of protecting American production comes up, all sorts of dolorous predictions are made by the free traders. This has been the case for the past century. In spite of the prophets of evil omen however, the protectionists have generally had their way and the country has prospered and made progress. This is evidenced by the present national situation in which we find the American people enjoying a standard of living unheard of in this or any previous centuries in any nation of the world.

One of the predictions most frequently made by the free traders is that protection means the loss of foreign trade. All of which, of course, is pure bunk. Every year since the present tariff law went into effect we have heard the dolorous prophecy in free trade newspapers that our foreign trade was sure to languish and die if we did not lower our tariff. Some internationalists went so far as to declare that we must not only lower our tariffs but wipe out the European war debts unless we wanted to lose our foreign trade and throw our country into a complete panic.

In view of all of this it is interesting to note the situation at this time. Our foreign trade is steadily growing. According to reports of the Department of Commerce it is greater this year than ever before and there seems to be no indication that it will not continue to grow. But let us go a little further and see what Europe thinks about our foreign trade.

Over in The Hague just now the great powers are trying to finish up the Young Plan, whereby the liquidation of Germany's war indemnities is finally to be settled, it is hoped. Great Britain under its new Labor government, has protested violently over the allotments made in cash to Great Britain and has also expressed the fear that by paying so much of the indemnity in goods instead of cash, Great Britain's foreign trade is going to suffer. Something of the shrinkage of Britain's trade is laid to Germany's deliveries in goods on account of war indemnities.

In view of this criticism of the Young Plan, Louis Loucheur, the noted French financier and minister of labor, while deploring such "deliveries in kind," declared that the British statesmen were wrong in attributing British unemployment to German deliveries of goods on the war indemnities. Then he touched the heart of the matter by frankly stating:

"American competition is the principle reason for the falling off of British exports. Consider South American markets, for example. European exports to South America have decreased by one-third. The United States got that business. The Americans are a young, active and ardent people, and they understand better than we do how to handle the questions of production and consumption.

"They have gone ahead in the race because they have a system of high wages and active purchasing power which has sped up production and given them first place in the post-war world."

Here is a frank acknowledgement of the success of the American theory of high wages and mass production, made possible by the protection of our great home market. With this market assured it is easier for the American manufacturer to go out and get his share of the world business, so adding to American employment and American prosperity.

It is to be seen, therefore, that our tariff policy is not a deterrent to our foreign trade. Of course the balance of trade is favorable to the United States, but we send back that money over and over again through our tourists in Europe and the remittances made by aliens in this country to relatives abroad. Giving up our home market to cheap European labor would not increase our foreign trade. It would shut down American factories and make it impossible for American producers to compete in the world markets with cheaper living and manufacturing conditions abroad.

The sooner that our own free traders and internationalists look the facts squarely in the face as M. Loucheur has done, the sooner they will become convinced that the American system is the best in the world after all.

Don't worry if your job is small and your rewards are few. Remember the mighty oak was once a nut like you.—Boston Transcript.

It is announced that the British will withdraw this fall from the Rhineland. But not until after the grape season.

THE HIGH PRICE OF PESSIMISM

The American government has wisely spent a good deal of money exterminating the boll weevil, the Hessian fly, the Mediterranean fruit fly and similar pests. But the government is unable to do anything about a pest which has cost the American people many fold as much as all these vermin combined. That is the calamity howler who is continually talking down American values, American institutions and American prospects.

There is plenty of room of course in any government of public opinion for reasoned criticism. Ninety per cent of the criticism which emanates from demagogues, doctrinaires and peeudo-improvers in general is, however, destructive in character and proceeds from no honest desire to effect social, political or individual betterment. Politicians in search of votes, newspapers hot after circulation, professors and preachers with the itch for notiriety, authors eager to produce best-sellers, affect the pose of reform in many instances only in order that they may foist their wares on the public they harm with their continual knocking.

The doctrine "Everything that is, is wrong," is just as senseless as the dogma "Everything that is, is right." People with schemes for economic, social and political change seem to feel in most instances that it is first up to them to demonstrate that there is no value in existing institutions and systems, and that the American masses are being swindled and exploited without stint, while an indifferent, stupid or wicked government stands by indifferent to the sufferings of the downtrodden proletariat.

The American farmer is the principal victim of this type of critic. Because American agriculture was not in as prosperous a state as industry in general following the deflation after the World War, self appointed apostles of the farmer, most of them ambitious politicians out to boost themselves, deliberately cried down the farming business until the biggest loss sustained by the farmer was not in current operations but in the destruction of land values and consequent loss of credit. How could it be expected that farm lands would not sink in value when several hundred thousand supposed friends of the farmer in the United States were insisting that farming was a no-account, unprofitable, bankrupt, and hopeless business? The loss to the farmers of the United States through this sort of advertising runs into the billions of dollars, and has resulted in thousands of farm foreclosures because of the decline of underlying farm values through this persistent "bear" pressure.

The fact that industrial securities in the United States have reached high price levels seems to worry many politicians and economists. It does not take much research to discover that at the bottom of this unprecedented prosperity, based upon increased volume of production and consumption in the United States. The record of American growth in wealth during the past few years is an amazing story. It could not be possible except for the fact that we have a more generally diffused prosperity than any other country in the world, which gives to the American masses both a producing and a consuming power beyond the dreams of any other period in the world's history.

There are signs that the people are getting tired of the caterwaulings of the political, journalistic, clerical and professional demagogues. The people know that our economic and social system has not attained perfection; they also know that the critics are not perfect or capable of creating perfection. They would be perfectly satisfied if those who find it uncomfortable in the United tSates would go elsewhere. The United States of America is a huge success—so big a success that the destructive type of critic can not comprehend it, and is really irritated that something he didn't start and does not control can get along so well without his hand being at the helm.

But the greatest damage done by the cynical, snarling critics is that they create among millions a psychology of discontent and therefore of unhappiness. Achievement is the fruit of hopefulness and courage, not of despair and cowardice. The chronic snarleyows create the psychology of failure. It is unfortunate that a prescription can not be found for their extermination.

If present fashions keep up it won't be long until they will have the last of the red flannel petticoats in a glass case at the Smithsonian Institution.

FALL FOREST FIRE SEASON IS AT HAND

Montgomery, Aug. 31.—The fall fire season is at hand, says the State Commission of Forestry. Already serious outbreaks have occurred in Walker and Fayette Counties, with smaller fires popping up in other portions of the state.

Dry weather and the presence of many people in the woods mean a tremendous increase in the fire hazard. Typical Alabama weather includes progressively less rainfall from July through August and September, reaching the minimum monthly amount in October. A very large number of people in quest of recreation and sport take to the woods at this time of year, compounding the danger due to dry weather. Needless to say, every landowner and every recreationist, as well as the citizens in general, should be extremely careful not to drop cigarettes without first carefully extinguishing them.

The late summer and fall is an exceedingly dangerous time to burn over pastures or to set rubbish or clearing fires of any kind. The winds are almost certain to spread sparks from such fires to additional ground which is not intended to be burned. Every year the damage from such sources amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The young folks may dress like freaks today in the opinion of their elders, but that isn't a circumstance to the laugh daughter gets when she looks over mother's old picture album of twenty years ago.

It is nearing the time of year when the tired business man, returning from his summer outing will begin wondering whether his wife has sufficient sense of humor to appreciate that moonlight romance with the dizzy beach blonde, in case she finds out about it.

Bootleg gin, seized by the officers is being sprayed around the Washington D. C. police station to exterminate vermin. This is all right if it doesn't eat the plastering off the walls, too.

Things even up after all. We may still have a few biased sectionalists in the land, but when a biased Yankee and a biased Southerner marry the result is apt to be a family of unbiased American youngsters.

The office doesn't often seek the man in these modern days but the officer frequently has to do it.

It is said that before long the aeroplane students in colleges will be holding college meets the same as football games. The question then is going to be to arrange things so that the contesting flyers can hear the cheer-leaders down below.

Early to bed and early to rise might make the modern youth healthy and wealthy but he doesn't think it will make him as wise as staying up late.

We've always felt that something should be done about the fellow who puts the signs along the public highway that read "death is on your trail" and "the end is just around the corner," etc. It's ten to one he never drove an automobile.

PAINS Went Away

"I WAS very much run-down in health. I had a dreadful ache across the middle of my back. I had a dull, tired feeling, and I dreaded the thought of having to do my household tasks. I was tired when I got up in the morning. I got no rest from my sleep, and I was sleepy all day long.

"My husband got a bottle of Cardui for me. It was not long before I began to show a decided improvement. My strength began to return and I felt much more like myself. The sleepy spells gradually quit and the pains in my back and sides disappeared.

"Cardui is a splendid tonic for women. I proved it for myself."—Mrs. J. E. Shelley, Box 22, R. F. D. 1, Electra, Texas.
